Divas Schumann-Heink Intensely Interested in Loving Phrases Her Husband Showered on Alleged Affinity.

RAPP AND MRS. DEAN SEEN HOLDING HANDS

And Sitting in Each Other's Laps—Rapp Also Wore an Apron and Washed the Dishes for Mrs. Dean.

Chicago, June 6.—A letter purporting to have been written by Mrs. Catherine E. Dean, of New York, to Madame Schumann-Heink, threatening her with a damage suit if the singer linked Mrs. Dean's name with that of William Rapp, Jr., today was ordered as evidence at the trial of Madame Schumann-Heink's suit for divorce from Rapp.

Another letter written that in a telephone conversation with Rapp, Madame Schumann-Heink had made him aware that she was acquainted with his attentions to Mrs. Dean.

Throughout the session Rapp stared intently at Madame Schumann-Heink. She seemed absorbed, and listened intently to the reading.

Madame Schumann-Heink has several other witnesses who will be heard when court reconvenes Monday.

The singer, it was announced, has abandoned her projected journey to Bayreuth, Germany, to sing at the Wagnerian festival.

Doings of Rapp and Mrs. Dean. Miss Frances Schumann-Heink, an suburban housewife who for five months lived in Mrs. Dean's apartments in New York, was questioned, and her close acquaintance with the doings of Mrs. Dean and Rapp kept the attention of the crowded courtroom and apparently were of intense interest to the diva who listened intently.

Another letter identified by Miss Ashton as having been sent by Mr. Rapp to Mrs. Dean was introduced in evidence.

Over the objection of counsel for the defendant, a letter was introduced in evidence which Rapp advised Mrs. Dean to write a forcible letter to Madame Schumann-Heink and to threaten her with a suit for damages if she did not stop writing letters to Rapp.

A letter couched in similar language and received by the singer from Mrs. Dean later was introduced.

Counsel for Rapp sought to limit the introduction of letters, declaring that no evidence would be offered contradicting them.

LITTLE JOE BROWN SPEAKS AT LAST

In Very Few Words, Which Cannot Be Misunderstood, He Tells Just Exactly What He Is Going to Do.

For weeks and weeks the press of the state and the politicians—which means every male person of age in Georgia, for they are all politicians this summer—have been asking the question: "What is Little Joe Brown going to do?"

Following his announcement that he would not oppose Governor John M. Slaton for the short term, some further statement from him has been momentarily expected.

"What is Little Joe Brown going to do?" He has told what he is going to do, and it did not take him many words to tell it.

Dancing Partners Held After Loss Of a Lavalliere

Police Say Jewelry Disappeared After Visit of Al Wright to Home of Atlanta Woman.

Al Wright alias Van Meeter a dancing master, and Miss Nina Downing, a dancing partner, have been arrested in Albany and Dublin Ga., respectively, at the instance of the Atlanta police following information given them by a Decatur street pawn broker, Nathan Sinkovitz, who accuses the man of stealing a valuable diamond lavalliere from an Atlanta woman whose name is being withheld.

The owner of the lavalliere a married woman, met the handsome dancing master about two weeks ago at a local dancing club and it is said, invited him to her home to teach her his art.

It was after the first lesson that the valuable piece of jewelry disappeared. The professor, it is charged, gave it to his pretty dancing partner who pawned it at Sinkovitz's shop for $40.

ANOTHER STEP IN FRANK CASE WON BY STATE

Demurrer of Solicitor Dorsey Upheld by Judge Hill. Motion to Set Aside Verdict Dismissed.

Within twenty days there will be still another phase of the Frank case before the supreme court, for Judge Ben Hill yesterday morning sustained Hugh Dorsey's demurrer to the motion of John L. Tye to upset the verdict and dismissed the motion without calling upon the solicitor for argument in rebuttal.

Judge Hill left the city last night for Florida, where he goes to spend a short pleasure trip. He will return before twenty days have elapsed and will certify to a bill of exceptions which will carry the motion to the supreme court.

The date of Leo Frank's execution is now indefinite. Sentence was suspended when Judge Hill issued the writ of habeas corpus.

DICTATOR HUERTA ORDERS BLOCKADE OF PORT TAMPICO

Order Causes New Crisis and May Again Involve the United States in a Clash With Huerta.

PORT DECLARED OPEN BY THE UNITED STATES

Huerta's Gunboats Leave for Tampico and Are Trained by U. S. Warships Tacoma and Sacramento.

Mexico City, June 6.—The foreign office sent a note to the legations this afternoon notifying them that the port of Tampico had been blockaded by order of President Huerta.

Causes a New Crisis. Washington, June 6.—A new crisis in the Mexican situation developed late tonight when two Mexican federal gunboats closely trailed by two American war craft, the cruiser Tacoma and gunboat Sacramento, steamed from Puerto Mexico for Tampico to enforce a blockade of that port decreed by General Huerta.

No specific orders have been given the American commanders merely having instructions to keep the Mexican gunboats under surveillance but it is known that Rear Admiral Badger has been advised that the United States government regards Tampico as an open port and desires that there be no interference with commerce there.

How far the decision of the Washington government to see to it that Tampico is kept an open port will go toward preventing interference with the landing of arms for the Mexican constitutionalists, no official would discuss tonight.

The Cuban steamer Antilla, with a cargo of war munitions, is due at Tampico Wednesday the federal gunboats Bravo and Zaragoza, reported leaving Puerto Mexico tonight by Admiral Badger should arrive there Monday.

No orders will be issued tonight was the only comment of Secretary Daniels. Secretary Bryan was not awakened to be informed of the departure of the gunboats.

Huerta's Gunboats. Mexican vessels carry small guns and are insignificant as fighting ships. The Tacoma's main battery is of 5-inch rifles, and the Sacramento carries 4 inch rifles.

The American state department it was pointed out was fully satisfied of its right to prevent a blockade.

U. S. Ships Follow Huerta's Boats. Vera Cruz, June 6.—Late advices from Vera Cruz, Mexico reported that two Mexican gunboats had called there and presumably were preparing to carry out President Huerta's blockade decrees against Tampico.

Brigadier General Funston today said that reports had reached him that the commanders of the Huerta gunboats intended to surrender their ships to the constitutionalists at Tampico when they reached that port.

Notification of Blockade. Tampico, June 6 (by way of Brownsville, Texas, June 6).—An official notification was sent today to Consul Clarence A. Miller by Governor Lugo, declaring that he had received information of the intention of the federal war vessels, Zaragoza and Bravo, to come to Tampico for the purpose of bombarding or blockading the port.

BAPTISTS WILL HOLD MASS MEETING TODAY

A mass meeting of the Baptists of Atlanta, which will be an aftermath of the great religious campaign conducted recently in the Baptist churches of the city, will be held this afternoon at the Auditorium-Armory, beginning at 3 o'clock. A chorus of nearly a thousand voices under the direction of Chorister Boatman, of the Baptist Tabernacle, will furnish the music. Dr. E. A. Kraft, the city organist, will preside at the great organ, which will accompany the chorus. The services will be led by Dr. Weston Bruner, head of the evangelical department of the home mission board of the Southern Baptist convention. Dr. Lincoln McConnell, pastor of the Tabernacle, will make the final evangelistic appeal of the campaign. The churches, Sunday schools and other religious organizations connected with the Baptist churches of the city will attend the mass meeting in a body. Special cars have been chartered for the occasion by the outlying churches, and it is expected that the Auditorium-Armory will be filled to its capacity.

Collier Storstad Which Sank Empress of Ireland

was evident by the way the vessel's stem was twisted to port, the hawser hole completely smashed, plates cracked, rivets twisted or missing, while the heavy anchor had evidently been driven back several feet into the bow. The Storstad was immediately seized for $2,000,000 damages on application of the Canadian Pacific railway, owner of the Empress of Ireland.

Going Some.

Pretty soon some one is going to demand that the national commission investigate the Cincinnati team. The way the Reds are running is getting to be an open scandal, and there is more than a suspicion that Herzog has been using dope right and left. First thing you know those fans out there will be claiming the pennant.

What will the government inquiry into the Empress of Ireland disaster in the St. Lawrence river show? Which vessel is responsible, the ill-fated Empress or the Norwegian collier Storstad, which rammed and sank her? Captain H. G. Kendall, of the Empress, placed the blame on the Storstad while testifying at the coroner's inquest at Rimouski, where the rescued and the bodies recovered from the river were taken. Captain Thomas Anderson, of the Storstad, denies this and places the blame on the Empress. When the Storstad reached Montreal under her own steam it was seen that her bow was badly crushed in, but far above the water line. She was low in the water at the stern and high at the bow, her coal having been shifted to protect her. What the impact with the Empress of Ireland had been great

ASK FOR MORE TIME TO MAKE UP BUDGET

Until Mayor Names Committee to Sell Property No Settlement Will Be Reached.

When the general council meets Monday Councilman W. G. Humphrey, chairman of the finance committee, will ask for additional time for the committee to make up the June budget. Although no statement has been issued by the chairman of the committee or the members, it is understood that no further effort will be made to adjust the differences until Mayor James G. Woodward appoints a committee of five to investigate the advisability of selling approximately $20,000 worth of city property.

At the last meeting of council a resolution was offered by Councilman Faringer empowering the mayor to appoint the committee. Saturday afternoon Mayor Woodward stated that the resolution has not been submitted to him, but he intimated that he will approve it when it comes to him for confirmation.

Members Concerned. Just what will be the attitude of the general council regarding the delay over the June sheet is causing some members of the committee considerable concern.

The city code is plain that the sheet must be presented by the finance committee at the first meeting in May. In strict accordance with the charter, the finance committee submitted its report last Monday, but because there were two reports—one by Chairman Humphrey and the other by Vice Chairman Kelley—no action was attempted until all members of the committee had reported. It will be necessary for council to take action on the sheet at Monday's meeting or adjourn the meeting to a further day, which cannot be later than Monday next, which is the date for the regular meeting of council.

Swapping of Funds. The contention among the members of the finance committee is $15,000 apportioned to the second ward in January for the widening and regrading of South Pryor street. The money, according to Chairman Humphrey, although apportioned, has not been spent. Chairman Humphrey wanted to take at least $3,000 from the Pryor street fund and give at least $1,169.61 for the normal school cause, which is a part of the reorganization plans of the school board for next year. Alderman Kelley has fought the attempt in the finance committee, and is prepared to take the floor when council meets to protect his fund. He has amendments which propose taking funds from other funds of the city, and members of the various wards whose street improvements will be hit do not look with favor on the plan. If council will authorize the mayor to appoint a committee of five to make a list of property to be sold, and if the city marshal can raise $20,000 from the sale the money can be put in the June sheet, and all the appropriations made in January will remain intact.

The Train That's Going Home.

Maybe home ain't nothing but a room,
Nary picture on the walls; silence when
There ought to be the lip of baby lips
Maybe home ain't nothing more than that—but say,
Ain't it good to hit the train that's going home?
Maybe that you've gone a-roaming in the land,
Seen the cities and the towering mountains stand Against the blue; maybe seen the waters blend
With the crimson of the evening sky—but, friends,
Ain't it good to hit the train that's going home?
Everything's so match'al there and true,
Seems like just the pavements say,
"Crowdy-do!"
Maybe that there ain't no baby lips at play
Maybe home ain't nothing but a room—
but say,
Ain't it good to hit the train that's

JURY RECOMMENDS ABOLISHING OF COURT

Americus, Ga., June 6.—(Special.)—General public endorsement of various recommendations of the Sumter county grand jury, which adjourned last night, are heard today. Besides recommending the building of the steel bridge over Flint river, connecting Sumter and Crisp counties, the grand jury recommended that the city court of Americus be abolished in the interest of economy, and that four sessions of superior court be held annually instead of two sessions, as at present.

The abolition of the city court is heartily favored, and has been for some time. The grand jury also recommended the establishment of the direct control force for Sumter county for the better preservation of law and order. A bond issue of $100,000 for county roads improvement is strongly urged.

How Uncle Sam Saves Thousands of Lives

Depends Upon the Hot Springs of Arkansas to Cure His Soldiers, Sailors and Citizens.

Many years ago, when Thomas Jefferson was President, the U. S. Government was awakened to the fact that the Hot Springs of Arkansas was the most valuable asset in America for the curing of human ailments. So all of these springs were set aside and became a park reserve, under the direct control and supervision of the Government. It is beyond comprehension the thousands upon thousands of lives that have since been saved through the healing powers of these springs. The waters are so charged with radium—known technically as radio-activity—that they accomplish results in the cure of disease that would under other treatment be considered impossible.

The ailments that most readily yield to these baths are Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia, Malaria, Locomotor Ataxia and blood diseases, troubles peculiar to women, and other troubles of a nature kindred to those above mentioned. Regarding these springs as America's greatest gift to the sick, the Government has never allowed them to be sold to private gain. The prices charged for the baths are strictly regulated—hotel charges are extremely low, and every consideration is afforded the visitor. The city of Hot Springs is one of the most delightful resorts to be found anywhere in the world, and its visitors are by no means confined to those seeking health.

SURPRISE PLANNED FOR AD MEN'S MEET

Local Delegates Are Keeping Their Scheme a Secret, But Promise to Give Toronto a Sensation.

The Ad Men's convention in Toronto, Canada, June 21 to 24, is going to be a big thing. The convention promises to be the most successful in the history of the association and will only be eclipsed by the one which the Atlanta Ad Men are going to get for Atlanta in 1916.

The Atlanta Ad Men are planning to duplicate the success of the Boston convention two years ago, when they were the sensation of the meeting, and pulled off an old-fashioned watermelon cutting on Boston common.

Just what is to be done is more or less of a secret, which is being kept by the Atlanta Ad Men, but they are going to pull off another surprise. Just now, however, they are making a collection of choice Georgia possums. Enough cotton bolls for each visitor to the convention to have one of them were shipped Saturday by freight to Toronto. Each cotton boll is packed in a neat cardboard box, which contains advertising matter descriptive of Atlanta, and which will be a real novelty in Toronto.

The coming on arrangements in Toronto has been advised of the fact that Atlanta is "coming strong," and is making preparations to "give 'em room."

There is nothing mean about Toronto, either, by the way, and they are preparing to spend money on the entertainment of the delegates.

They are going to have five bands at work all the time whenever possible, furnishing music for the occasion, and they have planned a water carnival in honor of the event. The big steamers have been chartered for a moonlight picnic, to which everybody is invited. The watermelon cutting, which will be one of the beautiful events of the year, will be pulled off.

CANADA OFFERS MARKET TO DIXIE MANUFACTURER

Many American manufacturers have taken advantage of the new territory Canada affords them, but few in the south have done so. Many southern manufacturers have thought of this great territory, but on account of the distance from them, and the difficulty of getting accurate information regarding industrial conditions, their thoughts have never crystallized into action.

Canada has an enormous market, which is rapidly expanding. It affords exceptional shipping facilities by rail and water. Electric power is very cheap, averaging from one-half cent to one cent per kilowatt hour. In most Canadian towns, labor troubles are practically unknown. It is naturally a haven for branch plants and factories. Best of all is the fact that, duty to the earnest competition of the different cities with each other, remarkably liberal inducements are offered in factory sites and other assistance.

The difficulty of obtaining information regarding industrial conditions no longer exists. The Hot Springs of Toronto, who issues a cordial invitation to southern visitors to avail themselves of their services (which are free) can put their fingers on just the information a manufacturer wants. They charge nothing for their service. This feature of their service is the result of co-operation of Canadian cities, who have organized in this manner for the dissemination of practical information regarding Canada.

Any Canadian will make an earnest endeavor to give a manufacturer the information he wants; they all have the Atlanta spirit. The Hot Springs of Toronto agency has complete information compiled in concrete form, and is ready to furnish it. It offers to manufacturers who will investigate the possibilities.

SENATE IS BALKING AT TRUST SCHEDULE

Strong Disposition to Pass Trade Commission Bill and Adjourn—Situation Seems to Be Complicated.

Washington, June 6.—Preparations today were made in the senate to take up anti-trust legislation as soon as the Panama tolls exemption repeal bill is disposed of next week.

The interstate commerce committee voted to report out for the present a bill creating a federal trade commission, and the three anti-trust bills passed yesterday by the house were received by the senate and sent to committees for consideration. They probably will rest for several weeks.

Chairman Newlands, of the interstate commerce committee, said today he would report the trade commission bill to the senate early next week and attempt to have it made the unfinished business.

Senate Wants to Quit. There is a strong sentiment in the senate to pass merely the trade commission bill and adjourn. The belief is that such legislation is sufficient for the present. Whether this spirit will prevail is a matter for speculation.

Several senators in the commerce committee today known to have opposed any motion to put any sort of trust legislation before the senate at this time.

Senator Brandegee, a republican member of the committee, tonight issued a statement saying he regarded the taking up of questions affecting the further regulation of business at this time a grave mistake.

"I do not think," the statement said, "that a worn and exasperated congress should be forced to enter upon the discussion of all these intricate and controverted questions in mid-summer on the eve of a nation-wide political campaign. I do not think the agitation will tend to restore confidence to the distracted and drooping business of the country."

Situation Complicated. The situation is further complicated by the three house anti-trust bills. At least one, the Clayton bill, will be claimed by the senate judiciary committee. Senator Cummins also is preparing a bill for the national incorporation of railroads, which will conflict with much of the house legislation.

Some administration senators declared the action did not foreshadow a curtailment of the trust program at this session.

The most optimistic incline to the belief that the senate will be able to finish debate on anti-trust legislation in less than two months, and many predict a much longer debate if all the subjects covered in the house bills are to be incorporated in legislation receiving senate approval.

Statement by Newlands. Chairman Newlands said there was no record vote on the question of bringing in only the trade commission bill, but said there was a general discussion. He added that the committee later might take up supplemental trust legislation. He issued a statement in which he said:

"The interstate commerce committee has had before it by H. R. 11507 for the creation of a trade commission. It was concluded to embrace in the hearings the supplemental legislation to the anti-trust act suggested by the president in his message and extensive additions to the trade commission bill, covering interlocking directorates, holding companies, the issue of railway securities and other matters have been under consideration. These matters were all presented in a report of a subcommittee.

To Segregate Trade Bill. "The committee determined today to segregate the trade commission bill from the supplemental legislation referred to and has authorized me to present an amendment in the nature of a substitute for my original bill, providing for a trade commission.

The fear that has been expressed that this bill will inaugurate a wholesale inquisition of the $50,000 corporations of the country is groundless. Power to investigate is given with reference to such corporations as the commission may desire. This power is substantially the same as is now possessed by the bureau of corporations.

The committee will continue its consideration of supplemental measures regarding interlocking directorates, holding companies, railway securities, etc. and its action may be on the line of amendments to the trade commission bill or of separate legislation.

Hearings Concluded. The commerce committee concluded its hearings today with the testimony of representatives of the United States Chamber of Commerce who showed that a poll of its membership on a trade commission bill gave 522 votes.

for a bill similar to that passed by the house with 124 against it.

associated with Mr. Marks in the work of operating the exchange in the capacity of assistant manager, and is thoroughly familiar with the details of its management. He has already assumed the full duties of his office.

Previous to coming with the exchange, Mr. Christman was for years general southeastern representative of the Armour car lines, and as such was an expert in the handling of transportation and refrigeration which means so much to the exchange now that the shipping season is at hand.

It is expected that the fruit crop, which is about two weeks late, on account of the long drought, will open up with a rush next week.

REV. LYONS TO PREACH AT FIRST PRESBYTERIAN

Louisville Minister Is Giving Careful Consideration to Call to Atlanta Church.

Rev. J. S. Lyons, D. D., pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Louisville, Ky., has been invited by the First Presbyterian church of Atlanta, which will preach at the First Presbyterian church this morning.

It is understood that the call to the Atlanta church has his favorable consideration, and that on account of the congregation to have him as his pastor, the call has gripped him more than the other request.

He declared further that he had been pastor of the Louisville church for twenty-two years and naturally was bound to the church and community by strong ties.

The people of Louisville have paid me the compliment of urging me to stay. In addition to my attachment to the congregation, I am identified with various civic enterprises of Louisville, which further makes it hard for me to consider leaving among them being the anti-tuberculosis work, the Men's federation, which occupies a position in the political affairs of Louisville similar to the position in religious affairs in Atlanta occupied by the Men and Religion Movement, and the Kentucky Presbyterian Theological seminary of which I have the honor to be a director.

"I will not feel like a stranger by any means. I have the pleasure of visiting here on many occasions. I have many dear friends here and a number of kinspeople. My sister, Mrs. Dr. W. A. Brown, lives here. My nephews, James M. Alexander, and several cousins, among them Mr. W. R. Hoyt, Mr. John Beagan and Mrs. George Brown."

Dr. Lyons was moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States (southern) which met in Atlanta in 1913, this being the highest position in the southern Presbyterian church.

That the $50,000 to purchase a site for a new house of worship for the First Presbyterian church had been paid in was announced Saturday morning by Rev. A. K. Woodson, assistant pastor, and the deed to the site has been delivered to the church. The site is at the northwest corner of Peachtree and Sixteenth streets, fronting 150 feet on Peachtree and running back 300 feet.

The cost of the new church will be approximately $125,000, which amount is expected to come from the proceeds of the sale of the present church property, and the balance of the $125,000 members have loaned the church $20,000 to begin work on the new building. The donors are: Samuel M. Inman, Captain James W. English and Colonel Robert J. Lowry.

The building plans are being completed and it is thought the ground will be broken within thirty days for the church's erection. A 12,000 manse for the pastor will be built on the corner facing Sixteenth street.

AUGUSTA BOY SCOUT IS DROWNED IN POND

Augusta, Ga., June 6.—(Special)—The encampment of troop No. 10—Boy Scouts at Flat Rock near Graniteville, S. C., was broken up this morning by the drowning of Edward McClinton, 13-year-old son of F. C. McClinton, in the pond of the Graniteville mill.

The troop, composed of twenty-two young boys, under command of Troop Master Rev. J. R. Sevier, had pitched camp yesterday evening. This afternoon while swimming in the pond, young McClinton, who could not swim, was left unattended for a minute or two and he fell into a hole in the water eighteen feet deep.

Rev. Sevier is pastor of the First Presbyterian church, and the boys in the troop are all members of prominent families.

ORGANIZED LABOR IN JUBILANT MOOD

Believes It Has Won Substantial Victory in Amendment to Clayton Bill—Exact Meaning of Amendment Disputed.

Washington, June 6.—(Special)—Labor leaders believe they have achieved a substantial victory in having the house of representatives adopt an amendment to the Clayton trust bill, which exempts any labor or farmers organization from prosecution under the Sherman law.

While the precise meaning of the amendment is still disputed, it has been generally construed not to legalize boycotts, picketing, or any act which is prohibited by other laws of the country.

Republicans declared the provision was meaningless. Democrats contended that the revised version of the amendment, adopted because the original draft was not satisfactory to the labor leaders, confers no greater exemption than that already secured.

Apprehension is expressed in some quarters lest the amendment may not be liberally construed in any event. It is almost certain to go to the United States courts for a judicial interpretation.

Those who believe that the great toiling masses have the right to band themselves together into organizations to fight more effectively for their rights, point out that in this day of great industrial consolidation the employers are comparatively few, and can easily be bought. In the nature of things it is easier for a half dozen men to reach an agreement than for 60,000 men to do so. Every fair-minded person believes, however, that oppression on the part of the state is as bad an oppression on the other.

Magna Charta of Labor. Representative David J. Lewis, of Maryland, who holds a union card and is a spokesman on the floor for organized labor, referred to section 7 of the Clayton bill as the magna charta of the American workman. He told the house it placed organized labor in this country on the same level as the British workmen in 1825.

Discussing that measure, Mr. Lewis said: "Their experience shows that property will be as safe, the rights of laborers will be as secure, if this measure is enacted into law."

Referring to the arguments that the proposed amendment was a class legislation, Mr. Lewis contended: "I know there is some misapprehension. Some honest people may mean a species of class legislation. They commit the error of considering labor as a commodity, a mere article of property, the price of which is determined by the market. But there is this distinction between labor and a barrel of oil, a commodity, labor can never under our institutions be property, either before or after the labor laws are enacted. Under our constitution property in human beings has forever ceased to exist. The price of oil is not a commodity before the courts; it is a commodity before the courts. The legal attribute of a commodity is property, but the legal attribute of the workman is not property. The principle of sociology and justice apply to these two subject matters, but they are applied in different ways before the courts. The rules that are rationally applicable to property can not be applied to the workman. I think you, gentlemen, for your attention."

Complies With Platform. Representative Webb, of North Carolina, newly elected chairman of the judiciary committee, who offered the amendment, said it represented a compromise with the labor organizations and farmers organizations, organized for mutual help, but not to be considered or construed to be illegal combinations or conspiracies in restraint of trade under the Sherman law.

He said organized labor was apprehensive that under the Sherman law, as it stands, their rights would be considered to exist at the sufferance of the attorney general, and could be probed against their will. He said he believed that the amendment would be a boon to the laborer.

If the amendment adopted by the house last Monday holds in the courts, organized labor will have nothing to fear on this score. Of course the police powers of the state may still be used to punish any infractions of the peace of the state.

Representative Murdock, of Kansas, thought the Bacon-Bartlett amendment would more nearly meet the situation. That was a bill framed and passed in the last congress by Senator Bacon in the senate and Representative Bartlett in the house.

The Bacon-Bartlett bill would have exempted from prosecution under the Sherman law labor organizations, farmers organizations, and agriculturalists.

In favoring the Webb amendment, Representative Bartlett said that the committee on the judiciary, in congratulating the country that the hour is now at hand when the shackles placed by a misconstruction of the Sherman antitrust law upon labor and like organizations shall be stricken from them and when they shall stand before the country free to exercise their right to perform and do those acts which are their right, they are entitled to do and those things which no one should ever construe they were forbidden to do by the Sherman antitrust law.

Howard Favored Amendment. Representative William Schley Howard, in discussing the amendment, said the Constitution representative said it was an act of simple justice and carried out the intention of the framers of the Sherman law.

The amendment is just and reasonable, said Mr. Howard. "It does not mean that either labor organizations or farmers organizations can do an act in itself unlawful."

"Strange to say, in the debates in the '90's when farmer or labor organizations were mentioned as being amenable to the Sherman antitrust law, the framers of this great measure declared that it was not their intention that this law should ever be applicable to such organizations. In the teeth of the declaration of the framers of this law, the Sherman antitrust law has been used 101 times as the basis for injunctions against labor and farmers' organizations in the country, when to my certain knowledge the very conspirators that this law was intended to restrain from unlawful operations, to-wit, the unions, have triumphed over the people and gone unpunished."

In other words, these amendments simply separate personal rights from property rights. England, under a monarchial form of government, has a more liberal law relative to labor organizations than is provided in any amendment to the Sherman bill upon which we have acted.

To say that the farmers' union of Georgia could be prosecuted as an illegal combination in restraint of trade if they, as an organization, agree to buy no grain for the year 1914 because they deemed it exorbitant in price, is absurd. To say that labor organizations, as such, agree upon wage scales and working conditions, and that because they do so they can be prosecuted as an illegal combination in restraint of trade is equally absurd.

"These men are only exercising their personal rights—their God-given rights—and they are exercising these rights against persons, corporations or trusts in which they have no capital invested and out of which they derive no profit. I do not know of any manufactured article in commerce—cotton goods, iron, steel, wool, tin, earthenware, pottery and the like—in which all of the gentlemen engaged in the manufacture and sale of these commodities have not an organization for their own protection, and so long as those engaged in such enterprises do not unlawfully combine to extort exorbitant prices from the public, so long as they do not combine for the purpose of driving honest competitors from their field, they are within the law, and they are exercising their rights, and they are exercising these rights against persons, corporations or trusts in which they have no capital invested and out of which they derive no profit. There is nothing in these amendments, in my judgment, that can be construed by farmer and labor organizations as a great victory for them. That it is class legislation in their favor, nor is there anything which those who deal with farmers and laborers can claim to give such organizations an undue advantage. It is simply plain, unadorned justice to those that have heretofore been dealt with unjustly."

VILLAGE NOT INVADDED BY INDUSTRIAL WORKERS

Tarrytown, N. Y., June 6.—Twelve members of the Industrial Workers of the World, arrested here a week ago while proclaiming their rights of free speech, were brought here today from the White Plains jail and their cases were temporarily disposed of without a sign of the disturbance for which the anxious village fathers had carefully prepared. The local police marshal denied the motion of their counsel that they be allowed to appear before a grand jury, but to give them time for further legal maneuvers he postponed their cases until next Friday. Bail for each of the twelve was fixed at $200.

The I. W. W. demonstrators, humming the Marseillaise, rode into Tarrytown in three automobiles. Fifty extra policemen had been called out to meet the promised invasion, but they had nothing to do. Neither had the village firemen who had lines of hose attached to hydrants at strategic points. The villagers meanwhile grumbled over the cost of employing the extra policemen, which amounts to $100 a day.

Alexander Berkman, who had promised to bring hundreds of sympathizers from New York, Paterson and Passaic arrived with Upton Sinclair and half a dozen others.

Tarrytown's troubles began when the police refused permits for street meetings to followers of Berkman, Sinclair and Industrial Workers of the World members at which they proposed to attack John D. Rockefeller, Jr. because of his declaration that he could not interfere in behalf of the miners in the recent Colorado coal strike.

Special guards surrounded the 6,000-acre estate of John D. Rockefeller to prevent demonstrations by friends of the prisoners. Sheriff Doyle announced today that his deputies had been instructed to arrest any person entering the Rockefeller grounds and the police are equally vigilant to prevent crowds assembling in the village.

The "Waist Line." This essay on "The Waist Line" is attributed to one of the K. K. C. students in Manhattan.

"The waist line is an imaginary ring around Rosie. For many years it lay in a dormant state. So quiet and demure it was that Rosie herself hardly knew of its existence. Of late, however, the waist line has departed itself from its wonted position and has become a twisted itself into curious shapes. It has soared to Rosie's shoulders and swooped to her feet. It has coyly hidden in folds of bouffant drapery, suddenly to reappear and spread itself all over creation. We predict that such frivolous conduct on the part of the waist line, this self-appointed architect, can bring only sorrow and degradation. In fact, we shall be not one bit surprised if it is forced to spend its old age in the bread line.

PERUNA THE SPRING AND SUMMER MEDICINE.

"I used to get cramps in my stomach. I had sick headaches. My stomach nearly killed me. My family physician only gave me temporary relief. I got out of patience and had given up all hopes of recovery. I then wrote to Dr. Hartman and he advised me to take Peruna. I got a bottle of Peruna and commenced using it. Soon got better and am now entirely cured and feel like a new woman. Peruna is my comfort. I will never be without it." Mrs. Thomas M. Morgan, K. P. D. 2, Wadsworth Hill.

HARDWICK MAKES REPLY TO SLATON

Congressman Reviews Own Record and Attacks the Governor's Platform and Record.

Washington, June 6.—(Special.)—Representative T. W. Hardwick tonight gave out the following reply to Governor John M. Slaton in regard to joint debates in the present contest.

"It seems that we are not to have the series of proposed debates between Governor Slaton, Mr. Felder and myself. I regret it. I believe they could have been conducted on a high and honorable plane, worthy of the great office to which we aspire, and so conducted that they would have been most illuminating as to the real issues of the campaign, and have afforded to the democrats of Georgia the best and fairest opportunity to judge between us, man to man, face to face.

"Mr. Felder declines the debates because he feels they might produce bitterness and be hurtful to the democratic party. Whatever effect they might have had on the candidacy of any individual, they could not have easily been arranged at least twelve of them, before the legislature meets, and on Saturdays during its sessions, and besides, Mr. Slaton has been able to spare much more time than these debates would require in attending barbecues, county fairs and school closings.

Slaton's Original Platform.

"Mr. Slaton's original platform (April 15) was a mere rhetorical statement of platitudes and a mass of glittering generalities. Driven from his unconvincing statement of April 15, he has endeavored to establish the principles of the democratic party," he now asserts. In my announcement I defined my creed, but that could not be in doubt how to construe that creed, permit me to apply it to all questions that are or may be issues in this contest. I stated that in many respects his second platform is but a slight improvement on his first, so far as making plain his position is concerned. When Mr. Slaton and Mr. Felder advocate state rights, rural credit legislation for the benefit of our farmers, restricted immigration, the prevention of the abuse of the process of injunction in labor disputes, the extension of our foreign trade, the extension of our state and local authorities in the construction and maintenance of post roads, they are not presenting anything new or distinct. So with the creation of the division of markets, already an accomplished fact. All of these new or distinct promises of them embraced in our party platform, and either accomplished or well on their way to accomplishment.

"Against every promise either of them can make on these questions, I can, in most instances, at least point to the fact that they have already voted for most of them and have done my part toward actually enacting them into law.

