The senate is always counted upon invariably the house ways and means committee reports some schedules that are indefensibly low in order to have something to trade on in conference.

It is not expected by anybody that free wool and sugar will be changed by the genate, but a number of items in various schedules will be changed.

Republicans of the senate leaper eagerly into their fight against th Underwood tariff bill when it wa cipitated an issue by attempting to override the decision of the demobrats to consider the measure without public hearings.

While Senator Smith kept the floor Senators Reed, James, Smoot, Works, Thomas and Hitchcock entered into an argument that turned away from sugar to the manufacture of furniture and then back again to sugar. Senator James said he would prefer to have the sugar "monopoly" bought by money from the treasury of the United States than to give it permission to continue "to rob the people." Senator Thomas got into an argument again by stating that Syrians, Japanese. Chilose, Mexican peons and other foreigners were employed in the western beet fields, and that the usual wage paid was about 20 centra 'day. wage paid was about 20 centr a day

Senator Smoot denied this.

Senator Hitchnek wanted to know why the furniture manufacturers of Michigan were afraid of the proposed tariff on their products, and Senator Smith replied that they feared compe with furniture built in Europe with cheaper labor.

RAINER THAN HIT MAN

Rather than run into a man descending from a wagon, Call Officer J.

P. Born ran his motorcycle into a street car on Decatur street early Friday morning. and was thrown several yards. He escaped unhurt, except for bruises. He was answering a call, and attempted to pass the street car. Just as he was about to do so, John Wallace, of East Point, stepped from a wagon beside the car, making it impossible for the policeman to pass. He was unable to stop his machine in time, and therefore jammed it into the rear of the car.

CINCINNATI CARMEN GO ON STRIKE TODAY

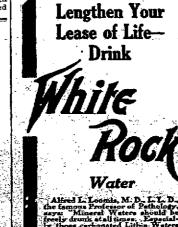

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 9.—A strike order calling out Cincinnati street car men, effective at 9 o'clock tonight, was modified tonight by an order for all men to finish their night runs. Consequently conditions tonight were normal, but carmen say few cars, if any, will leave the barns in the morning. Crowds gathered at the various barns tonight, but there was no violence. The carmen here recently were organized and one of the demands is recognition of the union. Company officials refused to meet employees' representatives.

denominations of the state, decided this morning after organizing the convention, to visit the Georgia-Tech baseball game. There was one dissenting vote. Many of the Baraca classes of young men in the cities have their ball teams and their summer series of scheduled games, and their interest in ball playing was genuine and not out of harmony with the general plan of Baraca classes.

The first delegations arrived last night and established headquarters to pul! for the convention to meet in Augusta in 1914. An hour after the Augusta crowd, 38 strong, arrived. big hunch came in from Macon and the contest began at once, Macon also wanting the convention. This morning Atlanta delegates were wearing tags with a rival message to Augusta's and Macon's "Meet me in Atlanta in

"PARADISE LOST AND REGAINED," SUBJECT OF SERMONS SUNDAY

"Paradise Lost—The Tragedy of Sin" will be the subject of Dr. Dunbar Ogden's sermon Sunday morning at the Central Presbyterian church, and in the evening he will carry out the same line of thought in a different aspert, his subject being "Paradise Regaine? -The Triumph of Salvation."

Dr. Ogden has just returned from Knexviie. Tenn., where he spent several days in conference with the religious leaders of that place on the subject of vice crusades. After addressing a union mean meeting Sunday afternoon, Dr. Ogden made a second address on Henday morning before a meeting of the Church Federation of Knoxwiie. of the Blind here.

Done for Unfortunates.

Savannah, Ga., May 3.—(Special.)—
The Associated Charities of Savannah was scored in police court today by Simon N. Gazan, a lawyer representing a 15-year-old white girl charged with the theft of a bicycle. The arraignment of the charities and of the state created a sensation. Miss Helen Pendleton, secretary of the charities, was not permitted to reply in court to Gazan's attack.

"To raise money for any poor unfortunate I would rather beg for it from the crowds on Broughton street than to get a cent from the Associated Charities," said Mr. Gazan.

"She is too old to go before the Juvenile court, and it would be wrong to send her to jail. It is a crying shame that there is not some institution in the nature of a girls' home or reformatory to which she could be sent.

This city has provided no such place, yet $20,000 of Savannah's money can be spent to send to New York to arrange for an automobile road race.

"The state has provided no such institution, yet the cities throughout Georgia can. like Savannah, afford to spend money freely for things like road races, grand opera and music fersituation.

