

CRAWFORD WILL CASE BE DECIDED IN WIDOW'S FAVOR

Report of Auditor James L. Anderson, Who Has Been Hearing Argument and Evidence, Filed on Saturday.

SOME TESTIMONY GIVEN ASSAILED IN HIS REPORT

Attempt by Relatives of Late Joshua Crawford to Oust His Widow From $250,000 Estate Fails.

After one of the most sensational and lengthy legal proceedings ever staged in the Fulton county courts, Mary B. Crawford, the widow of the late Joshua Crawford, wealthy landowner of this city, has won a sweeping victory, which will probably restore to her the vast estate left her by the death of her aged husband, unless lawyers for the contending heirs-at-law make further and early resistance.

The report of Auditor James L. Anderson, appointed to hear the testimony in the suit of forty-eight contending heirs-at-law, who attempted to oust Mrs. Crawford from her share of her husband's estate and effect a redistribution of the quarter of a million dollars left by "Uncle Josh," as he was known in Atlanta, was filed late Saturday afternoon.

Many Points for Defense. Auditor Anderson sweeps away every contention of the heirs-at-law in the Crawford case, ruling with the plaintiff in but one point—the matter of the possession of property now held by Mrs. Tallulah Miller and deceased to her during the life of Mrs. Nancy Crawford, first wife of Joshua Crawford.

The auditor further declares in his brief of the evidence that the testimony, in portions of the hearing, was such that it could only be called "various, indefinite and evidently actuated by unworthy motives."

The Crawford will case, which is all but decided legally in the report of the auditor, has become a classic in local court circles. The contentions arising soon after the death of Crawford, in this city in 1909, by heirs-at-law, who had, it was said, figured in the first will made by the aged man, but were left out by a later will after his marriage to Mrs. Mary B. Savaze, now Mrs. Crawford, quickly reached the court stage.

When Crawford died, his widow, Mrs. Mary B. Crawford, whom he had married but a few weeks before, was named as executrix of his estate. C. Z. Crawford, a brother, moved, through his attorney, to have a redrafted will of the estate, claiming his rights under a will made by Crawford some time before he married Mrs. Savaze. Mrs. Crawford's attorneys made a settlement with C. Z. Crawford and other members of the family later appeared in court with a suit to break the widow's claims to the vast estate.

Anderson is Named. Instead of hearing the case in the superior court, which had consumed weeks of time in that tribunal, the court named Attorney James L. Anderson, one of the foremost lawyers in Atlanta, to sit in the action as auditor.

So soon as these hearings opened, the attorneys for the heirs-at-law began to make sensational allegations. It was alleged that Mrs. Crawford had been guilty of the crime of bigamy in marrying Crawford for his money and then murdering him. It was alleged that Mrs. Crawford had never secured a divorce from her first husband. It was alleged that Mrs. Crawford had killed her husband, but had tried, by artifice and other unlawful measures, to oust C. Z. Crawford out of any share in her late husband's estate.

Mrs. Crawford Averred. Testimony was heard covering all of these points, witnesses coming here, at the request of the lawyers for the plaintiffs, from as far west as Texas. Depositions were read from New York state which accused Mrs. Crawford of intimacy with a barber named Leman. At the height of the interest in the civil single of the case, Mrs. Crawford was arrested on a justice of the peace warrant, sworn to by C. Z. Crawford, which charged her with abducting the body of her husband and causing his death. Mrs. Crawford gave $8,000 cash bond and spent but one night in the Tower.

For several months the proceedings dragged through the auditor's court, the numerous trials between counsel becoming more or less part of the "humorous sections" of the daily newspapers.

One of the most illustrious combinations of legal talent ever interested in a civil case in Atlanta defended Mrs. Crawford.

Led by Colonel Burton Smith, one of Georgia's best known civil attorneys, and backed up by such imposing talent as Colonel Luther Rosser, Reuben Arnold and P. H. Brewster, the defense drove home their points day by day.

Colonel Joseph S. James, for the past thirty years one of the well known lawyers of this vicinity, led the forces of the plaintiffs, who presented an odd sight as they sat day by day in the courtroom, some of them bringing their lunches with them so that they would miss no part of the long-drawn-out and at times highly technical testimony.

When the testimony had all been entered it was found that the record of the case embraced some nine volumes of 500 pages each. The auditor's hearing ended early in January. The worried compiling of the auditor's report covered some thirty-five days of constant application. Innumerable law principles were laid down in the proceedings and it was here, but these were so condensed that the layman, seeking the answer of the au-

CHIEF OF POLICE IS SHOT TO DEATH

Fatal Shooting Occurs in Buckhead Store — Dead Man the Father of Atlanta Nurse.

Buckhead, Ga., March 7.—(Special.) Chief of Police W. T. Chivers, of this place, was shot and instantly killed by Forrest Adams, in the store of Davis & Company, here at 6:30 tonight. Five witnesses to the shooting declare that the police officer was evidently taken by surprise and that he was not expecting Adams to shoot. It seems that the two had had words in the store, but had been parted by bystanders, when Adams had threatened the chief with an ax handle. Chivers started out of the store, but paused at the door, when he allegedly cursed him. Chivers then started to walk in Adams' direction, when the shot was fired, the bullet entering the abdomen and ranging upwards, causing practically instant death.

WILSON PARDONS 3 AGED PERSONS WHO ARE MISSING

Charleston, W. Va., March 7.—United States District Attorney W. G. Barnhart has in his possession pardons, granted recently by President Wilson, to Alfred and A. H. Mooney and Mrs. Frances Brown, who three years ago pleaded guilty in the district court here to violating the pension laws. Each is more than 75 years old, and sentence was never passed, as it was feared none would survive a prison term. When the case was called to the attention of the president, he pardoned them, and federal officers have since sought them to tell them of their good fortune. West Virginia, Virginia and Kentucky have been carefully searched, but no trace of them has been found.