Hardwick Claims Performance.

"For instance, I reported the special rule that rendered possible the passage by the house at this session of the Burnett bill to restrict immigration, increasing the head tax and imposing an educational test, and I supported and voted for the bill itself. With the question of federal aid to post roads, I helped secure the consideration and passage, during the present session by the house, of the Shackelford bill appropriating $25,000,000 to the post roads of the country. Again, I have three times voted for and supported the principle involved in the so-called Bacon-Bartlett amendment to prevent the prosecution of farmers and labor unions under the Sherman anti-trust law unless these organizations acts are in themselves unlawful, and that principle is fully recognized in the Clayton bill which passed the house on June 5, 1914, and which I supported. So with almost every plank in the platform of the democratic party, I have done my part. For every promise they can make, I can point to an act of performance on my part.

"Mr. Felder's position of opposing life tenure of office with especial reference to the federal judiciary is a democratic doctrine as old as Jefferson and from Jefferson himself. Mr. Felder cannot claim a patent on it nor charge Mr. Slaton or any other democrat with infringing his patent because he assents to that doctrine.

Attacks Felder's Peonage Plank.

"I believe Mr. Felder's peonage plank is original, however, and that his complaint that Mr. Slaton has purloined it is well founded. Why Mr. Slaton should have done so is incomprehensible to me. I would not borrow it, much less steal it. If Mr. Felder is serious about this contention, and is intellectually honest, he ought to go the full extent that his rival from his own town, Mr. Cooper, did, and advocate a repeal of the thirteenth amendment and a return to slavery. The peonage statute on its face is fair and just in its terms. If slavery is to remain prohibited by the federal constitution, then it is difficult to see how the federal congress could be induced to repeal this law to safeguard that constitutional provision. It is a decent number of members in either house of congress or in any committee of either house, could be induced to consider such a proposition.

"If this is not the situation, and has not been the case for years, then Senators Colquitt, Gordon, Clay, Bacon, Walsh and Hoke Smith and Speaker Crisp and every Georgia representative in the past thirty years are subject to indictment for neglect of duty for no one of them has made the slightest effort in all these years to repeal or modify this law. The law is fair enough on its face. The trouble is in the past thirty years, and it is a deplorable fact, a strained construction and a despotic enforcement. No one knows this better than Messrs. Felder and Slaton.

Slaton's Tariff Plank.

"In his second platform Mr. Slaton now insists that he is a low tariff democrat and that the question of tariff is absurd, as all democrats are low tariff democrats. He is in error about the latter part of his statement, and still too general in his declaration.

"If he ever attends a democratic caucus in either house of congress, I think he will find that we still have many high tariff democrats just as we had in Jackson's day, in Randall's day and in Gordon's day.

"On what class of articles would be levied a substantial revenue duty, and on what class of articles would be levied a small duty or none? He stands as I did in the democratic caucus for the imposition of a duty on raw silk, used for the manufacture of luxury, so that the blankets and many other articles of necessity, both food and clothing, might go untaxed. He would have a revenue purposes, insist that a 20 per cent tax on blankets be retained.

"Mr. Slaton agrees thoroughly with President Wilson's policy of repealing the iniquitous subsidy to the coastwise shipping trust and requiring the vessels to pay tolls and thus aid in the maintenance of the canal built by the people, why does he qualify his approval of the Wilson policy with the statement that I would oppose any declaration limiting the right of this country to control its foreign trade and its hundred dollar property that our people have built, paid for, and own?

"Who proposes such a foolish and unpatriotic declaration? Surely not the great president whose policy on this subject Mr. Slaton professes to support. Who else? Why, then, this Slaton-like qualification? Can it be ascribed to an earnest desire to ride with the hare and hold with the hounds? Can he hope to catch the Wilson support with the best part of the Hearst support with its latter and qualifying clause?

Claims to Be Better Fitted.

"In this contest, am contending, and my friends throughout the state are urging, that more and useful service in one house of congress has better results than in the other. No one of whom has had a day of such service. Realizing the tremendous force of this argument, my political foes everywhere have sought to weaken it by a constant effort to show that I am a little man and to disparage my service in the house of representatives. Mr. Slaton puts himself at the head of this propaganda and assumes public responsibility for it. Now that he has done so, though I have passed it by in the past, when coming from other parts, I shall no longer permit it to go unchallenged.

"The honest Georgia democrats, even in the heat of bitter political contest, should seek to rob a fellow Georgian an honest and useful career as one of their representatives. It is a gentleman who holds the office of governor of Georgia, and seeks to be one of its senators, and who knows better should join in such a despicable crusade is infinitely worse.

"Ignorance might excuse some, but not Mr. Slaton.

"Mr. Slaton insinuates that because I have only two committee assignments in the house, after years of service, that this, in itself, is proof that my standing in that body is not high. Mr. Slaton's standard for judging the value of committee assignments seems to be neither high nor accurate. In the legislature of our state, when he was speaker and president of the senate, the smooth personal politics that he constantly sought to play with all members of my constituency, have led him to appoint almost every member to a large number of committees. This may have been gratifying to the personal pride of the members, and consequently an asset of importance to an ambitious presiding officer. That is not the way to run a legislature, and it is not the one we follow in the house of representatives here, where we give the only such committees as he can actually and regularly work upon, and more often than not, only one committee assignment.

Hardwick's Length of Service.

"For instance, but two of my colleagues from Georgia rank with me in length of service. Hon. Alexander H. Bartlett and Judge Adams. Judge Bartlett serves on but one committee, appropriations and Judge Adams on but one committee, interstate and foreign commerce.

"Mr. Slaton insinuates also that even the two committees I serve on are not of importance. Is that fair? I am the second democrat on the committee on rules. Does Mr. Slaton rank the committee on rules in the house of representatives of our legislature as unimportant? Well, here is an important committee. It determines what bills the house is to consider. Does he estimate the value of that committee in the house as of no importance? Well, the last Georgian before myself who ever presided over it was Hon. Alexander H. Stephens, and my last predecessor as chairman was Hon. Richard P. Bland, of Missouri.

"Mr. Slaton also neglected to state, through inadvertence of course, that when the democrats captured the house in the election of 1912, they organized two great special committees to investigate the long fight for the canal. I was selected to head the committee on sugar, being the only member of the house who had chairman of two committees during the sixty-first congress.

"Mr. Slaton insists that I have been author of no important legislation. Let him inform the house what great measures in Georgia bear his name and acknowledge his authorship.

"Still I will ask if Mr. Slaton never heard of the long fight for the canal, and of my connection with it? By the one fight I have at least helped to remove from the state a great burden of tax that has cost the consumers of the country more than two thousand million dollars since.

"Did he ever hear of the long and continued fight that I helped make on Cannon and Cannonism? And of the part I played in redeeming the pledges of the party to the country in this fight?

"Does he not know that I was the author of the proposal to put the telephone, telegraph and pulman companies engaged in interstate business under the jurisdiction of the federal railroad commission?

Repeat of Research Amendment.

"Mr. Slaton attempts to prove that I am either insincere or without influence in the house because, during all the years of my membership, I have been unable to get my proposal to repeal the nineteenth amendment reported out by the committee and acted on in the election of 1912. In the same years Mr. Underwood, of Alabama, has introduced one congress after another, precisely the same amendment. He also has been unable to get this proposition reported out and acted on by the house.

"Consequently, according to Mr. Slaton, Mr. Underwood as well as myself are precisely the same in regard to influence or standing in the house.

"His pitiful attempt to make belated capital out of my vote to increase the congressional salary is simply riding on old straw. That is one vote I am proud of and upon which I am willing to stand, if not believe in it. He must maintain the members of both houses of congress are poorly enough paid, even now. If we pay no salary at all, we are no better than the rogues and crooks, and if either of these classes or a combination of both ever control congress, the result will be ruin to the republic. I welcome the issue on this question that Mr. Slaton has raised. I am willing to submit it to the entire state, to all the districts, and since Mr. Slaton chooses to do so, I will let demagogues usually takes in matters of this kind, I am glad he does so.

Hardwick and the Union Depot.

"I will not answer at much length Mr. Slaton's fling at me about the so-called depot bill in the legislature of Georgia. Mr. Hall, of Bibb, has already answered it completely on this question. I did not support this bill and have never regretted my failure to do so. I did not vote for it because, as I viewed it, I had no right under the constitution of the state and no right to support it. It is appropriate the sinking fund of the state to build a depot for the railroads, and besides, I thought the railroads ought to build their own depot and that the state of Georgia ought not to build it for them. My views of the constitutional question were subsequently sustained by the supreme court of Georgia.

"When Governor Slaton seeks to ascribe to me a narrow prejudice against Atlanta as the motive that inspired my vote to support Atlanta, he passes beyond all bounds. I do not think he believes it himself. I have never in my life endeavored to support Atlanta as a city, in which a national bank should be located, because I knew Atlanta was the only Georgia city that had a chance and did so a time when Governor Slaton could not be induced to say more than he favored some Georgia city.

"I could with much more propriety than Governor Slaton question motives, or it is an undeniable fact that the value of certain large property holdings of members of his family, notably the Slaton family, have been greatly enhanced if the depot bill

THAT "SHOO, FLY" WITHDRAWN BY CLARK

Speaker of House Writes Letter to Hardwick in Regard to the Incident.

Washington, June 6.—(Special.)—Speaker Clark has withdrawn the unkind words he said about Representative T. W. Hardwick in his speech on canal tolls.

Comments of the Georgia papers on the "shoo, fly" don't tender much of an incident have misrepresented his views of the Georgia representative who is now seeking election to the senate, according to Speaker Clark. His letter, written to the governor today at Mr. Hardwick's office and is subscribed "Your friend," follows:

"But Mr. Hardwick, June 6, 1914.—Hon. T. W. Hardwick, House of Representatives. Dear Tom: Somebody sent me a copy of the paper in which it appears that you in the toll debate are being construed as showing that help was given to you by the governor as a member of the house.

"I have no desire whatever to meddle in Georgia politics and I am unwilling to be placed in a false position by such a publication. The inference drawn from the remark I made is unwarranted and untrue. For years we have been personal and political friends and have stood side by side in a right and efficient service to the party here, and hold a high and honorable place in the house.

"I desire at all times to be just and an unwilling to be placed in a false position by the publication of a chance expression in a heated debate, and I write you this letter to assure you that I am not in the least less friendly to you than I was when you are quite the opposite to what is indicated by this publication. Your friend, "CHAMP CLARK."

Hardwick and Negro Disfranchisement.

"Mr. Slaton in his card sees some evidence of weakness on my part, in that when I first introduced the negro disfranchisement bill in the Georgia legislature in 1899 it received only three votes. He does not seem to realize that a legislative measure usually loses at first and he sees no elements of strength in me because of the narrow margin, and which finally culminated in glorious and complete success, both in the legislature and at the polls.

"Mr. Slaton was in the legislature in 1899 when this bill was introduced. He was not present when it was passed in 1901. Possibly his opposition had something to do with the fact that it only got a small number of votes. I readily accept the issue he raises. I stood then and have always stood for negro disfranchisement and for the right to insure and safeguard the latter.

"Nor has his disinclination to get rid of the negroes in the way he suggests. As recently as September, 1913, while Mr. Holling H. Jones, the present governor of Georgia, was endeavoring to rid the postal service there of a number of negroes who held responsible positions, in order to substitute for them worthy and efficient white men, his efforts were frustrated. This was strenuously fought by a firm of Atlanta attorneys who fought these removals first before the post office board and afterwards appealed the case to the postoffice department in Washington.

"The negroes' attorneys were paid in part by the Atlanta negroes and in part by a certain society for the securing of equal political rights in the south. In Chicago, as that concern seems also to have busted itself about these removals.

Governor Slaton's Law Firm.

"What was the name of this firm of attorneys, Rosser, Brandon, Slaton and Phillips?

"If Slaton denies it I am prepared to cite cases and give details. If he admits, but asserts that he had no knowledge of it and nothing to do with it, then my rejoinder is that his personal question of expediency and authority to do so.

"Furthermore, I insist that when Mr. Slaton assisted in forming the law firm of Rosser, Brandon, Slaton and Phillips after his nomination and election as governor of Georgia, and only a short time after the passage of the disfranchisement act, it was a manifest impropriety that no governor of Georgia from Oglethorpe's day to his ever committed before.

"It is not only a disgrace to Georgia, but the governor of a state should be a partner in any law firm engaged in the prosecution of the case of the removal of the state over whose destinies he is presiding. If he does so, what a temptation is presented to his personal interest to be charged with the commission of crime to engage that law firm, on the idea that after he had admitted the impropriety of the contract he may still present his appeal for pardon or executive clemency to a governor who is at least nominally, one of his own lawyers.

"Of course an honest governor, as I hope and believe Governor Slaton to be, would not have backed against his quasi client in his effort to avoid being partial to him. Still, it is a reprehensible and a disgraceful position, the fact that Governor Slaton has put himself in it seems to strongly indicate that he lacks balance, discretion and judgment in the discharge of his necessary qualifications both for a governor and a senator.

"I recall when Rosser, Brandon, Slaton & Phillips take care of this kind of negro officeholders, it is hardly to be said that it is law, strictly speaking, that they are practicing. It requires no knowledge of common or state law or the constitution to bring such matters to practice. Political pull that they admitted to the contract with the firm of Rosser, Brandon, Slaton & Phillips is their political prestige and influence? The name of John M. Slaton, whom the Georgia people have elected to the senate and elected governor and who let the name, white governor, to a firm of Atlanta negroes, who did not bestir themselves to support Atlanta as a city, to use that name to try to keep negro republicans in the Atlanta postoffice and night schools, and who let the name of Governor Slaton stand on the negro question in 1899, in 1901, in 1907, when he either opposed or failed to support the disfranchisement, I also recall when he stood in 1913. Where he stands today I cannot tell.

As to Geography.

"I do not think that residence alone ought to be a great factor in the election of our senators. There are many other considerations of vastly more importance that are always to be considered. But if other things are equal, then both of our senators ought not to come from Atlanta, and I do not believe the Georgia people of Georgia ought to select them both from Atlanta this year.

"In 1911, when Governor Smith was elected to the senate to fill Senator Clay's unexpired term, his own state senator, Hon. John M. Slaton, did not support him, because, as stated, when a man was elected governor of Georgia, he made a solemn contract with the people of Georgia to serve them for two years, and he ought to be required to live up to his contract. The same doctrine is applied to Mr. Slaton now. He cannot escape its force by any little pleasantry about asking the good people to amend the constitution to give the contract to serve them two years as governor and unless all signs are wrong, he will not only be required to live up to it, but to serve two years as governor.

"THOMAS W. HARDWICK."

GRICE APPOINTED CAVALRY ADJUTANT IN NATIONAL GUARD

An appointment of much interest in military circles is that of J. L. Grice, of Atlanta, to the post of adjutant of the second squadron of cavalry, National Guard of Georgia, on the staff of Major J. O. Seagrams, commander of the squadron, who made the appointment.

The rank of the adjutant is first lieutenant, who is the ranking officer of the major's staff, commanding five troops of cavalry, one in Atlanta, one in Savannah, one in Augusta, one in Gainesville and one in McIntosh county. All have been ordered to Augusta, July 22, for ten days' encampment.

Lieutenant Grice, was born at Edwardsville, Cleburne county, Alabama, September 29, 1885. He attended the public schools of that place, and afterwards the Cleburne institute.

After a few years' government service, lieutenant Grice became permanently in Atlanta and entered the real estate field.

He is associated with the firm of Martin-Chester Realty company, located on the 16th floor of the Third National Bank building.

Lieutenant Grice has been a resident of Atlanta for about eight years, and is well-known throughout business and social circles of the city.

He is a Shriner and a sergeant in the Yeabur Patrol, and it was his remarkable display of military ability in performance of his duties in the grand division review of all of the Shrine Patrols at Piedmont park recently which attracted the attention of Major Seagrams, marshal of that day, to tender him the appointment.

Lieutenant Grice, who is an expert horseman, was the topic of general conversation among military men because of his horsemanship displayed at the Piedmont park recently upon this occasion, when he, with a few other mounted officers, handled the thousands of spectators with unrivaled ease, precision and satisfaction. The new adjutant will enter upon his duties immediately.

He is the fourth officer of his name in the service of Georgia since the sixties. Another John M. Grice, of Carrollton, Ga., was a Captain of the Confederate Army which defended Atlanta, near East Atlanta.

A cousin, W. L. Grice, was colonel of a Georgia regiment in the Civil War, serving under Jackson and Lee. Another cousin, Warren Grice, who is now attorney general of Georgia was a captain in the Georgia militia a few years ago.

PAY OF THE RAILROADS FOR CARRYING MAILS

Washington, June 6.—Proposed legislation which would revolutionize the system for compensating railroads for carrying the mails today is threatened with delay because of differences of opinion in congress as to the pay to be accorded carriers for space occupied by the mails.

The proposed legislation is being prepared by the joint congressional committee on railway mail pay. Its presentation to congress is being delayed until figures can be obtained from the interstate commerce commission as to the average compensation now received by the railroads from commercial business.

The committee proposes, according to Chairman Jonathan Bourne today, to abolish the system of compensation based on weight and space and to adopt a system based solely on the space occupied in trains by mail. In support of the change, it is urged that this would eliminate the annual expenditure of $100,000 by the government in weighing the mails for a given period in order to determine the average weight on which to base the pay of the railroads for the succeeding four years. It is claimed on behalf of the railroads they would no longer be required to carry increased weight after the weighing for approximately four years without compensation therefor.

The committee has adopted as units for pay a 60-foot car, 30-foot car, a 15-foot compartment and a 7-foot space for mail boxes. It has agreed on the pay being composed of a terminal charge and a haul charge and believes the railroads of delivering the mails to the postoffice, as they are required to do within a certain distance.

As terminal charges for a round trip, the committee proposes to fix a rate of $8.00 on 60-foot cars and as line rates for each mile such a car travels, 21 cents.

The pay would be reduced for the smaller dimensions. The committee claims that under the new system the government would pay for exactly the service it gets.

ECZEMA PEELLED OFF IN GREAT FLAKES

On Ears, Itched and Burned. Could Not Sleep from Scratching. Looked So Badly Was Ashamed. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment Five Weeks. Ears Well.

E. F. D. No. 4, Marshall, N. C.—"I had eczema on my ears. It would come like a pimple, itched and burned and I could not keep from scratching. Then the pimple would break, run water and then it turned to an ugly sore and peeled off in great flakes. I was in such pain that I could not sleep at night. They burned, itched and were swollen and looked very badly. I went with my head tied up they looked so badly I was ashamed of them. I would think they were going to get better but they would only come back as bad as ever. I was given different kinds of medicine but none did me any good so I last tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After the first or second application my ears began to feel cool and soft. After using Cuticura Soap and Ointment for four or five weeks my ears were well." (Signed) Mrs. D. S. Tweed, June 20, 1913.

DAILY CRIST from the STATE'S POLITICAL GRIND

MANY MEN OF PROMINENCE TO MAKE LEGISLATIVE RACES

All indications point to the fact that the next legislature will be composed of men of greater ability than has been the case in years.

In practically every county in the state the best men in the community—men of experience and mature judgment—are being put forward.

This is one of the most hopeful signs possible. Time was, some thirty or forty years ago, when it was considered an honor to occupy a seat in the house of representatives.

The revival of interest should mean more conservative, safer legislation—legislation for the good of the state and not prompted by narrow, un patriotic motives.

Among the first organizations in the state to recognize the need of strong men in the house of representatives was the Citizens' League.

The members of the league are largely responsible for the candidacy of Judge Spencer R. Atkinson, one of the very ablest men in the state.

His announcement has already had a good effect and has aroused several prominent men to make the race this year.

Among these is Judge Fred Foster, of Madison, Morgan county, who is an avowed candidate.

It was in Judge Harris' address before the young women's graduates of the Georgia Normal and Industrial college at Milledgeville this week that he made the prophecy.

"When the late Governor Atkinson was a member of the legislature, he took my bill for the establishment of Georgia Tech and by changing it about he gave you girls this institution here," Judge Harris told the young women.

Now they have waited a long time to make the man who first started the state in the right direction on educational matters, governor, but I believe that the boys are coming into their own just like the girls did when their friend was made governor of the state.

Judge Harris declares he knows whereof he speaks, for he made it daily Georgia. He now has a corps of stenographers at work in the headquarters in the Georgia Life building.

The state prison commission is now composed of three active, energetic members, all in good sound health, who are always on the job.

The result of these conditions is that the board has accomplished more work in the last year, it might be said, than in almost any two years of its former existence.

The present board is composed of Chairman R. E. Davidson, of Greensboro; Judge T. E. Patterson, of Griffin; and Hon. E. L. Rainey, editor of The Dawson News.

There is perhaps no board in Georgia in which there is a more equitable division of the membership among the various sections of the state.

The last interview I had with Chairman Harwell was three weeks ago," said the mayor.

In view of the statements made to me that the board was working in harmony, I had not made up my mind to reappoint all the old members.

CRACKERS ON ROAD FOR NINE GAMES

Crackers Sweep the Series: Perryman Blanks the Birds; Boys Given Some New Lids

Fifteen players, representing the city of Atlanta in the race for the Southern league pennant, are sporting new hats today as the result of three straight wins over the New Orleans Pelicans at Poncey park.

Bill Smith called the bunch in the clubhouse just before Thursday's game and delivered an oration in this manner: "Boys, we need these games but I'll put us right back on them in the running. If you'll go out there and win three straight I'll buy you all a new lid."

And Bill bought. Bill selected Ernest Key Perryman to hurl the final fray and his selection proved a wise one. The preacher-hurler handed a row of nine goose eggs to the Doobs, while the Crackers continued their slaughter of Pelican hurlers and rolled six tallies across the plate.

Perryman Right. Perry allowed nine bingles, but he kept them very well scattered and was backed up in faultless style, two brilliant double plays pulling him out of two holes, while he pitched his way out of the other one.

Jim Bagby worked for the Pels and went the entire distance, the only Pelican twirler to accomplish this feat during the series, but Jim got his just like the rest of them.

Jim allowed two bingles, three doubles and a triple being mixed up in the assortment. The only reason that he was not slammed for a home run was that all the other hurlers that Doobs worked, was that the long drives that Kircher and Long hit caromed off the end of the bleachers into the hands of Outfielder Burns instead of going on to the fence.

Sam McConnell was out of the game with a strained tendon in his side, the result of running out a hit in Friday's game. Harry Holland, the keystone, and acquitted himself in an excellent manner, besides hammering the ball when he pitched.

Harry and Morley Jennings featured the Crackers' play in the field. Their work around the keystone looked like they had been working there all season.

Steamer Flanagan. Flanagan's streak of hard luck by slamming out three blows the first three trips up, and the hardest ball he hit, the one that Burns dropped, was for a sacrifice fly.

Kircher got a couple of doubles, Dunn and Long got a couple of hits, and Eibel got one.

Burns and Lindsay did half of the hitting for the Pels, whose play was listless in the ninth, and the Crackers of their work was the killing of three Crackers at the plate, keeping the score to six instead of seven. So Higgins did nice work on these plays.

The locals tallied their first run in the second inning. Flanagan singled, Jennings walked, Flanagan singled, Dunn forced Flanagan at second, Jennings going to third, where he scored on a wild pitch.

Long opened the fourth with a three-run cushion, but left Jennings hit to Blum and Long was snuffed at the plate. Flanagan beat out a hit to Burns and Jennings threw a wild throw to first, Jennings counted.

Holland's single, followed by Kircher's double, tallied the runs in the fifth.

The loud noise came in the eighth. Eibel opened with a double to center, Long hit a home run, and the bases were drunk. Flanagan hit a line drive to deep left, which Burns caught under, then dropped. Eibel tallied.

Dunn dropped a Texas leaguer back of first and Jennings hit Holland slammed one by third, which Lindsay knocked down. Welchence, off Flanagan, went out at first, and the plate trying to score on the play.

The Pels went out in one, two, three order in the ninth, and the Crackers tallied their third straight victory over them, giving us a margin of one game on the season and a record of six straight wins.

NASHVILLE-ATLANTA GAME PLAY BY PLAY

Caller King Resumes Details This Afternoon—Contribution Box in Doorway.

The Nashville-Atlanta game in Nashville today will be called play by play at Caller King's place on the square. The game will start at 3:30 o'clock. Doors open at 3 o'clock.

No admission fee can be charged and no tickets can be sold, but to give the fans an opportunity to show that they appreciate the efforts of the caller to furnish them a place to while away a dull Sunday afternoon, a contribution box will be placed at the foot of the stairs leading into the hall.

Atlanta has been fine, but the "appreciation" poor. Eibel has been installed. Everything is ideal for calling a game. It will be the coolest place in town. Boys will not be admitted.

DR. NAT THORNTON LOSES TO T. R. PEEL

The New York Tennis Star Wrests Old Dominion Title From Atlantian—Mixed Doubles Decided.

Richmond, Va., June 6.—T. R. Peel, of New York, today won the championship of the Old Dominion Tennis association which carries with it the Hermitage cup, when he defeated the titleholder, Dr. Nat Thornton, of Atlanta, Ga., 6-4, 5-2, 6-4.

Dr. Thornton played a fast game, being particularly strong at the net. He looked to be a possible winner in the first and third sets, but could not overcome the dashing attack of the New York man.

In the women's singles, Miss Marie Wagner, of New York, defeated Mrs. Connie Sullivan, of Richmond, 5-2, 6-3. This gives Miss Wagner first place in the championship cup, the old cup having passed to Mrs. Sullivan, winner for three years.

Beals Wright, of Boston, and Miss Clara Cassell, of New York, defeated Wylie Grant, of New York, and Miss Elizabeth Moore, of New York, for the championship in the mixed doubles, 6-4, 2-6, 6-4.

TYLER MONTAGUE IS TECH NINE CAPTAIN

Jackets' Only All-Southern Timber Is Elected by Team-mates at Meeting.

Tyler Montague, the only candidate that the Tech Nine jackets had for all-Southern honors during the past year, was elected captain of the 1915 nine.

Montague was universal choice for utility man on the all-Southern college baseball team of 1914 and deserved the honor above every player in the south.

With him the Tech Nine position would be weakened when he was substituted.

Tyler was named at a meeting of the Tech team, at the photographer's where they went to have their official photo taken, Saturday.

Smokey Eubanks was elected alternate.

There are not more than ten real automobile manufacturers in America. Of these ten, Studebaker leads all the rest in manufacturing the largest proportion of parts used in its cars.

In laboratory research, in refining processes, in intensive manufacturing, in costly but economical equipment, Studebaker is first.

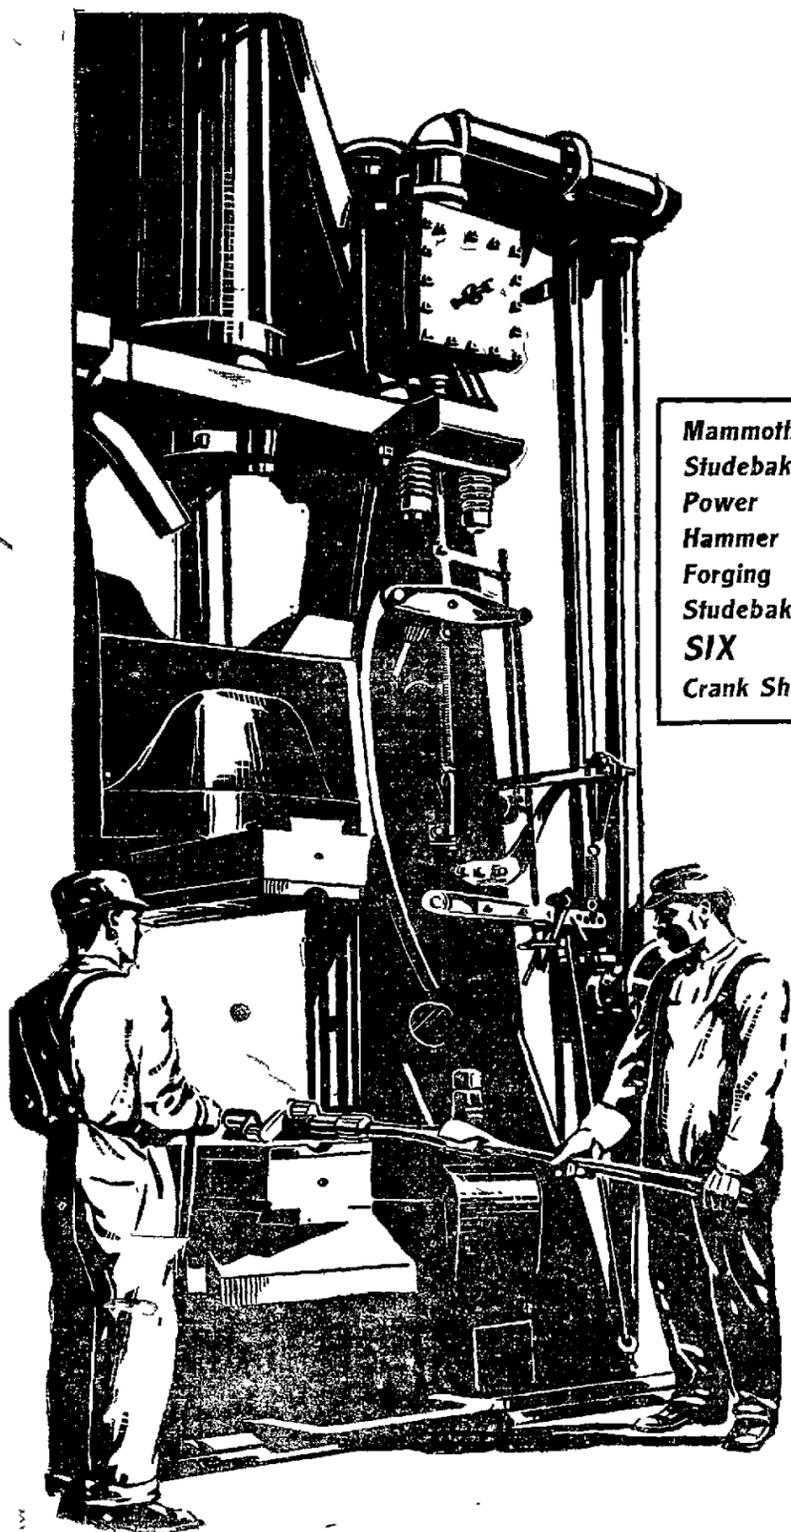

In addition, Studebaker spreads these quality producing factors over the largest "Six" volume.

The net result is the greatest automobile value in the world today--the

Demonstration Will Sell This SIX Against Any Car of Any Size or Any Price

The Studebaker SIX will prove to you in half an hour its superiority over heavier, costlier cars.

It has a greater proportion of manufactured parts than the best of these heavier cars.

Each essential part is of special formula steel, heat-treated from two to four times to permit the use of light parts—with increased strength.

It will prove that this Studebaker combination of light weight and perfect balance holds the road far better than mere bulk.

Once set in a straight line the Studebaker SIX continues in a straight line.

It does not creep or slide toward the ditch from the crown of a country road.

This roadability begins in the motor itself—one of the smoothest-running, most perfectly balanced "Six" motors in the world.

When the motor is developing its greatest power vibration is practically imperceptible.

At a speed of thirty or forty miles an hour you will probably guess that you are going twenty or twenty five.

Your tire cost, gasoline cost and oil cost, are, of course, very much lower than they would be in a heavier car—even a "Four" of equal power.

Studebaker Demonstration Shows Even More Striking Superiority Against The Assembled "Six"

No assembled or semi-manufactured "Six" can stand up in demonstration against the Studebaker SIX.

Studebaker gives you special formula steels tested to 150,000 pounds per square inch.

The best steel the assembler can give you is the best he can get; tested by the mill—perhaps—to 100,000 pounds.

Studebaker doubles and trebles the strength of its own special formula steels by two to four heat treatments.

The assembler must pass the steel on to you exactly as he gets it.

Studebaker by this process produces parts two to three times as strong, and still holds down the weight.

To equal this strength the assembler would have to add weight which would be prohibitive.

So the factor of safety in the Studebaker SIX is bound to be immeasurably greater than in the best assembled "Six."

And the same elements work out in the Studebaker SIX to produce perfect balance.

As a result of this balance it rides better, makes better use of its power, is a better hill-climber, is easier on tires.

In short, the value, long life and roadability of a "Six" are in proportion to the number of manufactured and closely measured parts.

In that respect, as we said above, the Studebaker SIX leads the world.

That is why it is competing with the costliest "Sixes" and outselling them.

That is why assembled "Sixes" MUST COME DOWN in price; and CANNOT COME UP to the Studebaker in manufactured quality.