"Whatever you do, don't turn her over to the Associated Charities. Three weeks ago I called the attention of the charities to the girl's condition, but they did nothing. The girl is more ragged, more destitute, more hopeless now than she was then.

"But what can you expect from the Associated Charities?"

"They file records and make reports and investigate, and investigate som more while the victims of their 'charity' starve!"

The girl was romanded to the custody of her lawyer.

The girl was remanded to the custo-dy of her lawyer.

TARIFF IN THE SENATE.

With the overshadowing passage of tariff revision downward in the house of representatives the democratic platform is one step nearer fulfillment. The measure now goes to the senate. It is there it will encounter its most formidable obstacles, and that the fabric of democratic strength will be decisively tested.

Authoritative reports from senate democratic leaders are to the effect that they expect confidently to put the bill through virtually as it came from the house. They admit that the two senators from Louisiana may bolt or at least be troublesome on the sugar schedule. But even allowing for their adverse votes, the measure can still be enacted, and it is denied that accessions from the ranks of the wool senators imperil the bill's prospects.

From a distance these assertions look to be well founded. The country and the rank and file of the party will hope that such proves to be the case. The country, because it has given its mandate for revision downward and has its mind made up thoroughly to the changed economic system, that revision will entail. The party, because on the fate of the tariff bill in the will, in all likelihood, depend its own. If the party keeps faith and "delivers the goods" on this measure, it can with certainty look forward to materializing other features of its program and to retaining the confidence of the nation. It is, therefore, an acid test that the party faces with the transfer of the bill to the upper branch.

One change the senate should make and that is with regard to exemption of mutual life insurance companies in the tax feature of the income tax clause. As The Constitution has shown, fraternal life insurance and mutual savings bank concerns are already extempted. Mutual life insurcent. There is no difference in principle between the fraternal life companies and the mutual life insurance companies. Taxing the latter I per cent, is a flagrant discrimination, for the 1 per cent tax would be taken off the dividends of hundreds of thousands of mutual life policyholders with incomes less than $4,000, which the bill says shall be exempt. It is to be hoped both house and senate will rectify the original error in the bill in the interest of the poor man's pocket.

MORGAN LOOMS YET LARGER.

"Tailer he seems in death" was said of an ancient king whom, the story runs, had wrought greatly upon the events of his day. The saying applies pertinently to Pierpont Morgan. It required the death of the man to demonstrate the esteem in which he was held, not only by this country, but by the world-at-large. The remarkable preamble to his will, bearing unchallengeable witness to the abiding religious nature of the man, deepened the impression. And now comes George Harvey, editor of "Harper's," with further testimony to his breadth and pairiotism.

Colonel Harvey told a convention of bankers in New York city that just before the day Morgan sailed upon the journey rom which he was not to return alive, he ad given to him (Harvey) the final proof a great and far-seeing spirit. They had n discussing the economic affairs and politics of America in a broad sense. Morgan was a republican in politics, be did not, Colonel Harvey says, favor of the doctrines of Mr. Wilson. Yet, see what he told Harvey. "When you see Mr. Wilson," the financier said, "tell him for me that if ever there should come a time when he thinks any influences or resources that I have can be used for the country, they are wholly at his disposal."

A man who possessed, like this, the larger view, who could at will disregard his own beliefs and prejudices for the welfare of his country, is a true patriot. His toleration and breadth offer a fine example to Americans of every station and walk of

REFER IT 10 THE HAGUE.

When a man is in public life shall he adhere to his hard-and-fast "tee-total" conviction at the expense of his guests or shall he bow gracefully to custom? Secretary of State Bryan has sent that question wigwagging around the diplomatic circles of the world. His famous "grape juice" dinner has gone into history. He told the diplomatists whom he had invited to his board, it will be remembered, that the father and mother of both himself and Mrs. Bryan had never served wine on the table. He asked his guests if they would not respect his convictions and assuage their thirsts with grape juice made cunningly to sparkle like "the real thing."

Some of our London contemporaries have since been referring to "grape juice diplomacy," and, in more ribald vein, to "Wishy Washington." Even on the continent the frisky Parisian journals are waxing facetious at the secretary's expense, and the ponderous serman humorists have launched their neaviest bolts. George Harvey intimates, naively, that the parents and parents of Secretary and Mrs. Bryan may have unconsciously "overlooked a good bet," and rises to inquire if a host does not violate the rules of hospitality when he forces his convictions on his guests instead of deferring to their convic-

We move that this weighty and intricate controversy be referred to The Hague tri bunal, with power to act. With Mexico and Japan and Central America already on our hands, this country doesn't want all civilization baying at its heels for the unutterable cruelty of imposing drought on thirsty ambassadors.

