

FRANK CASE WAITS ON TRANSMISSION OF LEGAL PAPERS

Reported That Remittitur of Supreme Court Will Reach Clerk of Superior Court Some Time Today.

FERGUSON AFFIDAVIT LATEST DEVELOPMENT

Witness Testified Frank Refused to Give Her Mary Phagan's Pay, But Did Not Say Girl Was Coming For It.

On Monday morning it is expected that the legal chess game of the Frank case will be renewed when the remittitur of the supreme court refusing a rehearing of the case arrives at the desk of the clerk of the superior court.

The legal procedure of the Frank case, both on the part of the defense and the prosecution, has been marking time ever since the decision of the supreme court not to grant a rehearing was rendered last week.

Should the remittitur be transmitted Monday, as is anticipated, it is not expected, however, that Solicitor Dorsey will take any immediate action.

Whenever the solicitor does bring Frank before Judge Hill for a re-pronouncement of sentence, it is believed that the defense will petition the judge, under section 67 of the penal code, asking that he pronounce a sentence of life imprisonment instead of the death sentence.

Attorneys for neither side of the case are apparently in any haste to push the case to a close.

While the attorneys for the defense have made no statement as to what they would do in the event that the new affidavits which were not presented in the trial have been accumulated it is regarded as not improbable that they will file a motion extraordinary for a new trial before Judge Hill.

A failure in this move would leave open the recourse of an appeal to the United States supreme court upon which the defense is banking.

The testimony of Helen Ferguson at the trial was the subject of a motion for a new trial filed by the defense.

EFFECTS OF THE STORM REPORTED WIDESPREAD

New York One of the Worst Sufferers—The Wires Are Down and All Train Service Demoralized

New York, March 1.—A northeast storm, swerving to the northwest, which first brought rain, then snow, raged over New York and vicinity today, cutting the city almost completely off from telegraph and telephone communication.

Three deaths due to the storm occurred here, two together when a roof collapsed under the weight of wet snow, crushing a man and a boy.

Trains for the most part left the railroad terminals on time, but with wires down quickly were lost track of.

Wet snow snapped telegraph and telephone wires, and with a gale blowing 72 miles an hour at times, many poles toppled over.

As reports began to come in later tonight it was learned that the blockade of train traffic on some railroad lines was even more serious than had been thought earlier.

The disturbance centered at Cape Hatteras early in the day and moved north, gaining in intensity, and was expected to pass directly above New York.

Ships held outside. Shipyards due to reach this port today were held up outside.

LATEST PICTURE OF GEN. VILLA

GENERAL VILLA, coming attack on the federal city of Torreon. At Torreon Villa will face the biggest battle of his career.

General Francisco ("Pancho") Villa, active leader of the constitutional forces in Mexico, is having plenty of trouble arising from the execution of William S. Benton, the British capitalist, and also in regard to the forthcoming attack on the federal city of Torreon.

Following the announcement Sunday morning of the platform of the Citizens' League of Atlanta, Chief of Police James L. Beavers announced that his stand will remain unaltered.

BENTON PROBERS BARRED BY THE MEXICAN REBELS FROM EXAMINING CORPSE

Commissioners Named to Investigate the Killing of Briton Not Allowed to Board the Train for Chihuahua.

CARRANZA'S ATTITUDE SURPRISES WASHINGTON

President Wilson and Secretary Bryan Confer About Situation—They Are Said to Be Much Perturbed.

Juarez, Mexico, March 1.—The Benton investigating commission today was prevented from proceeding to Chihuahua to examine the slain Briton's body by rebel orders.

Colonel Fidel Avila, military commander here, declined to permit them to board the regular passenger train, which was waiting.

The mystery thrown around the occurrence led to many apparently exaggerated rumors.

Persistent inquiry here and in El Paso failed to establish anything but the one fact that the commissioners were refused passports on this side and returned to El Paso.

George Carothers, agent of the state department in many of its dealings with Villa, also delayed his departure for Chihuahua.

Commissioners Won't Talk. El Paso, Texas, March 1.—The trip of the Benton investigating commission to Chihuahua was suddenly postponed or abandoned today.

The commissioners are Charles C. Perceval, British consul at Chihuahua, and James Hamblen, a British subject long resident in Mexico.

At Fort Bliss, General Hugh L. Scott, who appointed Davidson and Munn to assist in the examination of Benton's body, said he had no information further than that the Mexican rebels had been notified to be at the train at 9 o'clock, and that later they reported to him that they were not going.

None of the commissioners would talk about the delay.

Rebels deeply interested in situation were at a loss to account for the new turn in affairs.

President Wilson and Secretary Bryan conferred most of the afternoon, reading the notes from Carranza and other dispatches.

Just what instructions have been sent to American Consul Simplic at Nogales, is not known.

GREAT AUDIENCE ATTENDS OPENING OF BIBLE MEETING

Pulpits of Atlanta Filled by Speakers in Morning and Great Gathering Held at Tabernacle in Afternoon

DR. MORGAN STRESSES IMPORTANCE OF EVENT

Atlanta's world-known March Bible conference is on in full swing today, following the exercises held in Atlanta churches Sunday morning.

According to old delegates, who have been attending the Bible conferences ever since they were instituted under the direction of Dr. Len G. Broughton, sixteen years ago, the meeting of 1914 will probably go down in national interdenominational church records as one of the church events of the twelfth month.

At Sunday afternoon's meeting Dr. Sol Dickey, president of the Bible conference, presided. Among the interesting features were the addresses from as far north as Boston and as far west as Colorado.

Dr. Sol Dickey Presides. At Sunday afternoon's meeting Dr. Sol Dickey, president of the Bible conference, presided.

Dr. Morgan also spoke of the great effect of the Bible conferences, and asked a closer co-operation between Atlantans and the management of the Bible conference.

Dr. Dickey, of Winona fame, also made an introductory address, opening the formal sessions of the Bible conference.

On the platform at Sunday afternoon's gathering were some of the most distinguished Bible teachers of the world.

The list of notables here for the gathering, noted on the platform Sunday afternoon, included Rev. Mel Trotter, noted evangelist; Dr. Frank Palmer, noted Winona Bible conference teacher; W. D. Gordon, author of several religious publications; Dr. Russell Conwell, head of the Baptist Temple, Philadelphia; Dr. Camden Cobern, of Meadville, Pa., who teaches archaeology and is a noted authority on the Bible; Dr. J. H. Starnes, of other noted evangelists; Dr. William Souper, of London, England, and Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, also of London.

Today's program at the Bible conference embraces the daylight hours as well as night programs.

The exercises of Monday will take place at the Baptist Tabernacle. At 2 o'clock, Dr. Palmer will speak at the platform, while at 12 o'clock Dr. Mel Trotter will speak to workers.

At 7 o'clock this afternoon, Dr. Cobern will speak; at 8 o'clock, Dr. Souper will speak. He will be followed by Dr. Starnes.

At 10 o'clock, Dr. Campbell Morgan will speak at the Wesley Memorial tabernacle.

TRAIN HITS AUTO KILLING 2 WOMEN

Lee Knight and Pauline Crawford Die in Accident Near Columbus—Two Men Are Injured.

Columbus, Ga., March 1.—(Special.)—Two women, Lee Knight and Pauline Crawford, were killed and two men, C. F. Hollis and T. J. Downs, were injured when an automobile in which they were riding was struck by a Seaboard Air Line passenger train about 6 o'clock this afternoon.

The head of one of the women was severed completely just below the ears. The other was killed instantly by the impact of the car and the men on the front seat.

The women lived in the city, and the men also are residents of Columbus. The bodies of the women and injured men were brought to the city on the train that struck them.

The train was just emerging from a curving road across the track when the accident occurred.

FROM "WET" TO "DRY" MEMPHIS HAS CHANGED

Saloons Surrender Revenue Licenses and Go to Dispensing "Soft Drinks."

Memphis, Tenn., March 1.—Of seven hundred revenue licenses held in Memphis, 576 were surrendered to County Attorney General Z. N. Estes today when the "nuisance" act, passed at the last session of the state legislature, became operative, ending the day of the open saloon in Tennessee.