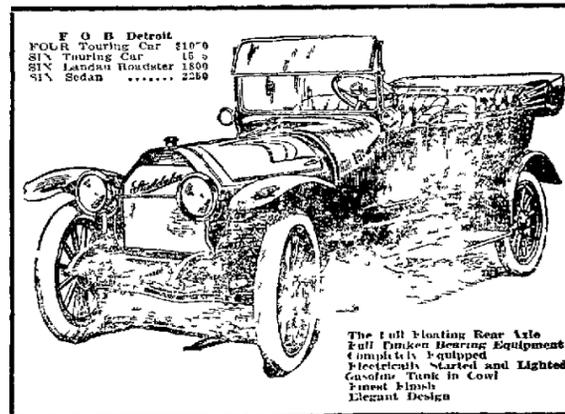

The Studebaker FOUR is of the same grade and quality of material and workmanship, and is manufactured with the same scrupulous care and closeness, as the Studebaker SIX.

Studebaker branches and dealers have, in stock, $1,000,000 worth of service parts. This means service to owners of a sort that assemblers do not and cannot give. In this respect we believe the Studebaker organization to be unequaled. In addition to its $3,000,000 machinery equipment for car manufacture, Studebaker maintains a special plant for the manufacture of service parts, to keep all branch and dealer stocks complete at all times.

The Studebaker Proof Book describes and pictures the scientific manufacturing operations of Studebaker. Send for it.

SHAMROCK IV. SHOWS SPEED IN STIFF WIND

Portsmouth, England, June 6.—Shamrock IV, with whom Sir Thomas Lipton hopes to lift the America's Cup, was out in a fairly stiff breeze today and stood up better than many of her critics expected.

Neither the challenger nor the earlier Shamrock carried a top-sail and nothing in the nature of reef racing was attempted. Whenever the two yachts were close the challenger never, the challenger had little trouble in out-footing the trial boat.

WORLD'S RECORDS LIST ANNOUNCED

International Amateur Federation Draws Up Recognized List of Athletic Marks.

Lyons, France, June 6.—For the first time in the history of athletics an official list of world's records to be recognized by all nations was drawn up today by the records committee of the International Amateur Athletic Federation, meeting at Lyons. It is expected that the list as arranged by the committee will be adopted by the federation early next week.

One of the features of the sitting was the elimination of many records for special distances and also of records except those made on a track. The committee decided to eliminate all records above 25 miles or 40 kilometers, and also all records above two hours on the ground that contests at greater distances would be exhausting and should not be encouraged. The only records that will be recognized in the future by the International Athletic Federation if the report of the committee is adopted are the following:

One hundred yards, held by Kelly. Two hundred and twenty yards, Wefers, Craig, Kelly and Lippincott. Four hundred and forty yards, Long. Six hundred yards, Sheppard. Eight hundred and eighty yards, Meredith. One thousand yards, Sheppard. One thousand three hundred and twenty yards, Connell. One mile, Jones, all American records, and 300 yards, held by W. Halswell, of England.

Two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine and ten miles, all held by Shrubbs, of England; fifteen miles, Appleby, of England; twenty miles, G. Crossland, of England; twenty-five miles, H. Green, of England.

One hour, Jean Boulin, France; two hours, H. Green, England.

One hundred and twenty yards hurdles (8 1-3 feet), held by Americans; 440 yards hurdles (3 feet), G. R. L. Anderson, England.

Standing and running high jump and standing broad jump, held by P. O'Connor, Ireland.

Walking, one mile, held by George Goulding, Canada; two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine and ten miles, all held by G. E. Larnar, England; fifteen miles, held by G. V. Ross, of England; twenty miles, G. V. Ross, of England; twenty-five miles, G. V. Ross, of England.

Relay races, four runners, 880 yards, not indicated, as no track records exist; one mile, two miles and four miles (where all the competitors ran the same distance), held by Americans; hop, step and jump, 16-pound hammer throw, 16-pound shot, 56-pound weight (discus 7-foot circle), all held by Americans.

Throwing the javelin, held by Lemming, Sweden.

No records made since the beginning of 1914 have been considered by the committee. The list will be revised yearly. A similar list has also been compiled of records in the metric system.

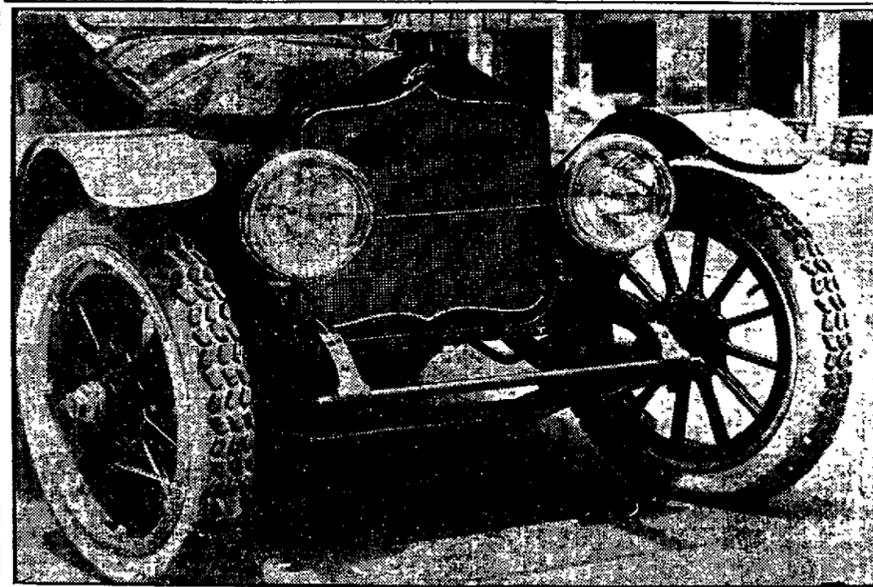

MIKE KAHOE HERE.

Senators' Scout Looking 'Em Over in the Southern.

Mike Kahoe, scout for Clark Griffith's Washington American league club, was a spectator at the game between the Pelicans and the Crackers Saturday afternoon.

Mike is looking over the material in the Southern league for Griffith, but would not state just who he had his eyes on in particular.

National Equipped With "Nobby Treads"

The above shows a front view of the new National six, showing the new United States Nobby Tread tire. This tire is attracting unusual attention all over the north and is in popular use in Atlanta, especially on the higher-priced automobiles. Mr. Goodloe, the local branch manager, says that the sales in his territory for Nobby Tread alone have more than doubled within the past few months. The company is running quite an extensive newspaper and magazine advertising campaign, and lays the wonderful demand for this particular tire to their campaign and the fact that the manufacturers back up their advertising claims.

both teams have strengthened since then, especially the Vols, and the going is going to be considerably harder.

Teams Improved.

Added strength makes our two contestants stronger, but the same applies to the Crackers, the only change in the locals since their last appearance at Ponce de Leon and Red Elm being in the batteries.

The Vols will show Gene Paulet on the base, Gibson behind the wood and Krob on the hurling hill, as our changes, but these three changes tended to strengthen our line up into a formidable machine, one that has been waiting since we met them last week to show us that we are not so good as we will have accomplished a great deal.

Elliott Dent, the Crackers' big right-hander, will be used in the game this afternoon, and the Crackers chances of taking a running start on the Vols is indeed good.

Browning, Perryman and Williams will take care of the other three games, with Doscher ready to open in Memphis.

Clubs Change.

There have been several changes in Memphis. In the first place, the team has changed hands, a St. Louis capitalist purchasing the holdings of Coleman et al.

The second change is in the nickname of the team, instead of being referred to as the Turkeys, they are now known as the Chicks, the short for Chickasaws, the name of a famous amateur baseball organization of Memphis in the earlier days.

Dunicki, the regular first baseman of the Chicks, who was hurt when Red Lynch, of the Crackers, now released, crashed into him the early part of the season, is again playing regularly. McDemott, who was ill when we played the Chicks before, is back on the hot corner.

Wilson, a hard hitter, is playing left field now, and Allison, who played first base here, is in center field. Ducky Holmes is the addition to the hurling corps.

Good Home Stay.

The Crackers leave Memphis Sunday night for Atlanta, and will then have their regular home stay of the season, opening up here June 15 with Nashville.

Four games will be played with Nashville, then five with Chattanooga, a double-header being scheduled for one of the days. A play-off of the tie the last time the Lookouts paid us a visit. Then Memphis comes for four games.

After jumping over to Chattanooga for three games in two days, one of these games being a play-off of the tie we had up there, we come back home again.

Six games will be played with New Orleans, four with Mobile and four with Montgomery, then we leave for sixteen games playing in Birmingham, New Orleans, Mobile and Montgomery before returning again.

The probable batting order for today's game will be: ing every one of the games play by play.

NASHVILLE: McConnell, 2b; King, lf; Paulet, 1b; Long, cf; Gibson, c; Williams, ss; Dent, p.

The Vols and Chicks have been the Crackers' easiest meet this year, but Unequaled riding ease.

Big power in proportion to weight.
Large tires and light weight chassis.
Deep cushions; roomy, high-paneled bodies.
And a factory backed by big financial resources and manufacturing prestige.

These are five important reasons why your first consideration in the buying of an automobile should be a—

and you can get all five in three chassis sizes.

For the man who wants a "six" of exceptionally low operating cost, but with big power and tremendous road ability, there is the

Velie, Model 10, with 50-hp., $2,350.00

The careful buyer, who wants real engineering design, does not look for a six-cylinder motor when he goes below 50-hp. Among high grade "fours" the leader is the

Velie, Model 9, with 45-hp., $2,000.00

Choice in high-grade small cars is very much restricted. The biggest value ever offered to automobile buyers in a car of medium power, medium size, and medium cost, is the

Velie, Model 11, with 35-hp., $1,500.00

And each of these three models is backed by the broadest sort of a guarantee, for the immediate sale is not what we are looking for, it is the continued enthusiasm and loyalty of the owner.

Call today for demonstration.

WINNERS ANNOUNCED IN NON-STOP CONTEST

Unprecedented Economy Average for Gasoline Shown by Saxon Dealers.

Final revised reports on the 200-mile non-stop contest for Saxon dealers throughout the country show an unprecedented economy average of 34.53 miles to the gallon of gasoline. This is slightly less than the average of 47.7 miles, compiled from the first batch of telegraphed statements.

The winners, according to an announcement by President H. W. Ford, of the Saxon Motor company, were the Diamond Motor Car company, New Rochelle, N. Y., with a record of 47.05 miles to the gallon, and the Iowa Automobile and Supply company, of Ames, Iowa, who made a record of 47.04 miles to the gallon.

Among others who scored remarkable averages were the Davis Auto company, Providence, R. I., with a score of 44.4 miles to the gallon; L. W. Ladden, of New York City, with 44 miles; M. H. Wood, of Webb City, Mo., with 43.5 miles; and the Saxon Auto company, Minneapolis, 40 miles; Western Motor Car company, San Diego, Cal., 39 miles; James Lutz, Fallowell, Monticello, Ala., 39.4 miles.

Showings made in this contest reveal the best economy averages on record in a test of nation-wide scope, according to the provisions of the contest, the motor every Saxon entered had to be kept running until the car covered 200 miles of distance, during changes of drivers, time out for lunch and at any other time the cars were not making mileage.

Notably every state in the union was represented in this run, which was held on May 16. The Saxons that competed had to face all kinds of weather, road and hill conditions. Despite such obstacles, however, the lowest score was 25.8 miles to the gallon. Unusual records were made in such hilly cities as Pittsburg and Ann Arbor, and over rough country roads in Ohio and Texas.

"We were surprised at the remarkable mileage on gasoline secured during this contest," said C. E. Harrison, sales manager of the Saxon. "In nearly every case previous mileage records in each particular vicinity were bettered by the cars entered in this contest."

"It must be remembered that few of the Saxons covered the 200-mile distance with weather and road conditions all in their favor. A number of the contestants had to drive their cars through rainstorms. Others were forced to contend with muddy roads and deep sand in stretches where they had to choose courses in hilly territory."

Defiance Launched.

New York, June 6.—The Defiance, third candidate for city defense honors, was launched today at City Island in Long Island Sound, after having had her spars remodeled. The day will be spent in adjusting her rigging. The Defiance will give a small time allowance to the Resolute and will take time from the Vanitie.

MARIETTA'S NEW VELIE FIRE TRUCK

The above shows the new Marietta fire truck and its driver after a run of nearly a mile in answer to an alarm. The truck covered the entire distance in two and one-half minutes. The alarm proved to be a false one, however, and it was found out later that one of the city's officials had turned the alarm as a test to see what time the truck could make to the farthest end of Marietta. The fire truck is a one-ton Velie chassis, with the body and other fire fighting apparatus that was used on the old horse-drawn fire wagon. The citizens of Marietta are very proud of their new fire fighting engine, and point to it with pride whenever a visitor comes to town.

VANITIE SHOWS HEELS TO YACHT RESOLUTE

Rye, N. Y., June 6.—The bronze yacht Vanitie turned the tables on her rival, the Resolute, in the fourth Long Island sound race, sailed today, winning by 3 minutes 52 seconds in elapsed time.

As the Vanitie gives the Resolute an estimated allowance over the 29 3/4-mile course of 3 minutes and 13 seconds, the margin of the Gardner boat over the Herreshoff creation was believed to be 2 minutes and 40 seconds. Both Cornelius Vanderbilt and J. P. Morgan, of the Resolute syndicate, were on board the ship today and sailed the course with her in her defeat.

The race was a fairer contest than Tuesday's contest, which has been regarded as more or less of a fluke, and which the Vanitie won by 15 minutes and 48 seconds.

Both yachts were slow in starting and both were handicapped.

Fifteen minutes after the start on the first leg, the Vanitie went by the Resolute. The lead increased until the fourth leg, when the Resolute recovered two minutes. After passing the Resolute, the Vanitie increased her lead around the first mark 3 minutes and 13 seconds to the good. The Vanitie increased her lead 5 minutes and 14 seconds at the second mark. The Resolute picked up 2 minutes after passing the Vanitie. On the last leg, the Vanitie pulled away still further and sped across the finish line a consistent winner. There will be three open sea contests next week off Sandy Hook.

Mrs. Raymond Wins.
Philadelphia, June 6.—Mrs. Edward Raymond, of New York, now holds three titles as the result of her tennis playing of the courts of the Aetna Cricket club, at Havertown. Today she defeated Miss Marion Fenn, of Boston, in the final round for the singles championship of Pennsylvania and eastern states; and partnered with W. T. Tilden, Jr., of Philadelphia, who defeated Miss Eleanor Sears, of Boston, and W. A. Larned, of New York, for the mixed doubles championship. Yesterday she and Miss Edna Wilday won the doubles championship.

GEORGIA LEAGUE

Cordele 1, Waycross 0.
Cordele, Ga., June 6.—(Special.)—Bankston's home run won the game from Waycross today with the score standing 1 to 0 in one of the fastest and prettiest games played in the league. It was a pitchers' duel between Babe Wilder and McFarland, hits being equally divided.

The tie south-twisted the home club to victory with an unusual vim, and had a snafu the better of the argument against McFarland, who worrisome drop ball breaking unusually good.

Bankston's two-base hit against a sign on center field fence won him a suit of clothes. Peegan handed thirteen chances perfectly.

Valdosta 2, Americus 1.
Valdosta, Ga., June 6.—(Special.)—Valdosta made it two out of three from Americus by winning a pretty game this afternoon by the score of 2 to 1. The game was a pitchers' battle between Vaughn and Pratt, with Vaughn having the better of it all the way. Pratt worked a good game with the exception of the eighth, when a base on balls to Herold and intentional walks to Morse and Medlock filled the bases, and O'Brien doubled to short left field. Both teams played good ball in the field. Vaughn pulled a beautiful one-handed catch of a foul with a man on third.

Brunswick 6, Thomasville 5.
Brunswick, Ga., June 6.—(Special.)—In one of the most peculiar games seen here in many days, Brunswick took the final game from Thomasville this evening, 6 to 5. Thomasville, in the third and fifth innings, made four runs on errors by the locals, only three hits having been made up to the time. The locals fought back from behind, and after making errors in the seventh came back with four in the eighth, when Pool became wild, and East, who succeeded him, was better, walking in one man and wild pitching in another. With one run behind, Thomasville tied the score in the eighth when East put the ball over the right field fence for a home run. Then, with the score tied, Southerly, first man up for Brunswick, also hit the ball over the fence, winning the game. Wood pitched excellent ball all the way through, not one of the five runs being scored on a hit.

After the banquet several interesting speeches were made by those present. Manager Johnson and Captain Spurlock, Marvin McPhail, Inman Knox, Hinton Longino, John Stewart, Homer Starr and Comer Weaver were among the speakers.

Professor Dykes was highly complimented by all the speakers, most of whom had been under his leadership for four years. After the banquet, on

This Coming Week for Goodyear Tire Displays Like This. They'll Show You Where to Get These Tires

Goodyear Week
Here and everywhere, this coming week, all the leading Goodyear dealers will make window displays like this.

It is done to show you where No-Rim-Cut tires are sold, and sold at Goodyear prices. Mark these exhibits. These are the dealers who, despite higher profits on other tires, supply you the world's best.

They Undersell 16 Other Makes
These dealers will sell you No-Rim-Cut tires for 28 per cent less than they cost in March, 1913. They will sell them below the prices asked for 16 other makes. They will sell you four tires for the price of three of some of Goodyear's rivals.

They will supply you, at Goodyear prices, the utmost in a tire. The tire that out-sells any other tire in the world. The tire that won top place in Tiredom through millions of mileage tests.

They will sell you the tire to which motorists are coming faster than ever before. This year's sales have broken every record, by 55 per cent.

Four Other Savings
In addition they give you these four features, found in no other tire:

- Our No-Rim-Cut feature—the only feasible way to end rim-cutting.
- Our "On-Air" cure—an extra process which costs us $450,000 yearly. But it saves our users the countless blow-outs due to wrinkled fabric.
- Our rubber rivets—hundreds of which are formed in each tire, during vulcanization, to combat tread separation.
- Our All-Weather tread—the tough, double-thick anti-skid. It is flat and smooth, so it runs like a plain tread, but it grasps wet roads with a bulldog grip.

Not one of these features—mark you—is found in the costlier tires.

Note These Dealers
Note these displays—remember who sells Goodyears. You want these savings—mark where you can get them.

Goodyear place and prestige prove these the best tires built. And Goodyear prices show how mammoth output lowers factory cost.

Don't go to dealers who push lesser tires or tires at higher prices. Go to the dealers who sell at our prices the premier tire of the world. In first cost and last cost these dealers will save you a good many dollars per year.

THE GOODYEAR TIRE & RUBBER COMPANY, AKRON, OHIO
This Company has no connection whatever with any other rubber concern which uses the Goodyear name.

Any Dealer can supply you Goodyear Tires. If the wanted size is not in stock he will telephone our Local Branch.

STANDARDIZED COLE NOW IN A NEW HOME

Cole Motor Car Co. Opens
to-Date Plant.

Great advancement has been made in factory construction in the past few years and one of the most modern up-to-date plants in the country was officially opened in Indianapolis speed way week when President J. J. Cole of the Cole Motor Car company received the keys to the mammoth building structure on East Washington street, the home of the standardized Cole.

The building which has been under construction almost a year has been steadily advanced to a unique position in the automobile manufacturing world. While only a $2,000,000 section has been constructed to dovetail into another new addition at the corner of Market and Davidson street, still the two buildings combined will enable Cole to increase factory production without jeopardizing quality.

With this new plant not only will production for Cole take a big jump but the comfort of the already satisfied Cole working force will be increased. In the new plant with every possible facility properly looked after, the wants of the employees with pleasing environments will do much to increase Cole's manufacturing efficiency.

The Cole plant has 27,000 square feet of floor space approximately six acres of ground according to figures presented by factory production manager J. F. Richman. The last new addition is 100 feet wide on the East Washington street side, 275 feet deep from East Washington to Market street and 122 feet frontage on Market street. The construction of the building which is of modern concrete construction was in the hands of the Bedford Stone and Construction company with Herbert L. Bass & Co. architects.

Rising 113 feet from its foundation the smokestack of the building is one of the largest in the city. It is 64 inches in diameter and is designed to carry away gases from boilers totaling 450 horsepower.

There are 1,811 panes of prism glass in the fenestration exclusive of the office windows. The building would reach 4 1/2 miles Richman says. Over 300 tons of steel was used in the construction of the plant and 13,000 tons of concrete. This gives the building a displacement of 18,000 tons or nearly 800 more displacement than the battleship Indiana which has a displacement of 10,133 tons. If the columns in the building were placed end to end they would reach 157 1/2 feet high or nearly a mile in the air. Nine hundred and eighty three 80-watt lamps are used to light the building.

In connection with the factory illumination scheme wonderful strides have been made in the past few years. It will be possible at any time for Cole to run his factory twenty-four hours a day without service being impaired insofar as light is concerned. Fourteen inch reflectors are equally spaced so that no shadow is cast, making ideal working conditions.

The floors throughout are of concrete. The latest type of construction is used in the employees' lockers and restrooms, modern plumbing, steel clothes lockers, sanitary drinking fountains, plenty of ventilation and supercede the old type of factory with workmen's coats hanging on a nail any place it happens to be. Fireproof vaults are found throughout the building as well as spacious storerooms for each department's archives.

In throwing open the new building President Cole said: "We believe that every Cole owner should make it a point to visit and inspect our new plant. Also prospective owners want them to see how it is possible for us to build a quality Cole at the price we ask for our product. I believe that if the public was better acquainted with the methods we employ in the construction of the standardized Cole they would have every confidence in the Indianapolis made car."

Our factory and our methods will always be open for the public. The more people who come to get acquainted with our ideas the better pleased I will be personally. We are proud of our new plant and with the cooperation of the public and by this I mean the general public all over the country I feel sure that we will not only increase our production but go steadily on building a good car at the right price.

I want the public to know the Cole method of construction and the policies back of it.

DODGE BROTHERS' CAR PROVES VERY POPULAR

Although automobile dealers are known to be receptive to new cars of distinction, the attitude of the market is such that it is soon to be marketed by Dodge Bros. Detroit has probably no parallel in the industry.

It is well known that Dodge Bros. have for years seen manufacturers of parts on the automobile and that their buildings and machinery are among the marvels of motor car manufacturing.

It is also generally known that both of the Dodge brothers, an expert on engines and the other in handling business, have been built up entirely through their own initiative and under their personal supervision.

But that is all—absolutely all—that is known regarding the new car they are to manufacture and sell and therein lies the extraordinary response of the trade to the simple announcement that these brothers were soon to market a car of moderate price. Although no details whatever have been given out as to the exact price of the car or its horsepower or its style or its equipment and in spite of the fact that practically the only definite statement that has been made concerning the activities of the company has been the announcement that Mr. A. J. P. Tip is general sales manager it is reported that there have been more than fifteen hundred applications for exclusive territory. These applications came by letter, telegram, long distance phone and in many cases in person.

It is definitely known that, despite the lack of detailed information regarding the exact character of the car, a large number of dealers have actually signed agreements to handle it as soon as it is ready for the market and it is generally predicted that a major portion of the first year's cars will be allotted before the completed car is ready for exhibition.

CHINESE WOMAN BUYS SIX STUDEBAKER CARS

Now the Entire Family Will Be Able to Take Long Spins.

The rapidly with which China is rapidly receding from its century old habits and taking on modern clothes, has been often pronounced one of the twentieth century marvels. In no way has this progress been proven more forcibly than in the fact Chinese women are taking in affairs social and political.

No longer is the gentler sex of the Orient a footbound enslaved retiring section of humanity to be kept in subjection and to appear in public only when carefully hidden from the profane gaze of the populace.

A recent transaction in Shanghai where a wealthy Chinese mother purchased six Studebaker cars is the latest and most striking evidence offered of the emancipation of Chinese women.

During the past winter the widow of Soong King Dong who previous to his death was comptroller of the Russo-Chinese bank at Shanghai and one of the city's wealthiest citizens decided that with her family she would enjoy some of the pleasures pursued by the American sisters. So she purchased a Studebaker Six from Hubert S. Honigsberg, who represents the Studebaker corporation in Shanghai. Mrs. Soong immediately took her entire family—which is of characteristic Chinese proportions—out for a spin. One and all they were completely captivated with the charms of motor cars.

It happens that the four Soong sons and one daughter are each married and have a house full of little ones who are just as modern in their desires as the older folk.

Each son and the daughter managed to impress upon their good mother the importance of giving the youngest generation an equal opportunity with their elders. The entire clan had become welded to the Studebaker. Chop so without much ceremony Mrs. Soong summoned Honigsberg and handed him an order for five more Studebaker cars.

They were ordered no time in cabling Detroit a rush order. When these cars along with seven other Studebakers landed at Shanghai late in April on the steamship Empress of Asia, a great throng of interested friends were on the Bund to witness the unusual sight. The cars were landed and driven at once filled with members of the Soong family to the grounds of Fuh Tan university, one of Shanghai's best sports and a panoramic camera was brought into play.

The remarkable transaction was handled throughout by H. S. Honigsberg, an enterprising Yankee sales man and it is believed to be without a parallel in the history of the industry.

Jack Castle Returns After Trip to Factory Of Harley-Davidson

Gas Castle, manager of the southern branch of the Harley Davidson Motor company returned from the factory at Milwaukee last Monday where he had been for ten days previous going over various matters regarding the sale of the Harley Davidson in the seven southern states. The heads of the factory were greatly pleased with the results obtained at the southern branch since it was opened last November as the sales have been far in advance of their best expectations.

The sales for the month of May showed an increase of 110 per cent over the entire sales during the year 1913 of the Harley Davidson in the seven southern states. This enormous sale of Harley Davidson in the south will probably exceed the sale of any other motorcycle sold in the south for since establishing a branch of the Harley Davidson motorcycle here their production has taken the lead.

While in Milwaukee quite a number of people with Mr. Castle met and knew that he came from Atlanta were all greatly interested in the reports of the big times that the Shriners were living while they were here. It appeared to Mr. Castle that the holding of the Shriners' convention in Atlanta is one of the biggest advertisements that Atlanta could have had. The general comment of people was that Atlanta is certainly a wide-awake and progressive city, and that the holding of the Shriners' convention in Atlanta had certainly put her on the map in good strong style. There was nothing but praises on all sides, scattered by the returning Shriners. The motorcycle business in general throughout the south has been exceedingly large and all makers are planning to invade the south the coming year as they look to the south for the future big business in motorcycles.

NEW DEVICE EMPLOYED BY GOODRICH COMPANY

A new device in the field of big manufacturing has been brought out by the B. F. Goodrich company at its rubber factories at Akron, Ohio.

This is a pay record card for all employees which also carries a Safety Bulletin. The pay record card is designed to help the employee keep track of the number of hours he has worked each day, the amount of piecework finished and the daily earnings that result.

In addition however the card carries a safety talk, touching on a different topic with each issue and a new card is published each half month. The safety bulletin idea carries out the policy of the company, which is making "Safety First" a slogan for its employees, as well as the manufacturing principle on which it designs and builds its tires.

One safety bulletin tells how to care for a certain ailment, the next tells what to do to prevent infection of wounds, a succeeding bulletin will give advice on efficiency and possibility of increasing production on piecework, and so on.

The card, in folder form is almost like a small semi-monthly publication, devoted to the interests of the 15,000 employees of the Goodrich company. It carries the title "Safety, Loyalty and Efficiency" at the top and is put out by W. N. Pritch, manager of the department of safety and hygiene, of the Goodrich company.

ILLINOIS TRACK TEAM WINS CONFERENCE TITLE

Chicago June 6—Illinois today for the second time in succession won the conference track championship scoring 47 1/2 points. From the start to the finish they led and it remained for a non-conference team the squad from Leland-Stanford university, California, to give them their only fight. Stanford finished second with 23 1/2 points beating out by small margins Chicago and Wisconsin.

Only one record fell, and that went to Henderson of Illinois, who with Bingham of Denver tied for individual honors with ten points. In the half mile event Henderson sped over the cinders in 1:56 3/5 breaking the record of 1:56 2/5 set by Ira Davenport of Chicago in 1910.

Illinois National champions took the relay race in 3:23 1/5 tying the conference record.

Henderson won the quarter mile in addition to the half. Bingham won the discus with a heave of 128 feet 7 inches. He added another five points in the hammer throw with a mark of 142 feet 3 inches. Single handed he most of the field events were in progress during the two mile run and while field and handiapped the competitors.

The Cadillac State of Mind

Doubtless you know what we mean when we speak of the Cadillac state of mind.

We mean the way that everyone—everywhere—talks and thinks and feels about the Cadillac.

That state of mind is the same today as it was yesterday, a year ago yesterday, and ten years ago yesterday.

It will be the same tomorrow and, no doubt, a year from tomorrow, and ten years from tomorrow.

But what a wonderful thing it is when you come to analyze it—this country-wide, world-wide unanimity.

It seems almost incredible that so many millions of people, who differ and disagree on a myriad of other subjects, should so strikingly, startlingly concur concerning ONE MOTOR CAR.

This concurrence is not confined to the Cadillac clientele.

It is not confined to Cadillac owners nor to Cadillac dealers.

It is shared by owners of all kinds of cars, by dealers in all kinds of cars, and by makers of all kinds of cars.

And what is it they admit concerning the Cadillac?

They agree, unconsciously perhaps, in regarding the Cadillac as a car apart—a car not in any "class" excepting its own.

You must have had the evidence of this yourself, hundreds of times—in hundreds of different ways.

You must have heard a score of hot discussions concerning other cars stop short when some one said, "Cadillac."

"Oh, well—of course—the Cadillac." You've heard that time and again, haven't you?

Well, for every time you have heard it, the same admission of pre-eminence has been uttered a hundred thousand times.

In the face of such overwhelming tribute, how idle it would be for us to intrude our own modest praises of Cadillac characteristics.

How futile to enter our claims of supremacy which everyone concedes—which no one disputes.

How much better to refer you to your own city, to your friends—to yourself! Even though you do not drive a Cadillac, you must know that you would surely not be the loser if you did.

You know beyond the shadow of a doubt that it is a good thing to be a Cadillac owner.

And some day, when you obey your innermost convictions, you surely will, if you can, become a Cadillac user.

ONE PUNCH WORK FOR WHITE

Jim Corbett Believes Ritchie Will Reverse the Count Next Time the Two Lock Horns.

By JAMES J. CORBETT. (Former Heavyweight Champion of the World)

New York June 6.—(Special)—Is there a sport that furnishes more surging interest than a game of boxing? If there is, I am not familiar with it and I flatter myself that I keep prettily well in touch with the sport in its most popular amateur and professional sports. For a genuine sensation that Ritchie White has given me in the last week takes precedence over anything that has happened in the sport for many months.

Surely this White boy must be a wonderfully improved boxer since he appeared in New York a year or so ago. At that time Charley was masqueraded as a feather although he looked like a big and heavy. The right weights in these parts. Anyway he was masqueraded with Young Joe Shugart, who was then just coming into his own, and as White came to town well press accounts beheld the matchmakers to find a boy who could give him a real test. The result of the battle boosted Shugart because he was the victor. Charley's showing was far from impressive and promoters local passed him up altogether.

Since that time however White's record is a pretty good one although in his wildest dreams he probably never figured him good enough to outpoint Ritchie so decisively as the story of the battle tells. The story of the battle being told by some one not so long ago that Charley was a fair boxer but of the kind of boxer who is the worst that he was a quitter who lost all his aggressiveness after the first punch his opponent landed.

Lesson to Champion Well it is all in the game and Ritchie is not the first champion who has been beaten by the no decision. In fact, Harry Nelson for example how many times did he lose in his first round second raters in short bouts. It may be a lesson to the youngster who wears the championship belt that he should not underestimate opponents in the future.

I know White was very confident of beating White and he was not so sure to make excuses for the champion or to take any of the story of victory from the Chicago crowd. The Chicago crowd in Chicago in supreme confidence look Ritchie with Charley and paid the money for the fight. White was a corks in the first round that dazed him and that he did not come back to fight. He was a quitter who punched until the last few rounds.

Not Right Argument Since Charley White outpointed Ritchie the experts have been busy trying to figure it all out. Some of the scribers have decided that the reason of the surprise is that Ritchie is weak against scientific boxers.

When one stops to recall that Freddy Welsh admittedly one of the most scientific of the world's champions, a shade decidedly over the present title holder, then a novice that argument will not hold. In fact, Welsh is one of the best boxers in the business and he has been fighting with White for a long time and no one can question his judgment on such matters.

Ritchie's work in the past, barring the White match, has been excellent. Some other expert will have to be induced to figure it all out. The version of the current one. White landed a hard wallop in the first round which he followed by a series of punches into the argument) and the champion was with an ace of being stopped. That he succeeded in staying the distance under this tremendous disadvantage is a tribute to his gameness and to his courage.

