Aged Man Ends Life With Shot

George B. Sickles, Formerly Wellknown in Marble Field, Evades Nurse, Goes into Bathroom, and Sends Bullet Through His Temple—Dies Instantly.

Evading the trained nurse who had spent a night's vigil at his bedside, George B. Sickles, wealthy and former president of the Georgia B. Sickles Marble company, stole into the bathroom of his home at 161 St. Charles avenue this morning shortly after 1 o'clock and put a bullet through his brain.

Death came instantly. No note of farewell was left. In fact, the first known of his act or intention was the revolver shot that broke the stillness. Miss Lulu Fraser, the trained nurse, running into the bathroom, found the body lying upon the floor.

The bullet was fired from a .38-caliber pistol. It entered the right temple, coursing through the brain. The coroner has been notified and an investigation will be made at once. An inquest will be held some time today.

Cause for Gladness

"And there was great joy in that city"

— Acts 8:8

Cause for gladness—

When a press agent in Atlanta, under date of February 2nd, sends broadcast over Georgia and sister states an article in which he says: "Atlanta has been hurt—the movement leaders have—in the public prints impugned the honesty, the decency, the morality of every Atlantian who has not seen fit to agree with them. And these men, prominent in the church, prominent in the Chamber of Commerce, prominent in the upbuilding of Atlanta, are the men whom the Men and Religion Bulletins have denounced in filthy language as fit to associate only with panders and those who gain their living from woman's shame"

When such a statement appears, we can point to the bulletins themselves, and ask, "Where does the denunciation 'in filthy language' of men prominent in the church and elsewhere appear?"

Moreover, when such screeds are being sent broadcast over the state, we can publish such editorials as the one which follows, clipped from The Elberton Star:

A PROSTITUTION OF PUBLICITY

There seems to be an organized effort among newspapers in Atlanta and more especially among the correspondents in Atlanta to other newspapers in Georgia and other states to discredit Chief of Police Beavers in his great work against open flagrant organized vice in the city. The plan adopted seems to be to overlook the mention of any good accomplished by the unprecedented crusade of the chief and to sensationalize, feature every petty infraction of the law that goes unapprehended and ensure the Chief of Police for it. We trust that we violate no confidence when we say that the Star has been requested to prostitute the use of its columns to such a campaign. It is mentioned here only for the purpose of showing our readers the foundation for the belief that such organized effort is being made.

MORE CAUSE FOR GLADNESS—

The work of the Grand Jury in bringing to light the unspeakable conditions in our convict camps.

Cruelty can exist only when people are ignorant.

When you know that, in your name as a citizen, and compensated by the taxes which you pay, men are torturing your fellowmen, you are going to put a stop to it.

You are not willingly cruel.

Hundreds of prisoners in Fulton County, and more than five thousand of them throughout the state, are beginning to hope today. The chains and the torturing strap will soon be things of the past, because you know.

CAUSE FOR SADNESS—

The action of Council and Mayor in refusing to grant the petition of the ministers of Atlanta that they not hamper the work of the Police Force by licensing violators of the law as "locker clubs."

The majority of the members of Council are members of the Church of God—

Many of them are also members of "locker clubs" and they know that in these clubs the law of Georgia has been and is being violated.

Therefore, all who think see the farce of such men—members of clubs—saying that it is not their duty, but the duty of the Police Force to prevent the violation of law.

IS IT THE DUTY OF THE MAYOR AND GENERAL COUNCIL TO PLACE OBSTACLES IN THE WAY OF THE POLICE FORCE? But even in these things is cause for gladness—

Atlantians love Atlanta. The majority of her citizens are law abiding.

Satan cannot divide them.

Make no mistake—

The members of such clubs as the Capital City, the Piedmont Driving Club, the University, and the Athletic Club are not responsible for the attacks made upon Chief Beavers in the articles sent by a press bureau from Atlanta over the country. The majority of the members of those clubs would fight to maintain the principles upon which the Chief stands, namely, fidelity to a trust, unwillingness to lie, and the fear of harming a woman and enabling a man to live by her shame.

There are those who believe that those clubs whose rolls contain the names of the GOVERNOR OF THE STATE OF GEORGIA, JUDGES OF THE SUPREME COURT AND JUDGES OF THE SUPERIOR AND OTHER COURTS, will refuse to continue violating the law which those public officials are sworn to uphold, when they realize the truth—criminals, for gain, are using them as an excuse for the continued and repeated violation of the law of Georgia.

The City and the State understand the sinister design which underlies the effort to make it appear not only in Atlanta and in Georgia, but in distant states, that Chief Beavers has failed.

If a Chief of Police can be fearless and honest and yet retain his office, the day of the end of protected vice and the liquor traffic has come.

That day is here—

It is only a question of time when the barrooms which open upon our streets and those which have moved upstairs will go in the same way that the public brothels went from our midst.

And Atlanta is glad.

Go to church tomorrow and think of these things.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF THE MEN AND RELIGION FORWARD MOVEMENT

URGES ANOTHER PROBE OF NEW HAVEN RAILROAD

Washington, February 6.—Fear of granting immunity to witnesses caused the interstate commerce commission to make an incomplete investigation of the affairs of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad. Senator Norris said today in urging passage of his resolution for a new inquiry into several features not touched upon in the recent investigation.

Senator Norris' resolution, which charges emphasizing particularly that attorneys for Morgan & Co received $15,000 for drawing the incorporation papers of $1,000 subsidiary corporation of the New Haven.

If half the information made public about the New Haven transactions is true, eight or ten persons ought to be in the penitentiary interested Senator Norris said.

A letter was received from Commissioner Prouty who investigated the New Haven saying:

On the whole I do not believe anything could be accomplished by a further investigation. I believe more could be done by a senate committee than by the commission.

Senator Norris said he had been told by a member of the house that Professor William Van Nostrand of Harvard university and who it has since been revealed, was in the pay of the New Haven, came to Washington on the same day to urge that it would be unwise to investigate New Haven affairs.

foreaken the world for her. I will sacrifice my life to keep any other man from reaping my love and affection from my hearts' desire.

(Signed) A. J. A.

For the past three weeks the dead woman and her child had been boarding with Mrs. J. J. Young, who operates a place at 84 Trinity avenue. She had moved to that address from 197 South Forsyth street at which she and her slayer had become estranged, and from which she departed in effort to avoid him.

She possessed considerable money—in fact, she was known to have a moderate income of some kind—and she and the child, Louise, by name, lived plainly. She worked, also, in the employ of the Marcus-Loeb plant just one door from the Trinity avenue boarding place. All during leisure hours she remained with the little one and at home of nights.

Tells About Separation.

To intimate occupants of the house at No. 84 she considered the secret of her separation. Her husband she said, had eloped to New Orleans six weeks back with another woman, with whom he had been going clandestinely for quite a while. She and Amosson had been married eight years or more.

Shortly after the elopement to New Orleans she received letters from him asking her forgiveness and pleading with her to let him return, writing that he had seen his folly and was justly punished by remorse. She answered that he could never come again into her life nor her child's, and demanded that he stay away from them.

Amosson said he could not recover her love with a vow of future fidelity, and the slayer began writing threats. One he declared he would return to Atlanta and kill both her and the child.