A number of the saloons, transformed into "soft drink" establishments, reopened tonight to serve non-alcoholic and other beverages coming within the requirement of the state prohibition laws of less than 2 percent alcohol.

Government licenses still in force, it is stated, are held by wholesale dealers, who will be permitted to continue shipments outside the state, drug stores and river steamers.

Without exception, according to police reports, the saloons closed their doors for the last time promptly at midnight last night and without the customary usually attending such an incident.

Under state laws now in force, the possession of a federal license is considered prima facie evidence that the holder is selling liquor.

Medial, March 1.—Commissioners of the Panama-Pacific exposition were granted an audience today by King Alfonso, who greeted them cordially. The commissioners will leave tomorrow for Toledo.

who is in touch with General Carranza, was not divulged, but representatives of Carranza, who understand the American viewpoint, were busy telegraphing the constitutionalist commander tonight bringing a change of attitude. Carranza's friends here believe he does not understand exactly the position of the United States with reference to all foreigners in Mexico and are seeking to impress upon him that when dealing with the United States he is, in effect, treating with the agent of Great Britain, as England, as has other powers, has practically entrusted to the Washington government the task of looking after its subjects in northern Mexico, particularly at points where there are no British consular representatives, as at Juarez.

That Carranza will realize this and change his attitude is the confident expression of his friends here. Washington officials said they did not interpret Carranza's notes as unfriendly. That Carranza really addressed his first communications about the Benton killing to American consuls in touch with General Villa was the generally accepted explanation here of his decision to submit information to Washington about Benton's death.

One of Practical Expediency.
The principle which the American government has been following in dealing with General Villa and others has been one of practical expediency. It has been to make representations quickly through American consuls to the authorities, civil or military, who happened to be in fact control of the region where the danger lay. Instances of this were the representations made about foreigners at Torreón and Tampico.

In some quarters Carranza's suggestion that he should be in all addressed was regarded as a bid for formal recognition. The American government, however, it was stated, on the highest level, held that recognition could be extended only through formal announcement and expressed intention rather than through any casual relationship. In dealing with General Carranza it is not the United States merely in consulting the man whom General Villa says he acknowledges as chief.

In the view of many officials here, Carranza desired by his notes to impress upon the United States the constitutionalist movement. His assertion of authority over Villa, which in many quarters has been doubted, is one of the phases of the situation which the developments of the next few days now were expected to clarify.

Direct to Carranza.
On the assumption that Carranza is the chief of the movement, it is more than likely now that if the American government, on behalf of Great Britain, seeks reparation for the Benton killing, representations will be made directly to him. Failure or inability of Carranza to comply would be regarded as having an important bearing on the relation of the United States government to the future of the constitutionalist movement. Officials here admit they are considerably perturbed by Carranza's attitude. They are, however, Villa and Carranza to give the world the facts on the Benton killing by declaring that the circumstances under which Benton's execution, although it already had much evidence.

BRYAN WIRES CARRANZA IN REGARD TO SPANIARD
Sonora, Mexico, March 1.—The state department at Washington today took up with General Carranza the difficulty of a Spanish subject named Rouse who had been arrested by constitutionalists. While the constitutionalist commander in chief has not answered that communication, it was said his reply would be similar to that made in the case of W. Benton, a British subject, which the Washington government was refused information on the ground that representation should have been made by English officials.

WARM FIGHT TODAY FOR WARD CONTROL

Face-Anderson Contest for Police Commissioner Now Threatens to Upset Precedent in General Council.

Final settlement of the status of ward delegations in the matter of controlling elections in council will be determined today when Marcello M. Anderson, seventh ward police commissioner, will be offered for re-election against R. T. Face, the ward choice.

With the unanimous endorsement of the seventh ward delegation through to Face and with the strong political prestige of commissioner Anderson in council, it is likely that the budget will be a salary increase.

The Face-Anderson fight threatens to upset a council precedent in the matter of elections of board members. In the past it has been the custom for ward delegations to control elections. When the seventh ward delegation failed to agree on the re-election of Commissioner Anderson, a caucus was called. Face was agreed on as the candidate and supporters of Fred Lester, who was the first choice of the delegation, threw their support to the choice.

Indications point to a lively fight in council. Alderman Jesse Armstrong, leader of the seventh ward delegation, will nominate Face. Commissioner Anderson is certain to be placed in the race by some council member or members not affiliated with seventh ward politics.

Alderman Armstrong issued a statement to the effect that he will regard with effort to thwart the will of the seventh ward delegation as the council member who should follow precedent and vote for the ward nominee.

Not only do Face and Anderson vie for the seventh ward nomination, but also for the nomination of the police commissioner. Face is a candidate for the nomination of the police commissioner and Anderson is a candidate for the nomination of the police commissioner.

Commissioner Anderson was elected by council in December to represent the seventh ward on the police board. At the time of his election he was holding a place on the school board. He resigned from the school board to accept the nomination of the police commissioner.

Anderson's election was a triumph over the opposition of Councilor Cole and Hull. The junior member of the board had promised support to Fred Lester, but Cole and Hull had secured support for Anderson.

Anderson's friends are certain that he will be re-elected. They believe that he will also be elected to the police board.

"UNCLE" ODELL DIES; HAD TOMBSTONE READY, 15 YEARS

Gameville Ga. March 1—(Special)—Uncle Andrew J. Odell, one of the oldest residents of Hall county, and a beloved citizen and confederate veteran, died at his home on West avenue yesterday from the result of an accident sustained about six weeks ago having been knocked down by a runaway horse.

Mr. Odell was the father of thirteen children, nine of which survive. His wife, who preceded him to the grave by a number of years, is survived by his sons, John, Robert, W. C. May, John, Vickers, Joe, Flinger, R. W. Barrett and J. I. Adams, and by his daughters, Mrs. M. C. Odell, Mrs. Pauline Odell, and the remains were interred in Alta Vista cemetery this afternoon.

Mr. Odell had his monument prepared over fifteen years ago as he wanted it to stand, and had had it set in the ground. He had a blank left for the purpose of having the date of his death added.

Shreveport, La. March 1—A verdict of not guilty was returned today in the case of Harvey Little and his wife, Anna Bond Little, the former charged with murdering J. J. Van Cleve and Mrs. Little as accessories before and after the fact.

Within a few hours after the jury gave its decision a protest meeting was held in the city. The citizens called for the immediate release of the couple.

AMERICAN RECOGNITION FOR REGIME IN HAITI

Washington, March 1—Haiti's new government, with General Latorch, president, will be recognized immediately by the United States. This was announced tonight by Secretary Bryan who has had the subject under consideration since reports indicated that the new regime was in complete control of virtually all parts of the republic.

President Zamen, formerly was governor of the new department of the north. He was minister of war when the republic was in its infancy. He was elected president in January and President Oreste had about a German ship Zamen, with his brother Charles, marched into Port-au-Prince at the head of a corps of 400 men and proclaimed himself president. He called the national assembly together on February 8 and was elected president.

General Daximus Theodore in the meeting had set up a government at Cap-Haitien. He fled, however, at the approach of Zamen's troops and now supports the new regime from the Santo Domingo border with a small following.

GEORGE NOT IMPROPER TOWARD GIRL CITIZENS

Ithaca N. Y. March 1—A report reached here tonight that judges appointed by a committee of the National Association of Junior Republics to investigate charges that William R. George was guilty of improper conduct toward a girl citizen of the George Junior Republic at Freeville, N. Y. had rendered a decision acquitting him but disapproving the parental attitude he assumed as head of the institution.

The judges were Joseph H. Choate, Supreme Court Justice Samuel Seabury of New York, and Miss Lillian Wald a social worker.

To Build New Factory.

Rome Ga. March 1—(Special)—The Rome Chamber of Commerce is completing a successful campaign for the purpose of raising $200,000 in bonds to secure the rebuilding of the Rome furniture factory. This is a $100,000 concern, giving employment to one hundred men and was destroyed by fire a few weeks ago.