It was just one of those things that frequently happen in boxing and which simply can't be explained satisfactorily.

The Old-time Fan Comments On Races in the "Big Show"

By Charles A. Lassar.

The grand old dope is running all right in the National American League. In a sense. The Giants and the clan of Mack have noosed to the front having jerked the boots to the rear.

Mr. McGillicuddy is as taciturn as usual. But the Hon. John J. McGraw, manager of the Giants, has just parked up a lot and announces in a burst of confidence that the Giants will not be defeated again.

And maybe he is right anyway it is beginning to look as though Mr. C. Johnson had set his heart on it. The syndicate scribblers including the Hon. John J. McGraw, have switched to the soft pedal and chopped the rough house stuff. When the pace gets good and hot Mr. McGraw will probably condense to admit that the outlaws have a league on the land.

What has become of Mr. Dave Feltz and his Players' Fraternity? The base ball was called a parrot. That maybe I can't catch it but I tell you what can hit a mile. And so he goes. And there are other and others. Exit the spit ball.

The Federal League having refused to blow simply because of the fact Johnson had set his heart on it. The syndicate scribblers including the Hon. John J. McGraw, have switched to the soft pedal and chopped the rough house stuff. When the pace gets good and hot Mr. McGraw will probably condense to admit that the outlaws have a league on the land.

The Pittsburghers are falling mainly because of the Reds and some across with the topknot in the pinches. Mr. O'Toole is either the unluckiest gink in baseball or a particularly bad one. The deepest dive and purest ray sermons. And if Fred Clarke doesn't inject more and classier pitching into his machine for chances for stopping the Jints will go glimmering like a bar of horseshoes running down a gang.

When the inevitable Cobb gets back in the game the Detroit will climb again. But the Detroit is a minor league at the waiver price but couldn't see him well he is a won. The Detroit believe with the great club. And it is safe to say that his splendid work has made the Detroit in a minor league at the waiver price but couldn't see him well he is a won.

What is the matter with the Boston Nationals? In the spring they were touted as a sure division club. And even a pennant possibility. George Stange, one of the ablest managers of these current people I have the honor to know, is particularly pleased for his skill in developing pitchers and umpires. But the Boston Nationals are not doing so well.

But no use. The said Mr. Walsh can't come back for the simple reason that his pitching arm that couldn't be straightened out with microscope. The famous pitcher is all in in my humble opinion and read to join the ranks of the "spitters" a freak.

The spit ball is a freak delivery of the pitcher's arm and soon or late will put any pitcher on the bum. Walsh was enabled to last longer than most pitchers because of his powerful physique. But if he had confined himself to his curves change of speed he would have lasted longer.

The spit ball is a rapidly vanishing act from baseball. That's all there is to it. When Jack Chosbro was in the zenith of his fame as a spitballer, Mr. Clark Griffith, then manager of the Cardinals, had a considerable catch and would fold to it.

London June 6.—Henley regatta, which takes place this year from July 1 to July 4 promises to create great international interest. Besides the United States, Canada, Germany and the Netherlands, the regatta will be entered into by the committee of Henley with foreign associations in various parts of the world.

Foreign entries in the regatta have been practically realized. The regatta will be entered into by the committee of Henley with foreign associations in various parts of the world.

The ever widening adaptability and application of the motor car is being illustrated each day as new uses are being discovered for it. The most striking and significant advances made in the adoption of the automobile for business purposes are the advantages of motor transportation in their line of business, especially in the case of the delivery of goods.

A case in point recently occurred in Baltimore. The Baltimore Automobile Club (B.A.C.) has a membership of over 1000 and is the largest of its kind in the city.

With an order of this size involving an expenditure of thousands of dollars it was natural that a thorough consideration should be given to the selection of a motor car. The club decided to purchase a Cadillac distributor sold ten cars in one order to two funeral directors.

River or No River, T. R. Did Shoot This Giraffe

River or no river, there is no doubt but that Colonel Roosevelt put out his giraffe. You've got to take your hat off to him for that anyway. The picture shows the colonel at the African hunt of several years ago. He visited Washington to tell about his new river before the National Geographic society and to spend a social hour with President Wilson at the White House.

SUZANNE ON RACE TINKERING

Say honest don't these race tinkers make you mad? Every time I read a new wad of copy turned out by any of these current people I have the honor to know, I am particularly pleased for his skill in developing pitchers and umpires.

Merith Equals 660 Yards Record

Philadelphia, June 6.—Ted Meredith of the University of Pennsylvania who holds the world's record for the half mile today equaled the American record of 1:41.5 seconds for 660 yards made by M. W. Sheppard in 1910. Meredith was entered in several races at the annual sports of the Artisans Mutual Benefit association.

Shipping in the Hudson

(From The Engineering Record) Both sides of the Hudson river from New York on her maiden voyage the Waterland seriously interfered with shipping. The Waterland, a four hourer was consumed in docking due in the first instance to some barges which obstructed the way. The ship on leaving the stern backed with a few feet of water. The Waterland's propellers were badly damaged. Two goodly sized vessels torn from the moorings by the strong wash from the giant's propellers.

While her 50 ft. increase in length over her previous record of 400 additional tons hardly account for her apparent unwillingness the difficulty of docking in a river about 200 feet wide with 900 feet piers jutting out to reduce the clear width to about 200 feet. Soiling C ops for the Dairy

A small silo filled with cornilage provides the best and cheapest feed for dairy cows that must have some feed to eat during the winter months. It is much quicker in summer than in cold weather. A greater amount must be fed during the winter months. It is not less than two inches by this reason a silo which is deep and small in diameter is better than a shallow one.

A silo 10 feet in diameter has a surface area of 314 square feet. Taking 100 bushels of cornilage as a standard, a herd of twenty cows feeding each a half bushel of 30 pounds of silage will require 3000 bushels of silage. This is not less than two inches by this reason a silo which is deep and small in diameter is better than a shallow one.

He claims that street walkers and assignment houses are practically wiped out... Seventh District A. & M. School of Powder Springs Closes Most Successful Year in Its History

Graduating class of the Agricultural and Mechanical School at Powder Springs

Powder Springs Ga. June 6.—(Special)—The Seventh District Agricultural and Mechanical school has just closed a very successful year the best in its history. In numbers it stands at the head of the list of the agricultural schools and is doing the very best of its kind in the state.

The commencement sermon was preached Sunday by Rev. G. Hames Monday night was given to plays and music when at least 300 people were assembled in the school chapel. Tuesday night there were twenty three graduates. They were Misses Claude Taylor Curtis, Agnes Laura White, Dorothy Babl, Mildred C. J. Maggie Edwards, Gladys Rice also Messrs. William McCulloch Fleming Rogers Oma Martin Byron Rogers Harry Miller Earl Hall Roy Story Miller Echols Bob Lee Vanzant Lee Corruith Fred White Milton Campbell R. Russell Jr. Fleming Rogers Roy McBreath and Eugene Petree.

address to the graduating class and Hon. Herbert Clay presented the diploma and delivered a beautiful address to the school. This day was secured by the president of the board of trustees from the Daughters of the American Revolution of Marietta. E. P. Gibbs of Marietta was chairman of the board. W. G. Williamson of Bremen treasurer and Hon. E. B. Russell of Cedarhurst secretary.

At least some people would have you believe that it was impossible to do away with the district and I think that sentiment was kept alive by men who cared nothing for the morals of the community. Public opinion is the only power that can be trusted to enforce the law and it is the duty of every citizen to support the law. The suppression of the public brothel is a moral issue and it is the duty of every citizen to support the law. The suppression of the public brothel is a moral issue and it is the duty of every citizen to support the law.

GAINESVILLE POSSE SEARCHES FOR NEGRO

Excitement Runs High for Few Hours—Citizens Shoot at Burglar.

Gainesville Ga. June 6.—(Special)—A negro burglar came near causing a riot in this town last night about 11 o'clock when he tried to enter the home of C. M. Holland proprietor of the hotel and other neighbors who joined in a chase after the negro in a short time a posse of nearly a hundred citizens collected and were scouring the town for an suspicious negro they might find. The posse was headed by a prominent citizen of Gainesville and the negroes in that immediate vicinity were notified to leave before 6 o'clock this afternoon and early this morning several families were seen moving over in the eastern section of Gainesville where the larger part of Gainesville negro population is located. Excitement ran high for a few hours last night but it is not thought since the negroes are leaving that they will cause any further trouble will be experienced.

Has a Cure For Pellagra

Parrie Nicholas Laurel Miss writes: Seems to me if I had not obtained your remedy when I did I would not have lived much longer. I am glad you discovered this wonderful remedy that will cure Pellagra. When I began taking Baughn's Pellagra Remedy my weight was 60 odd pounds now it is 90 odd. I would like to have this published and sent to sufferers of Pellagra.

Street Traders and Houses

We are not bothered with the street traders and houses as much as we were before the district was closed for they all know that the police are waiting and we are a cleaner city. I have seen many men who were suspicious and when they were brought before the court they were fined and sent to jail. I have seen many women who were brought before the court and they were fined and sent to jail. I have seen many men who were brought before the court and they were fined and sent to jail.

IN ATLANTA THEATERS

Keith Vaudeville.
(At the Forsyth.)

Just the sort of bill for summer weather, the kind that the management believes will suit the temperament of its patrons with the temperature provided, has been arranged for the Forsyth this week.

Better balance has never been offered in a bill and each one of the acts comes with a reputation of being pleasing, with no act having enough serious touch to make the playgoers think about the weather or anything else obnoxious.

The headliner is Morris Cronin, who comes direct from European music halls. The basis of his act is as old as the pyramids, but it is declared that he does it in a way entirely new to Atlanta theatergoers. Supported by a company, he presents juggling feats abounding in skill, thrills and comedy.

The other headliner is Elsa Ruegger, the eminent cellist. Miss Ruegger has played with the greatest symphony orchestras and her vaudeville act is declared to be of the highest class in vaudeville.

Of course no bill could be complete without a couple doing the new dances. In Kinney and Clark, real society dancers do the latest steps. In Birmingham this team scored so heavily that it was kept over for a second week.

Cummings and Gladding in comedy and songs, Marine Brothers, acrobats, and Horton and Latriska, "The Clown and the Doll," complete the bill.

"Mother."
(At the Lyric.)

"Mother," a play which has toured the world and caused heart throbs in a dozen countries, has been chosen for this week's bill at the Lyric by the Lucille LaVerne stock company. It is one of the "high royalty" plays, which means that Miss LaVerne must pay the author an annual sum for the privilege of producing it in Atlanta.

"But the expense doesn't count in the face of success, and to succeed we cannot stint expenses," said Miss LaVerne, in discussing her choice. "I do not propose to put on hackneyed, worn-out plays if I could get for nothing."

Of course, Miss LaVerne herself will be "Mother." She played the role with success on the road, and Miss Olive Blankney and one or two others in the company were with her. The role is one of those tender, old-fashioned woman parts which give an actress or actressette the excellent opportunity Mr. Middlemass will be the family lawyer, Mr. Aymer and Mr. Deane the sons about whom the troubles of the mother revolve, and Mr. Manson, the young sweetheart of "Mother's" girl, who is making a professional debut with Miss LaVerne. She had a small part last week, but is getting a real opportunity in "Mother."

The drama tells the story of a mother who has three children in the world. There are two boys and two girls, two daughters and two sons. "Mother" suffers through the waywardness of her sons, one of whom becomes infatuated with a chorus girl of questionable character, and the other becomes an embittered individualist to set them right, but she is never dictatorial, never "preachy," never harsh.

The twins, by the way, will be played by two Atlanta youngsters, and they will play to no mean effect.

They are constantly engaged in pillow fights, boxing matches and other "diversion" and furnish much of the comedy of the play.

The LaVerne company is growing steadily in popularity, and their winning friends, not only from behind the footlights, but in home circles, are being built up that the comparative merits of the players have led to heated discussions.

"Mother" will be given all the week, with matinees on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. The doors will be open in the big foyer will be open to ticket holders, as usual, and the orchestra will play for the benefit of the arts and after the performances.

Poisoned Blood Dangers Averted by Great Remedy

We Are Daily Subjected to Many Perils in Bruises, Contusions, Insect Bites, Poison Ivy and Toxic Minerals

The Old Enemy in the Blood is Driven Back to Oblivion by S. S. S.

An astonishing record of serious blood poisoning is daily brought to our attention, and most if not all of these startling calamities could be averted were the blood purified, toned and purified in advance by that wonderful remedy known everywhere as S. S. S. Few people realize how quickly the system becomes infected with the acids and ferments from undigested food, constipation, self-poisoning, the action of what is known as auto-intoxication or self-poisoning.

The symptoms are fever, thirst, excitability, dry skin followed by rash, and many indications wrongly diagnosed as pleurisy poisoning. This condition is almost universal in all climates and is quickly overcome by the action of S. S. S. Many people who act hastily from violent temper are simply suffering from the effects of poisoned blood produced by faulty elimination. But by far the greatest peril is the daily danger from bruises, contusions, the wretch of a rusty nail, insect bites, poisoning and the house fly that deposits the germs of typhoid, malaria, diphtheria and other malignant diseases.

Fortify the Blood.

With the blood made strong and pure to resist the attack from without there need be no alarm if slight symptoms of S. S. S. is onward; it stimulates cellular activity; the natural impulse of the body to cast out all irritants is intensified by the influence of S. S. S. And should harmful germs infect a bruise or contusion, instead of forming an ugly sore or ulcer the activities of the blood keep it in subjection and quickly repair the damage.

Mineral Poisoning.

Many cases of lead poisoning are reported, also cases where mineral drugs or poisons, taken by mistake or otherwise, have settled in some vital spot to create chronic conditions of sickness and disability. S. S. S. is a wonderful antidote. It contains one ingredient the active purpose of which is to so stimulate the cellular tissues as to select their own nutrition and thus replace with healthy pabulum the broken down cells that are the cause of disease.

A Great Medicine.

The medicinal properties of S. S. S. are relatively just as essential to well balanced health as are the nutritive properties of the meats, grains, fats and

"Million Bid" Held Over.
(At the Grand.)

In compliance with many demands of local moving picture devotees, the management of the Grand theater, the movie house, has announced that "A Million Bid," the immense vitograph drama of society follies, will be held over on Monday and Tuesday of this week, after having enjoyed a prosperous run of twelve performances last week.

The big picture created wide admiration. Picture experts have declared that it is a photograph beyond comparison with any that has ever been shown south.

The remainder of this week will be occupied by two classes of program. "The Riders of Peterham," a three-reel vitagraph production, will be shown on Wednesday and Thursday, a spectacular drama of the night riders of Kentucky, and will share the bill with the "Kidney and Bladder" series, "Lord Crumley," an absorbing story of a man's life in three acts.

Friday and Saturday will be "A Million Bid," comes "Wolfe, or the Conquest of Quebec," for Friday and Saturday. This is a grand old drama founded upon the battle of the falls of Montmorency, and is a aim that has delighted thousands in the past.

Miss Jessie Houston, the charming singer, will hold the boards with the grand orchestra. Four performances daily.

"Why Girls Leave Home."
(At the Bijou.)

Beginning with the matinee and night performances tomorrow, the Jewell Kelley company will inaugurate at the Bijou theater the closing engagement of stock, which, judging from the past successes of this company, will be one of the most profitable engagements of the year in Atlanta.

Manager Kelley brings back to the city practically the same organization which made so many friends during the "Why Girls Leave Home" tour. The Bijou laid fall, and the such well-known players as Vernon Wallace, Lee Harvey, Earl Higley, T. C. McDonough, C. Lamont, Helen Jackson, Marguerite Boesel, Rose Morris, Grace Leigh and Florence Pinckney.

Since the announcement has been made that the old players had been engaged to appear, the management of the company, no end of favorable comment has been engaged in, and everybody is delighted at the opportunity to see the same company back again.

The play that has been selected for the first week is the result of many days of hard thinking on the part of the management, and the chosen five-act melodrama, "Why Girls Leave Home," as the first play, the management has undoubtedly selected a play that will not only show up the entire strength of the company, but should prove one of the most sensational, interesting and pleasing plays that has been offered in stock in Atlanta in many moons. The play tells a story of strong dramatic interest that appeals to the better side of human nature, pointing a moral that everyone may profit by.

An extraordinarily elaborate stage production has been assured, and everything has been done to make the first production of the company not only notable, but one of the strongest performances that has been offered in stock in the city. Monday night ladies will be admitted free when accompanied by an escort holding a paid 30-cent ticket, purchased before 6 o'clock, and matinees will be given daily at 2:30 and night performances at 8:30.

Central Congregational.

Sermon Sunday morning by Rev. Thurston, D. D., executive representative of Oglethorpe university, etc. Subject, "Going to the Father." No evening sermon, but meeting of the Christian Endeavor society at 7 o'clock, to which all are cordially invited.

IF SKIN BREAKS OUT AND ITCHES APPLY SULPHUR

Use It Like a Cold Cream and Dry Eczema Eruptions Right Up.

The moment you apply bold-sulphur to an itching or broken out skin, the itching stops and healing begins, says a renowned dermatologist.

This remarkable stop made into a thick cream effects such prompt relief, even in aggravated Eczema, that it is a never-ending source of amazement to physicians.

For many years bold-sulphur has occupied a secure position in the treatment of cutaneous eruptions of every kind of its cooling, parasite-destroying properties, and nothing has ever been found to take its place in relieving itchy and inflammatory affections of the skin. While not always establishing a permanent cure, yet, in every instance, it immediately subdues the itching irritation and heals the Eczema right up and it is often years later before any eruption again manifests itself.

Any good pharmacist will supply an ounce of bold-sulphur cream, which should be applied to the affected parts like the ordinary cold cream. It is unpleasant and the prompt relief afforded is very welcome, particularly when the Eczema is accompanied with torturous itching.

PROGRAM ANNOUNCED FOR COTTON SEED MEN

The Tenth Annual Convention Meets at Warm Springs on the 15th.

The complete program has been announced by Secretary E. P. Chivers for the tenth annual convention of the Cotton Seed Crushers' Association of Georgia, which is to meet on June 15 and 16 at the Warm Springs hotel.

The list of speakers secured by Secretary Chivers is a good one and the attendance promises to be the largest in the history of the organization.

President and Cashier Charles L. Davis, former owner of Warm Springs, will deliver the address of welcome, to which response will be made by Hon. Harry Hodgson, of Athens.

President B. L. Bond, of Royston, Ga., will formally open the meeting and after the president's annual address, the routine, including adoption of new members, calling of the roll, reading of the minutes, etc., will be taken up.

Dr. R. J. H. DeLoach, director of the Georgia state experiment station, Experiment, Ga., will make the first address of the meeting, his subject being, "Some Scientific Phases of the Cotton Seed." He will be followed by Hon. J. D. Pritchard, state commissioner of agriculture, and for years a prominent member of the association. He will be followed by an address from Hon. E. W. Thompson, commercial agent of the bureau of entomology and domestic commerce. Mr. Thompson has just returned from a year's tour of the eastern markets, and his address will be heard with great interest.

The report of the executive committee, of which Vice President P. D. McCarty, of Atlanta, is chairman, will conclude the first day's session.

Thursday morning the opening address will be delivered by Hon. J. D. Pritchard, state commissioner of agriculture, followed by an address from Dr. F. D. Smalley, of Savannah, Ga., who will deliver a technical address upon "Quartz Colorimeter." He will be followed by an address from Horace Lanier, of West Point, Ga.

The afternoon session will be devoted to the report of standing committees and election of officers for the ensuing year.

FINAL SESSION HELD BY GEORGIA DENTISTS

The joint convention of the southern and dental associations closed Saturday after a three days' session at the Hotel Ansley.

Dr. N. G. Slaughter, of Athens, Ga., read an interesting paper Saturday morning on "A Few Thoughts on Oral Hygiene and Surgery." Dr. S. L. Silberman, of Atlanta, read a paper on "Dentures and Mouth Washes."

Other instructive papers were, "Ways and Means," by Dr. J. P. Corley, of Seawater, Tenn., and "Impression Making (Green Method)," by Dr. D. D. Atkins, of Brunswick, Ga.

The 1915 convention of the Georgia State Dental association will be held in Atlanta.

SOCIALISTS WILL GIVE BENEFIT FOR STRIKERS

To show their sympathy with the strikers in a substantial way, the Atlanta socialists will give an ice cream festival at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Cannon, 195 Wylie street, Monday evening, June 8, at 8 o'clock. The strikers are urged to attend. There will be a musical program, dancing and address by the Secretary, Max Wills, of Augusta, W. J. Bills and Charles Milco, of New York, and others. Take Innan Park cars.

NO SUNDAY RECITAL WILL BE GIVEN TODAY

There will be no free organ concert at the Auditorium-Armory this afternoon, owing to the fact that the amphitheater will be used for a Baptist mass meeting. This interruption, however, is only for one Sunday, and the free organ concerts will be a regular feature on Sunday afternoon throughout the summer.

Miss Emma Noel, head resident of the Wesley house, announced the program, and called upon Mrs. Henry Tucker, a pupil of Miss LaVerne Holland. From Miss Holland she received a two-pound box of candy.

Friends of the educational committee and the Wesley house gave $10 to be distributed for general excellence, perfect attendance or scholarship. Mrs. Epple Williams added $275 to this fund.

Lessee Moon and Marlen Sargent received $150 each for perfect attendance. Virgil McSwain and May Boulton $150 each for perfect scholarship. Ruby Thomason $150 first prize in penmanship. O'Dell Denny $1, second prize. O'Dell Gammon $5, third prize. Marlen Sargent $1 for best writing spelling.

Five were promoted to the high school—Virgil McSwain, A. J. Gibbs, Walter Kelley, Carl Vanadore and Jessie Moon.

DAILY CONTRIBUTIONS TO CONSCIENCE FUND

Washington, June 6.—Secretary McAdoo is almost daily receiving small contributions to the government "conscience fund," and, with the close of the fiscal year June 30, it is expected that the fund will approximate the annual average of $2,200 which it has reached since the date of its institution, during President Madison's term (yesterday a conscience-stricken person sent a single paper dollar with the request that it be placed to the fund. The letter was unsigned and bore a Washington city postmark. Contributions from Washingtonians are rare.

EVERY MAN HAS HIS PRICE—THEY SAY

YOU are just as successful as you WANT to be, YOU will do no more than you THINK you can do, ambition and courage is SEEING yourself in a little home all your own, surrounded by a happy family and good neighbors. WISHING you had one without putting forth any EFFORT is COWARDICE and means FAILURE. Tomorrow NEVER comes, NOW is the accepted time. You will pardon me for referring to myself, but I only do it for your benefit. I began at Lakewood Heights with $50 cash; the result of that beginning is a hundred homes and happy families at Lakewood Heights. I know how hard it is to get the first deal, and I would suffer my right arm to be severed before I would let a man lose a home if he was doing his best to pay for it. I will give YOU a square deal. Nearly every man I sell to sells a friend of his. If you have $50 in cash, see me at once, will cost you NOTHING; it might be of untold benefit to you. P. B. Hopkins, 316 Empire Bldg., Ivy 3111.

ROSWELL ROAD

THE ROAD OF OPPORTUNITY, a thoroughfare leading to Cobb county, Milton county and DeKalb county, leading to Roswell Road and connecting with the proposed Riverside Drive. Frontage on Peachtree and Paces Ferry Road, same distance out, selling for $25.00 to $35.00 per foot. You can buy Roswell Road building sites at $1.50 to $3.00 per foot. There is no question but what Roswell is the prettiest road; the scenery is magnificent all the way to Roswell. We believe anything you buy on the road will make you money, and you will not go to another county, as you do if you buy any distance out on Peachtree.

COUNTRY HOME SITE at the intersection of Roswell, Dunwoody, Powers Ferry and Johnson's Ferry Roads, we have 60 acres with 2,304 feet of road frontage on a natural elevation. Stone Mountain and Kennesaw Mountain in full view. A beautiful building and about 1-4 of the entire tract in fruit. If you will look at it you will agree that it is an ideal place. Price $12,000 on very easy terms.

CAMP SITES adjoining Sandy Springs camp ground on Powers Ferry paved road, we offer four tracts 200x500 at $500.00 each, on terms of $100.00 cash and balance monthly. They are located in clean white section, close to school and church.

NOTHING LIKE THIS in Fulton county, a beautiful elevation overlooking Atlanta. Stone Mountain and Kennesaw Mountain on a high ridge called the Hog Back, covered with magnificent oaks, two orchards bearing. A total of 16 1-2 acres bounded by three prominent paved thoroughfares; the other side bounded by dirt road, a total frontage of 3,627 feet of which 2,644 is paved; located six miles from Buckhead, at the intersection of Johnson's Ferry, Lawrenceville, Powers Ferry and Roswell Roads. Price $7,500; $1,000 cash, balance yearly for five years. Let's look at it.

12 ACRES, Roswell Road, a corner with 1,254 feet paved road frontage. Good 6-room house (not a shack), large barn and outbuildings, garden plot, bearing fruit trees, the apples and pears in orchard are said to be the finest in North Fulton county; one block of school; one-fourth mile of church; it's a beauty. Price $4,500; $500 cash, balance monthly or yearly.

6 3-4 ACRES, Roswell Road, near intersection Sandy Springs and Johnson's Ferry Road; 504 feet on Roswell paved road. Price $1,200; $250 cash, balance easy.

14 ACRES, 1,799 feet paved frontage, corner Roswell Road and Sandy Springs; adjoins Sandy Springs camp ground in rear. Price $2,750; $500 cash, balance $500 yearly—figure the price per foot.

18 ACRES, 2,672 feet paved frontage, corner Roswell and Johnson's Ferry Roads, a beautiful grove, one-half cleared, used as truck farm. The entire tract is level. Price $7,000; $500 cash, balance easy—figures about $2.50 per front foot.

27 ACRES fronting 1,140 feet on Roswell Road. It has two of the prettiest building sites on it that you will find anywhere. To see it will be to buy it. Spring branch, some bottom land and orchard. Price $4,500; $500 cash, balance yearly for five years.

34 ACRES fronting 2,396 feet on Roswell Road; large branch running through it; a little rough, but cheap. Price $3,000; $500 cash, balance yearly for five years. It cost almost this amount to pave the road in front. Figures less than $1.25 per foot.

44 1-2 ACRES, fronting 1,304 feet on Roswell Road; rough, but some good timber and open land. Price $3,000; $500 cash, balance yearly for five years.

In our opinion, Roswell Road is the logical route for the car line to Roswell, in fact there has been, and is now, a movement on foot to get up the money to build a line to Roswell and make the Georgia Railway company a present of it if they will run the cars. This car line is bound to come, then frontage will sell for $10 to $15 per foot.

REAL ESTATE—For Sale

OGLETHORPE PARK vs. ANSLEY PARK
1914 vs. 1904
PROSPERITY vs. "CROAKERS"

Oglethorpe Park vs. Ansley Park

OGLETHORPE PARK is as directly in the line of development as Ansley Park was in 1904, and its increase in property values will be just as great.

Ten years from today Oglethorpe Park will have as many handsome homes in it as Ansley Park has today.

The Croakers will tell you differently, but watch my prediction. There are only two classes of citizens in Atlanta. THE ONES WHO LIVE ON THE NORTH SIDE AND THE ONES WHO WANT TO LIVE ON THE NORTH SIDE.

The plat of Oglethorpe Park has been completed. Each lot is carded, showing size and price. Call at my office for new plats.

Visit Oglethorpe Park immediately and you will be surprised at what you find there today. The streets are all graded and the lots are all staked. You can select anything from a three-quarter-acre building lot to a 15-acre chicken farm. Every lot will double in value within five years. You can buy these lots with your salary, or any way you please.

Have your own agent help you select your lot and take his judgment as to future values, if you are not willing to accept mine.

More homes have been built north of Peachtree Creek in the last twelve months than in the ten preceding years.

Peachtree Road will be built up solid to Oglethorpe university within ten years.

Peachtree Road frontage to the DeKalb county line is a good investment today at any price under $75 per front foot and will double up in ten years.

The Peachtree Battlefield will be the hand-omest and most popular national park in America within the next ten years.

In 1904 the city limits north ended at Sixth street. In 1914 Atlanta's population is 225,000—an increase of 263 per cent.

In 1904 Ansley Park was a tangled mass of laps and limbs, and paid less than $500 in taxes to Fulton county. In 1913 Atlanta's bank clearings were $725,604,192.65—an increase in twenty years of 1,084 per cent.

In 1904 Atlanta's population was 85,000. The Regional Bank makes Atlanta the South's financial center.

In 1893 Atlanta's bank clearings were $60,253,911.13. Postoffice receipts for 1913 were $1,328,001.24—an increase, 219 per cent.

In 1904 Atlanta had only half a dozen skyscrapers. In 1914 the assessed value of Atlanta real estate was $48,333,000.

In 1904 there was not a house in Druid Hills and only one good house on Ponce de Leon avenue between the railroad and the county line.

In 1913 the assessment of Atlanta real estate was $121,000,000, and in 1914 it will be over $130,000,000—an increase, 170 per cent.

In 1913 Ansley Park was assessed by the city of Atlanta at $2,262,000 and paid $30,000 in taxes to the city and $20,000 to Fulton county. Its taxable values increased 11,000 per cent in eight years.

For the past three years it has averaged over 1,000 new homes per annum. What will the next ten years produce?

In 1913 the assessment of Atlanta real estate was $121,000,000, and in 1914 it will be over $130,000,000—an increase, 170 per cent.

The total city assessment for 1913 was $172,329,477. Ponce de Leon avenue is now built up solid to the county line, and there are many handsome homes in Druid Hills.

Every section in the extended city limits has shown the same wonderful development.

The next extension of the city limits will take in Kirkwood, Oakhurst, Decatur, East Point and Buckhead.

Prosperity vs. "Croakers"

Ten years ago the world did not believe the Panama canal would ever be built. Today it is a finished product. Its opening means that the tide of trade will change in the United States, and that the south and her southern ports will enter upon an era of untold prosperity.

Ten years ago the farmers of the south could not get money to properly improve their farms at any price. Today President Wilson has proven himself the greatest real estate agent the world has ever known, and is forcing the water out of the "boasted" listed stocks in the gambling houses of the United States, and is removing the embargo laid on America's greatest producer—the farmer—and allowing him to use his only security as an asset for national bank loans.

The world now realizes that mortgages secured by productive farm lands are the safest and best securities obtainable, and from this day forward they will be the most popular securities for all classes of trust funds, because man's mismanagement cannot affect them, and no water has to be squeezed out of them.

Ten years ago there were only a few automobile garages in Atlanta. Today every automobile manufacturer either has a sales-room here, or will soon have one, and will be forced to locate a branch of his factory here to save freight rates.

Only a few years ago all the cotton factories of the country were located in the east. Within a few years they will all be located in the cotton fields for the same reason.

The same reasons that force the automobile and cotton factories to come south will force all the large manufacturing to locate branch factories here.

Ten years ago there was not a good road in Georgia outside the counties in which her largest cities were located, and the average price of Georgia farm lands was $10 to $15 per acre. Today every county in Georgia is planning a system of good roads and farm lands are worth from $25 to $100 per acre, and will double within the next five years.

Ten years ago the average yield of cotton per acre was one-quarter to one-half bale per acre. Today intensive farming produces from one to five bales per acre.

Ten years ago Georgia's average corn crop yield was 15 to 20 bushels per acre. Today boys under 20 years of age are making from 100 to 200 bushels per acre.

Georgia's agricultural crop for 1913 was $458,000,000, and her manufactured products were valued at $300,000,000, making a total production of nearly one billion dollars.

Figure for yourself the thousands of other things that show Atlanta and the south's wonderful growth within the last ten years that guarantees the wonderful future growth of this wonderful section.

This Is the Bride's Month

"Something old, something new; Something borrowed, something blue; And a piece of silver in your shoe."

Since knights of old wood ladies fair, tradition tells us that the wise bride has observed this mystic rule. It is her sentimental safeguard against the woes that otherwise beset the true daughter of Eve—a talisman that insures her safe transition to wedded land.

We know the resourceful bride will provide herself with the other articles mentioned in the couplet—we want to help her along the line of "something new."

We have helped many a bride to make this big event in her life a successful one—and right now, at a moment's notice, we are ready to furnish every article of apparel, every accessory needed to complete a trousseau—and from the simplest to the most elegant—also the trunk and bag for going away.

"It is the month of June, The month of leaves and roses,"

And the woman who appreciates the true fitness of things will use this—

A Remarkable Special Offer on Sewing Machines for Monday

We are going to sell FIVE regular $66 central needle, "sit-straight," "Standard" Rotary Sewing Machines at $37.50.