TYPHOID AND VACCINATIONS

The New York board of health has taken a step that is likely to be followed by similar bodies throughout the country, and that is to warn urbanites about to depart on a vacation to take full precautions against disease, especially typhoid fever. It is pointed out that with the close each autumn of the outing season s general revival of typhoid is witnessed. This is attributed to the fact that the patients contract the disease at illy-kept resorts and develop it after their return

The conditions noted in New York are duplicated practically in every part of the country. Physicians of Atlanta, for instance, declare that every fall they antick pate an unusually large rate of typhoid originating not in this city but in resorts and developed after the patient returns home. Evidently, in the face of a situation of this nature, the most perfect sanitation in Atlanta would not ward off typhoid. We could swat the fly and enforce every sanitary ordinance without affecting this autumn epidemic, as long as our people go to resorts where all the home precautions are nullified.

The remedy adopted in New York, typhoid vaccination, will prove effectual anywhere. Vaccination against the fever has been virtually established by science as a pure preventive. Experiments in the are conclusive, and those subsequently conducted by civilian physicians bear out the experience of the army surgeons. It will also be remembered that vaccination was used as one of the foremost weapons to prevent an epidemic of typhoid following the floods in the middle west. The expense is small, comparatively. and the discomfort almost negligible. Certainly neither of these items are comparable to the sense of security against one of the most insidious and dangerous of diseases.

Employing vaccination, the prospective vacationer can enjoy his outing with an easy mind. The real and permanent remedy for typhoid, of course, as for other diseases, is through sanitation and educational campaigns. should tended to the rural districts, until the war against disease shall be as relentless in country as in city. In the meantime, vaccination offers as sure a safeguard against typhoid fever as medical science is the to devise.

Gossip Caught in Corridors Of the National Capitol

Washington, May 9 .- (Special.) - Secretary of the Navy Duniels believes that the place for rear admirals and captains and other officers of the navy is with the fleet. Too many naval officers of high rank have not had the experience in the actual service that he thinks desirable, and during his administration he will follow the rule in promotions of recognising long service in pres-ent grade as reason for such preference as can many more officers in the navy register than there are actual posi-tions for with the col-ors, but much administrative work is done by those on shore, in the John Corrigan, Jr. ing stations and at headquarters in Washington. Shore duty proves decidedly attractive for naval officers, especially details in Washington, New York and other big cities where there is much social life, and unless there is a shake-up at regular intervals some officers are unduly favored in this respect.

There is no Georgia officer in the navy above the rank of captain. Here is the sea record of the captains and Heutenant com-manders credited to the state:

Captain William Nelson Little, appointed n 1872. Has had sixteen years duty at sea. In inspection duty in bureau of steam engineering and ordnance since June, 1908. Captain William Shepard Benson, now sea in command Since his appointment in 1872 has had twenty-one years and ten months at sea. Captain James Harrison Oliver, commanding the battleship New Hampshire. Has had twenty-two years and ten months sea duty since his appointment in 1873. Captain Marbury Johnston, commanding the battleship Georgia. Was appointed in 1878, and has been twenty years at sea sinct. He was assigned to the Georgia in November, 1911, Commander George Franklin Cooper was appointed to the navy in 1872, and has had seventeen years' sea duty, but since May, 1912, has been detailed as a hydrographer.

Commander Stanford Elwood Moses, engineer officer at the navy yard, Norfolk, since October, 1911. Has had fourteen years sea duty since his appointment in 1888.

Lieutenant Commander Richard Spences Douglas, now commanding the Glacier. Has Deen lifteen years at sea.

Lieutenant Commander Frank Hardeman Brumby, inspection officer at the navy yard, Norfolk. Has been fourteen years at sea since his appointment in 1891. Lieutenant Commander George Loring

Porter Stone, now on the receiving ship at Norfolk. Has been to sea twelve years and two months since 1900. Lieutenant Commander William Herbert Reynolds, of the bureau of steam engineer ing. Has been to sea eleven years and five months since 1893. Lieutenant Commander Charles Perry Burt, now on inspection duty in the bureau of ordnance at Norfolk, who was recently reinstated to the service. Has had twelve years and two months at sea since 1892. Lieutenant Commander Hayne Ellis, now in charge of the navy recruiting station at Kansas City. Has had ten years service at sea since 1896.

Lieutenant Commander Ciark Howell Woodward, commanding the second group of the torpedo flotilla of the Atlantic fleet. Has had twelve years and nine months at sea since 1895.