At that time she was living on South Forsyth street. Then she moved to the boarding house at 84 Trinity avenue, a secret. Somehow he managed to discover it and renewed his threatening letters. He also began accusing her of loving another which accounted for her refusal of his pleading. Last Monday she had seen his folly and was justly punished by remorse. She answered that he could never come again into her life nor her child's, and demanded that he stay away from them.

He also began accusing her of loving another which accounted for her refusal of his pleading. Last Monday she had seen his folly and was justly punished by remorse. She answered that he could never come again into her life nor her child's, and demanded that he stay away from them.

Amosson said he could not recover her love with a vow of future fidelity, and the slayer began writing threats. One he declared he would return to Atlanta and kill both her and the child.

pretty 7-year-old girl, Louise, whom the slain woman sent to relatives in Alaga, Ala., for fear of threats that had been made by her slayer.

More than two months ago the murdered couple moved with the child into the place at 197 South Forsyth. They came out of utter darkness, so far as the community knew or could ascertain, and so far as could be learned late last night from the few who knew anything of them. Six weeks ago he disappeared, leaving, it was charged by the woman, with another woman.

Said Papa Had Gone Away

He left a mere note saying she would never see him again and warning that it would be useless to attempt to trace him. The child told Mrs. Warner Patrick at the time that papa had run away like that once before, but had come back. Mrs. Patrick was a next door neighbor, living at 199 South Forsyth. She and the dead woman had been intimate friends. Mrs. Patrick had always known the two as husband and wife.

The police and detectives are baffled. The mystery anxiously awaits the scheduled arrival today of the man's father from Tennille, and the woman's sister from Alaga, for solution. W. T. Amerson, a wealthy farmer of Tennille, is positive, according to dispatches, that it is his son.

That they had been living as man and wife is certain. Occupants of the boarding house at 84 Trinity avenue, at which the woman had been living for the past week or so, say she went under the name of "Mrs. A. J. Amerson" and that she acknowledged the man who slew her to have been her husband. All her mail was addressed to Mrs. A. J. Amerson, most of which she received from the man in New Orleans. She also received numerous letters spelled "Amosson."

They had met at the corner of Pry or and Trinity only a moment previously following a separation of six weeks. She was striving to avoid him. All afternoon she had remained away from her boarding house, a block distant from the scene, in an effort to evade her slayer, with whom she refused to become reconciled because of another woman.

Less than a week ago she had sent their little girl of 7 years to relatives in Alabama. He had threatened to slay both her and the child. She was on the way home to see if a letter had come from the child. He was loitering across the street at the corner, having kept a vigil for hours in the drenching rain. She was powerless to elude him.

Note Blotted With Crimson.

In his coat pocket, blotted with crimson, was found a note explaining it all. It read:

En route to Atlanta from New Orleans I am going to look for my dear wife that I love and all I care to live for. She has disappointed me and refused to live with me. I am going to look for her and beg her to reconsider and live with me and if she refuses—well that will explain all as she has given my love for another.

I love my wife and have been true to her but she allowed one to come between her and me and persuaded her to quit me. I just cannot live without her and I have

HEALTH FORCES CRISP TO LEAVE WASHINGTON

Physicians Tell Congressman Failure to Take Rest Might Result Seriously.

By John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington, February 6.—(Special) Representative Charles R. Crisp, of Arkansas, who has been ill for several weeks, was told by his physicians today that he must leave Washington immediately for a period of rest and recuperation.

Mr. Crisp is badly run down and his physicians have advised him to drop all work immediately and go off until he can build up his constitution. They have warned him that failure to do so may have very serious consequences.

Accompanied by Mrs. Crisp and his young son, Charles, he will leave Washington on Monday and may be gone for several months, unless his improvement in the meantime warrants an earlier return.

Friends of Mr. Crisp in the house, which means practically every member of that body, were deeply distressed today to hear of his relapse, and express earnest wishes for his speedy recovery.

Just before Christmas Mr. Crisp was stricken with the grippe and was confined to his bed during most of his stay in Georgia. He recovered sufficiently to return to the capital, but was again forced to take to his bed.

SCHMIDT WON'T ALLOW HIS COUNSEL TO APPEAL

"Will Do Nothing to Prevent Fate Which Awaits Me," Says Condemned Priest.

New York, February 6.—Hans Schmidt, who was found guilty of murder in the first degree for the murder of Anna Aumuller, was seemingly content today with the verdict and declined to permit his counsel to appeal. Schmidt will be sentenced next Wednesday to die in the electric chair.

The verdict against Schmidt was rendered late yesterday, a little over two hours after the jury had retired. It seemed a great relief to the former priest, who had sat through twelve trial days as if in a daze, and always blankly staring at the courtroom wall, for his bent figure suddenly straightened and a light came into his eyes and he smiled.

Schmidt ate a hearty supper after his return to the Tombs and immediately afterwards he went to bed and fell into a sound sleep. It was when he was awakened by his counsel, Alphonse G. Koebler, that he made the announcement that he wanted no appeal.

"I am satisfied with the verdict," said Schmidt. "I would rather die today than tomorrow. I notify you that I do not wish you to appear further in my behalf and that I will not in any way assist you if you try to take the case to a higher court. I would do nothing to prevent the fate that I know awaits me."

The murder of Anna Aumuller was one of the most horrible in the criminal history of this city. Schmidt was a priest attached to St. Joseph's church, who took the girl to a flat he had fitted up.

He confessed that on the morning of September 1st he went to the house about midnight, and while she slept cut her throat and then dimly bered the body, cutting it into nine parts. These he disposed of by throwing them into the Hudson river.

OVER ROUGH SEAS CREW IS RESCUED BY BREECHES BUOY

Norfolk, Va., February 6.—Over a sea too rough for lifeboats, life savers today took off by means of breeches buoy the crew of the schooner, the H. H. Benedict, ashore south of Cape Henry. The Benedict is leaking, but apparently will be able to live many hours unless the storm sweeping the Virginia coast today grows more severe.

The Benedict went ashore late yesterday. She lies 1 1/2 miles south of Nags Head life saving station, and about 60 miles south of Cape Henry. The vessel was carrying a cargo of lumber, and had assistance. A 30-mile gale is blowing from the east, and a blinding rain increases the danger.

The Benedict was bound from Perth Amboy, N. J., for Fernandina, Fla., in register. She is a vessel of 697 tons.

COLDEST WEATHER OF YEAR EXPECTED

Temperature Will Probably Drop as Low as 20 Degrees, and Perhaps Lower, by Nightfall Today.

The Atlanta weather forecaster, Mr. Von Herrmann, states that the cold snap is sure to arrive here by night. Friday morning the temperature was 56 degrees, and for the early morning hours of Saturday the prediction is that the temperature will register around 40 to 42 degrees. But by Saturday night the temperature will have fallen to freezing, or a little below.

Saturday morning may be cloudy, but they will clear away by noon, and then the weather will continue to get colder, reaching the coldest of the year by Monday. Saturday night and Sunday will be extremely cold.

In Montana, where the cold wave started, the temperature is many degrees below zero, and this coldness is beginning to spread to the south and east. Its first upon Georgia began about mid-night Friday, when the temperature began to fall. The coldest and most severe part of the spell will arrive here Monday.