THREE $40 ROTARY machines at $29.50.

(The $40 machine at $29.50 is not a central needle machine.)

An offer worthy of careful thought on your part.

With a ROTARY machine there is no lost force; every foot pressure counts for power, and in the time that other machines make four stitches the rotary kinds make seven. Add to this their many new devices for sewing better or more easily and their strong, light-running construction, and you see why so many women do their home sewing with their aid.

Our method of selling, from the factory to the customer, eliminating the middleman's profit, is the reason we can offer you, at $29.50, machines which sell in other retail channels at $40.00; and other values equally great.

If you are at all interested in a machine, we suggest your coming early Monday, to make sure of getting one of these at the special price.

Mrs. Hattie Sanders will entertain the club Thursday at her home at East Lake.

MOORE-MALLORY.

LaGrange, Ga., June 6.—(Special)—A beautiful home wedding was that of Miss Moore and Mr. Mallory, which took place Thursday at high noon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Blalock, of LaGrange. Mrs. Mallory is the niece of Dr. and Mrs. R. H. Blalock, and there is no doubt that the wedding was a most lovely affair. The bride wore a white tulle lace over net, exquisitely fashioned and most becoming to her blonde type of beauty. Her hair was styled in a very attractive effect, and caught to her hat with orange blossoms.

GROOVER-WORSLEY.

Columbus, Ga., June 6.—(Special)—An important social event of the week in Columbus, and one in which state-wide interest was felt owing to the popularity and social prominence of the contracting parties, was the marriage of Miss Emily Groover to Mr. Grover Worsley Tuesday afternoon. The ceremony was performed at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Groover, parents of the bride and the lovely home never looked more attractive than on this occasion. Mrs. Ugo Guerrini, of Jacksonville, a cousin of the bride, was matron of honor, and she entered with Mr. Herbert Groover, brother of the bride. The bride entered with her father, Mr. C. I. Groover, by whom she was given in marriage. She was lovely in her white wedding gown of tulle lace over net, exquisitely fashioned and most becoming to her blonde type of beauty. Her hair was styled in a very attractive effect, and caught to her hat with orange blossoms.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. L. B. Davis, of Atlanta, grandfather of the bride, and was beautiful and most impressive.

The wedding was followed by a reception, after which Mr. and Mrs. Worsley left for their home in Georgia where they will spend their honeymoon.

The bride, as Miss Groover has been prominent and popular in Columbus social circles, and is much admired in Atlanta, Jacksonville and other Southern cities which she has visited. She inherits from Mrs. Groover the charm of personality and manner which render her mother one of the most admired matrons in the state and is a woman in whom are blended most agreeably sincerity of character, sweetness of disposition and rare personal attractiveness.

Mr. Worsley is a member of one of the oldest and most prominent families in Columbus and is popular in club, business and social circles.

Mrs. Miller E. Hutchins, of Atlanta, an aunt of the bride, was among the out-of-town guests in attendance upon the ceremony.

In the Social Whirl

By Isma Dooly.

When a local preacher last Sunday made some very ignorant statements about dancing, a young actor from the Lyric, Louis Mason, in defending the art of dancing, said so many good and wholesome things almost akin to a sermon I feel constrained to repeat them.

He said that he thought the present new fad of dancing was holding the family group together more than any form of amusement, and he supposed the preachers still regarded the family as the unit of civilization.

Further, he said:

"For instance, one of my private dancing classes is composed of a father and mother and their three children, and I do not come in contact with a happier group of people. Suppose the father were a man who liked recreation and amusement, and whose wife did not, and there was no general point of interest upon which they could unite for an evening's pleasure. The man would naturally drift to the club, the 'movies,' or maybe, what you call the near beer saloon. The mother might have a game of bridge at a neighbor's, and the children large enough to know what they wanted to do would make for the streets for their sport. With this sort of program in the family, repeated night after night, there would soon drop out of that family any common interest and family tie.

"On the other hand with the family dancing class once or twice a week, with father bringing home new records for dancing, and everybody helping run the graphophone the man would look forward to the family gathering in the evening the mother would be bored with the bridge game next door and their children could not be induced to leave home.

"If there were more home organizations of this kind and more neighborhood dancing classes there would be less of the men running around hunting pleasure on the outside and fewer women victims of gossip and snobs, and fewer children run over by automobiles, and fewer petty offenders."

It was his theme.

The young actor's sermon was a very good one, and he was dealing with his own legitimate theme too the art of dancing and the social whirl.

He did not undertake to preach the gospel of Christ, or tell men what they should do to make themselves and the world better. It occurred to me since that the world must be getting lonelier and lonelier following Sunday, but now I quote from a lady who said the other day: "I certainly am glad that I learned the beautiful story of Christ when I was a little child, I so seldom hear his name mentioned now."

Last Sunday we had a sermon on local politics, the Sunday before that, the preacher, who had never been in one, was abusing social clubs, and this last Sunday we were well scolded and abused about money matters.

The Day After.

"Now you read the Monday paper about the sermon preached the day before she continued, and you will see that Doctor This and That took such and such a subject for his text. A line from scripture will be quoted, and then local politics will be touched upon and so called 'high society' abused."

"Did you ever notice, however, that these iniquitous society people are never excused from the church subscription list, nor the funds collected for institutional work?"

"Did you ever read carefully the list of people who buy tickets for benefit entertainments, which help keep the church, the school and hospitals going?"

"I believe," continued this lady, who is one of the most philanthropic and generous ones in the community, "that it would be good if we could have what might be termed a renaissance of the gospel of Christ and religion in the sense of the kind that would strengthen men's spirit and souls."

"We are always having renaissance of something—history and literature and art and the world takes to it. Now in the stress and strain of our civilization we need more knowledge of the Spirit and of the great laws of Moses and the prophets, and of the glorious gospel of Christ."

The Love of Truth.

I agree with this woman in believing that our citizens, men and women, whether they represent the leisure class, whether they use their brains, their money or their hands in making the living, desire something more when they go to church on Sunday than gossip about a small element of people who dance.

Certainly the spirit and interest of people cannot be satisfied with even the pitiful gossip on this subject, and I doubt that it helps them to bear the burdens which come into the lives of the poor and rich alike.

I believe if they could hear sermons some time on the "Glory of God" on the "Wonders of Creation" on "The Relation of Creator and Creature" on "What the Eternal God Means in the Scheme of the Universe" and "What the Message of the Savior Means to Man" it would be more inspiring, more edifying, more humanly interesting to even the crowd who assemble when they hear the brass band in the street.

The Street Organ.

There are becoming too many so-called exponents of the gospel who, like the cheap politician, think they must make the cheap appeal. They misrepresent the doings of the few in order to catch the ear of the so-called multitude who many times go to church hungry for something that will help them.

These go home with their minds filled with suggestions about things which do not concern them, and certainly can do nothing edifying to talk about at the family dinner if they revert to the gossip dealt out from some of the pulpits at morning services.

There is so much that is beautiful and good and illuminating in present-day civilization that could be told of and prove inspiring, that it is too bad that all those to whom it is given to bear these messages to hungry souls and minds do not make it their duty to do so.

Thank God there are the churches and the men of God in the pulpits who know the sanctity of their office, lead their flocks, and represent what the church is designed to represent in the life of the human family. Can't they reach out and draw back the ignorant and unethical?

The professions protect the dignity of their standards against those who abuse their privileges. Can't the church which still represents our spirit, our very soul of civilization, protect her own?

CAMPBELL-BURNETT.

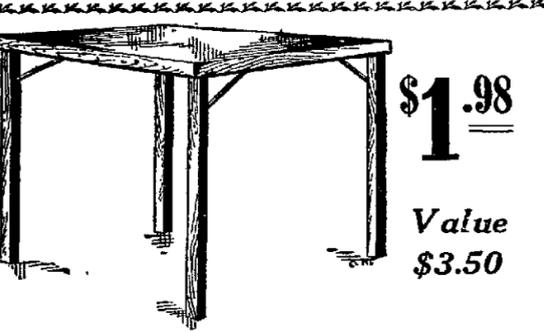

Felham, Ga., June 6.—A marriage, the announcement of which came as a distinct surprise to their many friends in this section, was that of Miss Lizette Campbell, of Camilla, to Mr. W. W. Burnett, of this place which occurred at Metcalf, on May 24. The marriage was kept a secret from their friends and it was not known here that they were married until they arrived in the city last night and made the announcement themselves. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Campbell of Camilla, and is a most charming young lady, while the groom is one of the most prominent business men of Felham.

The Gift for the June Bride

By Isma Dooly.

The art of music in the concert of the Atlanta Music association, the art of the drama in the play produced by the French Alliance and the Bernard Shaw by the Tech students, the art of painting, as illustrated by the exhibition in the governor's mansion, and the art of dancing as seen exploited on many occasions have made life interesting for those who have chosen during the past week to reach out for pastimes interesting and pleasurable.

I believe if many people knew how restful it was to look at beautiful pictures, whether they quite understand them or not, more people would go to see them.

At the art exhibition given during the last two weeks at the governor's mansion, the pictures loaned to the Atlanta Art association by the American Federation of Arts, I noticed that many lovers of pictures selected the luncheon hour to visit the exhibit—this the hottest time of the day, but the quietest hour.

"It rested them," they declared, and they wandered about the big rooms of the mansion, all unmindful of the heat, and gazing rapturously at the pictures.

The smile of the little girl would even if every detail of the picture were not artistic, was the comment of a man whom I recognize as one of Atlanta's first citizens, who was en route home to lunch, and stopped to see, for the fourth time, the pictures.

"There was a heated argument one morning I was there between Miss Hergersheimer and Mr. Burnside about a celebrated artist. These two entirely disagreed about his merits, which quite consoled one who realized that art did not require uniformity of opinion or taste.

"There was the universal opinion expressed in favor of the portrait of Dr. F. H. Gaines painted by Miss Hergersheimer. It is a wonderful piece of work—a most satisfying and realistic impression of the character and life of the distinguished educator. The artist did the work, I understand, with but few sittings, during which she inquired the doctor talk to her, and there was no posing done. The result is what the world commonly calls a 'speaking likeness.' The eyes of Dr. Gaines especially proclaim the artist's skill in portraying life. The portrait of Miss Hopkins, done by the same artist, is a beautiful portrait, but scarcely so satisfying.

"It is not the 'speaking likeness' that one may well call that of Dr. Gaines," I commented.

"Why, haven't you heard the story of the artist, the faculty and the alumnae?" someone asked, hearing the comment.

"The artist painted Miss Hopkins as she had Dr. Gaines. She required no posing; but had Miss Hopkins talk to her during the brief sittings, and when the portrait, the very life expression of Miss Hopkins showed her, with her lips slightly parted, the faculty and student body agreed with the artist that the picture was a joy."

But not so the committee from the alumnae who probed the picture. They preferred Miss Hopkins with her mouth closed, and the portrait was changed.

The Burnside Pictures.

Through the pictures at the exhibit shown by Mr. Cameron Burnside please one at once, and there is a softness and delicacy about them that rests, even if one does not know the school they represent, the beauty which the fellow student who understands them, and knows their meaning, comes to interpret it for you. After Miss Hergersheimer talked Tuesday morning about the impressionist school, and the post-impressionist school, using the Burnside pictures to illustrate the meaning of the former school, she brought new light to them and deeper understanding. Just as the one who reads deep into literature can interpret the meaning for the student or superficial reader, finding for him the subtle charms, just so the student of art can find for one not studios, but loving of it, the charms that at first are hidden.

There was a haziness about the "Dawn" of the Burnside picture and one felt the Chanteclair cry had not come entirely until Miss Hergersheimer, in giving the text of the impressionist school, pointed to the picture by Mr. Burnside and quoted from Read's poem, "Indirection." She read:

"Fair are the flowers and the children, but their subtle suggestion is fairer; Rare is the roseburst of dawn, but the secret that clasps it is rarer; Sweet the exultance of song, but the strain that precedes it is sweeter; And never was poem yet writ but the meaning outmasters the meter."

Never a daisy that grows but a mystery guideth the growing; Never a river that flows but a majesty scatters the flowing; Never a Shakespeare that soars, but a stronger than he did unfold him, Nor ever a prophet foretells, but a mightier seer hath foretold him.

"Back of the canvas that throbs, the painter is hinted and hidden Into the statue that breathes, the soul sculpts the flowing; Under the joy that is felt lie the infinite issues of feeling, Crowning the glory revealed, is the glory that crowns the revealing."

"Great are the symbols of being, but that which is symbolized is greater; Vast the create and beheld, but vaster the inward creator, Back of the sound broods the silence."

Modern Methods In Dry Cleaning Due To Education

The world is advancing in education and refinement. This is the age of cleanliness and fastidious environment.

People are more "particular" than were the people of the centuries past. It is one of the strongest results of education advancing through many generations.

The demand is now for the extension of facilities that apply the principles of cleanliness and sanitation. The highest pinnacle of such well-directed endeavor has been attained at—

The Capital City

Though the art of Dry Cleaning is an old one, it is only through generations of education that the perfect method has fully developed.

Such education comes necessarily from years of experience in the handling of the varied beautiful fabrics produced by textile mills of the old world and our own country.

The Professional Dry Cleaner must keep pace with all new weaves and colors as they appear in the fashion mart; must be able to determine just the proper treatment for each fabric, with intelligent care for the many elaborate combinations of delicate materials.

These things we know at

The Capital City The Capital City Laundry
In the Dry Cleaning line there is none in the southern section having so large and fashionable a clientele as

To Have Pretty Hair

If your hair is not as soft and pretty, or as fresh and full as that of some friend, do as she does—give it daily attention, just the same care you would give a plant to make it healthy and beautiful. Luxuriant hair—soft, fluffy, thick and lustrous—is really a matter of care. If it is too thin, make it grow. If it is too dry and brittle, soften it up—lubricate it. If you have dandruff it is because the scalp is too dry and flakes off. Freshen up the scalp and the dandruff disappears. Parfume Sage, an inexpensive tonic, which you can get from any drug or toilet counter, or from Jacobs' stores, is just what you need—it softens the scalp, nourishes the hair roots, immediately removes dandruff, and makes the hair fluffy, lustrous and abundant. One application will stop itching head and cleanse the hair of dust and excessive oil. Parfume Sage takes away the dryness and brittleness, makes the hair twice as abundant and beautifies it until it is soft, lustrous and abundant. By the use of this helpful tonic any woman can easily make her hair soft, fluffy and abundant. Pretty hair surely increase her charm and beauty.

Introducing "The Free" Sewing Machine

The Machine That Does Better Work With Less Effort The Machine That Lasts Longest & Costs the Least

Having examined the merits of the leading Sewing Machines, we find that "THE FREE" stands head and shoulders over all other makes in the essentials that go to make a good Sewing Machine. Exhaustive examination and comparison prove beyond question that "THE FREE" Sewing Machine

Runs Lighter

Ball bearings make machinery run lighter. For instance, ball bearings on a bicycle—same effect on a sewing machine. With more ball bearings the lighter the machine runs. "THE FREE" sewing machine has six sets of ball bearings—no other sewing machine has more than three. Consequently, "THE FREE" runs lighter.

Sews Faster

By reason of exclusive improvements like the toggle link takeup, round bearings, the celebrated Rotosello movement, etc., "THE FREE" sewing machine sews faster than any other make of machine.

Is More Convenient

"THE FREE" sewing machine is the easiest machine to operate. It is full of features that work automatically like the rotary spool pin, the automatic shuttle ejector, the automatic head latch, the automatic tension release, the automatic lift, the automatic bobbin winder, the automatic drawer locks and many other special features and improvements that will save you time, labor and annoyance.

Is More Beautiful

Nothing has been left undone to make "THE FREE" the most beautiful machine in the world. The design is exquisite—the woodwork being a full rounded set of fine proportions, made of the very best quality quarter sawed oak, finished with a high piano polish. Then, there is the French leg stand done in brown to harmonize with the wood work, and which requires no dusting. The head of the machine is beautifully done in nickel plate, black enamel, also gold and peacock green transfers.

Lasts Longer

The durability of "THE FREE" machine is amply evidenced by the fact that "THE FREE" sewing machine company guarantees this machine for life, whereby no other sewing machine is guaranteed for more than ten years. Furthermore, "THE FREE" is insured against breakage, fire, water, flood, lightning or any other damaging source for a period of five years.

Has Less Vibration

"THE FREE" sewing machine, while equipped with a long shuttle, has more rotary parts than any other sewing machine made. This, together with the greater number of ball bearings, the strong French leg stand, the metal cut-out in which the head rests, makes "THE FREE" have less vibration than any other sewing machine.

Makes a More Perfect Stitch

"THE FREE" is equipped with the only fore-motion positive square feed of any of the high-grade machines. Its operation is strong and perfect on all classes of goods. All manufacturers claim the fore-motion square positive feed for their machines, but remember "THE FREE" is the only machine of them all that has a square fore-motion positive feed, which we can prove to you. It is this feed that has made "THE FREE" machine famous for perfect sewing qualities on all material.

Is Guaranteed For Life

While all other sewing machines are guaranteed for five to ten years, "THE FREE" is guaranteed for life. If any defect in workmanship or material shows up in "THE FREE" machine during your lifetime or the lifetime of the machine, new parts will be given free of cost.

Is Insured For Five Years

This insurance is given with no other sewing machine but "THE FREE." Should your machine at any time within a period of five years be destroyed by fire, water, lightning—should your machine fall off the back of a wagon while you are moving, or should it get broken in any way so that it is useless—a new machine will be given without cost to you. If a needle or a belt breaks, if you should lose a bobbin or an attachment; if anything gets broke or lost in a period of five years, these parts will be replaced for you absolutely without cost. Over 1,000 "THE FREE" sewing machines were given away in 1913, due to the Indiana and Ohio floods, the Mississippi overflow, the Omaha cyclone, etc.

Sold For Less Money

Despite these many points of superiority over other machines, "THE FREE" is actually sold for less money than any other high-grade machine. You will be more than agreeably surprised at the reasonable price of "THE FREE."

Grand Opening & Demonstration of "THE FREE" Sewing Machine Starting Monday, June 8th, Continuing All Week

Book Reviews in Tabloid

Miss Billy. By the gifted author of "Pollyanna," the glad book. Have you read the "Miss Billy" books by the Eminent H. Porter? If not, you have missed the pleasure of reading three of the most popular books of fiction of today.

The heroine is Billy Neilson, a beautiful young girl, who, upon the death of her father, is left alone in the world. The opening chapter finds Billy writing a letter and you at once not only become the interested reader, but the friend of this lonely young girl. The frontispiece is in color from a painting of Miss Billy by Griswold Ting.

Miss Billy's Decision. The second book of this interesting series is full of love, romance and some very interesting characters. It is here that the reader becomes more and more interested and enthused over Billy's affairs as she, with the assistance of Bertram, is trying to make a decision which covers something like 200 pages. But did a girl ever make a decision that did not cover huge after page?

Miss Billy—Married. Of course readers have been told about Miss Billy and her decision, and now comes the third and last book of this beautiful series. The decision was very favorable and our adorable Billy and manly Bertram begin their happy married life with a little honeymoon. The story is told in a simple, direct, and to the point manner, with a great deal of humor and common sense during the best of the honeymoon. Each day which each young wife will recognize as her experience, but as time goes on, when the honeymoon is over, she shines, she becomes one of the best loved young matrons, for like her friend, "Pollyanna," she is always trying to lighten somebody's burden in a happy way, but her greatest happiness is found in her husband and the dainties and cooking of Bertram, Jr., though, to her friends she is still "just Billy."

These three "Miss Billy" books, like all other books written by this gifted author, carry with them a message of love and happiness. (The Page Company, 63 Bexon street, Boston.)

which bore her from the earth to high Olympus. The scene closes with a farewell song and grand adieu.

The songs are set to melodies composed and harmonized by Mrs. S. J. Hanna. The songs are the work of Miss Elizabeth Hanna.

LITERARY NOTES.

Miss Jean Webster is in Chicago and will remain for the 100th performance of "Daddy-Long-Legs." The souvenirs of the occasion will be copies of Miss Webster's book, "Daddy-Long-Legs," with a picture carrying the picture of Miss Jean Webster, who has secured so notable a hit in the character of Judy.

Dr. Stanton Colt, in his book, "The Soul of America," advocates a policy for the spiritual unification of America.

Authors whose books seem to continue popular up to the June date are Kathleen Norris and the late S. E. Crockett's "Sandy."

Jack London's "The Strength of the Strong" is such a typical Jack London book of six interesting short stories, the last being "Samuel," of Island McGill, just off the coast of Ireland, and a sample of the Irish and industrious people—Irish they claim to be, yet Scotch they undoubtedly are, is indeed splendid.

Kate Langley Bosher, author of "The House of Happiness" is in Virginia taking a little vacation and will motor through various parts of the state.

Mr. Arthur S. Pier's new story, "St. Anthony," has been published and has established his reputation as an interpreter for boys.

Mr. Justin Huntley McCarthy is winning success over his "Charlemagne" in which he made his appearance in May in Boston. The opening performance was an ovation for both McCarthy and Sothel.

Oliver Madox Hoffer, author of "Hunt the Slipper," will be published at an early date, and correspondent of the London Express in Mexico, was put in prison the other day in Mexico City along with two American newspaper men. He was finally allowed to go on proving that he was a British subject, which he did without any trouble on account of his accent.

Matty is an author, they say. That is, if she is. The star pitcher of the New York Giants, in addition to his baseball activities, something of a literary light. This spring he has brought out a juvenile story called "Pitcher Pollock." This volume is but the first of an extensive series which "Matty" is announcing for future publication. He hopes to get out one volume a year, which means he will make one juvenile hit in the literary world each year.

Peg O' My Heart—both story and play—continues to be very popular. The author, H. H. Manners, will bring out some time during the year a small volume containing three of his one-act plays.

First Blanche Bates, then Ethel Barrymore and now Madame Toulouze have been declared the original heroine of the "Are you guessing?" if so, remember that Victory Law's mother was an actress," says Ann Warwick.

The New York Browning Society is raising a fund of $15,000 as half of the sum needed to purchase the original letters placed them, the entire collection of the letters of Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning. All lovers of Browning are requested to send their contribution to the Browning society, Waldorf-Astoria, New York.

Prof. Charles Alphonse Smith, of the University of Virginia, is at work on an authoritative biography of O. Henry. Both Parkington has written his publishers to know about the sales of "Ferdinand" at the dentist's several weeks ago, he writes, "and would like something else to think about."

David Starr Jordan's book "War and Waste," in which he emphatically condemns militarism, has gone to press for a new printing.

Percy MacKaye, the poet and dramatist, sent Miss Eleanor Wilson, as a wedding gift, an advance copy of "Saint Louis, a Civic Masque," his remarkable dramatic poem which is to be performed at St. Louis at the end of this month. Mrs. MacKaye is particularly interested in this form of literature and acted with Mr. MacKaye in his bird-masque "Sanctuary."

SAYS MOTHER JONES CAN ENTER CANADA

Seattle, Wash., June 6.—"Mother" Jones has a right to enter Canada, according to a message received here from an officer of the Vancouver Central Labor union.

The message stated that when the Vancouver member of the Canadian parliament brought Mrs. Jones' detention to the attention of the government, the chief of the provincial police of British Columbia promptly was overruled.

The chief stopped "Mother" Jones from boarding a steamer bound for Vancouver on the ground that she would cause trouble by addressing striking coal miners at Nanaimo.

Secretary of Labor Wilson telegraphed today that the case had been referred to Secretary of State Bryan.

Interest.

"There is no reason why you should go into bankruptcy," advised the lawyer. "You should take more interest in your business," demanded the dawnbroker.

Notable Achievements Mark Life of Atlanta Ad Club

Organization Has Proved to Be One of the Livest the City Has Ever Had—Plans for the Trip to Toronto.

By William F. Parkhurst.
Since its organization March 4, 1909, the Ad Men's club of Atlanta has proven one of the liveliest organizations this city has known. The club has constantly worked for all movements to boost Atlanta and for the best in advertising. Fakirs and get-rich-quick schemes have been relentlessly punished, and Atlanta is now quite free from such pests.

The membership is composed not only of men actually engaged in the advertising business, but also of progressive business men who are interested in advertising matters and in the upbuilding of Atlanta. The Ad Men have secured for Atlanta thousands of dollars worth of advertising at their various annual conventions in various parts of the country, notably in Omaha, Boston, Dallas and Baltimore. At the coming convention at Toronto, Canada, in June, the Atlanta delegates expect to let the Canadians, as well as the 3,500 other delegates from all parts of the United States, and those from England and Hawaii, know that Atlanta and Georgia are right "on the map" and are leaders in various lines.

The following well-known young Atlanta business men have served the Ad Men's Club as president: T. H. Brannen, of Brannon Barbers' Supply Co.; George M. Chapin, now in real estate business in Jacksonville; William F. Parkhurst, advertising agent; Paul F. Reese, southern manager of Whitehead & Hoag Novelty Co.; Albert S. Adams, of E. M. Grant & Co., real estate; and E. H. Goodhart, of Southern Photo Material Co.

Started With 50 Members.
At its organization March 4, 1909, under the auspices of St. Elmo Massengale and Paul F. Reese, the Ad Men's Club has less than 50 members, but now it has grown to a membership of nearly 200.

The purpose of the organization is stated as follows: "For the development of the best in advertising; to assist each other by the interchange of ideas; for the purpose of producing better copy and more profitable results; to correct existing abuses in the advertising business; to discharge honestly and misrepresentation of every form in advertising; to bring up to the full measure of usefulness the members of the club; to promote social fellowship and co-operate in every possible way with the civic organizations of Atlanta in their efforts to advertise the advantages of Atlanta as a good place to live and do business."

Ad Men Open White Way.
When the initial installation of Atlanta's Great White Way was planned, it was at once decided to have the Ad Men take charge of the parade and exercises. This was in December, 1910. One of the longest parades ever held in Atlanta was pulled off and the floats, decorated automobiles and costumed bands, were thronged with horns, confetti and various instruments for noise-making, and of the auspicious of the Ad Men Atlanta enjoyed its first real carnival night. The procession was headed by Mayor Robert F. Parkhurst, of the Ad Men's club, and the lights were turned on block by block as the procession marched down Peachtree street from the Aragon hotel, across Whitehall street and into Mitchell street to the Terminal station. The parade was under the direction of Clarence Haverty, who had been appointed chairman of the Ad Men's White Way committee. It was estimated that over 30,000 people thronged the streets to enjoy the festivities.

Then the Ad Men got busy to extend the White Way along other central business streets, with the result that Pryor street from the Union depot to the Grand Opera house was soon lighted up, and connecting streets between Pryor and Peachtree were also given the lights. The Ad Men freely gave their time and energy to this municipal improvement.

Ad Men Fight the Fakir.
One of the primary objects of the Ad Men's club is to discourage misrepresentation of any kind in advertisements and to fight the dishonest advertiser and the fakir. Working to this end, the organization has saved thousands of dollars to the buying public of Atlanta by running out several so-called "fire sales" and "million dollar building sales," which attempted to unload a lot of practically worthless stocks in this city. This work has also been appreciated by the Atlanta merchants, who have worked with the club in running out the fakir. The club also succeeded in holding up the payments in certain publications for alleged "special Atlanta write-ups" which, upon investigation, were found not to be as represented.

That the work of the Ad Men's club along these lines is appreciated not only here, but also around the south, is shown by the numerous letters and telegrams received from time to time from other cities, asking reports on supposed fake "fire sales" and similar schemes to rob the public's money.

National Honors for Local Men.
Probably greater honors have come to members of the Atlanta club from the national organization than to any other club in the United States. At the present time several important offices in the Associated Advertising Clubs of America are held by members of the local organization.

Samuel C. Dobbs, general sales and advertising manager of the Coca-Cola company, was twice elected to the presidency of the national organization and held that high office with credit to himself and to the Atlanta club. He succeeded in nearly doubling the number of the clubs affiliated with the national organization, and traveled from coast to coast preaching the gospel of honest advertising and the value of advertising clubs to a town or city. So great was the appreciation of Mr. Dobbs' effort that when he retired from the presidency at the Boston convention, he was presented by the Ad Men with a five-passenger auto completely equipped and various presents of silver. Mr. Dobbs is now a member of the national executive committee.

William F. Parkhurst, who was the third president of the Atlanta Ad Men's club, secured for the club a national vigilance committee. The object of this committee is to formulate and carry out plans to fight the fakir and to discourage misrepresentation in advertising. This committee is back of the Ad Men's bill which will go before the Georgia legislature at the next session, prohibiting untrue and misleading advertisements and punishing the authors thereof.

Louis D. Hicks served a term as president of the southeastern division of the Associated Advertising Clubs of America, having been unanimously elected to that high position at an annual convention of the division held in Atlanta. The southeastern division comprises the states of Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi and Florida.

St. Elmo Massengale, one of the founders of the Atlanta Ad Men's club, has for three years been an active member of the national educational committee. This is one of the most important committees of the national body, as it outlines the entire work for each year and research for all clubs a year, and also arranges advertising lectures which are given before clubs all over the country.

DELEGATES ARE NAMED TO TORONTO MEETING

Atlanta Delegation Promises to Make Things Hum.

A live bunch will represent the Atlanta Ad Men's club at the Toronto convention. The executive committee has appointed the following delegates: St. Elmo Massengale, delegate-at-large; William F. Parkhurst, Paul F. Reese, William G. Hastings, Julian Boehm, Howard Geldert, E. H. Goodhart, Phil T. Barbour, Charles D. Atkinson, William J. Davis and George M. Kohn. The alternates appointed are George J. Auer, L. J. Cassett, Earl H. Cone, LeRoy Rodgers, Joseph Hubbard, George H. Pass, John Gilmore, Fred Houser, John K. Gwinner and Fred Lewis.

With this crowd of delegates and alternates will also go quite a number of Atlanta business men interested in the work of the Associated Advertising Clubs of America. Many ladies will accompany the party, and special arrangements have been made at Toronto for their entertainment and comfort.

W. T. Anderson, general manager of The Macon Telegraph, will go to the convention with the Atlanta delegation, as he has for the past several years. Mr. Anderson will also be accompanied by several other Macon advertising men.

The delegation leaves Atlanta over the Seaboard Thursday, June 18, for Norfolk, where the Old Dominion line of steamers will be taken for New York, arriving there Saturday. At night the party leaves New York for Buffalo and breakfast will be taken at Hotel Statler, Buffalo, with Manager Harry N. Dutton, formerly of the Piedmont, Atlanta, who has announced special entertainment for the Atlanta crowd. Sunday will be spent at Niagara Falls, the party arriving at Toronto early Monday morning for the opening of the annual convention.

The children were a whole lot more obedient in the old days when father kept a paddle in the wood shed and mother wasn't afraid to use her slipper.

Delegates Go to Toronto.

The Atlanta Ad Men propose this year to exceed the honors they have won at previous national conventions held at Louisville, Omaha, Boston, Dallas and Baltimore. They have various committees hard at work framing up advertising and publicity stunts which will open the eyes not only of the state Canadians at Toronto, but also the delegates from every state in the United States, and those from England and Hawaii. St. Elmo Massengale is chairman of the "On-to-Toronto" committee, and William F. Parkhurst has charge of this Ad Men's edition of The Constitution. The Ad Men will use all profits derived from the advertising in today's Constitution, together with funds they have earned by running moving picture shows, baseball games and other stunts, to advertise Atlanta and all of Georgia at the Toronto convention, which is the tenth annual convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of America.

expected to eclipse all former conventions, and this is the first time the Associated Advertising Clubs of America has convened without the border of the United States. Delegates will be present from all parts of the United States, Canada, Great Britain and Hawaii, and business of importance to everyone interested in advertising will be discussed at the various departmental meetings and in the general sessions. The entertainment features at Toronto will also be a feature.

One of the greatest works the Associated Advertising Clubs has accomplished is the elimination of fake and fraudulent advertising from newspapers and other advertising mediums, and the prosecution and conviction in numerous cases of the perpetrators of fake and misleading advertising.

Spread of Ad Club Movement One of Wonders of Recent Years

The ad club movement has grown in the United States and Canada, and extended into England with a quickness and intensity which shows that it is not merely a passing whim, but that it is permeating the atmosphere of the United States and adjoining countries with the efficiency of work well done and great plans for the future.

It is only eighteen years since the first advertising club was formed. That was the Agate club, of Chicago, and this club is still at work on its original line, being made up exclusively of men who sell magazine advertising space. The Kansas City Advertising club was perhaps the first organization of advertising men that opened its membership to men interested in all the various phases of advertising. Even as recently as five years ago there were not more than thirty-odd advertising clubs throughout the country. Now there are about 175; in fact, there are about that many officially enrolled in the Associated Advertising Clubs of America, which now has an individual dues-paying membership of over 12,000.