He thinks there are too many retired rear admirals, and in criticlsing the administration of the navy depart-ment, says it costs $18,000 to send one officer through the naval academy at Annapolis. Here is what Mr. Howard has to say:

"It looks very much as if the secretary of the navy had first-hand information about the 'swivel-chair admiralty' before he was confirmed as a member of the president's official family.

"He is to be congratulated by the entire country for the firm position he has taken to break up the 'naval ring.' who have actually dictated the naval policy of the government for the last sixteen years, by sending them to see with their crews and aboard their vessels where they belong: "You are introduced here and there to

New News of Yesterday Hew Peter Cooper's Prophecy Has

(Copyright, 1913, for The Constitution.) One October afternoon in 1875 I spent an hour or two with Peter Cooper at his home in New York city. He was at that time 88 years of age. While his years caused him to be somewhat bowed at the shoulders and made it necessary for him to walk with rather cautious steps, his mind seemed to be as active as that of a young man, and I observed that in much that he said he main tained that characteristic of youth which is the tendency to look constantly into the future and to pay no beed to the past.

Mr. Cooper narrated to me the manner in which he built what was believed to be the first locomotive engine constructed and put into actual use in the United States. This was done, he said, at about the time George Stephenson built the famous locomotive named the Rocket, which was the first to haul a train over an iron-track rall-

"I have seen in my long life many won-derful things," said Mr. Cooper. "I have seen an engine constructed capable of hauling several coaches at a speed of twentyfive miles an hour operated by steam, and have some part in the marvelous change which have been caused by the invention of the steam railroad locomotive."

I reminded Mr. Cooper that his name would always be associated traditionally with that of Cyrus W. Field, Marshall O. Roberts and a few other Americans in the .conception, the financing and the construction of the Atlantic cable. Mr. Cooper seemed to be pleased that I should have recalled that circumstance.

He said that from the time Professor Morse, with whom he had intimate personal acquaintance, had invented his apparatus for conveying intelligible symbols instantly and for a long distance through a wire conductor he, Cooper, never doubted the feasibility of a plan to connect Europe and America cable so constructed as to convey intelligible signals on the instant from one side of the Atlantic to another.

Atlantic to another.

"But the wonders which I have been permitted to see," he said, "are certain to be surpassed by and by. I often tell my family that, while I cannot expect to live long enough to see it, nevertheless some of them. I am sure, will live to see the sit conquered by machines as the ocean has been conquered by the Atlantic cable.

"For I am absolutely convinced that the time is coming when the air above us will be intelligently and successfully navigated by some apparatus as is the ocean. We are certain some day to have a navigable air

"I have very often thought this. If heavy body like a wild goose or an eagle or the condor can fly or perfectly balance itself in the air above us, notwithstanding the fact that it is heavier than air, there is no reason why apparatus which imitates the skeleton structure of a bird and the means by which it poises or propels itself through the air cannot be invented."

I asked Mr. Cooper why this had not aleady been done.

"Simply because the engine or the machinery which furnishes power by which an air machine may be driven and havigated yet to be invented," he replied. "Som an of science will discover by and by very light and yet very effective tool. When that discovery has been made some other inventor will know how to apply this new tool to a light and yet very strong engine. I have sometimes thought that possibly the solar engine upon which Mr. Ericsson has so long worked would furnish the means by which energy could be stored in sufficient quantities to drive and navigate an air machine.

"I venture to make the prophecy that just as soon as a fuel which is light in body and which does not require a large receptacle, and which contains potential energy is discovered an air flying and navigating chine will be invented, and after it has been thoroughly developed it will become a highly important commercial agent."

Peter Cooper said this to me twenty years before the invention of the internal combustion engine with gasoline as a fuel had been perfected.

too many friends in congress to break up this absurd policy of our government.

"Let us carry the present situation : step further. The 'small navy' advocates hurl into the teeth of 'big navy' champions a situation. 'Why build more ships when the department admits that it has not enough officers to man the ships we now have affoat and under construction. Where are In Washington, serenely these officers? helding down the 'swivel-chair,' or on the retired list for 'physical disability' with the rank of 'rear admiral.' The physical disability caused by a nervous breakdown from performing unusual social duties 'incident to the service in Washington, or from physical exhaustion caused by chasing senators to assist them in securing a 'soft snap' at hear-

"The captain in the service affoat remains a captain so long as he is affoar, with a cap-tain's pay; the moment he gets to the swivcl-chair harbor he is promoted to the next higher grade, and when you meet Captain Jones he will beg your pardon and luform you that you now talk to Admiral Jones.