TRADED BY MOTHER TO FARMER FOR PIG, BOY TURNS SLAYER

Elkton, Md., March 7.—James Paraway, the 15-year-old negro youth who confessed that he killed James R. Coleman, a Kent county farmer, last December, was convicted of first degree murder today and sentenced to imprisonment for life. Paraway's attorneys tried to prove that the boy is mentally deficient. During the course of the testimony it developed that Paraway's mother traded him to a farmer for a pig when he was a small boy. Norman Mabel, the other negro concerned in the murder, was found guilty yesterday of murder in the second degree, and given eighteen years in prison. Robbery was the motive for the crime.

STATE TROOPS TO CHECK ARMY OF UNEMPLOYED

Sacramento, Cal., March 7.—Sacramento wrestled all day with the unemployed problem, precipitated by the arrival here of "General" Kelley's army, on its way to Washington. Tonight no solution had been reached, but a company of the state militia had been ordered out to guard the state arsenal and to be in readiness to answer a riot call. Companies at Oroville, Stockton, Chico and Woodland were notified to hold themselves in readiness for similar service.

Over 300 Recruits.

More than 300 recruits joined the army, which is now divided into two equal divisions of almost equal strength, one obeying the orders of "General" Kelley and the other composed of proselytes. About 1,500 men are in the two camps.

Leaders of the men called at the executive offices today and demanded of Governor Johnson that they be supplied with food and transportation to the state line. The governor offered them work instead and they refused, declaring they would accept no employment until they had completed the march to Washington.

1,000 WILD DUCKS, DRIVEN BY HUNGER, BEGGING FOR FOOD

Auburn, N. Y., March 7.—A rare sight is witnessed daily in the heart of the city of Auburn, when more than a thousand wild ducks, driven by hunger from Owasco-lake, which is frozen over, take shelter on the Owasco river and may be seen accepting food thrown to them from homes and factories that line the banks.

HOMES ARE ASKED FOR THE SHRINERS

Co-operation of All Atlanta Asked by Local Committee to Care for Throng of Visitors.

"We are going to need every hotel room, every boarding house room and every extra room in every private home in Atlanta where a stranger could be entertained comfortably, in order to accommodate the thousands who will be here during the week around May 13 and 14," said Forrest Adair yesterday. As potentate of Yaarab Temple, and therefore, the head of all committees at work on plans for the big Shrine meeting, Mr. Adair is in close touch with developments in those plans. He declares his mail is growing amazingly, and that a large proportion of it brings requests for reservations. The hotels are not going even to begin caring for all the visitors, he says. The boarding houses will be insufficient for those who can't find room in hotels. Therefore, the private homes of the city must be opened.

He is touring the country to hold conferences with college men on civic righteousness.

WILL ELECT OFFICERS.

Should the scheme for the consolidation of the two organizations prove feasible, the election of officers will proceed with the election of officers. It is understood that Jesse Mercer, former state game warden, who has been actively engaged in the formation of the league, will be elected first president.

Union of Citizens' League and People's Administrative League Will Be Considered Tuesday.

That there is a strong possibility of the recently organized Citizens' League and the People's Administrative League, Atlanta's most formidable political machines, consolidating and joining issues, was made apparent yesterday when Jesse Mercer, temporary president of the latter organization, issued a call for a meeting at the Ansley hotel next Wednesday.

It will be for the purpose of discussing the advisability of making both organizations one that the meeting has been called. The officers of the Citizens' League would not comment on the proposed amalgamation, but it is understood that in view of the fact that the objects of the People's Administrative League are similar to the Citizens' League, there is a strong sentiment among the members of both to consolidate.

NEW DEVELOPMENTS IN CASE OF FRANK COME WITH A RUSH AFTER RESENTENCE

MURDER NOTES WRITTEN IN BASEMENT ACCORDING TO EVIDENCE FOR FRANK

Paper on Which the Notes Were Written Shows That Frank Did Not Dictate Them in His Office as Conley's Story Stated. Says Defense — Prisoner Gives Out Statement From Cell in Which He Again Asserts His Innocence. Outlook Comments on Case.

Developments came thick and fast in the Frank case Saturday afternoon and night.

First was the disclosure of two affidavits put in the hands of Solicitor Hugh Dorsey by George Epps, father of the ex-convict witness for the prosecution, and by the boy's uncle, W. H. Epps, of Eatonton, who swear that the youth confesses to having been strapped into making the sensational affidavit in which he recently repudiated his testimony.

Next was the release of newly discovered evidence by the defense to show that the murder notes found beside Mary Phagan's body were written in the basement of the equal factory, and not on the second floor, as contended by the prosecution.

NOT DISMAYED BY DEATH SHADOW.

Then, too, comes a statement written by the man in the Tower, in which Frank dramatically sets his case before the people of Georgia in a lengthy document, one in which he declares the shadow of death does not dismay him in the least. In the sight of God, he states, his innocence shall be proclaimed to the universe.

Breathe Through The Nose

Nose breathing is essential to good health. Drawing the air through the nose warms it, strains out the dust and presents it to the lungs in a fit state, guarding the lungs against chilling and the bad effects of dirt. The lungs need plenty of fresh air every day, to properly oxidize the blood. Plenty of oxygen in the blood burns out the dross and renders it ready for excretion. Then with the proper laxative health can be easily maintained.