First Convention in 1908.
For several years the advertising men had only a semblance of an association and the first time a real convention was held was in 1909 at Louisville, Ky. Even then, the delegates went away without great enthusiasm, but they had elected as their national president Samuel C. Dobbs, of Atlanta, and this man immediately began to do things. He brought order out of chaos; he traveled around the country teaching the advertising men the value of co-operation, combination and truth in advertising.

The next convention, held at Omaha, Neb., was a greater success. Mr. Dobbs was re-elected national president, and the efficiency of his leadership was shown when the organization convened at Boston with the largest and most representative gathering of advertising men ever held. Here it was that the English advertising men first took interest in the movement, twelve delegates being sent from London. At Boston George W. Coleman, of that city, was elected national president, and his administration was marked by success.

The organization continued growing and a splendid annual convention was held at Dallas, Texas, in 1912. The next convention was held in Baltimore in 1913, and was largely attended. At Baltimore William Woodhead, of San Francisco, was elected national president and his work has been aggressive and full of accomplishment. New Mark at Toronto. The Toronto convention in June is

Toronto Meeting Will Be in Many Respects WHAT THE 5,000 DELEGATES WILL DO Most Important Convention in 50 Years

The most important convention in fifty years of North American history will be held in Toronto from June 21 to June 25.

In those five days the Associated Advertising Clubs of America will thunder around the world their triumphant slogan, "Honest advertising is the only good business."

There will be 5,000 delegates at the tenth annual gathering of this organization which marches to the drum of square dealing. The reason for their being there is that they have million-dollar characters as well as million-dollar brains.

They are the men who have quickened the commercial conscience of two nations. They have erected a platform. "Men must not lie about what they are trying to sell," and they stand on that platform while they preach with religious fervor that truthful advertising is a noble service to humanity.

They are the men who have succeeded in spite of bad big business, in prospering good big business and in creating or developing a multitude of useful little businesses. They are the men who have driven lying advertisements out of the public prints and who have put the lie in the jaws of liars.

They are not going to boom a fad. But they are going there because hard experience has told them that lies in the hands of the dollars away, while the truth in advertising pulls the dollars as steel particles leap to a magnet. You don't have to listen to them or subscribe to their doctrine, but you want to build up your business with a clear conscience; they will have advice to fit your ears.

The convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs is of the most definite and personal concern to every man that reads a newspaper or a magazine for the purpose of spending a dollar on some article of necessity or luxury. It will be a convention of advertising men literally—it will be business talking over with itself how goods can be got most cheaply, most satisfactorily, from producers to consumers. For honesty in advertising means not only increased business; it means economy for buyers.

In Toronto the advertising men and the business men will meet and elect a president whose only business is to prevent you from being gulled, who will spend a year of his life fighting frauds and fakery; who, with shrewd experience and industry, will work out methods by which you will be able to get 100 cents worth for every dollar you spend as the result of reading advertisements. That's where the million dollars worth of character as well as the million dollars worth of brains comes in. Putting the case again, you will have the benefit of reading advertisements without your pocket being pinched by periodicals advertising, of the good faith, the keen intelligence and the conscientiousness of the most successful business and the smartest advertising men in the world.

Do you begin to see now, whether you are a merchant or manufacturer or advertiser, why you should want a citizen who wants to make his pocket envelope go as far as possible, what the value of the Toronto convention will be?

A Declaration of Principles.

The Toronto convention will reaffirm, as a matter of course, the Declaration of Principles, which is its only platform. It was made not to be spoken in high sounding phrases, but to be lived up to for the welfare of 10,000,000 people. It isn't necessary to quote much of the declaration. The first paragraph is the keynote, the inspiration, for 10,000 members of the Associated Clubs, and this is it:

"We believe in Truth, the cornerstone of all honorable and successful business, and we pledge ourselves each to one and one to all to make this the foundation of our dealings, to the end that our mutual relations may become still more harmonious and efficient."

The rest of it scores every form of dishonesty or sharp practice, and requires every advertising interest to submit to the National Vigilance Committee every problem regarding questionable ads and frauds. The Associated Advertising Clubs of America will not knowingly permit to be published an advertisement of any sort until it is vigilante, as jealous for the honor of honest advertising as the clients of the old west were for the decency of their far flung settlements, gift the advertisement and take from it every misrepresentation.

Advertising men are creatures of original and independent minds. They are hungry for good ideas, ideas that will make people sit up and open their eyes to the value of a definite proposition. When they get good ideas, they are, or were, jealous of them. They wanted to keep the ideas for themselves. That was the old way of doing things. It sent certain individuals ahead with a comet's speed, but it didn't accomplish much for you or for me. There was no co-operation, no shoulder-to-shoulder attack upon fakery, frauds and frauds. The great rich-quick rascal was buying $10,000 automobiles and going to Europe in his own steam yacht. That was one side of it. There was another side even worse. That is, honest merchants were pooh-poohing the value of advertising. Unwise merchants who really didn't want to be dishonest were led weakly, carelessly, into making representations they couldn't possibly live up to.

Organized in Chicago.

Things, you see, were in a mass. The unscrupulous sellers were gathering a hasty harvest by making dishonestly pay, while the honest sellers had not come to know the honesty would pay better than anything that had ever been thought of. At that period, twenty years ago, the Agate club was organized in Chicago. From that beginning has come the present remarkable organization with its 10,000 members and 150 clubs representing 5,000 great business concerns. The first meeting of the Associated Advertising Clubs, the few weak organizations they had to start with, was in Chicago in 1905. At that time there was more fun than there is in the annual convention. There were social celebrations with a few prominent citizens put forward for the usual plattitude speechmaking. The big idea was there, you understand, but the advertising men were milling all around it—hadn't been able to grab it by the horns.

But the advancement wasn't long delayed. The next year, 1906, in St. Louis, the battle cry, "Honest Advertising," was triumphantly proclaimed. The association began to frame legislation. The whole country awoke to what was in the air. Rich and powerful concerns rotten with crookedness sneered privately or frowned openly. The motives of the association were disclosed and misrepresented. But the work went steadily ahead. The convention met in Cincinnati in 1907, slowly gaining new clubs. It went to Kansas City in 1908. Louisville welcomed it in 1909. There was a great showing that year. The lessons of co-operation and team play were being learned. At Omaha, in 1910, the association's official organ, "The Voice," was established to publish the truths of honesty and fair dealing in advertising through the length and breadth of the land. After that convention, advertising men deserted their business to go about the country preaching the new and rather strange doctrine that the best business policy was honesty, complete honesty. There were so many of these men that space cannot be provided for their names. To mention a few, where all deserve honor, would be unfair. Besides, they were not then, and are not now, looking for praise. They are not the sort that lean a willing ear to loud-voiced flatterers.

Some Pleasant Features.

The most agreeable feature possibly of the convention is that convention headquarters, the secretaries' office, the registration office, the halls for the general sessions and the departmental sessions will be to or near the place where you can learn for yourselves how to do business with all Canada. The Dominion today is the scene of the greatest business growth proportionately that the world has ever known. Canadian purchases from the United States for the past year amounted to $41,000,000.

Many Fine Exhibits at Toronto.

Important and interesting as was the Baltimore convention, the gathering in Toronto June 21-25 will be even more worth while. It will serve to show the world how fast the new idea is taking hold. It will record another long stride toward that business millennium and associated clubs are straining toward. These are the big, general reasons why you must go to Toronto, or, at least, take a direct personal interest in what shall be said or done in Toronto. There are other reasons, reasons besides the ethical, practical, reasons you will be able to wait your mind to a razor's keenness. You will meet 5,000 men who are mavers of the world's greatest product—ideas. They will show you how to use the tools you have. You had to get new ideas. In that gathering ideas will walk through the air straight as fireflies in the night. You will meet your competitors. You will get invaluable experience. You will get under your eye the exhibits of sixteen departments, exhibits that will instruct you in about all there is to know of selling and buying and of advertising except the God-given genius that can't be taught to any man. And outside of all of this you are certain to have a very delightful visit because the whole city of Toronto, from his worship, the mayor, to the bootblack in the streets, is eager to entertain you for the honor of the Dominion. Canadians, you may know, are also known for their hospitality and of anything, but when they decide to be nice, they are like the little girl who had the little curly—they are very nice.

Ladies Are Wanted to Attend.

Toronto wants the ladies. The delegates, their husbands or brothers may be too busy to entertain them, but that's no excuse for keeping them at home. Toronto will take care of the entertainment problem. The Toronto ladies committee has been formed for the purpose of providing a most delightful time for the ladies. There will be banquets for the wives of the delegates and for the wives of the delegates in Canada will give concerts. There will be moonlight excursions with supper on the lake. There will be vaudeville shows, boat races and motor boat races. There will be a carnival on the night of Wednesday, June 24, and on the night of the 100 years of peace between the United States and Canada. There will be ceremonial drills by the United States and Canada. There will be boxing matches, business court-martials, fencing matches and whole companies of the sailor's hornpipe and the Irish jig.

Are you wondering about the hotel accommodations?

Are you wondering about the hotel accommodations? The Toronto committee has attended to that for you. Every room in the city has been reserved for the delegates. There are more than 100 places to select from—has pledged itself to reserve what rooms will be needed. The Toronto committee has secured if necessary. Every room reserved has been personally inspected by at least one member of the committee, and it is guaranteed that these rooms will be clean, comfortable and well kept. Prices of rooms will range from $1.00 a night, about $2.50 or $3 a day.

You know in a general way of course, that Toronto is a beautiful and interesting city.

The fun will occupy two hours and a half.

The Final Sessions. The report and recommendations of the national committee of the national committee on publicity of national committees on exhibits will be made. There will be addresses from foreign delegates on behalf of their respective nations. The Executive committee will announce the name of the next convention city (which is no secret, because all of us know that we are going to San Francisco in 1915), officers will be elected, pledges of fealty to the new administration will be given and the convention of 1914, after the benediction, will have passed into history. The last official meeting will be the session at 5 p. m. of the newly elected national commission.

WOULD PREVENT FAKE ADVERTISING

Atlanta Ad Men's Club Would Father Bill to Prohibit the Use of Misleading Ads.

The Ad Men's club of Atlanta will have introduced before the next session of the Georgia legislature a bill to prohibit untrue and misleading advertisements. Representative John F. Smith of Fulton county will father the bill, and ad men propose to get right in behind the legislators and see to it that their proposed bill becomes a law.

Work to get this bill before the legislature was begun in 1911, and since that time the ad men have been busy upon it. The committee now active in this matter, which is known as the legislative committee, is composed of William F. Parkhurst publicity agent for the Georgia Chamber of Commerce, chairman, Ben Lee Crew vice president Phillips & Crew Piano company, B. I. Pugh, advertising manager Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose company, I. H. Cassett, advertising manager M. Rich & Bros., and Howard Geldert, secretary of the Ad Men's club and a prominent insurance agent.

Following is a copy of the resolutions adopted by the Ad Men's club and also a copy of the proposed bill.

"Believing in the principle of honesty in advertising and desiring to rid this city and state of the faker and grafter in advertising, be it

Resolved by the Ad Men's club of Atlanta in regular meeting assembled, That it is the sense of the general assembly of the state of Georgia at its next regular session be imported to pass the bill we present herewith for the good of the public at large and be it

Resolved further That the secretary of the Ad Men's club of Atlanta be instructed to transmit a copy of this proposed bill to a member of the general assembly of the state of Georgia from Fulton county with the request that said member introduce said bill at the next session of the general assembly of the state of Georgia.

"An Act Prohibiting Untrue and Misleading Advertisements and to Punish Violations Thereof.

Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Georgia.

Section 1 That any person firm corporation or association or employee thereof who in circular newspaper or any other publication published in this state or by any printed signs posters or printed matter of any kind knowingly makes or disseminates any statement or assertion of fact concerning the quality, the quantity, the value, the method of production or manufacture or the motive or purpose of the sale intended to give the appearance of an offer advantageous to the purchaser which is untrue or calculated to mislead shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

Sec 2 Any person firm corporation or association or any employee thereof who violates any provision of this act shall upon conviction, be punished as provided for in section 1064 of the penal code of the state of Georgia of 1910.

BIG MIX-UP RESULTS WHEN OFFICERS RAID ALLEGED DOPE DEN

New York June 6—A detective seriously wounded by a policeman who did not recognize him as a detective, a woman hit by a stray bullet from the same policeman's revolver, an investigator from the district attorney's office slashed with a knife and an alleged seller of cocaine shot through the nose—these casualties attended a raid made on a house in West Houston street to suppress traffic in cocaine.

Ernest F. Seyler, the detective, and Harry C. Gibson the county investigator, entered the house and arrested James Reggino for selling the drug. Reggino stabbed Gibson in the arm. Seyler shot Reggino through the nose then chased him through a window.

Dennis H. Mitchell, a patrolman, rushed in from the street, and under the impression that a murder was being committed, opened fire. Seyler fell with a bullet wound that may prove fatal. Mitchell took up the pursuit of Reggino on the street, but fell and dropped his revolver. The weapon was discharged and a bullet struck Mrs. Lillian Cudaby in the leg.

Mitchell caught Reggino and brought him to the police station before he learned the truth of the situation.

Dobbs Tells of Wonderful Work of Advertising Clubs

By Samuel C. Dobbs.

Mr. Dobbs, while en route to New York, and propped up in the Pullman car on pillows as the result of a bad fall in Atlanta several days ago has written for The Constitution Ad Men's edition the following interesting article, and announces that he will join the Atlanta delegation in Toronto.

"Education is the fundamental principle of progress. Men develop and civilization makes progress through education. Men travel to obtain broader viewpoints on things material and otherwise. No line of endeavor has developed more rapidly during the past decade under the influence of broad educational methods than that of advertising.

During the week of June 20 there will foregather in Toronto some ten thousand men who come in the spirit of good fellowship and who love both their play and their work. These men come from every section of the globe. Britain will be represented by a large and influential delegation. Every European country will be represented by strong able men in the profession of advertising. Why? Because at Toronto they expect to get and give. They will be given the military tattoo. A carnival in honor of the 100 years of peace between the United States and Canada. This program will depict every phase of camp life together with a ceremonial drill by the Forty eighth Highlanders. Then the massed bands with something like 800 pieces will play the national airs introducing a patriotic display of fireworks.

The week is filled to overflowing with a feast of good things intellectual and physical.

Go to Toronto! See Niagara—ride on those wonderful inland seas the great lakes. Broaden your perspective. You will come back a bigger man or woman with new ideas and ideals proud not only of the fact that you are a Georgian, an American, but an advertising man.

Remarkable Growth Shown By Advertising in South

By St. Elmo Massengale.
I was asked to write somewhat of a history of advertising in this section. I find the task both easy and difficult. I shall be compelled to write it in a personal vein which will be easy because I have known and do know personally, every advertiser in the south this of course through necessity in my chosen line of work.

ST. ELMO MASSENGALE
One of the founders of Atlanta Ad Men's club and chairman of the Toronto committee. He is member of the national educational committee.

I find it hard however to write a story of this kind that would be enjoyable to the general reader of a newspaper because of its somewhat statistical nature and professional viewpoint. However, I do hope that it will interest those who are interested in the advertising business of the south.

In 1891 I went to the Atlanta Constitution—my first introduction to the business world. Col. Evan P. Howell was publisher at that time. Mr. W. A. Hemphill was business manager and R. Hemphill ran the business office. (The latter is the father in law of our good friend E. H. Goodhart who is now president of the Atlanta Ad Men's Club.) Mr. T. J. Kelly was the advertising manager at that time. He was known to me as W. J. Campbell was manager of the department in which I received my first experience on the paper.

The training of my father and his brothers was in entirely different lines. He was a farmer and was opposed and discouraged by my family friends and every one whom I consulted about working along lines of advertising development. I decided to start in this line of work.

Advertising in itself was at that time very crude. The S. S. S. company of Atlanta was the only really large advertiser in the south. It was owned by Ass. G. Candler then owned the B. E. B. company and was doing some advertising and a small amount was being done in outdoor work for the Coca-Cola company practically none in other ways.

I went with the Wesleyan Christian Advocate as bookkeeper and advertising manager about the time of the World Fair in 1893. I was opposed and discouraged by my family friends and every one whom I consulted about working along lines of advertising development. I decided to start in this line of work.

At that time there was no sky-scrapers in the city and about 1893 I had a little office in the Gould building. But I was just twenty years old and thought I saw a future for advertising in this part of the country.

At that time there was no sky-scrapers in the city and about 1893 I had a little office in the Gould building. But I was just twenty years old and thought I saw a future for advertising in this part of the country.

The development of advertising in the south was very slow and discouraging and was a Herculean task. The rates among our newspapers at that time was almost as numerous as the sands of the sea. The best news advertising offices were conducted in the most careless manner. I found it necessary to become personally acquainted with every publisher with whom I had to do business. It took quite a long time and a great deal of traveling. The distance was so great to important points in the south and the railroad connections at that time were so poor that it was a real trial. The various conditions in these cities of the south were found discouraging from every point of view. The only thing to be done and that has since been done can hardly be imagined by one not acquainted with the advertising business. It taken a vast amount of energy, push and a concentration of purpose which could withstand great discouragement.

Tremendous Development
Advertising in the south has developed tremendously and most noticeably within the past fifteen years. The development has been more rapid in the past five years than any preceding time. There was no other advertising agency in the south except the one I established until a few years ago. In Atlanta now there are the McMichael Advertising Agency and Johnson Dairis Advertising Agency. There are also several agencies in Richmond, Va., Louisville, Ky., Jacksonville, Fla. and Chattanooga, Tenn. I also have branch offices in all of the principal cities of the south. This alone shows the world of development in volume as well as in quality of advertising work.

The Coca-Cola company of Atlanta is the largest advertiser of the south and one of the largest anywhere. Mr. Asa G. Candler the president is a national figure and so is Mr. S. C. Dobbs vice president and sales manager. Mr. Dobbs has been honored by being elected president of the Associated Advertising Clubs of America for two terms.

Atlanta has been advertised more by this advert set than probably through any other one method. You can go nowhere without being reminded of Atlanta by a Coca-Cola sign. This company has factories in Atlanta, the home of the company New York City, Baltimore Md., Dallas Texas, Los Angeles, Ca., Chicago Ill., Philadelphia Pa., Toronto Canada, Havana Cuba and many other branch offices including important places.

Their total advertising appropriation is a million ($1,000,000) dollars per annum and they are using every form of publicity known to the advertising world.

Ad Men Have Made Slogan "ATLANTA ALWAYS AHEAD" Known All Over Country

The Ad Men's club has secured a slogan for Atlanta that is now nationally known as it has been used by various civic bodies and private organizations when attending conventions in the following manner:

Just prior to the departure of the delegation from the Ad Men's Club of Atlanta to the Boston convention in August 1911 a contest was inaugurated to secure a slogan for the city of Atlanta. A prize of $10 in gold was offered to the one who would suggest the slogan that would best advertise Atlanta. More than 2,500 slogans were submitted. When the committee met to make the selection they decided that the most appropriate slogan suggested was Atlanta Always Ahead. There were 87 of the contestants to suggest this particular slogan. The first how ever was Hon. Edgar Watkins a prominent attorney and he received the $10 in gold.

It was interesting to note that these slogans were sent in from all parts of the United States. In fact the slogan Atlanta is known throughout the country and the bright snappy slogans sent in by people in all sections show that Atlanta is regarded as a live and progressive city.

There was more in the contest than the winning of the $10 and it gave Atlanta some splendid advertising. The slogan Atlanta Always Ahead has been adopted by the city and is used on many occasions in advertising Atlanta. The Ad Men's club will have these three words emblazoned upon all of their banners and literature and the advertising men from all parts of the country will again be reminded that Atlanta is always ahead when the convention opens in Toronto on June 21.

National Advertising Man Tells Why Atlanta Should Have Big Crowd at Toronto

By Lewellyn E. Pratt
Lewellyn E. Pratt of New York is well known to many of the Atlanta advertising men and is a power in the Ad Men's league of New York city. He is a typical example of how the work of the Associated Ad Clubs develops a man and brings out his latent powers. He has been requested to say a few words to the Atlanta Ad Men and contributes the following:

When I received a request to say a few words why every advertising man in Atlanta should attend the tenth annual convention of the Associated Clubs at Toronto June 21 to 23 I felt somewhat as he would feel who standing on Pennsylvania avenue at the Washington monument should be asked suddenly to tell in a few words why the father of his country was first in war first in peace and first in the hearts of his countrymen.

EVERYBODY INVITED TO MAKE TORONTO TRIP

By L. D. HICKS,
Chairman Transportation Committee.

The officers of the Ad Men's Club of Atlanta and the various committees who have had the planning of the trip to Toronto in hand invite all good citizens who are city builders, town criers or boosters to join their persons in a tour from Atlanta to Toronto. The trip will be made by sea, thence by ocean steamer to New York a little visit to Niagara Falls and on to Toronto where the tenth annual convention of the Advertising Men of the World will be called to order on June 21.

Past experience has shown that much pleasure and profit resulted through the time honored custom of carrying the Atlanta crowd to this national gathering in a body but it has never been practical to attempt to have the party return to Atlanta as an organized unit. The Toronto party will not doubt scatter to the four winds.

The Norfolk Ad club promulgates that a delightful breakfast will be awaiting you then at 10 o'clock you may leave for a pleasant day at Virginia beach where the charms of the ocean side will be at your disposal surf bathing and a splendid sea food dinner will keep you busy until late in the afternoon when you will return to Norfolk—a hours ride by trolley and will go aboard a good boat—one of the finest of the Old Dominion steamship company's fleet.

Short Stop at New York.
We arrive in New York city at 11 p.m. June 20 and will have five hours in which to visit friends stroll up Broadway and give the avenue the once over.

At 8 p.m. we leave over the New York Central for Buffalo where we are due at 11:15 the next morning and will be met by our old friend and former member Boost Dutton in many years manager of the Piedmont hotel in Buffalo. He is well equipped to take care of the Atlanta Ad Men and their friends.

Those who desire to go through to Niagara Falls without stopping will take there at 8:30 a.m. and if they wish they may stop at one of the Atlanta Ad Men's hotels in Buffalo. The Niagara Navigation Company's modern steamers which would land you in Toronto at 11:30 a.m. will be ready for the opening of the general session but in plenty of time for the afternoon and evening program.

If you have had your fill of the beauties of Niagara Falls and desire to go straight through to Toronto it will be possible for you to make a quick trip by rail or by auto. Fattening Pigs for Market.

Early gains the cheapest to make. The farmer who has a large number of pigs is fortunate indeed. Nearly all farmers have an abundance of corn in the crib and the prospect is that the pigs will have been well fed through out the winter. This brings them up to this period weighing about 100 to 140 pounds each. With a strong market demand the temptation is to force strong to force these pigs upon an early market and this can not be accomplished at a very satisfactory price.

Just at this season of the year however a pig may be very profitably made by turning the pig on pasture and feeding a half ration of corn. While the pig is on pasture he will grow longer than forcing them on grain alone. The gain on grass and corn will be about 100 to 120 pounds more than if the pig were fed on grain alone. It is a good idea to keep a few pigs on pasture during the summer months.

(From The Electrical World)
A plant laid out on a very extensive basis for the leaching and electrolytic precipitation of copper is in progress at Chiquiquita, Chiapas. The ore body to be worked in this vicinity is in excess of 50,000,000 tons. The first unit of the plant now in course of erection has been designed to treat 10,000 tons of ore per day. The refinery will have an output of about 25,000 pounds of copper per day. Large plans for separating the copper from the ore will be taken up in the near future. MOLLYCODDLING MINISTERS.

The keynote to which the churches today are pitching their effort is the appeal to the average workaday, red-blooded man and woman.

Here and there complaint arises that they are not holding the men as they once did—that its grasp is less forceful than in the days of the "old-time religion."

Is it possible that one reason may be found in the tendency to hedge both ministry and membership with too many restrictions that really exceed the jurisdiction of the church?

With this possibility in view, The Constitution recently questioned, editorially, the wisdom of some of the churches in forbidding the use of tobacco to men newly entering the ministry.

The editorial has provoked a flood of communications, most of them of a commendatory nature. In substance, these comments and The Constitution's editorial philosophy resolve themselves into the query: Is it not better to train red-blooded men to deal with red-blooded men and problems rather than to pursue a course that will lead to a mollycoddled ministry?

The Constitution's interest in this good-natured controversy is on behalf of the church and its welfare. We know the church today is, or ought to be, the great bulwark of society against the encroaching ills of an age of materialism and irreverence and skepticism.

As justifying our apprehension of the spread into the field of personal rights, the news comes by Associated Press that the German Baptists, in session at Frankfort, Ind., have forbidden their membership to use automobiles or motorcycles.

One of our correspondents during the week, E. L. Draper, protests that tobacco should be barred on account of its disagreeable odor to some people.

Answering Mr. Draper, the scent of the tube rose, of the heliotrope, of other flowers, is nauseating to some people. Shall we abolish them for this reason? His declaration that tobacco is as ruinous as alcohol, and belongs in the same category, does not stand the test of reason.

Mr. Draper also asserts that since ministers are so meagerly paid they cannot afford the luxury of tobacco. No doubt they are about the poorest paid and the hardest worked class of men in America.

Chief Beavers is to be commended for projecting a stern crusade against violation of the speed and traffic laws. With the opening of the outdoor season circumstances tend to encourage such violations, and the more quickly all parties understand the laws are to be enforced without discrimination, the more quickly will life and limb be hedged with safety in and around Atlanta.

In this connection, it is well to bear in mind that the obligation to insure safety on the public highways is reciprocal and mutual as between auto-driver, the equestrian, the driver of any form of vehicle, and, emphatically, the pedestrian.

These are distinctly side issues. They lead up to the primary question: Are we drifting to a mollycoddled ministry?

Can such a ministry best serve the purpose of the church? Isn't there essential inconsistency in permitting the old war-horses of the church to continue to smoke, and denying the privilege to the new ones?

Isn't it a mollycoddling influence, a fatal blow to self-respect, when the minister must mingle with other men with them conscious that his church considers him too weak to indulge in a habit most men regard as harmless?

Who serves the world best: The man whose conduct is prescribed for him by hard and fast, inflexible, canned kindergarten procedure, setting him apart from his fellows as a sort of artificial, neutral weakling? Or the man of red blood, sharing the innocent recreations of his fellows, enjoying a rattling ball game, relaxing before the fire-side with a fragrant cigar, sharer of the joys of his flock as well as their woes?

Will the mollycoddle minister rather not repel than appeal to the average red-blooded man? Every man who reads this editorial has in his mind's eye a personal image of some red-blooded minister whose hand-clasp is a tonic, whose infectious humor is a benediction, whose lack of cant is an inspiration, whose human fellowship is a winning card wherever he goes, for the Lord.

And every man has a mental picture of the cribbed, confined, sheltered mollycoddle, whose presence restrains, whose spirituality is respected—but whose counsel on practical matters is flouted.

That states the case bluntly, but accurately. There are limitations. The preacher should, of course, be a little better than his fellows. But he shouldn't be lifted hopelessly above his fellows. That squashes his usefulness. It mollycoddles him, and the average man can be led a mile by a red-blooded minister when he would run a mile to dodge a mollycoddle.

The man whose blood teems with red corpuscles, his soul with a robust, self-respecting, militant Christianity, is the man who must solve the problems of the church.

Such was the Christianity of the cheerful Christ and His disciples.

Can we improve upon the brand?

THE HUMOROUS SIDE.

Our hat is off to the Tom-Toms—Felder and Hardwick.

Why? They've injected an element of keen humor into a political campaign that threatened to be dry as Sahara and flat as a poker-chip.

Bursting with high purposes and a message, Tom, the former, invaded peaceful Spalding. A minister of the gospel, a good and kindly man, was scheduled to introduce him. But this minister was no mollycoddle. He dug back like a ferret into Tom's political past. Horrors! He discovered that not only had Tom voted against state-wide prohibition, but actually had filibustered to defeat it.

"Get someone else to introduce him," said the preacher. "No traffic will I have with a man that showed this passionate fondness for the Demon Rum." Consternation! An "S. O. S." call and the candidate—not now the member—recanted, and expressed a frenzied eagerness to usurp the driver's seat on the water-wagon, speaking politically, of course. "It's this way, you see," said, in effect, perspiring Tom, "when I was in the legislature, my constituents in Bibb were dead agin prohibition. They yearned for local option. So I, too, must yearn for local option. It took courage. Now, you see, oh, most kind sir, I'm a free agent and at the same time a candidate. I'm for national, state, county, municipal and ward prohibition. Now, won't you introduce me?" Thus it was.

Fearful lest the hot polloi doubted the sincerity of his conversion, that very day in a speech Candidate Tom denounced Governor Slaton for being a paid-up member of a locker club and proud of it—overlooking to inform his hearers of his own acceptance of the hospitality of clubs in Atlanta and elsewhere while denouncing the payment of dues by those who are thus enabled to extend the cordial hand even to those who do not assist in paying the membership freight.

And the other Tommy, from the tenth, has been just "homing" for a joint debate with somebody—anybody. Along comes John R. Cooper, and "coppers" one of Tom's challenges. Does he accept? Not on your life! John R. is one of those rough and uncouth debaters. No Marquis of Queensbury rules for him. He bites, gorges, rakes political skeletons in closets and, chorling with glee, pins his opponent to the mat. But this Tom has no appetite for decorating the mat. So, firing a broadside of blank cartridges, he hunts cover and pulls it up over him.

Brethren, the heretofore torrid air is surcharged with humorous situations. The drouth is broken. Let it rain!

SPEED AND RECIPROCITY.

Chief Beavers is to be commended for projecting a stern crusade against violation of the speed and traffic laws. With the opening of the outdoor season circumstances tend to encourage such violations, and the more quickly all parties understand the laws are to be enforced without discrimination, the more quickly will life and limb be hedged with safety in and around Atlanta.

In this connection, it is well to bear in mind that the obligation to insure safety on the public highways is reciprocal and mutual as between auto-driver, the equestrian, the driver of any form of vehicle, and, emphatically, the pedestrian.

caution observable will not insure safety if the person crossing streets or alighting from trolleys does not perform his share in the compact.

The standard injunction, "Stop! Look! Listen!" applied to every individual and vehicle that uses streets and roads, cannot be improved upon. It applies especially to young children, naturally heedless and prone to dash across a congested thoroughfare or spring from a trolley without ordinary precaution.

It may be that the enlightened intelligence of the near future will enforce almost equal penalties on the reckless pedestrian and the reckless driver. The burden of care is on the driver. But the burden and urgency of self-preservation is on the pedestrian.

IS AKERMAN ALL-POWERFUL?

"It looks to me as if our senators and congressmen are either indifferent or powerless; that Akerman's influence outweighs that of all of them."

That is the keynote to a remarkable interview, published today from a prominent south Georgia attorney, with reference to the mysterious case of Alexander Akerman, federal district attorney for the southern district of Georgia. Akerman is a rabid republican. Two years after a democratic administration is elected he retains office. This, in spite of the fact that the government has lost the naval stores prosecution, the specific excuse for Akerman's retention, and that there are plenty of good south Georgia democrats better equipped to fill his official shoes.

What explains Akerman's mysterious, almost hypnotic, power?

Has he mesmerized the department of justice? Are members of Georgia's congressional delegation indifferent, or are they powerless as against the influence of this one lone and defiant republican?

The situation does not reflect credit upon any sound-thinking democrat connected with it. It is an affront to the able democratic lawyers of south Georgia. It is one of the most baffling mysteries of the year.

And democrats of Georgia are beginning to ask the reason why! And they are asking the question direct to our delegation in congress!

FEEDERS OF ATLANTA.

Beginning next Wednesday, the Retail Grocers' and Butchers' association will inaugurate its second season, of mid-week half holidays, stretching through to September 15. Ninety-eight per cent of the retail establishments, covering some industries other than groceries and butcher shops, will join the closing movement. A picnic at Piedmont Park, and water sports and athletic contests next Wednesday, will mark the opening of the season.

The summer weekly half holiday for the more than 4,000 employees of these establishments is a belated recognition of the justice of the contention that these hard-worked men, women and boys are as much entitled to summer relaxation as the workers in any other channel of business. Most of the establishments observe the Saturday half-holiday. If the grocers and butchers did this, the food and pantry arrangements of all Atlanta would be thrown out of gear, since on Saturday purchasing is done for two days, and credits for the impending week are renewed.

To make a complete success of the Wednesday closing, the co-operation of the housekeepers of Atlanta is indispensable. They can easily buy supplies Wednesday morning lasting through the Thursday morning breakfast, or even up to Thursday's breakfast. The natural consideration of the women of Atlanta guarantees that they will perform their part in this excellent movement.

AN INTOLERABLE OUTRAGE.