"Over one hundred admirals on the retired list. Think of it! It makes me blush for our navy-when I take a glance at our naval history and see such great sea-fighters as John Paul Jones, Perry, Decatur, Farragut and others, were only ranked as cantains.

"The naval academy is maintained at a cost of approximately $18,000 per graduate productes are trained for rervice sea. Yet we, under our present policy, take them out of the very service they were trained to perform and put them in office in Washington or in a naval yard.

"Right in this connection let me say about the naval academy. sion is allowed between the ages of 16 and 21. Inst the other day out of a class of 219 only 46 passed the mental examination. The curriculum is so unreasonable for boys of this age picked from the districts through out the country that it is an absurdity. The boys are usually poor and ambidious. They are not supposed to be college professors this age, but I will venture the assertion that I can pick one hundred college profes sors from the leading colleges of the country and 70 per cent of them would fail to pass this mental examination. No wonder there appointments. If they keep up this foolishness the roys from the country districts whose fathers are inside to send them to the 'coaching schools' before standing this examination ought to be told to stay at home

The World's Mysteries

THE ELEUSINIAN MYSTERIES.

For centuries wise men have been employed in trying to fathou the secret of the mysteries of Eleusia, but without success. They presume that these were the greatest mysteries of antiquity for the reason that they have found temples, inscriptions and figures of every character celebrating them, but even at the time the rites existed those who were not initiated into the mysteries were not aware of what they signified, and one of the most exacting of the rules was that no one was allowed to reveal what was

These mysteries were in some way con-nected with the religion of the ancient Greeks. Even the most ingenious of the speculators were only able to conjecture as to what was represented or intended. The view preveiled for a long time that the mysteries concealed deep truths and the remnants of a primitive revelation too profound for the popular mind.

These mysteries were conducted at various places, but those at Agra and at Eleusis were the most important, the latter overshadowing those of the former and were called the Great Mysteries. These mysteries are first treated in the Homeric hym Demeter and when the investigators set to work to explain the meaning of this hymn, they were able to associate it with the pictures and inscriptions which they found in such profusion throughout Greece The origin of these mysteries is uncontain popular tradition was that Demeer while searching for her daughter Persephone, came to Attica, where she taught the inhabitants the use of corn and instituted the mysteries. The most import ant of the celebrations were held at Eleusis in October following the leaser mysteries which were held at Agra the previous spring. The celebration lasted nine days, each day having its own significance which today can only be approximated.

The first day those who had been previously initiated at Agra assembled at Athens. On the second day they walked to the sea in procession and were purified. The third day appears to have been a day of feasting, and, appears to have been a day of reasting, and, according to some authorities, sacrifices of fish and cakes of barley from the Rarian plain were offered. On the fourth day the procession of the sacred basket took place. This basket contained pomegranates and poppy seeds, and was drawn on a cart by oxen, and followed by women bearing mys-tic cases. The fifth day appears to have been known as torch day, and probably symbolized the search of Demeter for Persephone. The mystae walked with torches to the temple of Demeter at Eleusis, where they seem to have remained all night. The sixth day, called Iakchos, from a son of Demeter, was the most solemn of all. A decorated statue of Iakchos was carried from Athens to Elcusis, where the votaries again passed the night and were initiated oath of secreey they were admitted into the liner sanctuary, where they were allowed to see the sacred things, after which they were called watchers.

On the seventh day they returned to Athens with jests and music, resting at the bridge over the Cephisus, where they ridiculed all who passed. The eighth day is supposed to have been added to the original number so that those might be initiated who were unable to attend on the sixth day. On the ninth or last day, two vessels filled with wine or water were emptied—one toward the east and the other toward the west by the priests, who at the same time uttered some mystical words.

Besides these ceremonies, there were several others, of which the Eleusinian games, supposed to have taken place on the seventh day, and to have been the most ancient in Greece, were the chief. The Emperor Theodosius suppressed the festival.

Nothing certain is known respecting the doctrines revealed to the initiated, but they vere supposed to have contained a comforting assurance with regard to a future state. Distinction of classes were abolished at the Eleusinia, and with this view Lycurgus forbade any woman to ride in the procession in a chariot under penalty of a heavy crime. It seems strange that nothing definite is known regarding the import of this celebra-tion, in view of its very wide popularity and the great number engaged.

Ponderous Personages JAMES MONROE By GEORGE FITCH Anthor of "At Good Old Siwash"

(Copyright, 1913, for The Constitution.)

James Monroe was the fifth president of United States, and was the only president who was ever re-elected without causing apoplexy to the opposition.