Tonic-Laxative

Next to fresh air is the importance of regular bowels. In all cases of sluggish bowels a tonic laxative should be used. To combine tonic qualities with a laxative is the latest achievement in medical science. Laxatives naturally depress. The tonic element removes that objection. Peruna should be in every household because it fulfills every quality to make it an effective tonic laxative. Many people who have used Peruna are able to say truthfully, "I am now enjoying perfect health."

The three candidates for the short term are all well known and are men of statewide prominence. Ray Ruskon, of Montgomery, is one of the best known lawyers in the state...

It is not expected that any serious issues will be raised in the short-term senatorial contest. All three candidates are worthy opponents...

By John Corrigan, Jr. Washington, March 7.—(Special.)—Representative T. W. Hardwick gave out today his formal announcement for the United States senate...

Mr. Hardwick projects his campaign on the idea that both senators ought not to come from Atlanta. He will attempt to convince the voters that, other things being equal, the candidate from the other portion of the state should be supported by them.

Bible Conference Attendance Proves Remarkable Influence Of Annual Meeting in Atlanta

The weeks attendance records for the sixteenth annual Atlanta Bible conference, which comes to a close at the Tabernacle this afternoon, show that the influence of the conference was broader and more far-reaching than ever before in its history.

Not only were the meetings more largely attended by Atlanta people, but the out-of-town attendance was tremendously larger.

The high-water mark of attendance was reached on Thursday morning when Dr. C. Campbell Morgan, of London, preached to an audience that overflowed the galleries and aisles until there was no more standing room.

Look For Grocery Bargains

FOODSTUFFS are being advertised in The Constitution now in great volumes. The best of every line of food product is exploited through the columns of this paper.

Wise housekeepers follow this paper as a shopping guide.

Retail grocers use The Constitution as an extension of their display windows. Most familiar among Atlanta domestic scenes is the one of the family buyer, mother, sister, housekeeper, taking The Constitution in the morning and looking for the grocery lists before she calls up or visits her purveyor of food.

Manufacturers of pure foods are aware of the high character and discriminating tastes of Constitution readers.

Every new home established this spring by newly married couples should, first of all, subscribe for The Constitution and form the habit of making shopping and grocery lists from its advertisements. This is an efficient plan of household economy.

At a charge heaped upon the woman, she was told that women were the cause of the trouble.

Advertising is a business force as definite in its result as that of salesmanship, of which it is a close ally.

The results depend identically upon the method employed. The method is not a matter of choice, but a matter of knowledge.

Most business men figure advertising as an expense instead of using it as a producer and promoter of business. Most business men have spent some money in "advertising" that has proven unprofitable, and because of their mistake eternally damn all advertising.

Johnson and Ford Were Hit for Most Home Runs

From E. J. Lanigan.
Possibly will surprise fans to learn that Russell Ford, who has gone over to the Federals, was in Walter Johnson's class in one respect last season, that respect being the permitting of home runs.

The Yankee hurler allowed nine four-bag blows to be struck by his adversaries and so did the man whom the "halcyon" jury of newspaper experts picked as the player most valuable to his team. Ford and Johnson were picked for more circuit clouts than any other American league runners.

The players who touched the Chalmers' club for homers were Frank Baker (five), Harry Hooper, "Buck" Weaver, Irvy Schalk, Harry Lord, Joe Lake, Wheeler Johnston and Joe Jack-son. Four-baggers were Ford and Weaver, obtained by Howard Shanks, Sam Agnew, Derrill Pratt, Eddie Collins, Gus Williams, Eddie Ainsworth, Wallie Schang, Sam Crawford and Joe Jackson.

The last-named probably made the longest home run of the year when he landed on one of Ford's spitters in the lane of June 1 and hoisted the ball over the right wing of the grand stand at the Polo Grounds.

Next to Johnson and Ford, Tom Hughes of the Nationals, allowed the greatest number of "smashes for the full distance." He was located for eight drives of this character. Bobo of the Washingtons had seven homers made off his delivery and these men had six, Baumgardner and Mitchell of St. Louis, standing of Cleveland, and Brown, of Philadelphia.

Five four-baggers were secured off Caldwell of New York, and Bush of Philadelphia, and four off Schurz, of New York, Pennock, of Philadelphia, and Dause, of Detroit.

The veteran Eddie Plank of the heroes of the world's series of 1913 was nipped for three four-baggers and 29 were Joe Egan's.

Of Washington, Earl Hamilton and Walter Leverenz, of St. Louis, Willie Mitchell, of Cleveland, and Ray Collins, of Boston, who are among the American league's cleverest southpaws.

Chief Bender had only one home run made off his curves last season and that four-bagger, manufactured by "Ping" Bodie, of the White Sox, added a defeat to the Indian's record. Other bowmen who allowed only one four-bagger were Weisman of St. Louis, Streeb of Cleveland, Duoin, of Detroit, Walsh of Chicago, and Bedient, of Boston. Joe Wood, of the Red Sox, was even stungier than all these men previously named, for he refused to allow anyone to get a homer off of his puzzling delivery.

Of the 159 four-baggers made in the American league in 1913, 35 were obtained off Washington's pitchers, 11 off New York's, 25 off Philadelphia's, 20 off St. Louis, 15 off Cleveland's, 11 off Detroit's, 10 off Chicago's, and 6 off Boston's.

Valdosta 13, Thomasville 2.

Valdosta, Ga., March 7.—(Special)—Valdosta easily defeated Thomasville here today in the second game of the South Georgia High School Baseball League.

Though marked by some splendid work by both teams, the game was rather a one-sided one.

The batters were Varnedoe and Cranford for Valdosta, Clark McCree and Lrice, for Thomasville.