Memorial to Wireless Heroes

MEMORIAL FOUNTAIN TO WIRELESS HEROES

A fountain with granite seats and a cenotaph and surrounding grounds will soon be erected at the base of the tower of the barge office in Battery park New York, as a memorial to Jack Phillips the wireless operator who perished on the Titanic and to six other wireless heroes. Many monuments have been erected in memory of the victims of the Titanic but this memorial is especially interesting because funds were donated in small amounts by wireless operators of the world.

W. G. Dunwoody Named.

Rome, Ga. March 1—(Special)—Judge Moses Wright, of the Rome judicial circuit, has announced the appointment of W. G. Dunwoody of Lafayette as probation officer for Walker county. Walker is the fourth county in the state to secure such an officer, the other three being Fulton, Chatham and Floyd.

2 HELD FOR DEATH OF DENNIS DIXON

Patterson Man Shot Dead on Waycross Street—C. G. Powell and Mose Steedley Under Arrest.

Waycross Ga. March 1—(Special)—Following investigation by the coroner's jury into the killing of Dennis Dixon of Patterson, on the Mary street side of the Grand theater at an early hour today, two white men, well known in south Georgia, were ordered held for the crime. They are C. G. Powell and Mose Steedley of Bristol, Powell, up to a few years ago resided in Lawrence county.

The body of Dixon was found by Officers Padgett and Gardner and with-in a block of the body Powell was arrested, having on him at the time a thirty eight pistol with which it is charged that he killed Dixon. Circumstances indicate that the slayer was holding Dixon's right arm when he pulled his pistol and shot him, the bullet entering the right side and piercing the heart across the street was found a loaded cartridge and one empty shell of the same caliber as Powell's pistol.

Innocent, Says Powell. "I am innocent of the crime," stated Powell in his cell today. "I did not know what I was arrested for until the officers told me the purpose. I had nothing against Dixon, although we had a little row on last night's late train when coming into Waycross. It is true we had a fuss a year ago about a 50-cent piece I used matching Dixon's. I was charged with a gun and I had nothing to give it back. We had a few words, but nothing serious."

Powell was taken to the scene of the shooting and shown the body of Dixon. He declared he had never seen the man before.

All three men involved in the case came here drinking and separated near the Grand theater when Steedley wanted to go to a hotel. When arrested Steedley was at the Virde hotel, where he registered under the name of C. G. Miller. His explanation of this is that he did not know what he was doing. It is alleged that just before Dixon was shot Steedley told Powell to fix him and that he was very angry at the place Dixon was found not long after the killing.

Had Fight on Train. On the Atlantic Coast Line train it is said Powell made several attempts to shoot and cut Dixon suggesting at one time that the conductor stop the train and let them fight it out. Reports from Okefenokee state that shortly before 10 o'clock Powell made an attempt to shoot Dixon through a window but was prevented from doing so. Never mind Powell is quoting as saying "I'll kill him later."

Powell is 45 years old and has a wife and three children living near Bristol. Dixon was 25 years old, unmarried and a native of the county and a highly respected Pierce family. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Dixon and two sons, were taken to Patterson tonight and will be buried tomorrow. Relatives of Powell are being notified of the death today and came here this afternoon.

INTERURBAN RAILWAYS PLANNED FOR NASHVILLE

Nashville Tenn. March 1—A network of electric interurban railroads connecting many cities and towns in Kentucky, Alabama and Tennessee with Nashville is the plan of the capital city behind the new Nashville traction company which has already secured a franchise over the streets of this city and has begun laying out the streets to lay the tracks.

The announcement of the interstate scope of the company was made tonight by W. J. Steger, attorney for the Nashville traction company.

He says that it was primarily for the purpose of the interurban system that the rights were secured over the streets of Nashville. The first of the proposed interurbans have already been selected. Mr. Steger says, being that this city will commence in the near future.

The company has decided to erect a power plant here for the running of the interurban cars. Mr. Steger states.

SALE OF A, B. & A. ROAD MAY STOP TAMPA LINE

Thomasville Ga. March 1—(Special)—The Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad has said that it has been ordered to stop the Tampa line which runs from Thomasville to Tampa as a question of that many Thomasville people would like to have answered.

This line has been surveyed and a portion of it built out of Tampa, but owing to financial reasons it was never completed. The necessary right-of-way was secured here and all arrangements made for the entrance of the line into the city and there was much disappointment when it failed to reach here.

With the opening of the Panama canal the completion of this line would mean great things in a business way to the owners of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic and it would also mean much to Thomasville and every citizen would like to see it come here.

HE SPENT FROM CONVICTION.

There died in Philadelphia a few days ago a man, Joseph Fels, who, next to Henry George, has probably done more to promote the single tax theory than any worker for that cause in history.

Fels was a millionaire. Several years ago he visited Atlanta, and in an interview with The Constitution said very calmly that were he minded he still could keep on piling millions.

But acquisition pure and simple was not his creed. He wanted to be of service to his age. And he conceived that he could meet that end in no manner more effectual than by spreading the propaganda of the single tax.

The single tax may or may not be a panacea. As yet, like every other revolutionary system, it has been found faulty in practice.

But the point is that America is growing men who are willing to spend, and spend lavishly, for unselfish ideas. And Fels gave way thousands each year to the materialization of the dream he kept ever before his vision.

The ideas he sowed will undoubtedly go marching on. To what extent is subject for surmise only. But the seed so persistently and widely planted must yield a harvest. And for better or worse, it will be a harvest of no mean dimensions.

It is significant, also, that Fels was a Jew and proud of it. Jews have been trail-blazers before in history. Who can tell that this little man with the soft voice and the hurried manner may not go down to posterity as an evangel of a new economic order?

NOT EVEN THE COLONEL.

Congressman Caleb Powers, of Kentucky, told the City club of Boston the other night that the one way to forestall democratic victory in the approaching presidential campaign was for the republicans to nominate Roosevelt.

We have, as must needs be, a wholesome and right hearty respect for the political prowess of the Colonel, and any man who underestimates the force with which he appeals to the American imagination is a poor politician.

But the Colonel or any one else will, to quote the vernacular, have to "go some" to defeat Woodrow Wilson and the militant democracy in the next presidential election. Of course, much may happen between now and 1916.

The democrats may register mistakes, Wilson's health may fail, his present undoubted popularity may undergo decline. But judging from present indications, the administration is going to be well-nigh invincible.

Certainly it has left few loopholes through which the Colonel might creep. The Colonel is pre-eminently successful as a crusader. That is where he makes his one big impression with the American people. Wilson is not so strong in that regard. But his strongest role undoubtedly is in the line of executive achievement.

If a contest were here today between the two there would be little doubt of the outcome. Wilson would sweep the field. In the meantime, the president is playing a safe game. His one source of peril is the Mexican situation, and there is every probability that even with trouble in that republic the country would rally solidly to Wilson, remembering how the man has sought to avoid a crisis.

Altogether, the outlook is bright for democracy. Prophecy at present is hazardous, but at least the political horizon shows few portents favoring the Colonel.

PATTERSON A BUILDER.

John H. Patterson, of Dayton, Ohio, one of the big men of America, spent several days in Atlanta during the past week. Mr. Patterson's errand was one of business, but he found time to inspect the city and take stock of its civic assets and liabilities.

Mr. Patterson's was the personality that stepped into the breach when the flood came at Dayton. Men were searching right and left for a solution to the problem of chaos.

Solid and seemingly permanent institutions were tumbled in the dust. Initiative and resource appeared paralyzed.

Patterson came to the rescue. He organized relief corps. He found a way out of the immediate destination.

And his work set Dayton on its feet. He fathered the form of municipal government that is a combination of business management and commission rule.

Mr. Patterson's conception of municipal government is that a city should be run like a business. Arguing from that premise, he prevailed on the leaders of Dayton to retain a business man of proved high ability as a city manager.

They agreed to pay him salary enough to make his endeavors worth while. They gave him authority, but also hedged him with an advisory board, which can roughly be construed as an adaptation of commission government.

Mr. Patterson says the plan is succeeding in Dayton. If it does there is no reason why it should not succeed elsewhere, but making allowance for difference in size, the problems of all cities are very much of the same texture.