James Monroe was born in Virginia, in Westmoreland county, which produced most of our early presidents, and has produced very little since, owing to the bashfulness of railroads about entering it. Monroe was the son of rich parents, and went to William and Mary college, where he spent his time in study, thus proving that a young man can become president, even if he neg-lects athletics and other college activities. He was wounded in the revolution, and in 1788 became a delegate to the continental congress at the age of 25. He was minister to France, and governor of Virginia afterward, and finally drove the biggest land bargain on record. In 1803 he picked up Lou-isiana for $15,000,000, it being cheap at 100 times the amount. Later on, when president he picked up Florida. He was an inveterate shopper.

Monroe would never have been president but for the shortness of human memory After he had negotiated the Great Britain treaty of 1808, he was so unpopular that men named Monroe declined to brag about their relationship to him, and he retired to Virginia, presumably for life. Yet in 1811 he was elected governor again, and 1813 became secretary of state. He became president with scarcely a struggle in 1817, and kept everybody so good-natured that four years later nobody took the trouble to get out lithographs and become a candidate scalar him. treaty of 1808, he was so unpopular that men

Monroe is chiefly famous for the Monroe doctrine, which was a "keep off the grass" sign, which he stuck on the Western Hemis-

know now whether the advocates of the greater naval policy mean a 'highland navy a 'water navy.'

"My honest judgment is the president has made a most excellent selection in naming Mr. Daniels as secretary of the navy.

"He is a thorough democrat. Plain and outspoken: painstaking and alert; a man of unquestioned business sagacity. No frills or trimmings. He would as soon cut a new roed as to follow a beaten nath. No man in the cabinet has a greater opportunity than Mr. Daniels to demonstrate his executive qualifications or do the American usople a greater service by a complete reorganization of our naval policy. Unless this is done, the appeals for a greater navy will fall upon deaf ears... The representatives of the people are getting sick and tired of this combination between the 'swivel-chair admiralty and the ship-building lobbyists who have succeeded in lighting a great haval bat-tic with some one of the great powers of the earth Just before the yaval committee makes up the hudget for the ensuing year."

A Story of the Moment

By WALT MASON
The Famous Prose Poet.

The Trouble With Dogs "Where did you get that hyena that's been following you around for two or three days?" inquired the hotelkesper. "Don't call this beautiful creature a hyena, or I'll punch your head," replied the retired merchant, politely. "This is a thoroughbred retriever, and I paid a high price for him. The man who doesn't love a good dog is fit for treason, stratagems. and spoils." "And the man who keeps a dog in town is a moral degenerate. If you want to own a dog you should go to some uninhabited island and take the doggone peast w'th you. A dog's all right in theory. He is man's faithful friend, and all that sort of thing, and he rescues perishing travelers whenever there's a snowstorm, and plunges into the raging billow to save dying mariners. I've read a million beautiful stories about the devotion of bow-wows, and I used to believe them, but now I have no respect for a dog until he becomes wienerwurst. 'If it hadn't been for a fool web-footed dog I might be living in a palace now, with vassals and serfs by my side. I was a young man I made a great hit with the leading heiress in our town. She was an only daughter, and her father had ingots of gold and silver corded up in his cellar like stovewood. He was so rich that he couldn't see straight. He recognized my sterling worth, doggone him, and placed the seal of his approval on me. He told me in so many words that I was his idea of a flossy son-in-law. Encouraged by such remarks. I made up my mind to propose to the lovely Isabelia, and one Sunday afternoon I invited her to take a walk with me in the woods. I knew that would be an elegant place to propose, for people are always romantically inclined when they are in the woods, with the branches sighing over them, and the dippy birds singing like all get out.

"She was all dressed in white and looked like one of the angels you read about. I don't think I ever saw anything more at-tractive than that girl. I had a dog in those tractive than that girl. I had a dog in those days. It was a four-legged critter that was horn without aby brains. It was always doing some idiotic thing, and I might have known that it would cause trouble when it followed us to the woods. We rambled followed us to the woods. We rambled around under the lordly sycamores for a while, and then we came to a little pond. We stood on the shore, and while she gazed pensively at the water I began explaining that life without her would be a bore. I that life without her would be a bore. I had prepared my address in advance and it was one of the best efforts of my life, and as I warmed up to my work, consulting my notes occasionally to refresh my memory, I could see out of the corner of my eye that I was making a good impression.