The excellent work of Cranford and Varnedoe was the feature of the game. Thomasville's two runs were made in the ninth inning.

Score—
Valdosta 13 1 2
Thomasville 2 10 2

Get the Personal Touch

This particular advertisement can induce you to go to the nearest Mitchell dealer and take a ride in his demonstrator, then the object of the advertisement has been accomplished for we think the Personal Touch will sell the car.

But this car has performed so admirably for every man who has bought one that we know what it will do for you. So we don't fear the personal touch.

Now then, in the personal demonstration pleases you—if the car performs to your satisfaction and you are sure of its action, don't buy until you ask yourself this most important question: "Will the maker of this car live up to the moral responsibility that every honest manufacturer should feel and observe? What is there behind him to prove that he will?"

The answer of the Mitchell makers is this: "Eighty years of faithful service to the American Public—eighty years of telling the truth—eighty years of building honest merchandise and selling it close to cost." And to confirm this we have the evidence of 30,000 Mitchell owners who love the car as we love it—who love it for what it has done and what it can do—who love it for its hourly, monthly and yearly efficiency, its lasting qualities and its economy of maintenance.

The families that created this concern eighty years ago, own it yet. The reputation they gained half a century ago for decency and honor remains intact today. This is your guarantee of insurance. This is the undeniable asset that goes with every Mitchell car and makes your purchase an investment rather than a speculation.

No motor car is cheap. Nothing in the form of a vehicle that costs over a thousand dollars is cheap. Some cheap cars are awful cheap and some are mighty expensive whether cheap in price or not. So that to get the full worth of your money and to be assured that you are not making a mistake, take the personal demonstration and ask who is behind the car that you are asked to buy.

Go to your nearest Mitchell dealer today and borrow his demonstrator for half an hour. Sit at the wheel yourself. See how it feels to drive a car that has the real quality in it. If there isn't a Mitchell dealer in your neighborhood, write us direct at once and we will find a way to give you this personal demonstration.

No sensible twentieth-century man will buy anything direct from an advertisement. The real purpose of advertising is not to create a demand or make a sale but to create a desire to see the article advertised.

The claims we make for this car are so many and they will sound so bombastic and egotistical in print that we haven't the heart to inflict them on you. The only way to prove the car is by Demonstration and the only way to make a demonstration is to get you in the car and let you run it yourself.

Sitting at the wheel of the Mitchell you get the feel of the car. You will understand after you have run the car a mile or so just what we mean by superb mechanism, ease of control, prompt response and knowledge of power. You will understand without being told what we mean by sturdy build, engineering balance and proper distribution of strength and resistance to road strain. But no amount of advertising or printed matter can possibly make you understand or appreciate these features. You've got to see and feel to know.

Running the Mitchell yourself you will get the personal touch—you will know just what the action is whereas if you let someone else run it you will be accepting hearsay evidence. And we want you to know that it is a risky proceeding to invest a lot of money in an automobile on hearsay. Any automobile looks good when it is running by you yet half of them will reveal coarse mechanism if you sit in the driver's seat and get the feel of the whole affair.

We welcome the personal demonstration. It leaves nothing whatever to chance. It's the only way to buy an automobile and the only way to sell one. If we were not absolutely sure of what the personal drive will do we would try the ad-

Safety First Goodrich Safety Tread Tires

Five bars and a cross tie—The Safety First Symbol
The Tread that makes the Brake Effective

Goodrich quality is essential for "Safety First" in tire service

Goodrich Tires are the standard by which all other high grade tires are judged. They are the accepted standard because of their quality.

We have never made better tires than you get when you buy Goodrich Tires today. This is because of Goodrich improvements in curing rubber, in inspecting fabric and in manufacturing methods.

And for that same reason you can buy Goodrich Tires today at lower prices than ever before—lower than you can purchase any other high grade tires.

Goodrich tires never carried better value to the user than right now.

This means a great deal more than the money-saving feature—it means dependable wear and quality service.

And now the Goodrich Safety Tread Tire—with its five bars and cross-tie, the Safety Tread symbol for the motorist—gives you non-skid, and non-slide protection every day in the year. It gives you longer service, better riding and longer mileage because of the extra thickness of tough Goodrich rubber in the treads at the point of contact with the road.

The thick, tough, Goodrich rubber fingers dig down and grip the roadway. They stop the skid before it starts. They make the brake effective.

Take no chances. Equip at least the rear wheels now with Goodrich Safety Tread Tires.

Here are the prices for the best tires ever produced in the Goodrich factory:

MANY BALL PLAYERS ARE BOILING OUT

Hot Springs Has Big Squad of Men From Various Teams.

Hot Springs, Ark., March 7.—Bill Sweeney and Hub Perdue, National League players whose future has been in doubt owing to an incomplete deal between the Boston and Chicago clubs, left Hot Springs today to join the Boston team at Macon, Ga., in obedience to orders from President Gaffney. While both players expect to be ultimately transferred to Chicago, it was reported here today that a deal which would make Perdue a member of the St. Louis club was also under consideration. Perdue, however, is said to have vigorously opposed his transfer to the St. Louis club.

Athletic Growth at Auburn Typical of the Entire South

By V. J. DONAHUE, (Physical Director, Alabama Polytechnic Institute.) The increase in interest and enthusiasm for athletic sports at Auburn during the last decade has been nothing short of remarkable. From the participation of a small percentage of the student body, the interest has increased until now over half the student body of eight hundred and thirty students take part in athletic exercises of some form or other. Collocated with this growth there has been developed a college spirit that in intensity, scope, and unselfishness surpasses that of any other educational institution in the country. Auburn has always had a reputation as a place where the best of the south, but these interests were very narrow compared to the present board development.