Mr. Von Herrmann states that he believes it will be the coldest weather Atlanta has had this year. Twenty-three is the lowest mark the mercury has registered this year. This mark was reached last November. The mercury will probably drop as low as 20 degrees, if not lower.

ATLANTA THE ONLY CITY IN STATE TO GET MELBA

Madame Melba will give one concert only in the state of Georgia when she is to be at the Baptist Tabernacle in Atlanta, Wednesday, February 11. The concert will be given with extraordinary success on her present American tour, so much so that her manager has prevailed upon her to give twenty concerts more than originally planned. When in New Orleans, Melba had to give two recitals in the space of one concert, of February 2, originally booked, because the crowd striving to hear her could not be accommodated.

Many who have heard the diva on her present visit claim that her voice is more beautiful than ever, and her art, if anything, greater. Mme. Melba will be assisted in her Atlanta concert by Edmund Burke, baritone, who made his reputation at the Covent Garden opera, of London, England, and by the assisting artists, Wednesday's concert will be Giarco, Mose, flautist, and Gabriel Laperriere, pianist. Seats on sale now at the Cable Piano company.

HEAVY HAILSTORM HITS GEORGIA TOWN

Buckhead, Ga., February 6.—(Special)—A terrific hailstorm passed over here at 3 30 o'clock Friday morning. The passage of the cloud from which it fell was from southwest to northeast. It was preceded by violent lightning and followed by rain, which continued to fall throughout Friday. No damage is reported except to some gardens where early vegetables are growing.

Vanderbilt's Crew Saved.

Colon, February 6.—A wireless dispatch received here that the United Fruit steamer Metapan said thirty-eight members of the crew of Frederick W. Vanderbilt's motor were on board the Metapan. The message added that the steamer would take the seniors back to the United States.

INCORPORATED CLUBS SUBJECT TO INCOME TAX

New York, February 6.—All social clubs, provided they are incorporated, are subject to the provisions of the income tax law, according to a ruling by the commissioner of internal revenue. It is supposed, Commissioner Osborn says, that congress did not intend that such societies should come within the law, but failed to exempt them through an oversight, and the result is that they are taxable.

This new turn to the income tax came about when a member of a law firm that has specialized on the income tax was asked by a client, a downtown luncheon club, for information. The attorney was sent to Washington for a ruling stating that such societies pay no dividends and is not conducted for profit.

Commissioner Osborn's ruling, made public today by the law firm, was that there is no provision in the law for the exemption of any organization except those specifically mentioned.

ATLANTA NEW YORK PARIS

The New Suits Make Their Bow

An Authentic Display of the Spring Fashions

The late winter mists of doubt are dispelled before the clear, bright radiance of spring suit styles.

Today Atlanta may see just what is what in suits for the coming season.

We have made sure that we were right and we have gone ahead.

We have gone ahead indeed by going to those makers who have the knack of originating and creating, of adapting Paris fashions to American tastes.

Styles are charming, they are a delight, their novelty is impressive. Perhaps some will say they are daring, but such is the price of change, of getting out of the beaten path.

There's a distinctive note of jaunty in suits this spring.

It is expressed in many ways.

A modernized, a Paris-ized bolero is one.

It is the outgrowth of the cutaway coat, blousy, loose fitting. At one time it has deep drop shoulders, again raglan sleeves, again kimono sleeves, perhaps a belted back, with a draped peplum. There's a fanciful touch to revers, to collars, to linings. Skirts are tiered, are in tunics, are full across the hips and narrow at the bottom. There's a notable use of plaited laces and nets in cuffs—bell shaped.

Even tailored suits do not escape this tendency. They often button across the chest and fall into loose lines.

Fabrics: Crepes head the list, wool crepes, crepe poplins, crepe sponges, and among the silk the notables are moire poplins, moire bengalines, brocade moires and plain poplins.

Colors: The blues and violets, the new chicory (a dull green) shade, tango, rose, English checks.

It is difficult to picture the distinguishing points of hundreds of different suits when each one is here because it exploits some distinguishing mark of the coming season's styles. Seeing is the thing!

GOETHALS TO APPOINT CANAL WORKING FORCE

Washington, February 6.—Organization of the Panama canal and employees to operate the Panama canal has been entrusted to Colonel Goethals, who is acting as the first governor of the canal zone April 1. Under an order by President Wilson made public today, Colonel Goethals is authorized to make appointments and fix salaries, exercising his own judgment as to the number of men who will be about 2,500. Colonel Goethals is expected to arrive in Panama in about 30 days.

The president's order prescribes in detail the conditions of employment for individuals in general accord with the present regulations, with such modifications as are deemed necessary to meet changed conditions from the actual operation of the canal.

ALLEGED SAFE BLOWERS ARE BROUGHT TO CITY

E. C. Pierce, deputy United States marshal for the southern district, brought to Atlanta Friday night two white men, Joe M. Dove and Tom Daly, who have been in the Burke county jail since blowing two safes at Green's Cut, Burke county, the first part of last December, and under indictment of the federal grand jury for robbing a postoffice shortly before that date at Douglasville.

Both men were arrested in that they were raised in the city of Atlanta, Dove stating that he has a family here in about 50 years of age and his wife is 30.

Their cases will be heard by the federal grand jury in the city of Atlanta. Until that time they will remain in the Fulton county jail. After the United States court tries their cases they will be held for trial by the state courts for blowing the safes at Green's Cut, Ga.

CONDITIONS DAMNABLE, DECLARES GRAND JUROR

Kansas City, Mo., February 6.—"Conditions in the grand jury room were damnably bad," declared a grand juror insurance agent testifying in federal court today during a hearing to quash indictment against the United Fruit company charged with misuse of the mails by attorneys for the United Fruit company. The grand jury deliberations excused judicial tyranny. Kump was a member of the grand jury until excused by the court because of business reasons. He was excused before indictment was returned.

During the day six other grand jurors testified, all declaring they saw no misconduct in the jury room.

LOVE FOR TWO GIRLS CAUSES THIS TRAGEDY

Greensboro, Pa., February 6.—Love for two sixteen-year-old girls, neither of whom knew the other, was the cause of the tragedy that killed Anna Lutz and herself as they sat in an automobile near the town of Greensboro today. McFadden, who had taken the girl for a ride late last night, telephoned his employer here that he would never see him again. Immediately men in high power machines were sent hurrying over the mountains to find him. They found the automobile by the roadside, its engine still running, and McFadden and the girl dead. In McFadden's pocket was a letter which had been written her a letter yesterday, telling her he was going to kill "the other girl" and himself.

6 KILLED IN EXPLOSION

Lexington, Ky., February 6.—Word was received here today from Urban, Ky., that six men had lost their lives in a tragic explosion in a sawmill at that place, exploded. Among the dead are four brothers. All were working in the sawmill. No details as to the cause of the explosion were given.

CALLS DEATH OF BREMNER PLEA FOR THE NECESSITY FOR CONSERVING RADIUM

Washington, February 6.—Secretary Lane, of the department of the interior, sees in the death of Representative Robert C. Bremner, of New Jersey, a plea for the treatment of cancer in its early stages and an increased supply of radium as an aid in the fight against the disease. Mr. Bremner, who died in Baltimore yesterday, had been undergoing the radium treatment for cancer.