"Meanwhile that feeble-minded dog was swimming around in that dark gray, greasy water, and just as I was approaching my peroration the blamed brute came ashore, It stepped right in front of the girl and

It stepped right in front of the girl and It stepped right in front of the girl and shook itself and fifteen gallons of muddy water fiew all over her. She was a sight to be seen. I kicked three lungs out of that doe, but that didn't help any. The girl just stood there looking at me in a tone of voice that would have melted a graven image, and when I tried to apologize and explain she broke her parasol over my head. She never spoke to me again and I came near dying of a broken heart.

"Just as soon as you get a dog your troubles begin to arrive. If they don't come to one form they will in another. Your in one form they will in another. Your neighbors will despise you for keeping a beast that kills their chickens and keeps them awake all night. In six months you won't have a friend within three blocks of your home. And sooner or later your dog; will go mad and bite you, and you'll begin: frothing at the mouth, and the doctors will chain you to a tree and feed you with a pitchfork. Take my advice and give that wolvering to some poor widow who has a string of children to support."

ontention, should it come to a show down.

Upon investigation it is learned that the idea of removal is not contemplated by the board of directors. It is stated at the station that the board of directors in an informal discussion prior to their annual meeting considered the rumors afloat regarding the removal, and that the general trend of their opinion is against such a movement. Each director was in harmony with that sentiment, and in the regular bishness session one member who formerly had introduced a bill to remove the station stated that he would never again do so, but would from now on fight such a bill.

Another indication of the board's sentiment in the matter is the vote cast for the election of a new station director to succeed Calvin. Fifteen votes were cast for the two candidates nominated, and of that number Deboach is backed by Dr. A. M. Soule, and that further it is known that Dr. Soule's pet scheme is to remove the station, the narrow margin of his man's election is to be taken as an index of the feeling of the board in the situation.

But many families receiving less than a living wage must live within cheerless walls.

And this, you know---

When their girl is lost, fathers and mothers are not consoled by the thought that, had their wage been greater they could have saved her from the colorless, gloomy home which made her the more easily believe the luring lies of an easier way to live.

"Better had she died," you cry.

True! But you will not defend the hovel and the wage.

You recall:

"The day-spring from on high hath visited

"To give light to them that sit in darkness and in the shadow of death, to guide our feet in the way of peace."

And so, when some misguided man says:

"Segregate a few women for the common

You answer:

"Who shall choose the victims?

"Since when did God give man the right to assign some to mansions in the skies and send others to lodgings in hell?"

You justly say:

"Have done with the lie that men being lower than beasts makes necessary the ruin of some women!"

Even should a creature, like the fabled Minotaur of Crete, more monster than man, appear, you will not talk of sacrificing girls for Instead, you will lock up the brute.

Segregate him in a cell; that would be well.

The day has past for the making and selling of white slaves in our city.

God's pity for His children is opening your eyes and ears.

You will help your sister. Never again will you consent by silence to her destruction. Heaven help the man who thinks you will.

You are awake. "You believe in God."

Considerable Opposition in the Senate to Hurry Legislation During Exta Session

Weshington. May 9.—Details of the currency program for the house and sehate will be discussed at a conference of congressional leaders with President Wilson. Considerable opposition has developed particularly in the senate, to the proposal to hurry currency legislation at the extra session, and the leaders will endeavor to ascertain just how far the president desires to go and how far his wishes can be met in the present legislative session.

Up to this Represensative Underwood has been of the opinion that while the currency question might be taken up at the present session, no attempt should be made to put through a complete bill until the new tariff has gone into effect. A similar opinion obtains in the senate.

In its infancy, advertising was regarded as a game of chance. Men tossed in their money blindly and trusted to luck to pull it back with winnings.

Advertising today is almost a science. Trained men who know its laws can foretell with reasonable certainty what the results from an advertising campaign are likely

We know now that advertising is only salesmanship on paper—the cleaner its appearance the quicker it attracts—the more sincere its message, the greater its influence.

Published in The Constitution, this kind of advertising brings returns that amaze the uninitiated. Examination of conditions shows as the reasons, the honest message of an honest merchant printed in an honest morning paper that enters the homes of and is read by wide-awake people of every class.

SOCIETY TO BE FORMED FOR STUDY OF CANCER

Washington, May 9.—Plans for formation of a society for the study and prevention of cancer were annuared here today by Frederick L. Hoffman, a director of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, which closed its annual meeting here today. The new health body will work along lines already found effective by the tuberculosis fighters, much of the effort being of an educational nature.

Mr. Hoffman announced there would be meeting in New York next week of a committee to formulate definite plans for the socie.

This year in the United States 75,000 persons will die from cancer and in the civilized world a half million, according to figures given out by Mr. Hoffman. The death rate from the disease, eritain known factors make the work of prevention to some extent possible. He added that form carsets worn by women, heat on the lips from the stem of a clay pipe, growths caused by tar by those in the pitch industry, the eating of too much food and brook trout, are among known and probable causes of the disease.