Team Work a Factor. The sacrifice of the individual for the good of the team or college is an accepted and not an unusual fact. Auburn is a community in which team work in every sense of the word has become a habit. The most pleasing fact of all is that during the last decade no great feat of sports has been achieved without the joy of victory or made more bitter the sorrows of defeat. The present success of Auburn's football is due to the spirit already mentioned and to the broad base on which the football system rests. This base consists of the Auburn student body and not the possibilities of making prep stars see the advantages of pursuing their courses of higher education in Auburn.

First Football Team in 1892. Dean George Petrie of Auburn, was one of the sponsors for football in the south, when under his instigation and management a team was organized and a game played with Georgia in 1892. From that time, there has been a long roll of football heroes at Auburn, including such names as Redding, Williams, Dorsey, Tichenor (who is becoming famous as the originator of the hidden ball), the "Pat" Yarbrough, and others who are well known in the present generation. The game in the meantime has undergone numerous changes but Auburn has always managed to keep a leading part and the last six years has perhaps been the most successful in its history.

Auburn System Broad. The present success of Auburn's football is due to the spirit already mentioned and to the broad base on which the football system rests. This base consists of the Auburn student body and not the possibilities of making prep stars see the advantages of pursuing their courses of higher education in Auburn. There are nearly one hundred candidates for the football team every fall and during January and February each class, under the coaching of the varsity players, sends forth a team to battle for the class championship. Each class has from thirty to forty candidates out and the contests, in spirit and enthusiasm rival the varsity matches. With such a base as this and with a continuity of system Auburn has not but one S. I. A. game in the last four years. This game was lost to Georgia in 1912 when Auburn, forced by the desire to get Vanderbilt on its schedule, contracted to play Vanderbilt on Saturday and Georgia on following Thursday. In fact for the past six years Auburn has been rated either first or second in the S. I. A. standing. With nothing to mar the present prospects, Auburn stands a splendid chance of keeping up this record for another year.

extent when the diamond on Drake field is ready for use. This field in everything except size will be the equal of or superior to anything in the south.

Student Body Participates. As will be seen from the above, the policy at Auburn is toward the participation of the student body as a whole in athletic sports and exercises and not primarily for the development of a team composed of nine or eleven players as the case may be. It is only a question of time when every college will require each student to take a certain amount of athletic exercise as is done now in some of the leading universities in the United States.

Need of Modern Gymnasium. Against the further development of athletic exercises at Auburn, there is one almost insurmountable obstacle. This obstacle is the lack of a gymnasium. The surety that the Auburn spirit is so evident and so effective in other things as being evident in supplying this want is a matter of joy and congratulation to every Auburn supporter. The spontaneous support and aid given, while more than expected, is not universal as yet. With the broad athletic base that we have at Auburn we want a building that will correspond. Every Auburn alumnus should make it a matter of personal pride that he had some share, however small, in the erection of a building worthy of himself and his college. This also applies to those who have never graduated but have been at the spirit which no one leaves its atmosphere without. We are also asking the aid of all those friends who sympathize with what Auburn stands for in college sport and some of these have already shown their sympathy in a material way. It should be a matter of pride to every Alabamian that Auburn should not compare unfavorably in this respect with any college in the southland.

Walker Street School Wins. The Walker street school won its second victory of the Davis street school basketball team Saturday morning, when in a return game the former won 24 to 2. Walker street will play English avenue next Saturday.

Gulls Signing Fast. Charleston, S. C., March 7.—The sea Gulls now show a complete roster of signed contracts as Pitcher Joe Fats of Dallas, hold out, has sent his John Hancock in. The battery must have been waiting here for a week with only two pitchers absent. Fats and one other next week will see the arrival of the other players.

Campbell Signs. Indianapolis, March 7.—Vincent Campbell an outfielder with the Pittsburgh National league team in 1911 and 1912, signed a contract today to play with the Indianapolis Federal league team this year.

Two Tires in One!

This is what the "Nobby Tread" Tire practically is—
Two wear-resisting Tires in One

The big, thick, tough rubber "Nobs" that prevent skidding, are made on a big, thick, extra strong additional strip.

Then this heavy strip is welded by hand and vulcanized on to an extra heavy, extra strong tire.

You have got to wear out the big, thick, tough "Nobs" of rubber before you even start to wear out the extra strong tire underneath.

Then comes the great big difference in the quantity and the quality of the rubber and of the fabric that is used in "Nobby Treads."

An unusually large amount of rubber and fabric is used in "Nobby Treads," and —only the very toughest and the best rubber, and —only the strongest, especially selected fabric.

Then don't forget this fact,

—rubber quality can differ and fabric quality can differ just as much as the quality of leather can differ.

These are the reasons for the history making mileage records of "Nobby Tread" anti-skid Tires during the past four years, and based upon these mileage records we recently announced that are now sold under our regular warranty—perfect workmanship and material—BUT any adjustments are on a basis of

"Nobby Tread" Tires

5,000 Miles

The unusual wear-resisting quality.

- the quantity of rubber
- the quantity of fabric
- the method of construction

all have been rigidly maintained in "Nobby Tread" anti-skid tires,

- and maintained regardless of cost,
- and maintained regardless of price competition.

"Nobby Tread" Tires are REAL anti-skid tires, and mile for mile, dollar for dollar, they are by far the most economical tires.