In an official statement today commenting on the death of Representative Bremner, Secretary Lane, who has strongly advocated legislation for the conservation of the nation's radium, paid tribute to the remarkable fortitude and optimism of Mr. Bremner as shown during his illness.

"The vigorous in charge of the Baltimore hospital," said the secretary, "were reluctant to use the radium treatment in Mr. Bremner's case because, as they said, the one gram of radium that they could bring together in the United States for use in his case would be entirely inadequate for attacking with any hope of success the giant cancerous growth that was sapling the life of the young member of congress."

"But," continued Secretary Lane, "Mr. Bremner was sure that even a failure might teach lessons that would help the common cause. His death is an appeal for treatment of cancer in its early stages and for larger supplies of radium to help the surgeons in all parts of the country in the fight against this dread disease."

AUTO MEN ENJOY "FEED," BUT POSTPONE ELECTION

The annual meeting of the Atlanta Automobile Association, which was held at the Auditorium-Armory last night turned out to be a "feed" rather than a meeting. Food and drink in unlimited quantities were provided, and the consumption of which the annual meeting and election of officers were to have been held and for late rain, however, so diminished the attendance that it was decided to eat the food, but put off the meeting until a more propitious time.

Washington, February 6.—Without objection the house today seated representative J. M. C. Smith, republican, of the third district of Michigan, over the contest of Claude Carney, who charged that fraudulent ballots had been counted.

THE PERIDY OF PANAMA.

President Wilson's flat-footed stand against the shame of our Panama canal tolls enactment is one of characteristic courage. He says, in an authorized announcement, that our exemption of American coastwise vessels from tolls is a rank violation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty.

It is that, and more. It is plain, unadulterated dishonesty, pretty cheap at that, and when a nation is committed to a policy of dishonesty the disaster is appalling.

We got an international right of way at Panama several years ago through a binding treaty agreement that all nations should use the canal upon terms of perfect equality with ourselves.

And now that England and other powers have kept hands off in the critical period of our big enterprise, we reward them by repudiating a solemn agreement and giving our own coastwise shipping a senseless and indefensible preference.

The exemption of American coastwise shipping is senseless because its one colorable pretext, to protect it from foreign competition, is sent sky-high by the fact that our laws have long prohibited foreign bottoms from entering coastwise trade.

The only other purpose of the measure, and it is the real one thinly cloaked, is to confer an outright subsidy upon a favored class of shipping that doesn't need it.

It is no wonder that President Wilson should denounce not only this futile favoritism, but, what is more, this subversion of the ordinary acceptance of international honor.

Political gossip runs to the effect that a powerful lobby is opposed to the president, and that he may have difficulty in persuading recalcitrant congressmen to his views.

The Constitution is unwilling to believe that this report reflects the whole truth. We prefer to think that those who differ with the president have been misled, and that they do not understand the full enormity of the policy to which they would commit the country.

The Panama canal is a monument to American might, the greatest engineering exploit of modern history. The nation cannot afford to place a blot upon this Homeric enterprise, by launching it to the accompaniment of historic peridy.

HUNT ON RURAL CREDITS.

A thoroughly practical elucidation of the values and the difficulties of rural credits is comprised in a communication, published elsewhere, from Benjamin W. Hunt, of Eatonton. Mr. Hunt is chairman of the rural credits committee of the state chamber of commerce. He is ideally equipped for that position, probably more so than any other one man in Georgia. As president of one of the biggest small-town banks in Georgia, he has had every opportunity to study the connection between the banker and the farmer at close range. His professional standing is shown in the fact that he is former president of the Georgia State Bankers' association.

Mr. Hunt realizes that whatever lies ahead of Georgia in the line of broadening its agriculture will depend largely upon the financial interests of the state and their attitude toward the farmer. He is convinced that rural credits, judiciously applied, will promote development phenomenally. He believes land is, or should be, the best possible security for low interest loans. It is a notorious fact that such is not now the case, the man engaged in business other than farming having a great advantage over the farmer in financing his operations. But while Mr. Hunt stresses the value of rural credits, he shows that we should lay a solid foundation for their successful operation by reforming Georgia's disgracefully chaotic system of title validation and tracing. What he says in this connection is thoroughly pertinent.

The chamber of commerce has secured a man peculiarly equipped to care for this phase of its work, and it has opened its campaign for rural credits at a psychological moment. There is little question that before the end of the present session of congress there will be on the statute books federal legislation as to rural credits that will strengthen the new currency law and cooperate with such individual state agencies as the chamber of commerce. The latter body can, in the meantime, be preparing both its members and the farmers for the opportunities and changes of the new era. A judicious application of rural credits throughout Georgia, with a liberalizing of the policy of the city and country banker and the country merchant, must stimulate development in a manner little short of magical.

MR. PEYTON'S INTERVIEW.

The Constitution publishes on this page an interesting letter from John Howe Peyton, president-elect of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railway, the lessee of the Western and Atlantic railway.

Several days ago The Constitution accepted at its face value an afternoon newspaper interview, in which Mr. Peyton, then visiting Atlanta, lamented the city's smoke nuisance and inclined to electrification of terminals as a partial solution.

Mr. Peyton informs us that he was misunderstood by the reporter, but not being convinced that Atlanta was imminently interested in the smoke problem did not deem a correction imperative.

The smoke nuisance is a very real and not an academic issue in Atlanta. We regret that President-elect Peyton does not as yet stand committed to electrification of terminals as holding out very real hope in the right direction. But as electrification has been tried elsewhere and found satisfactory it is coming sooner or later in Atlanta.

"TWO BLADES OF GRASS."

A recent dispatch to The Constitution reports the death of Joshua Bass, the first man in Georgia to produce more than a bale of cotton to the acre." Bass, whose farm was in Houston county, died at the age of 63 years, and was said to have been worth a million dollars. He was among the first of Georgia farmers to apply the principles of intensified farming.

Dean Swift said that "he who makes two blades of grass to grow where stood one before is worth more to humanity than the whole race of politicians." And to Joshua Bass belongs that distinction, figuratively speaking. He did more than make two blades of grass to grow. He made many more pounds of cotton to grow where one had grown before. He made foodstuffs and independence to grow where all cotton or weeds and slavery upon a single crop had flourished before.

From the example set by this one man a propaganda that holds within its boundaries the destiny of Georgia has gone throughout the state. Heretofore, or at least since the civil war, the main flaw in the agriculture of Georgia has been the all-cotton tyranny.

In ante-bellum days Georgia raised not only cotton as a medium whereby to draw tribute from the outside world, but it raised also all the stuff it needed at home to sustain man and beast. With Apomattox came a change, and the state and the section gradually became debtor sections to other parts of the country for those supplies they should have raised at home. The fortunes thus surrendered would be difficult of computation.

Intensive and diversified farming offered the way out. These Mr. Bass saw and, from current news accounts, was among the first to embrace. In the worstiest and most constructive sense he was a pioneer.

He has made "two blades of grass to grow." And the gospel he has practiced has made hope and development to grow, where before were monotony and stagnation.

A HOME LABEL TOUR.

Chairman Wilmer Moore, of the industrial statistics bureau of the chamber of commerce, is already arranging the second industrial tour of Atlanta. Last year, it will be remembered, the bureau organized a one-day tour of the manufacturing plants girdling the city that proved an eye-opener to many of its most prominent business men. In April of this year the second tour is to be given, and it is being planned upon amplified lines.