For nearly six months the merchants on Whitehall street, between Mitchell and Garnett streets, and particularly the congested block between Mitchell and Trinity, have from no cause excusable in reason been threatened with suspension of patronage by failure of the city to complete the paving on the Whitehall improvement project. They have appealed to the city in vain. There is apparent no effort whatever to finish the work. In sheer desperation they have come to The Constitution for relief, as they usually do when in trouble. And from this time on The Constitution is going to keep such a fire under the officials responsible that the work will be completed or the people will know the reason why.

In the early part of last fall the street was torn up between Mitchell and Garnett, with the idea of removing the "hump" and establishing a better grade for the street. The merchants at once co-operated with a greater willingness than might have been expected, considering that their business would be badly, if temporarily, penalized by the improvement. They were solemnly assured that, once started the work would be pushed to a swift conclusion. The county got promptly on the job and completed its share by regrading the street in record time. Since then there has been a mysterious and inexcusable delay in paving the street.

Here is a part of the crowded retail district within four blocks of the center of the city, with the street almost impassable to traffic, it, indeed, its condition is not such as at any time to threaten the city with prosecution for criminal inattention. There can be no pretext or apology whatever for this condition. It exhibits a wanton neglect of duty entirely too frequent in this city, a cavalier disregard for pledges made to secure co-operation in improvements and then forgotten.

If there is anything in the power of persistent and pitiless publicity, the penalized merchants of Whitehall can rest assured The Constitution will get results in this matter. The treatment they have received is stupid, unjust, intolerable. It is going to be brought to an end, or the reasons will be plainly placarded in black type, with names and dates, in the pages of this newspaper.

MAKING GOOD.

The announcement that the result of the first week's work in behalf of the Technological school fund is more than $20,000 makes it clear that it will not take Atlanta long to raise the $100,000 asked as its part of the half million fund which it is hoped later on to secure.

Liberal manufacturing establishments of the north have already donated machinery equipment to the value of more than $100,000, which is ready for shipment at any time notice is given that proper housing facilities have been provided.

This is the inspiration of the present campaign being conducted under the brilliant leadership of J. R. A. Hobson, assisted by a committee of representative citizens.

The committee has started out with the view of securing subscriptions aggregating at least $100,000 here in Atlanta to duplicate the $100,000 machinery donation from northern friends of the institution.

It goes without saying that Atlanta will meet her part of the obligation. Atlanta never goes anything else, and the explanation of the fact that the city is in the eye of the whole country as it is today, is that it does things on a big and a broad enough scale to meet the expectation of a city four times its size. To this spirit more than to anything else are the wonderful achievements of Atlanta to be attributed.

No educational institution in the south is doing better work for the development of the section than the Technological school. No institution is more worthy of public support.

The $100,000 asked of Atlanta is simply a starter in the broadening of the school's opportunities. With this subscribed, added to the $100,000 machinery equipment donation, it is believed that the remaining $300,000, to make good the half million, can be secured in donations from all parts of Georgia, the south and the union.

But Atlanta must make good first! And that the city of Atlanta is making good is told in the story of the first week's report of the Technological committee.

"THE FAKERS."

We advise the conscientious citizen to read "The Fakers," by Samuel O. Blythe, now running serially in "The Saturday Evening Post," of Philadelphia. The story is a liberal education in the quackery, hypocrisy and charlatanism which plague American politics, make government inefficient and expensive and often conspire to thwart or delay the popular will.

Sam Blythe knows politics with the casing off the machine. He has a pungent way of stating truths.

Faking and demagoguery are exclusively indigenous to no age. Probably they became active factors with the dawn of human intelligence. But it is certain that faking and charlatanism have been more rampant during the past fifteen years, as regards America, than at any previous time in the history of the country. Some of the reasons are obvious. The rewards have been tempting, and seemed easy. The development of publicity offered a splendid vehicle. The wealth of the country, the country's hugeness, the preoccupation of the average citizen with his own affairs to the exclusion of the public business, the American's love of being humbugged, have opened pastures green to the political quack and "four-flusher."

Blythe tells just how the voter has been and is being "bunked." He describes so many different sorts of formulae that the reader must be dull not to recognize some one of the gentlemen who appeal for his support or promise him the rainbow in return for it.

We need to minimize the influence of the charlatan if ever we are to attain high efficiency in the government of this country. Education of the public mind is the one route to that end. Blythe's story offers an excellent text-book.

Mediation will curb Huerta, but the rebels believe in giving him more rope.

Front page warfare looks too good to the rebels to be given up without a struggle.

Even if Huerta gives in he might keep the limelight by joining a temperance society.

And still there's hope that the Niagara mediators will not have to go to war to get peace.

A Camp-Meeting Love Story.

BY FRANK L. STANTON.

Mollie met me at camp-meetin'; I'd been longin' for the day As the darkness lings for mornin', as the Winter dreams of May; All the glad birds sang about it—every murmur of the streams; Through a sun-bright lane of blossoms I kept goin' in my dreams.

Mockinbird there, in the branches, through its music seemed to say: "Some one's heart is mighty happy, 'cause his sweetheart chose his way! Hasten through the bloom and sunlight where the loved skies bend in blue; In a field of snow-white daisies—there your sweetheart waits for you!"

"Nigh to meetin' time," they told me, but I do not rightly know, For I saw her comin'—comin'—an' my heart was throbbin' so That the pines went spinnin' round me! Could a feller hold his ground When the earth seemed half like heaven and the angels were around?

Talk o' "halleluia seasons"—when she came an' laid her hand In my own, 'twas like sweet welcome to the heavenly Promised Land! We were two in all the world then: What if crowds could hear an' see, With my arm around her, sayin': "Won't you read my dream for me?"

And she read it—with her rose-lips and the sunlight of her eyes; It was mornin', after nightfall, it was song-time after sighs! Whisperin': "I love—I love you," made the bells of Heaven chime; Folks that heard me shoutin' "Glory!" said: "It's halleluia time!"

And it was! . . . They gathered 'round us, sayin'—every worderin' one: "This here brother's got religion 'fore the sermon has begun!" And I had—and so I told 'em—something like the joy above: The religion of a lifetime that was mighty sweet with Love!

Since that day my heart's been beatin' just so happy and so high That I wouldn't take my hat off to the best star in the sky! And my pathway's where the flowers that are fadeless love to throng, And the halleluia season will be with me all life long!

Are Members, Administration and All Under Dreaded Spell of Akerman?

The Constitution is privileged to publish a pungent interview on the mysterious Akerman case with a prominent south Georgia lawyer in Atlanta yesterday. This lawyer, who cannot afford to disclose his identity to incur Akerman's enmity as long as the latter remains in office, The Constitution is wondering what cryptic influence keeps Akerman on his job, after he has twice lost the naval stores case, his equipment with black-and-tan affidavits, and a court decision for which was the pretext for his retention. Akerman is a hide-bound republican, with black-and-tan affiliations.

Two years after the election of a democratic administration he remains in office as United States attorney for the southern district of Georgia, despite his offensive partisanship, his failure to "make good" professionally and the presence in south Georgia of hundreds of democratic lawyers far abler than he is.

"I wonder what excuse the attorney general will have for his continuance in office. The supreme court decision was announced in the naval stores case on June 19th, a year ago, and he has been retained on the ground that he was needed to finish the case. This special employment seems to have been thought of as a question of Mr. M. Pomeroy of Jacksonville, was specially employed by the government to assist him, and took the leading part in the recent trial. Tomorrow could he be employed specially, but Akerman could not. There was no way, according to the suggestions of the attorney general, to get Akerman out of the case. I cannot appreciate the attorney general's reason or motive. It looks to me as if our senators and congressmen are either indifferent, or are powerless; that Akerman's influence outweighs that of all of them."

Says Church Tobacco Ban Is a Meaningless One

Editor Constitution: Since reading your sermon of last Sunday, in which a correspondent commented yesterday I have been wondering if someone better qualified to explain the position of the Presbyterian church in such matters as those referred to in your editorial.

The constitution of the church is such that the opinion of its general assembly in such matters as the use of tobacco by its ministers and members is entitled to just as much weight as the opinion of the same number of excellent gentlemen in office or out of office, in the church or outside of it. I imagine that the officers referred to in the action taken will calmly disregard it, expressing their irritation or chagrin according to their personal temperament.

In the same way the general assembly had no possible right to commit the church to any position on the question of an amendment to the constitution of the United States or any conceivable subject, moral or political. The matter has been threshed out year after year, and previous assemblies have, I think, uniformly held that these were matters with which the church, as such, has nothing to do.

The "Working Eleventh's" Song.

(From The Kansas City Star.) The Eleventh Infantry, now stationed at Fort Sill, Okla., has written the "Working Eleventh's" throughout the army. It won its title in many bitter campaigns of road making, trench digging and bridge building. To commemorate those very useful, but hardly glorious, achievements a regimental song has been written. It is sung to the tune of "Spring Would Be Such Dreary Weather." The chorus is: My gun is rusty, And I guess that he is right; But he should see my pick and shovel, They are always shining bright.

ANDERSON OPENS RACE AT MARIETTA

Good Size Crowd of Cobb County Farmers Give the Chatham County Candidate a Rousing Reception.

Marietta, Ga., June 6.—(Special).—A crowd of 200 farmers for the most part, heard Hon. J. Randolph Anderson, of Chatham, deliver the opening speech of his campaign for governor here today.

Mr. Anderson was well received and frequent applause greeted his remarks. The crowd would have been larger, but Saturday is always a busy day in Marietta, and many who otherwise would have been here could not attend.

Mr. Anderson was introduced by Colonel J. Z. Foster. Mr. Anderson said in part:

I come before you today as a native-born Georgian who believes in the political principles of the democratic faith, who as a member of our great nation has been proud to have met with a tax rate of one-third of 1 mill, as is shown in the comptroller's report.

Our material growth, especially during the last decade, has been so rapid and so great that we have in many respects outgrown the provisions made by our laws, and in consequence the general government has been hampered and held back. We need now to apply ourselves for a time to putting our house and affairs in order, to prepare for and meet the larger growth of the state, which is pressing upon us.

Let me give you a single illustration. One of the most important of our state's interests is our railroad system. It is today supervising and handling many other departments of our state's affairs. In dignity and importance to the state, its work can only be compared with that of our supreme court. It has great functions to perform, and upon the wisdom of its decisions the entire state depends.

The funds needed for this and to enable the commission to properly conduct its investigations and make the inspections necessary to the proper discharge of its work should be provided for by the state, and not by the railroad companies themselves.

In asking to be entrusted with what I consider the highest honor in the gift of our people, I am proud to feel that no man challenges my character or honesty of purpose, and that no man who knows me denies that I have the courage to try to do my duty faithfully. Without in any way reflecting upon either the gentlemen who are opposed to me for this high position, I can say that I have spent the past several years in anything like as close and continuous touch with the state government as any man in Georgia.

State's Finances. One of the most important matters which must engage the attention of the next governor is the state's finances. I was the first to call attention to the fact that the state's finances required attention, and as early as 1910 I pointed out in the public press that I estimated would approximate a million dollars by last year. Today it is another million.

the state of Georgia, and no attorneyship for the Seaboard is vested in me personally. My law firm does, and our present status is that of a law firm after the law business of the Seaboard in a defined and limited territory in the state of Georgia.

His great argument is that I ought not to be elected because the Seaboard may be a possible bidder for the lease of the state road. It has already been pointed out that the present lease does not give the state a right of first refusal, that while preliminary investigations may be made by the next legislature, it will be actually made until the expiration of the present lease.

I do not recall Mr. Harris too severely, but in the first place I would say to him that I do not think there is a remotest probability that the Seaboard will be a bidder for the lease, for the simple reason that with the Seaboard as lessee the state would have to pay the cost of its through business from the north and west to the south.

The Western and Atlantic is a great and valuable property, and there is no doubt that it is a great asset to the state. It is a property which should be managed in the best interests of the state.

No Tax. In the next lease of the road I think we should also consider and protect the interest of the counties and towns along the line. At present they receive no taxes from the road, yet they have to bear all the expenses for their courts and jails and business.

SLATON REPLIES TO JOE HILL HALL

Shows How Felder-Hardwick Filibuster of 1900 Cost State Millions of Dollars by Fatal Blunder.

Governor John M. Slaton has vigorously replied to Hon. Joe Hill Hall of Macon, who took issue with him regarding the facts of the famous filibuster of 1900, in which Thomas S. Felder and Congressman Tom Hardwick took leading parts.

Governor Slaton's Reply. Governor Slaton's reply follows: "For purely personal reasons I have studiously avoided mentioning Mr. Hill's name in connection with the depot bill. He was on one side and I on the other. My issue is with Messrs. Hardwick and Felder and I have the right to submit to the people this supreme point of difference in our political careers.

STATE LIBRARY NEEDS A REFERENCE SYSTEM

Effort Will Be Made to Secure Appropriation to Establish Reference Department.

A very strong effort will be made at the coming session of the general assembly to secure a law which will provide for the establishment of a library reference department in connection with the state library.

ORATORY MEDAL WON BY CLARK FOREMAN

An interesting event of the past week was the declamation contest at the Tenth street school between the best declaimers of the seventh and eighth grades. Six of the best speakers from each grade were chosen to contest for the medal to be awarded to the one of the twelve who made the best speech. Quite a number of visitors attended the interesting exercises, and keen interest was manifested as the bright young boys contended.

The judges were three members of the Atlanta bar and at the conclusion of the contest the announcement was made that the medal had by unanimous vote been awarded to Master Clark Foreman, of the seventh grade, while special mention was given to the efforts of Master Clifford C. Hatcher, Jr.

By Sam Pasko.
The week that has just passed was a week full of happiness and joy. Many graduates had a little program of their own and the schoolrooms were packed, and many parents came to see their own boys and girls perform the hour and a half program. The second grade, under the careful management of their loving teacher, Miss Hart, gave an excellent program. Two days the little tots gave their program, so that everybody might get a chance to see it.

The eighth grade program was the best of the year. The pupils of the eighth grade were welcomed, and the room was crowded to the hour and a half program. A great burst of applause greeted the opening number, and then came the contestants for the medals, who were:

Seventh Grade—Hugh Goldsmith, Ralph Luccman, John Anthony, Louise Grogan, Mrs. Spelshberger and Thillie Pollock.

Eighth Grade—Jack Agos, Frank Avers, Mose Bank, Kate Flynn, Mary Weiner and Dora Zimmerman.

SPLENDID PROGRAM RENDERED BY PUPILS OF BATTLE HILL

By Mary Ellen Hornsby.
The following poem was composed by Catherine Rooney and Mary Ellen Hornsby of the eighth grade, the two correspondents:

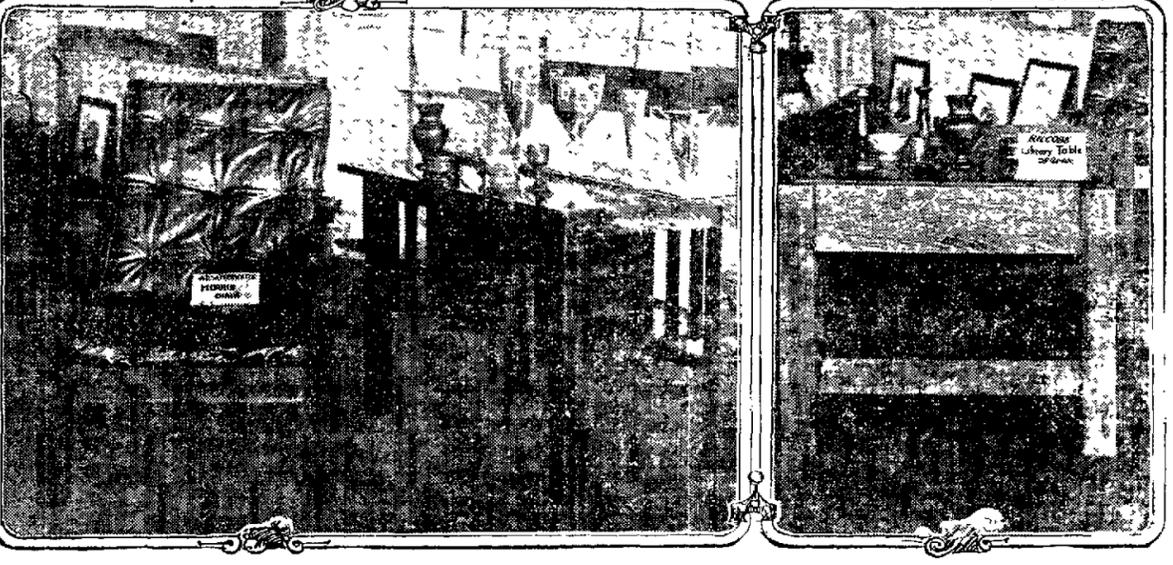

Things are happening every day,
But best of all—vacation.
Of course we're sad to go away,
But we need a vacation.

And in Council we have two fine men,
Whom we hope for us our cause to win,
Mr. Mcintosh and Mr. McScheran—
Whom we hope will help us all to reach em.

TRIP TO HOUSTON

"T. P. A. SPECIAL" PASSES THROUGH

Large Delegation Bound for Houston, Tex., Spend Few Hours Here—Given Ride Over City.

When the 150 travelers on the "T. P. A. Special," on the Southern road from Washington, steamed into the Terminal station at 1:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon they found the plaza lined with waiting autos to take them on a flying trip around the city and to aid otherwise in making their brief stop here a delightful one.

This special is carrying the delegates and visitors to the national convention of the Travelers' Protective Association of America, which convenes in Houston, Texas, Monday, June 8. These delegates come from the various posts along the eastern shore and throughout the eastern states, and between 150 and 175 are making the trip.

The special train, one of the best ever put out by the Southern, left Washington Friday afternoon. It contained every equipment for comfort, carrying a fine club or combination car, up-to-date sleeping cars, an observation car with big "T. P. A." sign on rear platform, a diner and baggage car.

More than fifty members of the local T. P. A. met the visitors at the station, and with an ample supply of automobiles loaned by generous Atlantans for the occasion, took them for a drive over the city. Every point of interest was visited, the route almost making a circuit of the city.

The special left at 5:30 o'clock. Atlanta and New Orleans are the only two cities in which stops were scheduled for a time sufficient for sight-seeing. The Atlanta delegates, in a special coach attached to the special, left with the visitors for Houston.

NEW MANAGER FOR LIQUID CARBONIC CO.

AMOS E. McLEAN.

The many friends of Amos E. McLean throughout Atlanta and the south generally are greeting his return to Atlanta with genuine pleasure.

Mr. McLean has returned to this city as the newly appointed manager of the Atlanta branch of the Liquid Carbonic company, succeeding H. H. Ware, who has resigned his position to return to California, where he will embark in business for himself at San Francisco.

Mr. McLean is no stranger to the southern trade, having been for a long time on the road in this territory for the liquid company. In April, 1912, he was made manager of the Cincinnati branch, and only recently has been transferred from the Ohio city to handle the business for his company at this end of the line. He has a host of friends throughout this territory, and while regretting the departure of Mr. Ware, they are giving to Mr. McLean a hearty welcome back to Atlanta.

POST B DELEGATES LEAVE FOR HOUSTON

Broyles, McDonald, Adams, Prater and Anderson Are Atlanta Representatives.

Delegates from Post B, Atlanta branch, T. P. A., left the city Saturday afternoon in a special coach attached to the "T. P. A. Special."

These delegates were R. A. Broyles, E. D. McDonald, E. L. Adams, H. S. Prater and M. M. Anderson. The delegates also joined the Atlanta delegation here, and several other posts along the line from here to New Orleans will be on the special train at Montgomery.

More than fifty delegates in all will go from Georgia to the national meeting at Houston, which convenes next Monday, and will be in session for one week. The delegates from Post B, Atlanta branch, are one of the prominent figures at the national meeting, he having been on the executive committee for a number of years. Many matters of general interest to the traveling men will be discussed at the Houston meeting, and while delegates always have a most enjoyable time, the delegates from Post B, Atlanta branch, who occupies their time and attention.

One of the pleasant features of the meeting is the trip planned to the Panama canal, and it is understood quite a number of the delegates will avail themselves of the opportunity to make this visit.

These Two Young Men Making Great Success As Wholesale Brokers

No better example of the success which young men are achieving in the business world of today is afforded than in the success which is coming to the new firm of Messrs. Thornton and Cordie, wholesale grocery brokers, with offices in the Atlanta National Bank building.

This firm is composed of two well-known young men, who formerly had their own business in this city, but who, after a year or so, have already reached over a large southern territory.

The firm is specializing in canned food products of all kinds, also California evaporated peaches, raisins, foreign and domestic dried beans, cheese, lard, evaporated milk, lemons, and a general line of grocery products.

L. E. Moran, Jr., was for a number of years with the American Baking Corporation, of Atlanta, while Mr. Thornton was until recently with the T. S. Southgate & Co., of Norfolk, Va., one of the largest grocery brokerage houses in this section of the country.

The policy of the firm is to sell only to the wholesale grocery trade, but, with this line of business, a considerable effort is spent with the retail trade, however, such orders are accepted only on a cash basis.

Several of their most valuable accounts are throughout the southern states, while many of them are for territory embracing a hundred or more miles from Atlanta.

HOPED FOR RAINS BRING TRADE BOOM

When It Came Business Picked Up and the Traveling Men Anticipate Big Trade.

The rains which have fallen in Georgia during the past week have had a splendid effect upon business. The merchants throughout the state were beginning to feel a little anxious about the crops and conditions owing to the continued dryness. But there has been rain in the greater part of the state in the last few days and the result is that the wholesalers and manufacturers are more optimistic and encouraged over the outlook. The farmers are in good shape, and the traveling men who stay right, and the coming week is expected to be a big business week owing to the better crop conditions.

Callaway, secretary of the Unity Spinning mills, and together they will combine business with pleasure, as he will also be accompanied by S. J. Austin, expert making man, and together they will look into the latest and most modern cotton mill machinery.

Mr. Callaway will sail from London July 30, arriving back home after a few days' stay in the east.

RAILROAD TEST FARMS ARE DOING WONDERS

"The test on farm lands now being made throughout such Georgia is working wonders to that section," said W. C. Carter, who has just returned from a recent trip to the test farms at Cordie and other points in southwest Georgia.

Carter is the credit man for the Southern Coffee and Spice Mills and reports business as on the fast incline since the test farms have been in operation. He says the test farms are doing good rains, they are feeling fine, collections are good, and sales more than last year.

"I have been going through that section for twelve years," he said, "but I have never seen for this time of year Corn in such a good condition. It is doing well, and the vegetable crop is doing much better. The Central of Georgia has thirty-nine test farms, and they are working wonders in reclaiming old lands, and in the general adoption of a standard refrigerator car and a standard size barrel."

The following firms comprise the charter members of the Atlanta branch of the National Association of Commission Merchants: A. Pugazzi company, Bell Bros., McCullough Bros., Fidelity Fruit and Produce company, and Williams-Thompson company.

The following are the officers of the Atlanta branch: A. Dewar, of the Fruit and Produce company, president; Logan, of J. B. Logan & Co., secretary; and treasurer, John McCullough, A. Pugazzi and Leake Fain compose the executive committee.

The National Association of Commission Merchants is one of the most exclusive and powerful organizations of its kind in the United States. It was formed more than twenty years ago to concentrate action upon the general welfare of the commission trade, in upholding their efforts with, owners and producers against the enactment of laws which are in favor of destructive and unfavorable legislation, by collecting and disseminating information, in protesting against discriminatory exactions and damages to transportation and financial responsibility and financial protection of all as far as possible from fraud, misrepresentation and injustice.

SALES FORCE ENJOYS DINNER AT ANSLEY

J. T. Polk Co., Vegetable Packers, Compliment Southern Distributors.

Complimentary to their distributors in this section, the J. T. Polk company, large vegetable packers of Greenwood, Ind., gave a dinner Saturday night at the Ansley hotel.

The invited guests were the office and sales forces of the E. L. Adams company, of this city, the Macon Grocery company, Talmadge Bros. of Athens, and the Simpson Grocery company, of Rome, and a great number were present.

Ralph Polk, vice president and general manager of the company, together with A. Wakefield, special representative, arrived in the city Saturday, and had the dinner in charge.

The dinner lasted from 8 until 11, and was highly enjoyable to their southern friends. The object of the meeting was to get better acquainted with their distributors, and to bring about a closer and more harmonious relationship between the packers and the wholesalers. Many short and interesting talks were made, though the chief address of the evening was made by Mr. Polk, who dwelt mainly on "Salesmanship."

Traveling Men Respond Liberally To Sick Man's Needs

In response to the request recently made by F. H. Andrews, secretary of Post E, T. P. A., liberal donations have been coming to him from day to day to aid in the relief requested for L. Cooksey, a former traveling man, whom Mr. Andrews found sick and in rather a distressing condition in one of the city hotels.

These donations, while not large in amount, have been sufficient in number to cure for all immediate needs of the sick man. They have come from all sections of the city, and south, the most of whom are T. P. A. and L. C. members, and go to prove the response made by these generous travelers whenever it is called to their attention that a fellow is in need, and regardless, too, of whether he is a member of their order or not.

Mr. Cooksey has been placed in a local hospital, where he is being given the treatment needed, and hopes within a reasonable time to be able to get on his feet. Some of the money received was used to fit out a special room for the patient.

To Be or Not to Be

I sometimes think I'd rather crow
And be a rooster, than to roost
And be a crow. But I dunno.

A rooster he can roost also,
Which don't seem fair when crows
Can't crow.
Which may help some. Still I dunno.

Crows should be glad of one thing
Nobody thinks of eating crow.
Gotta roosters, they are good enough.
For any one, unless they're tough.

There's lots of tough old roosters,
And, anyway, a crow can't roost.
So make roosters stand no more.
I took that way. But I dunno.

Business success is caused more by the mental attitude than by mental genius.

It isn't a man's time at his work that counts for so much as this enthusiasm in it. A man must put his whole heart into his work or he will fail. The man who does not put his whole heart into his work, and if he only gets half pay, he is not worth anything.

We all admire and go to see the man who is so thorough in his work that he can hold down the position of second baseman on a major league. Why does he take much interest in all matters that pertain to our own line that we will not care to be interested in? He is indispensable because he makes few errors.

Good salesmanship is just about the prettiest thing to observe that there is under the sun. There are careers that will lead to the germ of a good salesman. It is only careful study and continued effort that will make him grow into a good salesman and the man who doesn't do so does not stand much chance of success in this business which we call life.

NOW MAKING SUCCESS IN OWN BUSINESS

F. B. FLORENCE.

The many friends of F. B. Florence will be pleased to know that he is making with marked success since he recently embarked in the wholesale commission business. He is now conducting the business of the F. B. Florence company, at 135 Peters street, formerly conducted by his brother, E. J. Florence, who is devoting practically all his time to his farming interests.

The company handles fruits and produce, and does also a storage business. Since F. B. Florence took hold of the business he is fast building up a large clientele, and reports that "business is fine."

Mr. Florence was for years one of the city's popular salesmen, connected with J. D. Prater for about eight years. In addition to being a popular and successful commission man, Mr. Florence takes much interest in all matters that pertain to the welfare of the city, and his hosts of friends will be pleased to hear of the success which is coming to him.

Atlanta Branch National League Commission Merchants Organized

The first meeting of the Atlanta branch of the National Association of Commission Merchants was held Saturday, at which several applications from among the commission merchants of the city were considered. This league is destined to be a wonderful help to the grocers and the public alike, in that only firms of well-known moral and financial responsibility are admitted to its membership.

The Atlanta branch was organized only recently by R. S. Branch, business manager and organizer for the national league. It has been auspiciously launched with six of the leading commission firms of the city as charter members, and will no doubt include, before a great while, every leading firm of this kind in the city. The primary aim of this organization has not been to see how many members it could secure, but to secure, in the first place, an organization that is worthy and responsible.

The constitution and by-laws of the local branch will be patterned after the New York branch and will be ready for adoption at the next meeting.

A LITTLE ADVICE TO THE MERCHANTS

Pick Out Good Salesman, Wait for Him and Keep Your Engagements With Him.

You as a rule generally promise but fail to remember the pledge. That little insignificant misstep in thought seems of little importance to you, but fatal to the man to whom it concerns. Representatives or in other words salesmen are sent into their respective territories to do the impossible. They represent the same goods and price and to place you deals through him will mean the ending of many little mouths.

The merchant who places a little confidence in his salesman will find the investment profitable. He will gladly give you good ideas, account you confidentially with what others are doing, show you how to unload your stock, and go to his waiting family at the end of each week tired and fatigued but with a feeling of pleasure and pride in his work. He will not be annoyed by stories of his rough features, but with descriptive quality and reasonable prices of his prospects for the coming trip.

The wiser words spoken at the various week end conventions that fill a man with enthusiasm and eagerness to give the best of his pickings (as it may seem and does seem) means that you want his more valuable ideas of the man who sees every day all the rises and falls of the business. He should be the well meaning salesman who shows the truth of his goods in his face and attitude. This salesman will be substantial. The blue pencil will be a reasonable price of his line is what you want to investigate. Discourage the bright-eyed spirit who is not for those who deserve better recognition.

Many concerns grow into prominence and wealth from the efforts of the true little man of honor. Some may state the contrary. They say very few answer the roll when the little firm grows big. Take the thoroughbred lawyer they reach new heights in the firm. All this they do in their daily routine. They are to be glad that their when the world is asleep.

Wait for your salesman—this little honor will make his burden lighter, his sleep more refreshing and his inclination to be clean and true greater.

It means your duty done with every good endeavor. Help out another commitment will then be ideally fulfilled.

to work Florida territory is sending in orders a plenty and when the sales record at the end of the month is tallied he will be proud to show you the top if he continues his present stride. Mr. Tennant has only been out for two weeks, but they have been mighty good ones.

The Ins at Rulley Williams Wyatt company yesterday were Sam Cheek, J. L. Lister and J. Armstrong. They brought in a report of the on their respective territories and all prospects bright for a good business next week.

AUTOMATIC SANITARY MEASURE FOR GROCERS

One of the newest contrivances which is destined to aid the busy grocery store and merchant is the automatic sanitary measure for grocers. It is a well known South Atlantic Grocer. It is a one gallon measure with glass gauge on outside and a quart measure on inside. It is so made that it can be attached to barrels containing any liquid and valuable in any way. It is the contents of the barrel drawn for custom. It is intended mainly for such commodities as sugar, molasses, etc. and it is an automatic device which will make it so convenient. It is claimed by Mr. Colley, as just received his patent on this machine, that in the near future place them on the market.

Needed Another Ham

A magistrate in a small southern town once sentenced a colored man named Mosé to serve six weeks in jail for stealing a ham. Mosé's wife Selma called on the judge and begged him to let Mosé out at once. Judge said it was all right for Mosé to go out, but he reckoned he got two weeks more to serve. Judge said that he had heard on Mosé's wife Selma that she had said, "Can't do it Selma. People that don't want to go to jail mustn't steal." But Judge said that was a final appeal, and the child must be done need another ham.

BUSINESS BUILDERS

THE SALESMAN'S MOTTO: I will accomplish everything within the power of energy, tact and resourcefulness, nay, more, I will attempt and overcome the impossible.

Salesmanship.

What is the measure of a good salesman? Take a pencil and paper and put down your ideas on this line and see what result you get. But when you have finished rub everything almost except one line and you will have the answer as follows: The man who makes the most money for his house.

When you have got this answer ask yourself how he is to go about making this money and the first question to answer in this catchment is: How long as the house going to do business in this territory? If they intend never again to come into that territory after the trip the salesman is now on he can go as far as his conscience will let him in his methods of business getting sales. Otherwise it is simply up to him to bring in the best paying orders on the lowest expense possible. Because he won't have to consider reputation at all, only the quick money.

But fortunately for business practically every house today does business in the same territory year after year. The salesman who is not satisfied with his value to his house by his actual profits he can show on his first trip. He should be able to show for the year for five years or twenty if necessary.

Secondly, the salesman must first get the most orders he can consistent with his conscience. The salesman who is not consistent means that he must not cause his customers to lose money by overstocking them. But must sell them the right amount for them to get best results from his goods and so have a steady stream of orders. He should be ready to give him a repeat order. Secondly, the salesman must try to sell the goods which show the biggest percent of profit for his house. If he has two or three which give him three hundred dollar orders of the order of the firm is worth more than a hundred dollar order of the firm because not only is there just as much profit but there is less trouble in the handling of the goods and there is a smaller account for his firm to carry.

In Rhyme That Tickers, They Advertise Pickles

The Dixie Pickle and Preserving company begin in today's Firing Line a unique alphabetical series of advertisements. The series is in the form of a product in catchy verse. These little finger each and carrying the letters of the alphabet in sequence will be read with interest not only by consumers who know the delicious pickles but must sell them. The series will afford amusement to the little ones who by the way are also good judges of pickle products.