- OFFICERS: PRESIDENT: Mrs. J. R. Little, Peachtree Road, Atlanta. HONORARY PRESIDENT: Mrs. Robert Zahner, Peachtree Road, Atlanta. VICE PRESIDENTS: Mrs. J. C. Moore, West Peachtree, Atlanta; Mrs. W. Woods White, Atlanta; Mrs. L. M. Little, Peachtree, Atlanta; Mrs. M. L. Little, Peachtree, Atlanta. RECORDING SECRETARY: Mrs. Roger Dewar, 27 E. Fifth St., Atlanta, Ga.

THE STATE CONVENTION

The all day meeting here of the Georgia division, National Congress of Mothers, March 14, at the Piedmont Hotel, will assemble a large contingent of Georgia's representative women. They come for the serious purpose of comparing notes as to the work being accomplished by their organization for the welfare of the child of the state, and to talk over and plan for a continued and systematic work in this direction.

The more rapid the growth of a state, city or community, the greater the need for keeping pace with that growth in affording increased school facilities, and the betterment each year of the school in every line. More and more do educational authorities argue that the school must evolve, as people evolve, and that the curriculum employed in the school of ten years ago and the methods applied may not be the ones to be employed in the school of today.

The mother and the teachers are the ones to see the needs of these changes, and to study out the ways and means for making them. Reporting these to the authorities who can act in the interest of the schools is one of the functions of the parent teacher associations.

At the state meetings, women delegates from various parts of the state will bring messages of their accomplishment in their school communities, and the discussion of these will make one of the most instructive and illuminating features of the state convention program.

- The program will be as follows: Assembly room, Piedmont Hotel, 9:30 o'clock—Executive board meeting. 10:00 o'clock—Address, 'How the Parent-Teacher Association Can Best Serve the Children of Georgia'—Hon. M. L. Brittain, state school commissioner. 11:00 o'clock—Presidents reports and reports by other officers. 12:00 o'clock—Address by Dr. E. Bates Block. 1:30 o'clock—Luncheon at Piedmont to delegates. 2:30 o'clock—Address by Miss Oppenheim, of Savannah. Discussion of topics set forth by Miss Oppenheim. Reports of parent teacher association by delegates. Annual Election. The Piedmont hotel is headquarters for the convention. Rates according to rooms, from $1.50, $2.50.

RACE SUICIDE AGAIN MR. ROOSEVELT'S TOPIC

The Child Welfare Magazine, the official organ of the National Congress of Mothers, published a special issue from Editor Roosevelt on the subject of race suicide, the following: In countries with a declining birth rate, the government has a duty to protect the child without whom the state will have no future, and to discriminate in favor of the child of the poor. The truth is self-evident that if the average married couple which has children has only two children, the whole race will disappear in a few generations. Unless the average married couple has three children, the race cannot be maintained. Under existing conditions, taking into account the children who die before they are adults, the children who do not marry, the children who marry but who to their sorrow and for unavoidable reasons have no children, or only one child, the average married couple has only one child, and unless the average married couple capable of having children has four children, the race will disappear in a few generations. It is the duty of the state to protect the child, and to discriminate in favor of the child of the poor.

IDEAL REPORT FROM ATLANTA ASSOCIATION

The February meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association was held at the Metropolitan Hotel. The report of the association was read by Mrs. E. W. Smith, chairman of the library committee. The report was a most interesting and useful one, and it is hoped that it will be of great value to the other associations. The report was read by Mrs. E. W. Smith, chairman of the library committee. GWYNNE IS SELECTED DIRECTOR FOR GEORGIA

By Religious Education Association—Radical Changes Are Demanded.

New Haven, Conn. March 7.—President F. W. Boatwright, of Richmond, was named as state director for Virginia at the election of officers of the Religious Education Association here today. W. J. Gwynne was selected for Georgia director. G. E. Vincent, of the University of Minnesota, was elected president of the association, and Henry F. Cope, Chicago, general secretary.

Four recommendations for radical changes in American institutions of higher education were made to the education association today by Professor John J. Stevenson of New York University. They were as follows: 1. The work of colleges and universities should be differentiated sharply. Colleges without proper resources and equipment should be converted into academies or secondary schools. 2. A higher standard should be set for teachers. 3. The salary of a full professor at a college or university should be equal to that of a college teacher at present. 4. The college faculty should have an equal representative on the board of trustees.

There are too many diversity schools in this country, declared Rev. Amos Phelps Stokes, secretary of Yale University to the association, and many of them are only "diversity" schools. They are not really schools. They are only a means of making money for the ministry. A university school of religion should replace the old time denominational seminary of theology.

Next Convention in Buffalo. The next convention of the Religious Education Association will be held in Buffalo in 1915. The subject for consideration will be Child Welfare. The convention will be held in Buffalo, N. Y. The subject for consideration will be Child Welfare.

Making Social Citizens was the topic discussed at tonight's meeting of the Religious Education Association. Charles S. Whitman of New York Governor Simon D. Baldwin of Connecticut, and John J. Stevenson of New York University were the speakers. The speakers discussed the need for social citizenship and the need for a new social order.

The great problem of statesmanship in this country is the next decade will be to make a sane and effective response to the demand to do more for the poor. The demand to do more for the poor is the demand to do more for the poor. The demand to do more for the poor is the demand to do more for the poor.

The Roman Catholic church is the most imposing and useful activity in this country. The Roman Catholic church is the most imposing and useful activity in this country. The Roman Catholic church is the most imposing and useful activity in this country.

Milk Supply Continues to Increase

The milk supply of the city continues to improve, and it is now possible to secure a good grade of milk in all sections of the city.