The project is excellently practical. The home label is increasingly popular in Atlanta. But there is big room for improvement. Even yet some of our manufacturers have to combat ungrounded prejudice by sending their products outside the state, getting a foreign label on them, and as such selling them over local counters. The process is expensive and a damper on development. Every dollar kept at home means a dollar enlisted in the army of local development. The more dollars kept at home, the more new factories; the more factories, the greater the army of spenders; the greater the army of spenders, the wealthier the city.

Leaders of policy and opinion in Atlanta travel on these one-day industrial tours. They can do much to familiarize Atlanta generally with the profit of the home label.

No Place for a Hungry Editor.
It must have been a Billville editor who wrote to The Kansas City Star of a banquet he attended recently:

"We believe we could have bought all the grub on the table, together with the paper, table cloth, dishes and the iron spoons, for two dollars. Here's the bill of fare—'menu' they called it: Two raw oysters, two ounces of salad, two cents' worth of roasted turkey, one cent's worth of chicken, two spoonfuls of dressing, one-fourth ounce of butter, one cent's worth of ice-cream, half a cent's worth of cake, bread, one teaspoonful of salted peanuts, two mint lozenges, half pint of grape juice so sour it set our false teeth on edge, coffee—no milk or cream. But we took no chance on being fooled, and ate a good square meal before going to the auditorium and another at a restaurant just after it was over."

The Great Trials of History

DESPARD TRIAL OF 1803.

One of the most exciting of the English state trials of the nineteenth century was that of Colonel Despard and a party of conspirators whose intention was, it was claimed, to murder the king and revolutionize the government. This occurred at the beginning of that century, and the conspiracy seems to have spread all over the country, for the uprising against the government was not confined alone to London, but to every section. There was a general dissatisfaction not only throughout the country, but there were evidences of revolt in the army and navy over existing conditions. It was just a time when conspiracy could easily be rooted in the minds of a people who felt that they were not only misgoverned, but that they were being betrayed.

It only required a clever and desperate leader to raise and bring to maturity the dangerous crop of disaffection that had been sown everywhere. Such a man was apparently ready to hand in a brave and meritorious officer, Colonel Despard, who at the time was smarting under a bitter grievance and whose gallant deeds gave him a great and most dangerous influence among the soldiers. While he was in the Spanish Main he appears to have gotten into disputes with the English there, and such serious complaints of his conduct were sent home that he was suspended and returned to England to demand the fullest inquiry into his conduct.

Irritated at his treatment, he appears to have taken a violent part in politics. For a part he took in the Irish rebellion of 1798 he was arrested and committed to Cold Bath Fields, Bridewell, where his harsh treatment was the subject of animated discussions in both houses of parliament. His first prison he was transferred to the house of correction at Shrewsbury, and thence back to the Bridewell in Tothill Fields, without even being able to learn the particulars of the charges against him, much less to obtain the verdict of a jury on their truth or falsehood.

The conspiracy, on account of which Despard met his death as a traitor was hatched during the spring and summer of 1802, and the time for its execution was set for the 1st of November. The new parliament had lately met and the swearing in of members had proceeded so rapidly that it was hoped that on November 16, the day set for the carrying out of the project, the king would attend the formal opening of the new parliament.

In those days the royal procession assembled in the park at the back of St. James' palace and crossed the Mall on its way to St. Stephens. Hence one of the mad projects of the men was to get one of the soldier conspirators to march with a sentry over the long Indian gun on the Mall, and to load and fire it through the crowd at the moment when the state coach came within range.

At the moment, happily, was not ready and the royal visit was in consequence postponed to the 23d. In the meantime the conspirators were arrested and the miserable project was stifled in its cradle. In this conspiracy Colonel Despard was the only man above the ordinary class who apparently had a share; the others were soldiers and workmen.

Among them, from the very inception, was a traitor, Thomas Windsor, a soldier in the Guards, who revealed the secret of the conspiracy, and in turn, was sanctioned by William Francis and Thomas Bladen. These men gave the government full information of a plot which was of the wildest and most reckless character.

The trial of Despard lasted until 3 o'clock in the morning, and the following day all the other conspirators were tried and found guilty. The execution of the sentence was deferred until Monday, the 21st, and in deference to the improved spirit of the age the disgusting details legally attendant upon an execution for high treason were omitted by royal command, and that of dragging the prisoners on hurdles around the prison yard, on the road to execution and the subsequent decapitation of the lifeless bodies, alone remained.

Even on the scaffold Despard protested entire innocence and declared that the minister knew that he was guiltless. Colonel Despard's dying denial was not believed by the crowd who looked upon the other sufferers as his victims.

A Good Farmer.

Our good friend, C. W. McLendon, a progressive farmer who lives out on route No. 10, made a record in butter selling. During the 10 months from February 1 to December 1 last he sold from two cows 260 pounds of butter, having retained enough for home consumption.

During the same period he sold 202 dozen eggs, having kept plenty at all times for home consumption.

He has recently killed his three porkers, which were less than 10 months old and netted him 855 pounds of pork, an average of 283 pounds each.

Who can beat this record of Mr. McLendon?

RURAL CREDITS FOR GEORGIA SHOULD BE BASED UPON THE TORRENSTITLE SYSTEM

(Benjamin W. Hunt is president of the Middle Georgia Bank, of Eatonton, former president of the Georgia State Bankers' association, and one of the recognized authorities on rural credits and the broad general subject of financial relations between the banker and the farmer. His reputation has caused him to be made chairman of the rural credits committee of the state chamber of commerce. At the recent chamber meeting in Macon he told his co-workers that Georgia's archaic system of validating and registering land titles must be remedied as a prerequisite to rural credits. He sketched the stimulative value of rural credits with careful attention to business detail. His views are succinctly carried in the following communication.)

Editor Constitution: Viewing rural credits as one of the issues vital to the development of Georgia and every other state with large agricultural interests, I recognize the opportunity for service offered me in the chairmanship of the rural credits committee of the state chamber of commerce, which position I have just accepted. In addressing the conservative Georgia farmers at the recent Macon meeting of the chamber, I did not hesitate to broach the difficulties that must be cleared away before rural credits became practicable, as well as the advantages to be derived from putting the farmer upon relatively the same credit plane as the other American business man. At present, we are far from doing that. Because of the ban upon land as collateral, the farmer usually pays a sky-scraping interest rate. As a matter of fact, since land is the basis of all values, it should under proper conditions furnish a stiff-edged security for low interest loans.

Farmers Are Grown Men.
But as long as land titles are in their chaotic shape, as in Georgia, at least as long as the tracing of titles is an expensive and arduous process, we are going to find our path to rural credits strewn with impediments. The Torrens land title system, by which the state guarantees the title, exacting a nominal fee in return, is the sensible remedy.

My position is that bankers should treat farmers as grown men intellectually, morally and socially. To refer to the lawless and incompetent, surely the honest man is not necessarily nor emphatically the one who has never appropriated to his own use the property of others, the moralist is not he who without temptation has kept inviolate the commandments, nor does the practice of economy by compulsion develop an economist.