Mr. Patterson is a type of man of which America has a tolerably big supply. They are the ones who blaze trails out of predicaments and hearten the despondent in time of crisis.

ABOUT WATER POWER.

President Wilson and his cabinet have been busily considering the policy of the administration in the matter of federal control of water power on the public domain and on navigable streams.

So far it appears that the decision is to lease sites to private corporations, the property to revert to the government after a specified term of years.

This program is not inflexible. It is put forward simply as a tentative step and is subject to revision.

Doubt has been expressed if private capital would proceed to expensive developments upon the basis outlined. With federal regulation of rates and eventual federal ownership, the tenure would have to stretch over a considerable term of years to make the investment profitable.

It is well that the president and his advisers are receptive and not dogmatic in this matter.

What is now done may fix a precedent for many years. And considering the paramount bearing water power is to have on the industrial development of the country, the subject looms large in importance. The political feature must also be remembered. Conservation of water power is one of the issues foremost in the public mind, and any technical or real blunder is likely quickly to be seized upon by the opposition.

Fortunately, there are clear-headed men in the house and senate, as well as in the cabinet, who will not let the situation get too far out of hand, and who will not let courage radicalism or anything approaching fanaticism.

For the water power of the country to be tied up by onerous exactions would be a calamity. Hardly less disastrous would be a method of handling that turned over these great national assets to conscienceless private greed.

Congress faces a dilemma that will require all its statesmanship, not forgetting that we must expect to see injected the ancient and somewhat unprofitable controversy between state rights and the supremacy of the central government.

The rich are guilty of the folly of worry over the income tax when they might give it all back and be exempt.

One may imagine how the man looking for a job enjoys the spectacle of John D. Rockefeller shoveling snow for exercise.

Mrs. Pankhurst says she is willing to meet King George and talk matters over; but George's crown is on pretty straight, and he isn't taking any chances.

Just from Georgia

The Life of the Fields for You. This word where the seasons sever. Rings o'er the meadows true: "Forever and forever. The life of the fields for you!" Here be your ample table spread: Read your right to your daily bread.

"Sure-Enough" Spring Poem. "If you are willing to print a sure-enough poem on Spring, this here is it," writes "The Singer of the Wiregrass."

"It is the time for Spring. As faithful I do state. For 'ere the chisel 'raps' him. Out yonder, diggin' him. An' candidates are swingin' The hinges off the gate; An' trains with jugs for Drytown. Are most amazin' late.

"It is the time for Spring; We've had a blizzard spell! Alas, some snow as like you know. Upon the houtsops fell. There is a sign of chills in town. In fact, some are not well. What we will do with 'em. Is more 'til 'em can tell."

Funny Honors. "The Village Doctor" has introduced Bert Walker to a character not altogether unknown in other communities: "Old Bill Shiffletts signed his name to a petition the other day asking the railroad company to run a motor train through our town. Old Bill wrote a big 'Hon.' in front of his name. There, said he, as he handed back the fountain pen and swelled up, 'that name will cause the president of the road to sit up and notice things. Old Bill was once a candidate for janitor at the station-house and ever since then he has put 'Hon.' in front of his name."

"You des lak' folks," de big Sun say.— "All pulled up anyhow; I'll melt yo' footsakes away." An' whar is de Snow Man now?

As George Sings It. It is said in England, and Blythe were once chums, in Washington, so George makes this free comment in the Houston Post: "Sam Blythe writes in the Saturday Evening Post that he has been on the water wagon three years. Old Bill was once a candidate to parade his sorrows before the public in that way for?"

His Hopeless Case. To a troublesome town wrenner prophet a Georgia editor says: "If snow comes as you have predicted we'll never forgive you, and if it don't—you're a liar!"

Spring Waits the Master. If they should cease to sing— These poets of the thrilling theme of "Spring," Let the note rest—through grace we ne'er deny it. A mockingbird might try it!

Then would there be a song To make the wild flowers all the ways along? To start the gray doves o'er green meadows winging. The Master would be singing!

Courtesy to the "Ston Woman." This Gentleman in the advertising columns of The Lewiston Sentinel: "Owing to the fact that the management believes that the stout woman who took the wrong baby buggy from the store of the theater did so as a result of an official action has been taken to recover the buggy. She will kindly appreciate this courtesy by returning same and securing the one left in its place."

A New Georgia Weekly. The Chattooga County Times is a new venture in weekly journalism, by the Menk Publishing company, at Meigs, Ga. James Hampton Lee, editor. It has considerable advertising patronage and fairly covers the news field through its county correspondents.

Another Bonaparte. (From The New York Evening Sun.) If ever France should want another Bonaparte to preside over its destinies there is no man in the world who, fate permitting, will be on hand to answer the call. He has been faithfully named by the kingsman, among the customary sheet of names that he may choose to hang upon the wall of his study. The name is Napoleon. A few little boys in the military career of waiting for the call that is fairly sure never to come to him. He will either be a general or other of the few occupations open by convention to men of his rank. He will be of real interest to himself or anybody else. His chief duty in life will be to marry, and there may come into the world yet another little Napoleon to tread the same dull round.

The South—The Eldorado Of American Adventure.

By Richard H. Edmonds. Editor Manufacturers Record. (From The Baltimore Sun.) The thirteen southern states have a population of 33,000,000. In 1880 the United States had a population of 50,000,000. At that time, and very justly so, the United States was regarded as one of the greatest and richest nations the world has ever known. Today, with 32,000,000 people, is in many respects very far ahead of the United States of 1880, with 50,000,000.

The people of the south have $200,000,000 more in real estate in the banks and trust companies of this section than the people of the United States had in similar institutions in 1880.

The south is mining almost twice as much coal as the United States then mined. It is producing four times as much petroleum, its output last year having been 100,000,000 barrels, against 26,000,000 barrels for the United States in 1880.

The south has $700,000,000 more capital invested in manufacturing than the United States had in 1880, and the value of its agricultural output exceeds by some hundreds of millions of dollars the total agricultural output of the United States in 1880.

The south has far more capital invested in cotton manufacturing than the United States had in 1880. Every cotton mill in the south is about twice as much cotton as was then consumed in the mills of the country.

The value of exports from southern ports to the United States in 1880, the year in which the south expanded last year upon the maintenance of its public schools $95,000,000, or $12,000,000 more than the United States with its 50,000,000 people expended upon public education in 1880.

Comparisons of this kind showing how far ahead the south is in many respects of the United States in 1880 could be given almost without limit. These are sufficient to show the general situation. It is a little difficult for us sometimes to quite grasp the fact that in bank deposits, in industrial pursuits and in agriculture, as well as in public education, the south of today ranks so far ahead of the United States in 1880, because the south has not yet had time to accumulate vast wealth out of its investments in industry and agriculture of recent years. It is, however, rapidly piling up wealth which, within the next few years, will amaze the country by its magnitude.

In studying the future of the south and planning for financial and railroad operations in connection therewith, it would be well for the facts to be borne in mind. But these statistics, amazing as they are, are not half so interesting for the story they tell of what has been done as for the light they throw upon the future. Every careful student of the material resources and development of the south knows that this section, notwithstanding the progress made, has scarcely begun its development when compared with the growth which will be seen within the next few years. The south, it is estimated, has been really merely the clearing of the land and the sowing of the seed for the great harvest which this section is now preparing to reap.

The south has only begun to utilize its raw materials. It has only begun to open up its coal mines, its marble and granite quarries, and its iron-making resources. It has only commenced within the last few years to get back to that agricultural character which existed prior to the war, when there was a well-rounded agricultural diversity. It is only within the last few years that the central south, from Maryland to the Mississippi river, has been raising as much corn and live stock as it did in 1860, when the population of this section was only one-third of what it now is.

For forty years or more the south was passing through a wilderness. Its people had lost by virtue of the war the ability to carry on the old-fashioned agriculture which existed prior to 1860. The capital was lacking for reviving the industrial activities which between 1860 and 1869 caused a more rapid percentage of growth in every line of manufacturing than in any other section of the country. The amazing agricultural and industrial progress of the decade ended with 1880 is indicated in the fact that during that period the increase in the wealth of the south exceeded by more than one billion dollars the increase in the wealth of the rest of the New England and middle states.