Many of the dairymen are putting in stanchions so as to prevent the possibility of any contagious disease being spread through their milk. Butter Fats—The law requires that the milk contain as much as 3 1/2 per cent butter fats. Rich milk will contain as high as 5 and 6 per cent. Bacteria—Fresh, clean milk will contain less than 10,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter. The law allows as many as 100,000 per cubic centimeter. If it contains more than 100,000 there has been carelessness somewhere in handling the milk.

Temperature—Milk should be kept below a temperature of 40 degrees or it may become dangerous. The consumer should test his milk with a thermometer. The law requires that all milk be delivered at a temperature below 55 degrees.

The accompanying table gives the section of the city in which each dairy man delivers.

In effect the writ would compel gas companies operating in Oklahoma to be common carriers and purchasers in the immediate territory in which pipe lines operate.

STATEMENT BY McADOO ABOUT RESERVE CITIES

All Information About Location Must Be Received by March 9.

Washington, March 7.—(Special.)—In commenting upon the Constitution's special that Atlanta and other cities of the United States had been selected as the location of federal reserve banks, Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo today said that the report was wholly unauthorized and absolutely untrue.

With reference to the federal reserve bank organization committee, he said that it was not authorized in any report of its action. The publication of the names of the eleven cities in the country, made in New York and Atlanta today and telegraphed to all parts of the country brought a flood of telegrams upon the committee.

Under a decision of the reserve bank organization committee, all information designed to affect the selection of federal reserve cities must be received at the Federal Reserve Board by March 9. The committee has decided that additional cities should be considered.

Beginning Tuesday the task of making the selections will be taken up in earnest by the committee. The committee will be completed in time to allow President Wilson to name the members of the Federal Reserve Board.

Secretary McAdoo made public the following statement: The statement published this morning that the reserve bank of Atlanta had been selected, and that the committee had determined upon the city of Atlanta as the location of the first reserve bank, is entirely untrue. The committee has not yet reached a conclusion as to the location of the first reserve bank. The committee has not yet reached a conclusion as to the location of the first reserve bank.

WILSON TO WIN FIGHT ON FREE CANAL TOLLS

Administration Supporters Say They Have the Votes in House and Senate.

Washington, March 7.—The Sims bill for repeal of the coastwise shipping exemption clause of the Panama canal act probably will be laid before the house in about ten days. Democratic Leaders in the house and Chairman Adams of the house committee on interstate commerce reached an agreement today to pass the measure after the passage of the rivers and harbors appropriation bill which will follow the disposition of the agricultural appropriation bill next week.

The bill, as will Majority Leader Underwood, on the ground that the democratic platform binds him to oppose the repeal of the exemption clause. While a rule to expedite consideration will be available it may not be used as both sides are anxious for discussion. Representative Sims, of Tennessee, author of the bill predicted tonight that it would become a law without much delay.

OVER HALF OF ALL SICKNESS CAUSED BY CLOGGED-UP WEAKENED KIDNEYS

Hundreds Are Suffering With Kidney Trouble and Don't Know It. Backache, Bladder Disorder and Rheumatism Are The Result

It is a well recognized fact among physicians today that the greater part of all sickness can be avoided by keeping the kidneys working properly.

This is even more important than for the bowels to move regularly. Because the kidneys and bladder are the filters and sewers of the body. If you suffer with pains in the back or sides, bladder or urinary disorders, lumbago, rheumatism, dizziness, puffiness, swellings under the eyes or in the feet and ankles, nervousness, tired and worn out feeling or any of the many other symptoms of kidney trouble, don't neglect yourself another day and run the risk of serious complications. Secure an original package of Croxone which costs but a trifle, take three doses a day for a few days, and you will be surprised how entirely different you will feel.

Croxone overcomes the worst causes because it removes the cause of such troubles. It soaks right in and cleans out the kidneys and makes them filter out all the poisonous waste matter and urea which lodge in the joints and muscles causing rheumatism, soothes and heals the bladder and quickly ends all such troubles.

It is the most wonderful remedy ever made for the purpose. You will find it entirely different from anything you have ever used. There is nothing else on earth to compare with it. It matters not how old you are or how long you have suffered the principle of Croxone is such that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results. You can secure an original package of Croxone from any first class druggist. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price if Croxone fails to give the desired results the very first time you use it.

TUBERCULOSIS FIGHTERS DISCUSS WORK OF YEAR

Annual Meeting Will Be Held at 4 O'Clock on Thursday Afternoon.

The fifth annual meeting of the Atlanta Anti-Tuberculosis and Visiting Nurse association will be held at the Carnegie library next Thursday afternoon, March 12, at 4 o'clock, and all who are interested in work it is doing are invited to attend. Willet will give a general summary of the work accomplished, and his report will be supplemented by statements from the financial, educational, medical and relief departments. An interesting feature will be a statement by the superintendent of the Battle Hill sanitarium as to the relation between that institution and the association, and showing the relative functions of each. The State Tuberculosis sanitarium, at Alto, and its relations to local organizations, will be discussed by Dr. Paramore, superintendent of the state sanitarium. Mrs. F. G. Hodgson, president of the Inaou Foundation, will report on the work done under this program, and the outlook for the current year will be presented by Kendall Weisiger, of the executive committee. The annual election of officers will also be a feature of the meeting.