The full grown man is he alone who rises superior to temptation, and of his own volition lives and acts on the highest plane. If my position is correct, then we of the "Committee on rural credits" have only to endeavor to put economical rural credits within reach of those who lack the collateral security money may be borrowed at lowest rates of the home and exchanges of the world's money centers.

Of the collateral possessed by these we desire most to assist, land is the principal asset. While recognized as the safest of all security, real estate is the least liquid financially of all pledges to secure debt. This alone is sufficient to blanket it from the so-called quick realizable assets of commercial banks. Individuals, savings banks and lending companies desiring to loan on land, have been hampered by our medieval land laws that have survived into this commercial age.

Duplicated Labor.
At this very time I have in my employ a lawyer who has been for the past week endeavoring to find out how stands the title to a plantation in my county, and he daily answers my inquiries that have not yet finished the search. When he shall finally present me with a chain of title, all the work done will serve me alone. Should

Good Advice From an Atlanta Negro Lawyer

Editor Constitution: I want to thank you for the vigorous campaign you are now waging for the improvement of sanitary conditions among the negroes of Atlanta. I hope that you will succeed in making the white people of Atlanta realize that we constitute one-third of the population of the city, and that whether Atlanta is to be healthy or disease-laden, law-abiding or criminal, depends very much upon the negroes of this city. It is surely a trilemma that disease and crime know no color line.

In the neighborhood where I live there are three dumps. Negroes are living on the very edges of these dumps. Consumption, typhoid and other malignant diseases are rife among the people living in these places. These same people are employed in your homes and around your stores and offices. They are a menace to your families as well as to those of us who try to conform to the laws of hygiene and sanitation. Our white friends must help us protect these people against themselves.

It seems to have been the policy of the city government to let the negroes take care of themselves. I, for one, am frank to confess to you that we cannot take care of the many problems which confront us without your help.

We have too many loafers among us. There is no excuse for the large number of idlers in certain negro sections of our city. Every idler is a potential criminal, and we are already furnishing more than our share of criminals to the city. You must help us rid ourselves of those among us who will not work.

Instead of spending large sums of money to maintain prisons and reformatories, you must help us to have good schools and to keep our children out of the streets. You give them the right start in life, long enough to get them well started along the road of industry, honesty, truthfulness and sobriety.

There are many of us who love Atlanta and are proud of the Atlanta spirit. It is ours and we expect to die here. We want to see her lead along all lines and we want the negro to help rather than hinder her progress.

I want to thank you again because the campaign you are now waging will do much toward making Atlanta what she ought to be.

the owner desire to borrow of a loan company in Macon or Atlanta, another lawyer would duplicate the work of him I pay. And this waste of human labor has gone on with no book in which to file copies of chains of title duplicated and repeated from year to year. Each search of title costs the borrower an attorney's fee, which, when added to the low rate of interest, causes the Georgia land owner to pay a higher rate for money borrowed than any economist can afford.

No financial institution could exist with its books kept after the manner of the shop keeper of the middle ages. Yet so we now keep our cumbersome real estate records.

The close of each day exhibits the actual condition of every customer's account in every bank from Maine to Texas.

To obtain money on land at low rate of interest, perfect titles must first be exhibited to the lender. In Georgia a truly perfect title is hard enough to find.

Why must Georgia lag behind our sister state of North Carolina, and even the so-called conservative northern states, which have written the Torrens land title system into the codes?

It can be argued that we bankers should have to point the way toward cheap money to the farmers, the obtaining of which would advance their interests, and the value of all Georgia lands, as low rates of interest have appreciated all real estate values in Europe.

Foreign countries are loaning direct to land buyers on amortized mortgages of 98 years in Denmark at 3 per cent interest and 1 per cent payment on principal, in Ireland at 10 per cent interest, 1-2 of one per cent annually on principal, and in France, where not the intermediate local agents and responsible factors our present postal depository banks would become under the slight change of security from bonds to amortized mortgages on land.

Little Appreciation.
An system of rural credits that results in a low rate of interest being extended to the buyers of farm homes will, in my judgment, be fully compensated to the bankers who always share in the financial prosperity and suffer in the adversity of their communities.

The actual financing of farmers who own no land resolves itself largely into a matter of confidence in the industry, economy and integrity of the landless borrower. His mules, horses and equipment of whatsoever nature grow less valuable year by year with age and use. His only appreciating asset usually is his horned cattle. These, where the pestiferous cattle ticks have been exterminated, increase in number as well as appreciate in value in a progressive community, and especially in the dairy counties they are reasonably liquid, selling more freely at any season than any other farm crop except cotton.

From personal experience and observation of credit societies organized in the cotton states, I do not think any plan on which they work successfully in Europe is practicable here. The European point of view is more community than membership homogeneous, the financial status of each member more nearly on equal one with another, than any society organized under our southern conditions.

Therefore, it comes about that the furnishing of farm homes to the rural community affords the dispenser of rural credits the fullest possible understanding of the needs of his section. Our committee should develop an American plan, that fits our individual point of view, and extends opportunity to the farmer in which all who are worthy citizens. My belief is that the strongest sympathy exists between the borrower and the lender, and that each owes to the other the fullest exercise of his individual efforts to bring about the best possible conditions in which all may be prosperous as well as satisfying to the higher senses.

N., C. & St. L. Head Is Inaccurately Quoted By an Afternoon Paper

Editor Constitution: I note editorial in the issue of The Atlanta Constitution of February 4 in which I am quoted as having suggested the electrification of railroad terminals in Atlanta as solving a formidable feature of the smoke nuisance.

I beg to say that this is incorrect. A reporter on the Georgia railway conversation asked if I approved of the electrification of terminals. I hesitated, on account of my lack of knowledge of the conditions in Atlanta, but after a little thought expressed the opinion that the elimination of smoke from the terminals in conversation as to its practicability under the conditions existing in Atlanta.

In the afternoon of that day I noticed the inaccurate statement in The Georgian, but that had been too late for me to do anything. I was particularly interested in the subject, it seemed to me unnecessary to make any correction.

SUCCESS DEFINED.

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS
Success is just ordinary Failure—turned backward.
Success is a Positive piece of Business. There is nothing Negative to it.
Success is not a thing Loaned, or Borrowed, or Handed Down, or Conied. Success is something Earned, something Found.

Also Success is Something that YOU are, and have, that nobody else is or has. Success is Finding Yourself—genuinely. For when you have Found Yourself, you have found your Life Work, which thereafter is but the interpreting of what you are and have, set toward a noble viewpoint, and then translated into Deeds and Achievements.

The first process in Success is to do your Work in the BEST way that you know how. And the next process ever after is to follow up your Work with something BETTER.

Victor Hugo and Duty.

A hitherto unpublished story of Victor Hugo is told in Le Cri de Paris. It is generally known and believed in France that Armand Barbès was saved from the scaffold in 1840 by four men who were arrested by Hugo to Louis Philippe, king of the French. Yet Barbès had never seen the great man and never saw him during his exile. In 1870, some months before the war between France and Germany, Barbès was dying in The Hague. The French ambassador to M. Claretie, then a young journalist, his regret at never having met the man through whom he had obtained the pardon of the king, Victor Hugo was at Brussels when M. Claretie came to present the desire of the sick man to see him.