The engineering and industrial traits, which from colonial days down to the time when the invention of the cotton gin fastened slavery on the south, were beginning to reassert themselves between 1860 and 1869. This industrial and engineering trend of the people of the south has again, during the last twenty-five years, been reasserting itself, in the north-west, in the industrial tract of character that the tremendous momentum of this section is due.

The statement sometimes heard that the great development of this section in the last twenty-five years is due to an infusion of outside blood and capital seriously misrepresents the facts. No man who has that impression can rightly forecast the progress of the coming years, because the industrial situation from the north-west is a capitalist's standpoint.

Since 1865 the central south has sent beyond its borders by emigration into other sections, more than 3,500,000 of its white people and more than 1,500,000 into Texas and Oklahoma. The comparatively few persons from other sections who have come into the south, when given the fullest measure of credit for what they have achieved, cannot in the smallest degree offset the tremendous loss of energy and power of the 5,000,000 people that went out of the south by reason of the poverty of opportunity following the war and the days of reconstruction.

Now the trend is success to the south. Men who have made a success of the other sections are making in the home-home call of the native land and many of them are returning. Many from other sections are beginning their southward march in order to share in the amazing development which they see to come about in this section. They want to be part and parcel of it and to reap some of the harvest. Thus the whole condition has completely changed. And instead of having to make a heroic effort to keep his own people at home and to draw men and money from other sections, as was the case for twenty-five or thirty years, the south now finds abundant employment at home for its own people. It finds tens of thousands from the north-west annually moving southward and it finds that the capitalist is searching out in every direction opportunities for investment in the south. The promoter seeking capital for a new enterprise no longer has to argue with the capitalist that the south is a good place in which to invest money. All that he has to do is to prove that his own particular enterprise is a good one. The outside capitalist is fully impressed that the south is the most richly endowed section of the world and that it is "the coming Eldorado of American adventure."

Those who would study the future of the south with a view to ascertaining something of the rapidity of its development, should fully understand what the old south was doing in material activities before 1869, what it has done since that time, and the poverty following it and what the south has achieved since then; and to these facts should be added knowledge of the uniqueness of the south's resources for the support of a dense population. Not until they have done this will they be able to form even a slight conception of the rapidity of material development and wealth accumulation throughout the south during the next ten or fifteen years.

The Great Trials of History

THE TRIAL OF ADOLPH LUETGRET.

On the night of May 1, 1897, there disappeared from her home, Hermitage avenue and Division boulevard, Chicago, Mrs. Adolph Luetgret, the wife of a sausage manufacturer of that city. It was one of those mysterious cases which had baffled the most expert police and detectives in its solution. The husband was arrested for his part to save himself from execution, for many times seemed to point to his guilt. Eleven jurymen wanted to hang him for the crime after hearing all the evidence, but the verdict finally decided upon was imprisonment for life.

The task that was set for the prosecution was not an easy one. Mrs. Luetgret's body, it was established almost beyond question, had been almost entirely consumed in dissolved potash in one of the coloring vats of her husband's sausage factory.

In reducing the body of his victim the murderer had overlooked four vitally incriminating details; two gold rings worn by his wife, the complete removal of the fragments of the body, a bit of peculiarly shaped porcelain tooth, and failure to notify the police of the woman's disappearance.

The rings were identified as the property of the wife, the family dentist, identified the tooth, expert osteologists were able to place the bones discovered, but of course with no conclusive proof that they were those of the murdered woman.

Luetgret and his wife had not lived happily together. It was an ancient wife and she had been employed for a day as the husband's wife was living. It was claimed that she was tired of her and desired a younger and more attractive woman.

When it came to the trial of the husband, the task was a most difficult one. The body of the victim had been practically consumed, and yet it was absolutely necessary not only to prove that she was dead, but that she had met her death at the hands of her husband as charged in the indictment.

During his progress Diederich Beckness, a brother of Mrs. Luetgret, testified that he had searched for days for the body of his sister's remains, but had found none. Luetgret and questioned him, and he testified that he had returned and had wished to expect the disfigure that must attend the disclosure of the facts.

It was Frank Black who gave the most damaging testimony as to how he met several trips at the request of the prisoner to a drug store on the night of May 1, and each time upon his return Luetgret would take the package he brought and would bar the door to the main factory and busy himself in the engine room.

It was shown at the trial that the accused had planned most cunningly. He had purchased three months before the crime about 200 pounds of crude potash. Late in April, from a wholesale druggist. Late in April, under the prisoner's direction, two Poles broke the potash into small fragments and later in the same day had assisted in placing the broken potash in the middle vat. That night the potash was turned on and the potash completely dissolved.

The accused man was not permitted to testify in his own behalf at the first trial, but during the second he was enabled to relate the story of his life. He vigorously denied the guilt and on several occasions actually wept. He was a stolid German and by many conceded to be endowed with wonderful mental and physical energy.

The conviction of Luetgret did not establish beyond question the public mind of the conviction, however, and the finding of the court, the accepted version of Mrs. Luetgret's murder must be taken as the true history of a mysterious death.

Luetgret lived less than two years of his life, dying in the Joliet penitentiary on July 27, 1899, leaving no confession. His attorney, Lawrence Harmon, at the time of the coroner's inquest, had just completed arrangements to have the records in the case prepared for the supreme court.

Luetgret's trial was no doubt one of the most sensational ever held in Illinois. At his death his wife, and O'Malley held a post-mortem examination, disclosing the fact that he had died from fatty degeneration of the heart.

Senator William S. West.

(From The Albany Herald.) Hon. William S. West, of Valdosta, legislator and man of affairs, experienced lawyer and eminently successful director of important business enterprises, was yesterday afternoon named by Governor Slaton to succeed the late Senator Bacon in the upper branch of congress, pending the election which will soon be ordered.

Colonel West is a real South Georgian. As his county touches the Florida line. But as his county touches the Florida line. More important still, he is a broad-minded citizen, knows the needs and problems of his state, and is in harmony with the administration of the governor.

Colonel West served several terms in the two branches of the Georgia legislature, and was president of the senate during one term. He has been conspicuously successful as a business man, and has accumulated an independent fortune.

The people of South Georgia thought that the appointment should come to this section of the state, and The Herald believes the governor's choice will give general satisfaction. He considered the claims of a number of distinguished South Georgians whose names were presented by their friends and admirers, and none will deny that Colonel West's qualifications measure up fully to those of the gentlemen who were his rivals in the friendly contest before the governor.

Senator West will reflect credit on the great state whose representative he will be in the highest council of the nation.

Snow in the Cotton Fields!

"Ki, Ki, Ki," laughed a dorky. "Ole King Cotton beat at last! His mighty white, but ole King Snow de whites!"

From his icy throne in the polar zone, The Snow King called to his bugler, "Blow! Blow, North Wind, blow in shrillest tone The call to arms my followers know."

Then the North Wind whistled loud and clear, And answering to that trumpet blast, Came mustering here from far and near, Strange phantom horsemen, riding fast.

And spears of ice in ice-clad hands, With steel-like splendor gleam and glow, Oh, would the bands from Arctic lands, That follow the lead of the King of Snow.

Then spake the King—and laughed, "Ho! ho! I'm monarch here and my Arctic band my seal On land and sea, and well we know No life is left. Death cannot feel!"

"Then why stay here when our work is done? No thing to stay in this realm of ours. What say to a trip to the Land of the Sun? Hurrah! for a raid thro' the land of flowers!"

"And, speak it low, a grudge I owe. 'Tis the unavenged (and unforgotten), A rival has the King of Snow— I ride this raid to meet King Cotton!"

"He rules that land with a despot's hand. His ermine sweeps from mount to sea; But 'tis his foe and my Arctic band my seal And his snow white head shall bow to me!"

"Then hark! oh, hark! the bugle call! The North Wind sounds his reveille! Frost, Sleet and Hail, my followers all— We camp tonight by the Tennessee!"