The Power of Advertising.

If you are a retailer and unknown to come to one of your local theaters he would attract just about as many customers as he could get. But if it were known that the great tenor would appear the theater would be thronged with people. It is the same with advertising. It is the power of advertising that has brought him fame and fortune.

And so too will the advertising of the fact of the advertiser. The advertiser wants—that you stand ready to serve that public—that here and there and in every way you can get the people to buy your goods. Why people should deal at your place of business—bring to you your measure of success providing always that you have the goods.

Perhaps you can afford to spend very much in advertising at first. Well the classified columns are with you. They are daily reading the classified and more and more advertisements are beginning to profit through this focusing of public attention and interest.

When it is going to join the "knowing" and "going" ones? A tallow candle properly directed can be driven through an inch board. The only way you can keep it directed right is by constant attention. If you are selling dishes sell dishes. Don't figure about selling silk goods and remember that what you want to know is how dishes are made and how silk worms work. If a department store stopped advertising very much in advertising at first, it would be long it is the continuous piling up of publicity that counts. It is the only way to success. The work we did last month will not justify the pay envelopes today. But we do know that counts and the man who is in the ring all the time.

Making Good In Your Present Position

To a great many salesmen making good sometimes means losing good. We often get discouraged and down in the mouth when things are going bad and orders are coming slowly. This is the time when one's sympathy and the most peculiar thing about a salesman is the fact that he will often go to those who are in the same frame of mind as himself.

Negative thoughts were out of them selves and are given a hearty welcome to the mind. A salesman will say to himself: "I will try some other line. I know I can make good at this or that." But this is the moment for reflection. The first stop to think that discouragement must come no matter what we feel, and the only restorative powers to such cases are positive thought and sticking plaster.

Make a success of your present position. It may mean the temporary loss of money even privation. But grit your teeth analyze yours if you get what is wrong and in a few days out of ten you will find that you are to blame.

The Retail Merchant

The question of buying his stocks is an important point in the conduct of his business for the retailer as the question of selling these stocks. No matter what line of business he is engaged in he simply must consider the needs of his customers first and last and all the time.

For this purpose every retailer should make a point of mixing with the people who form his clientele as much as possible. He should go among them and find out what class of goods it is that they desire. Then when the special article which the customer wants to buy he should be able to intelligently pick out the goods he wants and avoid buying a special article which the customer is trying to push, but which is not suited to the class of trade he is catering to.

Of course this advice seems to be superfluous nevertheless it is surprising how many retail merchants fall every day into the simple fact that they judge the fancies that the trade is going to have but a buyer can at least try to find out with intelligence.

For this reason he must put himself as much as possible in the place of the people he is going to sell to. When he does this he will be able to understand the needs of his customers and to know that what appeals to him will also appeal to them.

To get this viewpoint he must put himself in the closest possible touch with his people. Live with them at their entertainments know them and be one of them. If a merchant is running a store in the backwoods he cannot possibly know what kind of goods the customers there want if he lives all his life in New York and the man who lives in the backwoods cannot buy for the New York trade.

Know it as you know your daily life and only thus will you be able to properly select as buying agent for the necessities of their daily life.

There is a story told among advertising men that is a classic. It is repeated here for the benefit of the moral it drives home.

A certain cents furnishing store had on hand a large stock of neck wear which while it looked quite good was of very inferior quality. In fact the buyer had been buying when he brought it in the house was very anxious to get rid of these goods as it was a loss as possible consistent with keeping the front of their store. For some weeks it stood on the counters but did not unload fast. One morning a salesman came in to buy them not because they appeal to him individually but because he has so much to sell. He must put himself in the place of the people he is serving as to know that what appeals to him will also appeal to them.

To get this viewpoint he must put himself in the closest possible touch with his people. Live with them at their entertainments know them and be one of them. If a merchant is running a store in the backwoods he cannot possibly know what kind of goods the customers there want if he lives all his life in New York and the man who lives in the backwoods cannot buy for the New York trade. Know it as you know your daily life and only thus will you be able to properly select as buying agent for the necessities of their daily life.

HIGH HONORS AWARDED ATLANTA FIRM

Receives Red Ribbon in Competition With Northern and Eastern Printers.

The reputation of several national firms went to smash when the Ruralist Press, Inc. of Atlanta, Ga., was awarded the Red Ribbon for quality of their specimens of half tone printing exhibited in New York city at the recent National Printing and Allied Trades Exposition. Exhibitors from New York, Chicago and Grand Rapids received a striking demonstration of high class southern competition in the samples produced by this firm. The plates used were taken from the collection used in the Fielder & Allen catalog and were made in Georgia.

The Ruralist Press Inc. is entirely a home corporation. Its officers and directors are well known to all Atlantans. Colonel F. J. Merriam president and Dr. H. E. Stockbridge treasurer are the directors of the greatest publication in Dixie. The Southern Ruralist, Mr. H. G. Hastings vice president is at the head of the large seed business that bears his name. Mr. C. F. Baldwin is secretary and Mr. O. Blodgett general manager.

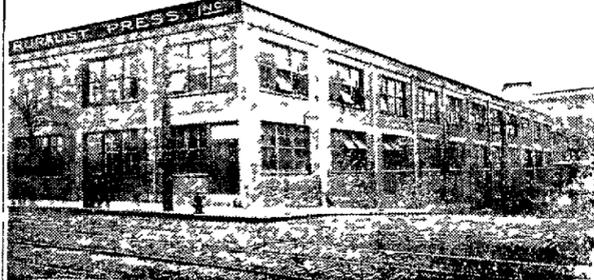

The plant occupies the property on East Hunter street opposite the state capital and extends north on Piedmont avenue to the L & N terminal and Georgia railway. The building is two stories high and contains 20,000 square feet floor space. The walls are almost entirely composed of glass windows which furnish the abundance of natural light required for color printing.

The mechanical equipment was installed last October at a cost of $150,000. In the composing rooms you will find every modern type face and a battery of typesetting machines. Catalogs and business literature are set by hand with new type faces and illustrated with half tones and color plates.

When the pages are completed and the forms made up they pass into the electrotyping department where printing plates are made and sent to the press room.

Here are four large Meikle cylinder presses and one Whitlock open public relation press (that prints in two colors, folds and cuts—ready for mailing—250,000 copies of one publication every two weeks) one two color Meikle press one smaller color press and battery of jobbers.

The complete and modern bindery equipment enables the operators to most economically finish every production from small folders to large leather bound volumes. Here also are the machines for ruling every form of blank or account book.

modum of printed literature. The copy was accumulated and with the illustrations were made and printed. Completed booklets of twenty pages were delivered by the Ruralist Press, Inc. on the following Friday.

During the week preceding the Shrine convention 3,000 1/2 color plates were photographed at Piedmont plant. Their new uniforms. The plates were made and it usually cost 10 cents to reproduce in material. The plates were distributed the same way. But these did not in any way interfere with any other work then progress.

We feel sure that the directors of every southern enterprise and every merchant and manufacturer of Atlanta, Georgia and the entire Dixie will highly esteem the full records of this plant and its printing business. It is a fine thing to have a business of this kind in the south. The great thing is to be derived through its printing advertising and distributing the products of this country. High class printing is the most valuable selling assistance that can be employed.

Many thousands of dollars are spent annually by southern manufacturers for this assistance. The press being equal the Ruralist will be superior to the average printer of the south. There are similar works in the south and problems. Let us see if we can't do better. We have a complete modern sales plan organization and up to date printing equipment.

The secret of their success is their ability to make their product profitable to their clients by cooperating with them in the best results through sales and advertising. If you have been desirous of a contented effort to the profit of your business and to the benefit of our country, let us see if we can't do better.

Mr. Boyd was formerly a traveling salesman for the Dixie Printing and Publishing Co. He had ten years of practical experience with sales and advertising campaigns. His assistance in a sales plan will be a great help to your business. His organization principles are such that it is read and felt that it will sell goods and help our salesman sell more goods.

LUCILLE LOVE, The Girl of Mystery

A Soul Thrilling Story of Love, Devotion, Danger and Intrigue

(Synopsis of preceding chapters.)

While students together at West Point, and in love with the same girl, Sumpter Love proves Hugo Loubeque's spy and Loubeque is abandoned. The girl, Lucille, wins the girl. The enemy thus begun finds outlet in later years at Manila, when a butler thief in the employ of Loubeque, now an international spy, steals valuable papers from the Government safe of General Love. Loubeque sails with them on the steamship Empress, and General Love accuses Lieut. Gibson, his aide and the sweetheart of the daughter, Lucille, of the crime. Loubeque sends a wireless message cleverly insinuating that General Love had sold the papers to a foreign power. To save the honor of the man she loved and to erase the stigma from her father's name, Lucille prevails upon Harry, a government aviator, to take her out to the ship, to the Empress. To foil Lucille, Loubeque destroys the wireless apparatus on the Empress and is hurt in the resulting explosion. Lucille searches for the papers, Lucille becomes his nurse, and when the ship takes fire, secures them. The vessel is burned to the water's edge and Lucille drifts. She is rescued by friendly savages. She is given an amulet for curing the chief's daughter, and it proved potent against the machinations of the enemy. Lucille is wisely cast on the island, plans to get the papers. He burns Lucille's hut, but she escapes with the precious papers. He sends a deoxy message asking her to go to the home of a neighboring chief, whose wife is ill and in need of nursing. On the way there she falls an easy prey to the wiles of Loubeque's agent. Her guide, an old crone, takes the papers from Lucille, and gives them to Loubeque, who goes with them to the jungle. The guide and her husband steal them three days, recovers them from the body. Lucille meets a strange cave-dwelling people in a hidden mountain. The papers are carried into an underground wharfed. She is rescued by Captain Wetherell and taken aboard the Empress. The papers are carried to the Empress by the yacht, which is carrying contraband arms to Chinese rebels. When warships pursue, Wetherell seizes the papers and gets the Empress to sea in an open boat. Their water gives out and Lucille nearly dies before they reach China. The safety of Hugo, from nursing Lucille back to life, goes after Wetherell to get the papers back, and captures him. Lucille follows Loubeque, aboard a liner, and is discovered during the voyage. She is taken to San Francisco, in the hold, and on being released, searches Loubeque's room for the papers. He catches her, and convinces her that she is insane, and on the vessel's arrival at port has her whisked away in a taxi.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

A House of Mysterious Entrances.

SOMETHING told Lucille as she stood at the ship's rail that trouble awaited her once her feet in the water upon the wharf. She had the captain's reassurance that everything would be all right, knew that he had sent a wireless to the authorities in San Francisco, but, as she glanced to her right, saw the sinisterly meaningful gesture of Hugo Loubeque, every word of the man came back to her, every word he had uttered in his horribly playful mood, regarding keeping her under his finger, seeing to it that she could do no more harm to the working out of his evil plans.

And her hand closed about the diary hidden in the bosom of her dress, the diary she had read so many times she knew it well-nigh by heart, the diary with its tale of gigantic power and unscrupulousness in the accomplishment of one purpose, the destruction of her father. What chance did the honest, simple minded captain have, what chance did the officers of a mere municipality have when they opposed themselves to one who overthrew nations and their rulers by the lifting of his hand, just such lifting as the one he had just made to some unseen power upon the wharf, a giant power probably, yet bent readily to do his will. She turned her eyes toward him, eyes that were filled with a mute appeal, then turned them away again, sick at heart as she caught the triumphant smile behind the cruel steel of his own. Still, strain though she would toward that crowd upon the landing, she could make out nothing suspicious. She could even see the squad of policemen marching toward the crowd, the chief of the law she knew went to protect her from any possible violence.

Reassuring though the sight was, her steps were laggard as she marched down the plank. Almost immediately she felt a pressing forward in the fore ranks of the crowd, a pressing forward that tended in her direction. She looked about her and found a man's face staring into hers from every direction. There was no animosity on those faces. They were not brutal, not menacing. But there was a fixed purposefulness about them, a grim regard of her that told her instinctively they were the minions of Hugo Loubeque. She had marked that same expression on his own face as many times, that set, iron determination to work out his purpose at any and all costs. Yet not a hand was laid upon her, not a voice lifted. She tried to force her way forward, but a steady resistance met her. She attempted to go to the side. Again that impassable power held her in the center of the crowd. In an agony of despair she raised her eyes in mute appeal to the rail where she had last seen the captain. He would understand her distress, would help her. But, to her dismay, she found that the jam was so close, the heads of the men so towering, that even sight of the vessel was cut off from her. Then, just as a heavily veiled woman pressed toward her, with eyes that glittered a menace matching poorly the affectionate pose of her form, Lucille lifted her voice, only to have her appeal rebuffed by the same embrace of the man who continually referred to Lucille as "her poor sister."

She did not know how it was worked, but the crowd of men opened readily for the escort and herself, not only opened but assisted them along their way. The door of a great limousine stood open before her. She drew away, tried to fight against the strength of the mysterious woman, only to find the arm that held hers with such an appearance of affection to be made of bands of steel. Swiftly she was hustled into the car and before her companion had closed the door, the car shot forward, gaining speed with every rod. The thunder of planks ceased as the machine struck the asphalt.

The futurity of further resistance made her sink back against the cushions, sick with apprehension of what was to come, a dull apathy gradually closing about her and soothing her tired eyes. After all, she had known that Hugo Loubeque would be able to do as he said, that there could be no adequate assistance against him, so long as she knew nothing of his plans. She recalled all that happened before in her warfare to regain possession of the stolen papers, seeing the hand of a guiding Providence in her every successful effort and the many escapes she had made from what appeared certain death. The car leaped like a living thing through the streets of the city and then doubled upon its tracks so that she might have no chance to place certain sites and gain some idea thereby where her ultimate destination was. Lucille studied her captor from under cover of her heavy lashes. She could see but little of the face of the heavy mourning veil sheathing it. She only made out that she appeared apathetic, disinterested, now her portion of the work assigned to her had been carried through. It seemed a characteristic attitude of all who worked for the man. They were but cogs in a vast machine, responsive to the master's touch, obedient, but never working through any motive save his own impulse. A kind face, the woman had, yet the possible outcome of the weak, unhappy girl she had captured so boldly seemed to make not the slightest impression upon her. Only at the end of their drive, when the chauffeur opened the door did she speak.

"Any attempt to escape would be quite useless," she said in a dull, mechanical tone of voice. "If you are wise you will not make the situation any more difficult for yourself by being foolish."

As the motor car ceased purring at the curb, the woman pressed the door bell. Came a scuffling along the hall, a shadow fluttered there a second, then the door swung open. Lucille stepped across the threshold with her captor, surprised to see no one in sight. Apparently the door had opened of its own volition. Before her was a straight stairway, appearing to end at the second flight. To her left was a living room into which she was ushered. Again the woman pressed a bell.

"You will want some tea and cakes," she said quietly.

Lucille nodded, studying her surroundings keenly. What a change from the place she would have expected and yet how natural that the international spy should choose just such an unpretentious place from which to pull his wires, play upon the strings of the world! How typical of Hugo Loubeque was every detail!

She turned at a suggestive clink of china. She had heard no one enter the room, yet, in the shadows, she saw an attentive butler holding the tea tray while the mysterious veiled woman poured. The man moved toward her, moved silently, swiftly, surely. There was something about his manner, his perfection, strikingly reminiscent of some one she had seen before. He stood before her and, even as he bent his head murmuring a query as to her preference regarding sugar or lemon, she recognized him.

"Thompson!" she gasped. "Thompson! You here! What are you doing here?"

"Yes, Miss Love! Thank you, Miss! I am employed by Mr. Loubeque, Miss Love! Thank you!"

She stared at him incredulously, at the mask of a face, upon which not the flicker of expression was stamped. And then gradually she understood, knew who had stolen the papers from her father's safe, realized how completely they had all been fooled by this cunning servant. She shrank away from him as though from the plague, but still he showed no sign of anger or chagrin.

"Go away!" she muttered brokenly. "Go away! I can't bear to look at you!"

"Yes, Miss. Thank you!"

When she looked up he had disappeared. Swiftly she gathered herself together. Such childish tricks must not be permitted to shatter her courage for even an instant. She must strike while her capture was new to them all, before a system of surveillance had been thoroughly established. She slipped stealthily to the door through which she had entered the house. In the hall she looked cautiously about, then put her foot upon the stairs and proceeded to move to the first flight. Midway, she was paralyzed into inactivity by finding the stairs to be in motion.

Horror seized her. Then once more she braced herself. Only another trick of Loubeque's! The stairs seemed to fold up within themselves like a miniature escalator. They grey steady once more and the girl looked about an unfurnished room of stone wall. But she did not see this wall, did not mark the lack of decorations or furniture in the room, for a company of men formed a crescent facing her, one tall figure standing apart from the rest, immovable, silent.

The solitary figure lifted his hand. Then, frozen with terror though she was, Lucille saw that each figure was veiled in a black robe and that a plain, silk mask of black covered every face. Masks through which threatening eyes glared out upon her, masks so light they flattened against the wearer's features with hideous significance.

Slowly the company passed her, pausing before her to peer narrowly into her face, as though impressing her every feature indelibly upon their minds. When she regained her powers of observation the line had passed, had paused and disappeared. She looked about her. She was alone.

CHAPTER XXIX.

Correspondence Under Difficulties.

TWO days and never a sign of Loubeque. Lucille had feared and dreaded that first meeting. She was positive the solitary figure apart from the masked company had been the spy. But the formality had been so silent, so ominous she had thrust it from her because of the terror its recollection never failed to induce within her heart. The band of evil-doers certainly could make no mistake regarding her identity after that close scrutiny.

The room assigned her was, to all outward seeming, a daintily furnished bed chamber, but, trying the large windows, she found they only could be let down from the top and were there covered by a thin netting of a metal that resisted every attempt at trying apart. Looking more carefully she saw this same filament of wire was interwoven with the glass so they could not be completely smashed. The only means of escape lay by the door and, to get out that way, involved a flight of steps which passed many rooms.

But she must escape. The thought of what Loubeque might be doing unimpeded drove her brain tyrannically against a worn-out body. She had the man's diary, wherein was evidence against him of such crimes as would have spelled the most hardened courts, would have sent stations at one another's throats, entailed countless deaths. The thing was so deadly that, zealous though she was in her object of saving her sweetheart, Lucille knew she could never bring herself to the point of making public such a document. She hid the rubics from the throat of the hideous idol in the subterranean cave. Times without number she regarded the glowing stones, shuddered at the blood-red rays that mocked her from each facet, imagining the heart of each to have been made of its innermost from the rivers of blood that had been shed through the lure of its mocking light. A king's ransom, each one, the ransom of many nations, was the strand. Lucille allowed the jewels to run through her slender fingers idly, unthinkingly, even contemptuously. For of what avail was all this when she was a prisoner in the house of one who hated so soundly that he would willingly sacrifice his very soul for revenge! A man to whom life, death, honor, fame, family, fatherland, all, everything meant naught but revenge! Idly, worthless stones no better than pebbles upon a sand shore, they were to the girl whose heart and soul and body were inextricably interwoven with love. The amulet which the savage chief had given her for saving his daughter's life—that was her only other possession, and of what use was such a thing in this city of superciliousness?

Apparently she was free to come and go about the place as she pleased, but the very mockery of such a freedom made her real situation all the more. Absorbed in the hopeless task of finding some means of escape she took to having her meals served in her room, eating scarcely anything so engrossed was she with her thoughts.

On the fourth day, as she sat beside the window, dejectedly looking out upon the well-nigh deserted street, she was suddenly aware of a shadow falling upon the glass. She sprang to her feet, turned to face Loubeque. The spy was not smiling now. Instead there was a tender expression on his face, a look of sympathy such as she dimly recalled having seen while she was racked with delirium of fever in the open boat, out there upon the seemingly spanless ocean. In his hands he held a newspaper and instantly she divined it held something that would hurt her. She nodded slowly, catching her breath with an effort, fighting back her nameless terror.

The blood drop fell upon the paper, carrying it. Lucille gasped delightedly. Her hand seized a pin from the writing table and dabbed at the blot. It had dried up. Nerving herself she lightly jabbed the pin into the ball of her thumb, feverishly writing upon the blank paper. How painful it was! How swiftly the blood dried! But she must—she must—

"Prisoner of Loubeque—Here—Help—Read head—"

She swayed slightly. She could endure the torture no longer. It was sufficient. He could piece together what he read, what she had told him aboard the ship. But how to reach him with the fragmentary strip of paper. She braced herself against the dizziness which the writing had caused. Her heart was fluttering wildly. As she rested her hand upon her bosom, the feel of the ruby necklace met her fingers. The contact telegraphed a message to her brain, a message which caused her to tear the necklace from about her throat, detaching a jewel swiftly and wrapping the strip of paper about it. In one leap she had reached the window. The captain slowly returned.

Frozen With Terror, Lucille Found Herself Surrounded by Threatening Masked Figures.

"Yes," she muttered faintly. "You have news. Tell me—I am quite strong to bear anything after this—"

Her eyes swept him with a brief contempt, then flashed about her prison. But the feeling was merely momentary, swallowed up in the great fear for those she loved. "Lucille!" the spy's eyes fell before the fear in the steady ones that met his own. "Lucille, you are too young yet to know that in the completion of any great work, always there are those who must suffer. I do not attempt to defend myself before you. I do not attempt to boast, but you know that the enterprise of my life has been the greatest mortal victory just as the construction of a man is the most marvelous Divine achievement." He stopped, evidently finding it hard to continue.

"I would not harm you, Lucille; would not cause you that moment's grief or misery, play a sordid mental, for anything in the world. But I would allow not even the love I bear you because of your likeness to your mother to stand in the way of destroying you utterly should you attempt to get in my path. And so I am very happy today, very happy for myself while I am, at the same time, very unhappy because of your distress. I know you cannot understand my feeling. I only wish you to know that you have stolen the fruits, the sweets of my victory because knowing you have made it pain for me to even so much as see your lips tremble."

"Victory?" She whispered the word aloud. It dined in her ears with maddening insistence, drowning his tones completely. "Victory? You mean?"

Silently he put the newspaper in her outstretched hand. She took it numbly, staring at the black, leaded type heading the column, staring at the familiar, the beloved name of her sweetheart there. When she looked up Hugo Loubeque was gone, had disappeared. But that did not matter to her now. The nature of his disappearance did not even impress her. Nothing mattered. The spy's victory was approaching completion. One link in his plot had been welded, making the remainder of the work simple. But it was not complete. It was not yet finished.

Lucille looked about her wildly. She was a prisoner, but before this she had been an apathetic prisoner, content to accept her solitary confinement. Now she was a wild woman. Now everything that life held dear to her was being taken away. She beat her tiny fists against the window, then stopped at the utter futility of it. She looked down and her eyes started wide into those of a pedestrian upon the sidewalk. It was the captain of the ship who had been her friend. She waved her hand, knowing from his expression that he recognized her, that he had been hunting her. He made a motion as of writing and she nodded swiftly, then darted toward the little dressing table.

And there she sat, dumb with misery. In the delight of seeing a friend's face at the psychological moment, when her despair, her misery, her desperation was at its height she had not thought a simple thing like a pencil, pen, ink, paper might be necessary. They had always seemed so inevitably close at hand she naturally expected them. Again the realization of the care with which she was entombed here came upon her. She darted back to the window. The captain had disappeared. Hopelessly, breathlessly, she waited. It was half an hour before he returned and shot a swift glance toward her. Then she realized that he was wise enough to make his appearance on the street seem natural, casual, by not passing the place often. He frowned impatiently as she shook her head, frowned and passed on with a significant glance toward the house.

In despair Lucille looked about her. Paper she had. She stole the blank strip off the top of the newspaper page, tore it so that the headline regarding Lieutenant Gibson appeared beneath it. She stared helplessly in the mirror, her teeth fastened viciously in her lower lip, so viciously that when she withdrew them a tiny drop of red blood appeared upon the delicate skin. If only she had a pencil or pen, something to write with—

The blood drop fell upon the paper, carrying it. Lucille gasped delightedly. Her hand seized a pin from the writing table and dabbed at the blot. It had dried up. Nerving herself she lightly jabbed the pin into the ball of her thumb, feverishly writing upon the blank paper. How painful it was! How swiftly the blood dried! But she must—she must—

"Prisoner of Loubeque—Here—Help—Read head—"

She swayed slightly. She could endure the torture no longer. It was sufficient. He could piece together what he read, what she had told him aboard the ship. But how to reach him with the fragmentary strip of paper. She braced herself against the dizziness which the writing had caused. Her heart was fluttering wildly. As she rested her hand upon her bosom, the feel of the ruby necklace met her fingers. The contact telegraphed a message to her brain, a message which caused her to tear the necklace from about her throat, detaching a jewel swiftly and wrapping the strip of paper about it. In one leap she had reached the window. The captain slowly returned.

He regarded her narrowly, still smoking silently. There was a glint of admiration in his eyes, mingled with the steady determination to secure what he desired. His face was smeared with blood but, despite that, he retained the same commanding, grand dignity and assurance. He opened his lips as though to speak, then closed them sharply and stepped to the door, listening a moment, then ringing a bell which was almost immediately answered by the butler and the woman who had first captured the girl.

Hurriedly Thompson explained what had happened, the pebble-wrapped strip of white paper which the man outside had picked up, the manner in which he had mysteriously disappeared, eluding the butler's pursuit, the admission of policemen to the house and the throwing of the spring that lowered the girl's room to the basement.

"And he got out of the way, eh?" Loubeque frowned thoughtfully, then laughed a dry, barking laugh as he turned to the girl. "And with all this luck working for you, Miss Lucille, you see how impossible it is to escape. Now, I shall leave you alone to reflect upon the advisability of restoring the packet to me. Until then you will not be disturbed even by a servant. You may recall, my child, that thrust is a very unpleasant torture."

He closed the door behind him, very softly. Not a sound came from without. Hunger—thirst—solitude—All three in this prison, this prison so much unlike a prison that it was rendered only the more hideous thereby. And even though outsiders knew she was being detained here, they could not find her, could not even secure adequate evidence that she was here did they make an examination. True, Loubeque did not have the papers and could do nothing until they were found, but neither could she do anything with them, did not even know how to go about finding them again. She flung herself upon the bed, burying her face in her hands and giving way to sobs. Everything was so hopeless, the way had been so long, and still stretched so indefinitely before her, the road that had no turning, the road that seemed but to lead her further and further from the ones she held so dear—

She straightened, startled by a faint tinkle against the window pane. Swiftly she approached the window. Upon the street no one was in sight. She looked up and espied the face of the captain peering cautiously from over the brick wall above her.

Ever so slightly she rapped at the netting which had been within the glass before she broke it. Carefully she drew the glass inside and laid it upon the floor. The netting gave slightly. She tore her hands, opening the space until she could get her shoulders through. Slowly, round and round she worked the opening. It was finally wide enough. She looked up. The captain nodded briefly then disappeared.

In a moment he reappeared, slowly dangling a heavy rope which he had made a looped chair from. Lucille edged her way slowly through the opening. She stood upon the heavy sill outside, hanging to the netting with one hand while the other she reached for the rope with the other. The second time her fingers closed about it. Swiftly she tucked it about her skirts, then drew taut. Her feet swung clear of the ledge. Back and forth she gently swayed a second, fending herself from the house with her right hand. Then she felt herself being slowly lifted, lifted in little spasmodic jerks.

Stomach tugs at the rope drew her closer and closer to the brick cemented fringe that separated the house from its neighbors. Her fingertips brushed the top of these. Another pull and she had a firm hold and was drawing herself over. Powerful hands closed about her wrists, when from below came a shout that told she had been discovered.

With an oath the captain yanked her to the roof, jerked her there so violently she toppled and fell against him, straightened and caught his arm to support herself.

From beneath them came sounds of pursuit, hurrying footsteps upon stairs, loud voices. Lucille seemed to have all the initiative now. She grasped the man's arm and hurried him toward the closest chimney just as a sky-light door swung open where they had stood.

He drew a revolver and held it steadily pointing toward the place. A chip of plaster crumbled at their feet. Lucille looked down at a flattened lead bullet. Yet there had been no shot fired. She stared incredulously at the man.

"Silence—maintain silence," he whispered. She nodded understandingly. Together they crept in the shadow of the chimney toward the thin brick dividing wall, the sanded roof scratching their heads terribly. Again that flutter of chips. The captain turned and fairly hurled a shot from his revolver at the figures so cautiously approaching. A cry of pain followed the report and in the confusion, the pair made a short rush.

The pursuit grew bold now. Rose the voice of Loubeque, cold, steady, terrible. "Don't shoot, shots. Get the man with lead. Catch the girl!"

The captain's grip tightened reassuringly on her wrist.

"If they get me," he said quietly, "take the gun and make them work."

She nodded, pressing his hand. Like frightened children they scurried from chimney to chimney, that silent pursuit always drawing closer, the captain now and then turning to throw a shot back at the common enemy. In the event, the man became separated from Lucille. She looked about, then uttered a cry of warning. He took a step backward, then instinctively lifted his elbow as though to avert a bullet. The movement overbalanced him and he disappeared over the edge, a groping, tumbling thing.

From every direction came the pursuit. Lucille suddenly noticed there was no attempt made to close in upon her but that she was being driven in a certain direction. She stopped fearfully, vaguely afraid of that which she could not fathom. A bullet dashed a spray of sand into her face and she darted aside—darted into a yawning blackness.

When she opened her eyes, she was surprised to find that there had been no fall worth mentioning, that she had merely been driven toward a trap door and caught as she toppled down. Loubeque was watching her, a curiously twisted smile playing about the corners of his mouth.

"You have too many friends, Lucille," he murmured, a hint of the same admiration in his voice that she had caught earlier in his eyes. "Yes," he murmured, after a moment's silence, "you are altogether too slippery, too nerve-racking a prisoner. I think, while the search for the packet is going on, it would save wear and tear on our constitutions to move you to my ranch—my ranch in Mexico. A beautiful spot," he smiled. "I trust you will enjoy it as much as I have."

Lucille looked at him steadily. In the eyes of both glowed an indomitable purpose, a hard resolve, a mutual admiration. Loubeque smiled once more, his time grimly.

"Honey, have been too even till now. I fancy the ranch will settle the rubber satisfactorily—at any rate, satisfactorily to me."

S Dayton kept himself aloof in the black icy water his first emotion was one of surprise. His sudden absolute helplessness completely astonished him, and he could not bring himself to a realization of the position in which he was.

"To think of having anything so delightful happen under one's own roof," continued Mrs. Hargreaves joyfully. "Or at least next door to it--on the lake."

"Since there's no one here, why don't we go with you and smoke?" When they were gathered before the fire in the hall the sudden silence was even more disconcerting than the concisious clamor of the dining room.

"What am I to do?" asked Dayton, helplessly. "I confess," said his friend, "that it seems to me that you are in something of a boat. It's extremely awkward, anyway, for a man to have his life saved by a woman. It's all wrong, and only the kind of thing that could happen in these days of bachelor girls' and emancipation."

"What do you suppose has happened now?" he heard his wife say from the dark interior of the room. "I can't tell," he replied, as if dispirited to find, as he usually did, in her remarks an incentive to merriment.

"Tore Down a Heavy Curtain."

"I can't stand it," she announced. "There is a perfect pall of ceremonial politeness over everything." "I'm moving about myself," said Hargreaves, "on mental tips. That's what comes of having a problem thrown into the house."

At intervals Mrs. Hargreaves managed to convey bulletins to her husband who had retreated early and inconspicuously to the smoking room. "I can't stand it," she announced. "There is a perfect pall of ceremonial politeness over everything."

THREE SMART COSTUMES for the WELL-DRESSED GIRL

CHARMING and most girlish is the shell pink taffeta gown to the left, with bouffant ruffles of tulle in a deeper shade. Tulle also trims the corsage and forms ruffles on the sleeves. Silver lace fills in the V of the corsage. The girdle is of velvet in a charming old blue shade. The corsage bouquet of tea roses and forget-me-nots carries out the color scheme of this most effective gown. The suit in the middle can be made of either a heavy crepe silk or of some of the new crepey cotton materials. This would be an excellent way to make the suit for that cool day in summer. Embroidery trims the cuffs, which are of an unusual shape and cleverly shaped is the bolero jacket, buttoned as it is to the girde of the same material. Most graceful is the draping of the tunic, which is quite long on one side and very smart is the modish little hat worn with this costume. Blue gray moire faille forms this attractive silken costume for afternoon wear. Very cleverly managed is the draping of the skirt. Notice the ornament at the side which holds the draping in place. Cream colored embroidered batiste forms the collar and cuffs. Clipped ostrich feathers trim the smart and becoming little hat, which completes this costume.