Hugo heard the request, and, turning to his son Charles said: "Charles, Barbès asks to see me. Duty calls me. We must set out for The Hague this evening."

During the day the great poet and romanticist received a pressing letter offering him the presidency of the peace congress at Geneva and begging him to come immediately.

Then said Victor Hugo to his son: "Between one man and humanity I have no right to hesitate. Charles, we shall set out this evening for Switzerland." And Barbès died without having ever seen Victor Hugo.

Watch for Mrs. Mims' Diary In Sunday's Constitution

In the second installment of the diary of the late Mrs. Livingston Mims, which will be published in The Constitution tomorrow, she tells of her interesting acquaintance with Commodore Maury, the great geologist, of conversations on current topics with the group of noted men then (1774) living in Savannah. Among them is mentioned General Henry R. Jackson, brilliant and scholarly, and one time minister to Austria. Major Mims describes at subsequent risk to New York, when they were at the New York hotel, then the mecca for the leading people of the south. The closing days of the Tilden-Hayes campaign are described, and a stirring description is given of the blowing up of Hell Gate. Mrs. Mims gives the origin of a historic bon-mot, and relates an interesting conversation she had with Mrs. Joseph Johnston, relative to the famous Boatswain (Miss Patterson, of Baltimore). Vividly pictured are the men and women whom the two distinguished southerners met north and south during the most interesting days of the reconstruction period.

WHITEHALL STREET MAYORALTY ISSUE

South Side Citizens Declare They Will if Necessary Take Issue Direct to the People.

Indications point to the probability of the Whitehall street situation developing as a "casus belli" in the next mayoralty campaign, and unless something is done to carry on the work already begun members of the executive committee of the citizens' improvement association directing that work declare unequivocally that they will in the coming election rally around a candidate for mayor who will support the movement and undo what they claim to be the fearful injustice that will be done if the present council does not authorize the continuance this year of the enterprise already authorized and undertaken by the city.

It happens that many of the leading members of this committee were prominent and active supporters of Mayor Woodward in the past campaign—indeed, some of them have always been his strongest political supporters in past contests. They now take the position openly that the south side will revolt if this improvement is not cared for by the present administration and that the best way they can voice their protest is to be in a direct fight on the issue in the approaching mayoralty campaign.

At a meeting of the Citizens' Improvement association yesterday all preliminary steps were taken to "carry the war into Africa," and one of the members of the committee, in speaking to The Constitution last night, said: "Mayor Woodward can save this situation if he will. Many of the members of the committee have been his most zealous supporters, and we hope yet that he will not sacrifice this vital south side improvement. It will be unfortunate if an issue is forced on this question, but just as certain as the time comes, we are going to make this fight before the people if council turns us down in less than two weeks time we can have a signed up organization of one thousand voters, pledged to push this war, and ready to hold to full accountability those who are responsible for its defeat, if it is to be defeated. If it is necessary for us to make the issue on the mayoralty, we are prepared to do it."

It is certain that unless the question is disposed of satisfactorily, the Whitehall street situation will figure conspicuously in the city campaign of this year.

PHONE GIRL ACCUSED OF STEALING CLOTHES

"That's My Dress and Shirt-waist She's Wearing Now," Witness Tells Judge.

A young telephone girl, fearful but defiant, stood before Recorder Broyles Friday afternoon and answered to the double charge of "common cheating" and "swindling" and of "larceny after trust." She was bound over to higher courts under bond of $100. She was arrested Wednesday afternoon and gave the name of Lola Belle Brown, age 17 years. One of her prosecutors, Miss Dorothy Embry, of 84 Auburn avenue, at which address the pretty prisoner had boarded, told the court of losing a costly cloak which she accused the telephone girl of having stolen. And, furthermore, she claimed, "that's my dress and shirt-walst this girl is wearing. They're mine and I can prove it." The prisoner blushed and turned her eyes, dabbing them with her handkerchief already wringing with tears. After Miss Embry testified, Miss Lillian Pearson, of 448 Edgewood avenue, accused the girl of having stolen a costly meal bag from her home. Then Mrs. D. M. O'Connor, operator of the Auburn avenue boarding house, had this to say: "This girl came to my place several weeks ago, getting board under false pretenses and never paying. She's guilty of common cheating and swindling."

When her prosecutors had finished, the girl faced defiance at them all, then robbingly declared she was guilty of none of it and that she had never stolen. She has been in Atlanta for considerable while, during most of which she stated she worked in a telephone exchange. Unable to give bond she was remanded to jail to await trial before superior court.

FAILS TO SECURE RECOGNITION

Lady's Own Friends Assert Could Not Recognize Her When Brought Face to Face.

Arlette Va.—Mrs. D. J. Bowen of this town makes the following statement: "For 20 years I suffered with womanly troubles, and although I tried different treatments, I did not get any relief."

I was unable to look after any of my work, and my friends thought I could not get well.

Finally I began to take Cardul, the woman's tonic, and I hadn't taken one-third of the first bottle before I could notice its good effects.

Now I can do all my work, feel like I'm not more than 15 years old but am really 48. My own friends say I look so well, they don't recognize me when we meet in the road.

My daughter is using Cardul and she says it is a fine medicine. I also have a number of lady friends taking it since they found out how it helped me.

Whenever I feel a little fatigued after a day's extra hard work I just take a dose of Cardul and am all right.

I can't say too much for Cardul! Thousands of women who now suffer from womanly troubles could be relieved and benefited, by following Mrs. Bowen's example.

Are you of this number? If so try Cardul today. It cannot harm you, and is almost sure to do you good.

"LASH NECESSARY" IN CONVICT WORK

Deputy Warden Luck Denies That Men Have Been Cruelly Whipped—Negroes Show Their Wounds.

A. M. Luck, deputy warden of Roseland convict camp, and six colored convicts from that camp testified before the grand jury on Friday, Luck claiming that no prisoners have been cruelly whipped...

Luck admitted that some of the negroes in the camp had been whipped, but declared that the whippings had been administered for a disregard of sanitary matters.

Luck stated that he knew of no other effective method of punishment, the "water cure," he said, having failed of effectiveness some twenty years ago.

The negroes from Roseland camp, who testified before the grand jury on Friday, stated that excessive whippings were frequent. They declared that they had been beaten until the blood was drawn, and often for no cause that they could discover.

The convicts also testified that one of the guards, Gus Stoddard, threw stones as large as a man's fist at the convicts while they were working in the yard.

The suggestion is that stockholders who are already liable for the amount of their stock, pay in $100,000 immediately, which amounts, with collections which may be made within thirty days, would entirely cancel the bank's indebtedness and pay all small deposits.

Assistant Attorney General Wheatley, Jr., remains missing, and nothing is known of his whereabouts. Friends profess to believe that he is still in America, and may yet return voluntarily to help untangle the bank's affairs.

The chief source of her income was from mines, quarries and other properties in Pennsylvania. The Hackley school was conducted partly from the owner's private resources.

This will was changed many times during 1910, but in the last codicil Mrs. Hackley directed that the residue of the estate should go to the school that bears her name. There are about $200,000 bequeathed to relatives and to institutions of learning.

The action is being opposed by one faction of the stockholders, by Homer T. Yaryan, the third receiver.