"Then on to tawny old Savannah, There's royal sport, my raiders bold! Throw snow-wreaths on the broad banana, Ice-jewels on the orange gold!"

"But thy rose-red lips, oh, Flower Queen, Shall be for me"—and he laughed in gleam, And a sparkling crown-frost diadem: "I'll give thee a mantle of sleet and snow, And a sparkling crown-frost diadem!"

"I'll hang thy bow with tapestries, The pictured scenes of fairy land, And silver-wrought embroideries, And chandeliers by rainbows spanned."

"Oh, strings of pearls, and crusted gems, We'll give the flowers for kisses and sweet, The diamonds fit for diadems And robes of ermine to their feet!"

Away! away! 'tis a hurricane ride! And the King laughed loud, peal after peal. For the river stood still when he neared its side, And earth turned rock where he struck his heel!

The trembling trees of leaves in strips, And giving them coats of mail instead, And shining spears with silver tips, And snow-plumes for each crested head.

Al, Rose Queen! On her head there lay A diadem 'neath which she bowed, The Snow King kissed her life away, Her bridal robe has been her shroud.

Poor old King Cotton: His foes at last Have found him here in his native plain, With glittering shackles they bind him fast And load him down with icy chains.

And the North Wind plucked at his white, white beard, And bore him in triumph his hoary hair, And his ermine robe on the ground appeared. By the side of the snow, as it rested there.

So mean and sullied and dingy a thing, That he bowed his head, and he bowed it low. "Ha! ha! ha! 'tis Cotton King? No rival now has the King of Snow!" —MRS. E. W. HUNTE. Eatonton, Ga., February 25, 1914.

BUENOS AYRES.

Buenos Ayres is the largest city in the world in which a man has to speak Spanish while campaigning for office. This does not mean that Buenos Ayres is in Spain. On the contrary, it means that it is located so far from Spain that the latter could never get at it very readily. South America is full of fine large cities which would be several sizes smaller and about two hundred years behind time if they had been close enough to Spain to catch the Spanish idea of progress.

The Buenos Ayres is the capital of the Argentine republic, the metropolis of South America and the white man's hope as far as roast beef is concerned. It has 1,500,000 inhabitants which only leaves about 5,000,000 for the rest of the nation. It uses the Spanish language, French styles and the latest American brand of hustle. In 1870 it only had 185,000 people and was a collection of fever in the midst of an imposing mud puffer. It is now a well drained, healthy city, full of magnificent buildings, healthy city, full of magnificent buildings, parks and squares. Buenos Ayres is much handsomer than its North American rivals and claims to be more up-to-date, getting the new grand opera before New York hears them and having a newspaper which is published in a place with endless acres for reporters to roam in, and the magazines and the mail have not yet invaded the humble homes of the city to any extent, and if they did they would crowd out the occupants—for lack of the imposing residences and bath in alternate years.

The principal business of Buenos Ayres is to transfer cattle and grain from behind it to the vast fleets of steamships in front of it. It is one of the great ports of the world and its citizens travel to Paris and London for the new fashions with great regularity. Some of them have even heard of New York. There are more millionaires in the city than there are anywhere south of Wall Street, and nowhere else can such

CHARLEY FRANK

WILL BE BACK

Doped to Lead Little Rock

in Southern League, in 1915 Season.

The Real Test.

THE TEST of a man could not be better exemplified than in the careers of those of his athletes who are pilots. Pullen, one of the drivers in the Grand Prix race at Santo Monica Saturday, showed his manhood, when he risked his life by using a faster speeder to one side, wrecking it in order to avoid striking an aged veteran who happened to walk onto the track. That took real courage.

Luck Changes.

RALPH DE PALMAS' luck has changed. The Italian could not win a race of any kind for something happening to his machine just as he had the race in his grasp. But things are breaking better for him and the intrepid driver, taking bigger chances than ever, is now winning important races wherever they are held. His recent victories were the crowning efforts of his hazardous career.

If They Make It.

THE FEDERALISTS can be considered a factor in the baseball world during the present campaign. Many of the stars of the majors have been found signing with the new organization, there will be no doubt that they will get their salaries. But if the Federalists make a go of it during the present campaign, there will be no need of worrying about the stars signing with them in 1915.

After Five Stars.

THE STOCK of the Federal League will take a week or more to get into the hands of the five stars that they are now after. It is not until the new organization is fully organized, Sam Crawford, Mike Doolan, Hal Chase and Harry Sawyer, that the Federalists will then be in position to make quite a bigger stir than they have already made.

Earlier Start.

THE BALL league is going to get the jump on all the other leagues around this section of the country. This schedule calls for a start on April 6, a week earlier than the start of any league in the country. With eight cities in the circuit this season and a district extending over 1,000 miles to have the best year in its history.

Busy Sounds.

THE LETHARGY of the winter months has ended. Every big league club is at its training camp and during the present week, every Southern league club will have its full roster of players on the field working on the parks. By the end of the week every player will be on hand and at the start of next week some real progress will be made.

In Coming Back.

CHARLEY FRANK is going to make his re-entry into the Southern league and the old Atlanta Braves are going to take the place of Montgomery as again been revived. The report from New Orleans is that the Constitution is to the effect that Frank is going to manage the Little Rock team during the season of 1915.

A Tight Race.

THE LOCAL prep school basketball has developed into one of the prettiest fights that has ever been staged in Atlanta. The contest, which is scheduled for the first eight games of the season, has lost their last two and now have a slim chance of making the team with Donald Fraser only half a game behind. The postponed games that will be played this week will decide the pennant.

Can Hit Some.

SOME ATLANTA boxing fans who saw the Mandot-Whitney fight at New Orleans recently are back with the information that all that talk of Mandot being a knockout artist is not the time it takes to hit it. He hit Mandot, said one of the fans, and Mandot scored a knockout, but Mandot, through experience, covered, ran into a clinch and kept working until a mighty bad way. Had the round gone half a minute longer, the fight would have ended in Whitney's favor in the third.

Amateurs Active.

BASEBALL has gotten into the blood of everyone in Atlanta. The amateurs of the city are working hard, and organization meetings for the coming season are being planned for the near future. Strong teams and stronger leagues are promised for this season than ever before.

Now Helped.

THE SNOW of last Wednesday was just the thing for the ball field at Ponce de Leon. It has cleared the outfield and all the territory that the players will use in better shape this spring. The snow has been in use. When the players get out this week they will be surprised at the looks of things.

Sunday School League

Will Organize Today;

Applications Wanted

The Sunday School baseball league will meet at 9 o'clock on Saturday night for the purpose of organizing for the 1914 season. Representatives from all of last year's teams are asked to be on hand, and new teams desiring to enter the league are also asked to have a representative at the meeting.

FIVE BILLIARD EXPERTS

WILL MEET IN TOURNEY

Chicago, March 1.—Five of the world's greatest billiard players will meet this week in a tournament at the Pilsener, which will begin Monday night and continue through the week. Games are planned for every evening and afternoon except Monday and Saturday, when only night games will be played. The five stars are William Hoppe, the champion, whose record is 12-0; the favorite in the meet; Koji Yamada, the Japanese, who has the distinction of having beaten the champion; George Slosson and Calvin Demarest. Hoppe and Yamada will open the tournament on Monday night at 8 o'clock, afternoon Slosson and Yamada and Tuesday night Demarest and Sutton. The prize will be a purse of $500 and the receipts.

CHANCE'S TEAM BEGINS

TRAINING IN HOUSTON

Houston, Texas, March 1.—Twenty-eight members of the new American league baseball team reached Houston today to begin spring training. Most of them came in charge of Arthur Irwin, scout; Charles Frank, L. Chance, and Mike Morgan. Frank, L. Chance, and Morgan accompanied by Mrs. Chance, also arrived from their winter home in Glenwood, N. C.

Among the players here are Maisel, Whipple, Hamilton, Beckenbaugh, Fleet, Gossett and a number of recruits. Several pitchers now at Hot Springs, Ark., will join the squad later.

EDITOR'S NOTE.—This is the twenty-second of a series of articles that will be carried in The Constitution, introducing to Atlanta fans the members of the 1914 Cracker team. The complete record and history of each of the candidates will be printed in this form.