Washington, May 2.—The board of regents of the Mount Vernon Ladies' association began its annual meeting today at Mount Vernon, with 27 members present to take part in the tenday session. Miss Harriet Clayton Comegys, the regent, submitted her annual report at the opening meeting, outlining the work of the association during the past year.

Restoration of the home of Washington practically has been completed. Miss Comegy's reported. By degrees the Mount Vernon shelves are being filled with books and papers that belonged to Washington. Reports showing in detail the condition of the ertire estate were presented by Superintendent Harrison H. Dodge and his assistant.

Chief Justice White, John Pierpont Morgan and Edwing Warfield have been added to the Mt. Vernon advisory board.

(At the Atlanta.)

This aftennoon Miss Billy Long and company will be seen in "The Girl From Out Yonder," at a 25-cent matinee. Tonight will be the last performance of this popular play, which has been received with more enthusians than anything produced to date by the Atlanta company. Next week the company will offer a fine farce comedy in "Are You a Mason?" which has been greeked by packed audiences wherever presented. The comedy is a rare laughable play in which members of presented. The comedy is a rare laughable play in which members of the company at the Atlanta appear to particularly good advantage. Was Steady.

New York, May 9.—The cotton market showed considerable strength during today's earlier trading, but weakened in the afternoon, and closed steady, net unchanged to 4 points lower.

The opening was steady at an advance of 2 to 4 points on covering by some of yesterday's sellers, who seemed to be disappointed that the weather map showed no trace of the showers or scattering rains privately reported in the eastern belt yesterday. The eastern belt forecast for generally clear weather added to the nervousness over the new crop outlook, and while Liverpool made a somewhat indifferent showing, this was attributed to realizing for over the holidas. At any rate, the market here worked higher during the market here worked higher during the market here worked higher during the market here worked in the settle of the state of more aggressive.

Renewed reports of showers in the eastern belt were partly confirmed by the official weather deather and showers in the western belt was taken as confirming private prediction that the low barometer in the far west would work across the country, causing more or less precipitation in the belt early next week. This doubtless encouraged the late selling movement in connection with a bearish view of the week-end figures, but offerings were well enough taken by local bulls or by continued covering to give the market quite a steady undertone at the close, which was a couple of points up from the lowest.

Private cables reported that Manchester was a good buyer in Liverpool late today and there was nothing in the general news to Indicate any material channes in the southern spot market.

New York, May 9.—The absence of further rain in the Atlantic states, coupled with farerable trade advises from Liverpool, induced short covering this morning and prices advanced about 7 points. When this buying had noished, however, the market found little support upon the proness of forcial and Wall street offerings, in speculative quarters, the feeling is that tariff revision currency legislation and good crop reports militute against any sugnature advance.

New York, May 9.—Liverpool will be closed until Thesday for the Whitsunide holiclays.
Throughout the morning our market advanced, on European buying and dry weather in the Arlantic states. Afterwards the market was freely soid through Wall street houses, by 10° birs who are very ressministic over the condition of husiness. That appears to be the situation in a mished. Europe in looking for an acritic huminess, with the settlement of the many political resulting with the Baikan war Thesefore, they huy centen. America seems to he preparessed to see eight of everything in expectation of industrial depression.

Peace for all time between the United States and Great Britain was the keynote of other addresses of the eventag delivered by Lord Weardale, chairman of the English dolegation: Sir Edmund Walker, of Canada; Sir George Houstoun Reld, of Australia, and Judge George Gray, of Delaware. Tonight's function marked the last of many that have engaged the delegates have during the last week, for tomorrow they start for Boston.

More than 500 men and women, most of them of country-wide distinction, were in attendance and unstituted applause greeted all remarks that 'emphasized the cordial relations between the two nations and the cause of universal peace in general.

The enthuslastic singing of "America" and "God Save the King," was one of the features of the evening. Flags of Great Britain, the United States, Canada, Australia and Beigium, where the treaty of Ghent was signed in 1814, decorated the banquet hall.

Joseph H. Choate, former ambassador to Great Britain, acted as toastmaster. At his left sat the new British ambassador, Sir Arthur Cecli Spring-Rice, and on his right M. Da Gama, the Brazillan ambassador, dear of the diplomatic corps at Washington. Other members of the diplomatic corps. Ambassador Page, members of the foreign delegations. United States semiors, judges from several states and the governors of two were interspersed at the Speakers' table.