U. S. MARINES LANDED FOR DUTY IN HAITI

Washington, February 6.—Rioting and pillaging broke out in Cape Haitien yesterday to such an extent that Commander Bostwick, of the gunboat Nashville, landed eighty men to protect lives and property of foreign residents.

Commander Bostwick took action at the request of foreign consuls. Instructions to his landing force were to protect Americans, all foreigners and their property.

Davilmar Theodore, who had proclaimed himself provisional president before his defeat at Genaves at the hands of the Zamor brothers, is trying to set up a government at Cape Haitien, where he retreated after the battle. He has appointed a cabinet, but, according to Commander Bostwick's report, appears to be losing control of his forces.

Latest reports from Captain Russell, of the battleship South Carolina, at Port-au-Prince, expressed apprehension for the safety of the city. However, he reports no organized efforts to expel foreign naval forces policing the city, though his earlier reports indicated dissatisfaction by natives generally at the presence of the sailors and marines ashore.

British naval officer has taken command of the international naval force at Port au Prince, the commandant of the largest American battleship arrived yesterday, being senior to Captain Russell, of the American battleship South Carolina.

CRIBB MUST HANG FOR BLOODY DEED

Wife Smiles as Ashburn Man Is Sentenced for the Killing of His Mother-in-Law

Ashburn, Ga., January 6.—(Special.) "We, the jury, find the defendant guilty," was the verdict returned this afternoon by the twelve men who had been chosen to decide the fate of Miles Cribb, who was placed on trial in Turner superior court this morning at 9:30 o'clock, charged with the murder of Mrs. Mary E. Hancock, his mother-in-law, in the Rebecca district last November.

Silence pervaded the crowded courtroom from the time the bailiff in charge of the jury announced to the court that they were ready to enter into the last word of the sentence of death as uttered by Judge Cox, Friday, Tuesday, March 3, 1914, as the date of execution.

Between his aged mother on the right and Rev. W. J. Cribb, his father, on the left, the unfortunate man sat with bowed head for the most part throughout the trial, which lasted from 10 a. m. to 1:30 p. m. The mother of the defendant sobbed and wept, as did the defendant, himself, as his counsel feelingly pleaded for mercy from the jury.

Mrs. Viola Cribb, wife of the defendant, sat just outside the bar in easy view of her husband, and often looked at him, but there was no sign of either malice or sympathy in her expression. Her husband was never seen to search the courtroom with his deep-set eyes to see if she might be present. He showed no sign of excitement during the trial, and did not even raise his head as the solicitor was ordered to read the verdict.

"I only ask the mercy of the court," was his reply when the judge asked him if there was any reason why sentence should not be pronounced on him. Just before pronouncing sentence, the court warned the audience against any demonstration, and only his wife wept as the verdict was pronounced.

Only two witnesses, Miss Mary Hancock and the Rev. W. J. Cribb, were produced by the state, were examined during the trial. The former told briefly how the defendant had gone to the home of her mother, Mrs. E. Hancock, near Rebecca, on the evening of November 27, 1913, and deliberately shot to death her mother-in-law and wounded her head, and her sister, Cribb's wife, after failing to get his wife to consent to divorce him. The defendant testified that Cribb had called him over phone and inquired if Mrs. Viola Cribb, his wife, had fled from the home. This was a day or two previous to the shooting. Neither witness was cross-examined to any extent.

The defendant did not wish to make a statement to the jury. Arguments were made on both sides, and the brief of the defense asking only for mercy, and the jury reached a verdict in twenty-five minutes.

GLENN-PIDCOCK CASE AGAIN IN THE COURTS

Wife of Atlanta Man Asks Damages From Moultrie Woman

Moultrie, February 6.—(Special.)—What is probably the closing chapter in the case of Glenn P. Pidcock, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Iohanna Moultrie, is now being written in a suit for damages instituted by Mrs. Effie L. Seawell against Mrs. Pidcock for alienation of her husband's affections.

An action has been instituted in Colquitt superior court to recover the sum of $7,500, and will be tried at the April term of the court. The suit was obtained on Mrs. Pidcock by attachment, the papers alleging that she is a non-resident and conceals herself, and the attachment was levied upon property in this city.

The whereabouts of Mrs. Pidcock are not known. At the term of court held here on Monday, the 26th, the case was set by verdict of a jury, although she was not present, and she is now free to go to her home in the city of Atlanta. It is confidently expected, however, that she will appear before the court for judgment as to her final disposition.

SEX HYGIENE OPPOSED IN NEW YORK SCHOOLS. New York, February 6.—Sex hygiene promoters can expect little comfort from the board of education of this city, which held its first meeting yesterday. The committee is composed of Dr. Ira S. Wile, chairman; Dr. Antonio Pisani, Jr.; J. J. McDonald, John Martin and James J. McDonald. Dr. Pisani says he does not see any necessity for teaching sex hygiene to children, and that the board should not do it. He and John Martin will not listen to arguments for it. Dr. Wile said that sex hygiene should be taught only to teachers in training schools and to adults through lectures in school buildings after school hours.

ATLANTAN, MOURNED AS SUICIDE, FOUND IN CUBAN ASYLUM. New York, February 6.—(Special.)—After a disappearance of fifteen years, Mrs. Evelyn Stark, a Las Vegas society girl of Atlanta, was discovered in an asylum for the insane in Santiago, Cuba, and has been brought back to the home of her brother-in-law, Dr. Vincent Barber, 269 Arlington avenue, Brooklyn. Advice from the American consul in Santiago brought her brother, William H. Lassell, a newspaper man of Wilmington, N. C., to this city. He identified his sister, who had been committed suicide until the message from the consul was received. Previous to her residence in Brooklyn, she had disappeared. Mrs. Stark had lived in Atlanta, where she was married to a man who later deserted her and her young child. She was compelled to support herself and went to work soon after. The child was left at home with a nurse who allowed it to fall out of a carriage, causing its death. The mother was wild with grief and it was supposed she had committed suicide. Mrs. Lassell is unable to trace her history for the past 15 years. She seems that the shock of losing her child caused her mind to become deranged. She now lives in a home 15 years old, although she is actually 48 years old. Her memory of her childhood, however, is vivid and real.

The girls said they would demand jury trial.

GHETTO TURNS OUT FOR ACTOR'S FUNERAL. New York, February 6.—Twenty-five thousand mourners from New York's ghetto met for the funeral of a famous actor of Yiddish stock, an actor and comedian, which followed a funeral procession led by the Hebrew Actors' club, was so unwieldy that police resorted to force to clear the way. THREE JUDGES NEEDED TO DECIDE THIS CASE. Judge Newman, after a hearing of three hours of argument, in an effort to get into effect the reduced rail freight rates, ordered six years ago by the Georgia commission, decided that the final hearing should be before three judges. It is probable that the hearing will be held in New Orleans. Guyton McLandon appeared for the Valdosta Chamber of Commerce against the railroad commission and railroads, who were represented by several prominent lawyers—Judges Hines for the railroad commission, and Sanders McDaniel and P. H. Alston and others for the railroads. The opposition claimed that the reduced rates had been postponed going into effect, due to several good causes. They cited the panic of 1907 and the short cotton crop of 1912 as reasons. Valdosta shippers are anxious to have the reduced rates go into effect at once.