Decatur, Ill., March 1.—(Special.)—Sylvester S. "Steamship" Flanagan was purchased outright for $500 from the Indianapolis club in 1913, when this city regained its franchise in the Three-I league. Flanagan had been drafted by Indianapolis from the Boston club in 1912, but was sold because of a surplus amount of material on hand, under the American association season after the American association season.

That year Flanagan batted .320, leading the team and standing third among those who had played 100 or more games in the league. He was in every game of the season. His fielding record for that year showed 100 errors with thirteen errors. Last year he bettered his first year's record in the fielding department, making 92 errors with 352, being the real leader of the league, as the only pair who were in only half the number of games.

Flanagan is a left-handed batter, and is generally admitted to be the best judge of a pitched ball on this circuit. He never goes after a bad one, and makes his hit on a ball that is considered a place hitter, and the day that Flanagan does not get his two hits or more is an unusual occurrence.

The Decatur sun field is a bad one, affecting both left and center. For that reason, Flanagan's batting average has never prospered, as he is a first-class judge of fly balls and pick-off balls, and his shoestrings is his regular pastime.

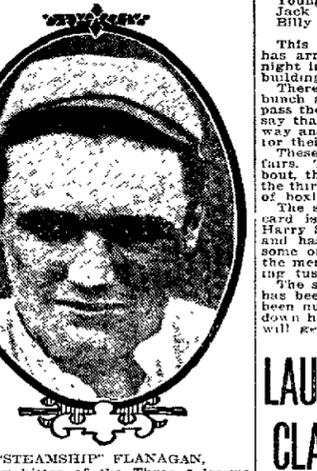

Flanagan is a big fellow, walking with a slight stoop, which makes him appear shorter than he is. He is a shoulder-buster, and is never talking more than necessary, but he is one of the most dependable men in the game in a pinch.

Flanagan for several years has been on the Olympic college circuit, and has been taking a course in dentistry and medicine there. His parents live on a farm. Flanagan has played in the west on several clubs in the past, and has been a member of the country. He has been the Decatur club's biggest asset when it comes to hitting home runs, and his record here is that Atlanta is getting more than they are paying for if the price is no more than $500. Flanagan and Lynch, both left-handers, takes from the club their two best hitters last year. The deal is made only for the reason that Lynch is still developing, and these players being high-priced and anxious to go elsewhere where they can draw bigger salaries. Practically all the high-priced men on the club are being sold for the purpose of making up a deficit which in the last two years has amounted to nearly $3,000.

Flanagan is more commonly known in Decatur as Pat, although he is recognized by old teammates from the west as Steamship, S. S. being his first initials. Lynch and Flanagan have always been pals on the local club and ought to go well together in a new company. Flanagan is unmarried and aged 28 years.

According to remarks made by Murphy in New York city at the time of the National league schedule meetings, he appears to be satisfied with the impression that he owned 53 per cent of the Chicago club stock, which could be bought at the rate of $10,000 per share.

"STEAMSHIP" FLANAGAN, leading batter of the Three I league last season, who will try for an outfield berth on the Crackers the coming season.

Frank Chance says "Baseball's Stormy Petrel" Never Owned 53 Per Cent of Chicago Cub Stock.

New York, March 1.—Although the deal whereby Charles Webb Murphy and the National league parted company was completed more than a week ago, mystery still envelops the transaction. From various sources come conflicting stories. Murphy declared he received more than $500,000 for his majority stock in the Chicago club and still retains his interest in the grounds on which stands and fields of both Chicago and Philadelphia National league clubs are built.

According to remarks made by Murphy in New York city at the time of the National league schedule meetings, he appears to be satisfied with the impression that he owned 53 per cent of the Chicago club stock, which could be bought at the rate of $10,000 per share. Frank Chance, formerly manager of the Cubs, declared Murphy never owned the stock which the National league club's stock and that this stock was purchased out of the profits and salary he received as manager of the club.

Charles P. Teft, the real owner of the Cubs, declared Murphy never owned the stock which the National league club's stock and that this stock was purchased out of the profits and salary he received as manager of the club.

Chance says the report that Murphy held a majority of the stock was on a par with previous stories relative to big dealings and salaries that Murphy permitted to get into print by information received by the National league. In this connection Chance is backed up by Mordecai Brown, once star pitcher of the Cubs and now with the Federal league.

Brown says the largest salary he ever received from the Cubs was $50,000 and that was at the height of his career. Brown further says this was the biggest salary paid to any player on the team. Brown says that Murphy received $100,000 as player and manager. Evers, who succeeded Chance as manager, received $50,000. Murphy received $4,000 additional as manager, which is believed by many to have been in all down since Murphy left the club. Chance worked, except that Evers held no stock in the club, whereas Chance owned about $25,000 a year in dividends. The top figures reached by other club stars were: Evers, $10,000; Sheckard, $4,100.

Perhaps this is why President Tener is not so positive that Evers will remain in the club. Evers is a Boston club, is undoubtedly ready to pay that amount, according to the contract, but he is understood that President Tener has not agreed to the contract. The fact that Murphy assumed the obligations of the Chicago club is a fact that Murphy should accept a less sum. This question will be settled at the meeting of the league magnates in New York city Friday.

MATHEWSON SPURNS

OFFER OF FEDERALISTS

Great Giant Star.

Marlin, Texas, March 1.—"I have no intention of playing elsewhere than in the National league," said Charley Mathewson, star pitcher of the New York Nationals, tonight, in discussing his possible baseball connections for next season, and a Federal league offer which was said to have been that he could "name his own terms."

Mathewson has been quoted as saying that the Federalists' offer sounded "interesting."

UNEMPLOYED STORM

FASHIONABLE CHURCH

"We Are Hungry and Homeless" They Cried to the Worshippers.

New York, March 1.—The unemployed invaded Fifth avenue tonight and stormed a fashionable church. As the choir of the First Presbyterian church was singing the opening hymn, one hundred men, women and children crowded down the center aisles. The Rev. Dr. Howard Duffield stopped the service and made the newcomers a speech of welcome, and asked them to be seated.

Dr. Duffield explained the two unfortunates which had been brought here tonight at 11:20 o'clock after an illness of several weeks. He suffered from a severe cold, which had become a brain fever. He started newspaper work at the age of 18 on "The Star" and worked for the Chicago Times. The body will be buried in New Orleans, where his mother lives.

W. L. Arnold Dead.

Nashville, Tenn., March 1.—W. L. Arnold, aged 60 years, telegraph editor of the Nashville Post, died here tonight at 11:20 o'clock after an illness of several weeks. He suffered from a severe cold, which had become a brain fever. He started newspaper work at the age of 18 on "The Star" and worked for the Chicago Times. The body will be buried in New Orleans, where his mother lives.

Birds Taught to Sing.

Many scientists have studied the habits of birds and have sought to imitate the songs of other birds. It is said by some that birds' songs are largely imitations of the sounds of their environment, though other scientists do not accept this suggestion as even probable. Edward Conard, a biologist, has been studying the habits of birds and has found that they imitate the sounds of their own investigations and those of other ornithologists.

Debt of 48 States

TOTAL $342,251,000

Increase of Nearly 50 Per Cent in Ten Years—New York's Debt Heavy.

Washington, March 1.—Preliminary figures made public tonight by the department of the treasury show that the total indebtedness of the forty-eight states of the union, less the federal debt, was $342,251,000, an increase of 107,942,000, or nearly 50 per cent, over the total ten years ago. Including sinking fund assets, the total debt amounted to $419,157,000, of which sum about $130,000,000 represented the floating debt, and the remainder, $289,000,000, of which about $332,000,000 was represented by bonds and $40,000,000 was special debt obligations to public trust funds.

MISS DOROUGH DIED

EARLY THIS MORNING

Miss Elizabeth Dorough, aged 18 years, died this morning at 12:20 o'clock at the residence, 224 Ponce de Leon street, of a disease which she had contracted from a cold. Her father, Dr. and Mrs. W. T. Dorough, three sisters, Alice, Dorothy and Zada, and a brother, William, are all in the city. Her funeral arrangements will be completed later.

"MUST" ON TRUSTS AND RURAL CREDITS

Two Pieces of Legislation Administration Is Bent on Passing—Trust Measures Are Giving Much Trouble.

Washington, March 1.—Trust legislation and a new law to enhance rural credits before adjournment of congress are the only measures on the "must" list of the administration for the present session of congress, it was made known today.

bill might be put over until next session, but there is an earnest desire on the part of the democrats to establish a system of rural banks before the approaching congressional campaigns.

When the currency law was passed many promises were made that it would be followed by legislation to help the credit of the farmers, and, though no declaration was made that such a law would be concluded at the present session, criticism of the republicans directed at the free listing of farm products in the tariff law, demands, in the opinion of many prominent democrats, that compensatory action on behalf of the farmers should be taken as soon as possible.

It is probable that many other bills will be passed from time to time while trust, rural credit and appropriation bills are being considered, but so far as a legislative program is concerned, the leaders in both houses of congress intend to keep it short.

It is probable that many other bills will be passed from time to time while trust, rural credit and appropriation bills are being considered, but so far as a legislative program is concerned, the leaders in both houses of congress intend to keep it short.

is certain to provoke opposition both in the house and senate. The immigration bill, which has passed the house and is to be reported from the senate committee this week, also will be urged to a conclusion if it is possible to bring it before the campaign demands and adjournment, in the estimation of party managers.

Senator Ashurst has given notice that he will press the constitutional amendment for equal rights in the senate, but his efforts to fix a time for voting on it will be persistently opposed by democrats and republicans alike. The constitutional amendment for prohibition probably will not be taken up at this session, though the files of congress are daily being piled up with petitions for and against the amendment.

The trust measures. The trust bills, it is now apparent, will require considerably more time in perfecting than originally was anticipated. March 1 was set as a month limit at the time for introducing consideration of the proposed administration bills, but that time is here and not one of the bills proposed is ready for introduction into either branch. It is probable that either the house or senate committee on interstate commerce will report a bill to create an interstate trade commission in the near future.

It is probable that many other bills will be passed from time to time while trust, rural credit and appropriation bills are being considered, but so far as a legislative program is concerned, the leaders in both houses of congress intend to keep it short.

CAR THIEVES ROUTED BY SPECIAL OFFICER

J. C. Mathews, Car Inspector, Held Under Charge of Suspicion.

J. A. Jarmon, chief special agent of the Atlanta Joint Terminals, on Pearl street, routed a gang of railroad thieves last night about the yards of the terminals. He received word from a woman who saw the gang receive news of his coming and disappeared. However, the officer arrested a suspect, who turned out to be the ampler of the terminals as a car inspector.

The special agent carried him back to the office and ordered the inspector to open his locker. The inspector refused to do so, and the locker was broken into. There was found in it a bushel sack of five-cent packages of smoking tobacco, two boxes of whisky, one pair of new shoes and one-half dozen new shirts. The inspector claimed that the locker did not belong to him.

At the police station the inspector was charged with larceny, and his case will be tried Tuesday morning.

MORTUARY

Mrs. N. K. Thompson, Torbert.

Fairburn, Ga., March 1.—(Special.) Mrs. N. K. Thompson Torbert, aged 66 years, died Sunday morning after a brief illness at the residence of her sister, Mrs. J. T. Hearn, on Sumner street in Fairburn. Funeral services, conducted by Rev. H. C. Emory, will be at the Methodist church Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock and interment in the family lot in Fairburn cemetery.

T. J. Starnes. T. J. Starnes, aged 56 years, died Sunday morning at 11 o'clock at his home in Austell, Ga. Funeral will be held at 2 o'clock from the residence of his home, and interment will take place in Rose Hill cemetery, Atlanta.

James B. Boyle. James Barclay Boyle, aged 56 years, died Sunday afternoon at the residence, 124 Fowler street. The body was taken to Patterson's chapel and funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Mrs. Essie Smith. Mrs. Essie Smith, aged 29 years, died last night at 7:30 o'clock at her residence at Girard street. Funeral will be held Tuesday morning from the residence, and interment will follow at Hollywood cemetery. She is survived by her husband, T. J. Smith, and one brother, J. K. Harrison.

Cecelia Dicie. Cecelia Dicie, 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dicie, died Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at a private sanitarium. Funeral will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from Bloomfield's chapel, and interment will be in West View cemetery.

Etta Mae Griffith. Etta Mae Griffith, 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Griffith, died last night at 8:30 o'clock at the residence. The body was removed to Pool's chapel, and funeral arrangements will be completed later.

Miss Willie Rogers. The funeral of Miss Willie A. Rogers, who died Saturday night, was held Sunday afternoon at the chapel of Greenberg & Bond. The body was carried to her home at Monroe, Ga., for interment.

Mrs. Sarah B. O'Keefe. The funeral of Mrs. Sarah Branch O'Keefe, who died early Sunday morning, will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock from the Second Baptist church. Interment will take place in Oakland cemetery.

High Wind Sweeps Atlanta Streets. Continued From First Page. blast that exceeded half a hundred miles every sixty minutes. Ice soon formed on the gutter pools. The report snow had left considerable water in the streets, and these holes soon made small ponds of ice.

Thousands Attend Free Organ Concert. About two thousand people attended the free organ concert Sunday afternoon at the auditorium-armory. The Atlanta Music Festival chorus, composed of about 300 voices, furnished the singing, and the program was as follows: Forelight March—Gutmaat.

Steamer Still Ashore. Norfolk, Va., March 1.—With high winds sweeping the coast, the British steamer, Riversdale, which stranded near Little Island ten days ago, is still ashore. The tug I. J. Merritt left for the scene today to assist the tug, Resolute, which has been endeavoring to float the stranded steamer since last Sunday.

REBUKED BY MOTHER, YOUTH DISAPPEARS

Father and Friends Search Streets in Hope of Finding Charles McMonagle.

Charlie McMonagle, a small 12-year-old boy, who lives at 310 East Fair street, left home Sunday morning about 10:30 o'clock to go to the church of the Immaculate Conception, corner of Hunter street and Central avenue, and, being rebuked by his mother at the door for some slight misconduct, he rode off on his bicycle and, up to a late hour last night, had not been seen. It is feared the lad has met with some accident and that he has probably suffered severely from the cold of last night.

The mother of the boy is distracted from worry over his disappearance. His father, Henry McMonagle, who works at the Southern Spring Bed company, walked the streets last night searching for his son. So worried was he that he could hardly tell his story to the police. It was reported to him by some street car conductor that he had seen an automobile strike a small boy on a bicycle and knock him down. When the boy arose and took his broken bicycle over on the side of the street to look over its damages, the father saw him.

Famous Horses Burn. Warrenton, Va., March 1.—The stables at Waverly, the Virginia estate of George Westmoreland, De L. L. Gentry, were destroyed by fire here this afternoon. Mrs. Josephal, formerly Miss Gentry, owned one of the most daring cross-country riders in the east, lost three of her famous hunters, Honey Boy, Aristocrat and Robert Louis Stevenson; three draft horses, a pony, two motor cars and other property.

LACY IN GOOD HUMOR DESPITE CONVICTION. Montgomery, Ala., March 1.—Judge Arnsstead Brown tonight stated that attorneys for Lacy, a convict, who was convicted late last night on charges of embezzling $100,000 of state funds while in office, suggested to him that the man request a pardon. The judge, however, declined to do so, and the regular sentence of one year in the penitentiary, prescribed by law is from one to ten years, and it is stated, should he be given a year or less, he would be entitled to the privilege of making bond pending a decision on his appeal. The state can't afford to let Lacy retain his confidence and good humor, and joked that he would be glad to demonstrate his trial.

Athlete Wilhelm Drowned. Paducah, Ky., March 1.—William Wilhelm, known as a local news paper and formerly a star athlete of the State University of Kentucky, was drowned here today when a canoe in which he and Nelson Soule were paddling overturned. Soule was rescued but Wilhelm's body was not recovered.