FACED WITH BEING REDUCED, A. J. SMITH QUILTS HIS R. R. JOB

Macon, Ga., March 7.—(Special).—A. J. Smith, the former Georgia Southern and Florida railway engineer who was much in the limelight here during the last municipal election, when it was charged that after he had the office of chief of police "cashed" he offered to sell out to the whisky interests for $10,000, has quit the job with the railway company and has entered the sawmill business with his brother. Since the charges were made against Smith, he had been under suspicion by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, who were conducting an exhaustive investigation. President Burgess, of the national brotherhood, paid Macon a visit to look into the case, and spent two weeks here gathering up the evidence. Finally it was decided that Smith would have to give up his job passenger run between Macon and Valdosta and take a run as freight engineer if he desired to remain in the service. Rather than do this, Smith quit the road altogether. "If I had only thought of it at the time," when the lady bruised her head, when Buster was stung by wasps, when little Mary pinched her hand in the door, when father fell off the step-ladder and sprained his foot, when mother had a stitch in her neck, or when grandmother had a sudden attack of rheumatism, I could have done something." Did accident ever happen in your household, when you could have done a dozen different things if you had thought of them at the time? You can be ready for any of these emergencies by keeping a bottle of Sloan's Liniment on a convenient shelf. It is so antiseptic, so comforting to a sore spot, so penetrating to an aching joint that it relieves the suffering while you are trying to think up that forgotten "something" to do. If You Take Too Much Calomel You Will Bring On Rheumatism

Calomel Attacks the Bones and Develops a Painful Mercurial Rheumatism. JACOBS LIVER SALT is better than calomel. And every dose of calomel that you take is putting mercury into your system and mercury is a powerful chemical which attacks the bones and causes a gradual wasting away, necrosis of the bone, or mercurial rheumatism, the most painful and the most dangerous form of rheumatism. JACOBS LIVER SALT beats calomel every way. It contains no mercury; it flushes the intestinal canal and bowels and cleanses them of all sourness and undigested waste; and it dissolves the uric acid poison which has lain dormant in the fermenting food that has lain in the stomach, and passes it off in the urine, thus removing the cause, which has poisoned the blood and clogged the liver and the liver itself resumes its normal activity. The action of JACOBS LIVER SALT is quick and mild. It contains the same sulphates that are in the system to digest food, stimulating their deficiency, and consequently it combines easily with the tissues of the stomach and acts naturally, without griping, nausea or vomiting. It relieves the liver, and is the best liver stimulant made. If you are bilious it will cure you. If you are well, take it and keep well for every one's liver is apt to get sluggish occasionally, and prevention is always better than cure. JACOBS LIVER SALT EFFERVESCENT WATER before breakfast is a fine every morning habit. Get it from Jacob Pharmacy Co., Atlanta, Ga., and all druggists.—(adv.)

AGRICULTURAL SCHOOLS ARE PAID $1,000 EACH

The state treasury department on Saturday paid out $1,000 each to the eleven congressional district agricultural schools. This is the second time the amounts which has been made this year.

$5,000 this year from 15 acres of grapefruit and orange trees, 5 miles east of Wauchula, Florida. That's part of Mr. Steve Griffin's income. He'll get good returns, too, from other groves and from vegetables between the rows of young trees. The Combination Soil makes it easy for you to work into incomes of $2,000 to $10,000, growing vegetables until the citrus trees develop.

FLORIDA WANTS TO PAY YOU $5,000 A YEAR

If you're not making $5,000 a year, you'd better study the situation in the Wauchula District, Florida. Florida's soil and warmth and rainfall are paying big dividends. Especially through the Wauchula district, where all the natural advantages of the state seem to culminate in top-notch production. A few men here at Wauchula make $10,000 a year and more. Talk to these men and you immediately recognize that they have an marvelous ability. They're just plain straight-forward, thinking men. They're not afraid to work when they can see big payment for their efforts. Then how do they make from $2,000 to $8,000 and $10,000 a year? WAUCHULA COMBINATION SOIL—that's the answer. Here's the Wauchula story in brief: Vegetables are planted between the rows of young grapefruit and orange trees. Crop after crop follows in rapid succession. Three and four a year is common. And see what a crop makes. Note Mr. Griffin's record above. It's not the best. Many men do better, as letters in our booklet show. You'll see that vegetables keep you comfortable and pay for your orange trees begin to bear. Then you'll be in the class of men who make $2,000 to $5,000—even $10,000 a year. Get this straight. Everything we tell you you can do at Wauchula other men have done. Time after time. They're still doing it. More new settlers are getting rich this year than ever before. They're already getting returns from their land. They're on the high road to FORTUNE. Get it straight. And don't imagine you're coming to a wilderness. Beautiful orange groves, dotted all over this region. Many of them ten to twenty years old. Four banks in Wauchula and two neighboring towns have deposits of nearly $500,000. That proves prosperity. Wauchula is a new rapidly-growing town. Wauchula now 2,000 inhabitants, 1,500 last year. That proves growth. Churches, modern schools, lodges, well-equipped and stocked stores. All the benefits of civilization. First-class transportation. Live, cash markets, right at Wauchula. Immediate sales of crops on good basis. Fine water, good drainage, beautiful climate the year round. Hunting and fishing right at hand. More money, more health, more happiness.

Continued advance in value is certain through the same causes that have made their world-wide increases.

The average yield of the mines has in the past few years decreased from 1.20 carats per carload of blue ground to 0.90 carats.

Young People's Party.

Captain James W. English was the host at a happy gathering of young people, the occasion a dancing party which he gave his granddaughter, Miss Emily Robinson, in the ballroom of the Ponce de Leon apartments. The young people, sixty in number, assembled at 8 o'clock, and were received by Captain English.

English and Miss Robinson. Miss Jennie Robinson and Miss Elizabeth Crawford distributed the favors and bonbons. The orchestra was in the music room, adjoining the ballroom, where there were pretty decorations in potted palms and ferns. Vases of these were on the mantel and the table, from which a delicious supper was served buffet style at 11 o'clock. The company represented the evening belles and beaux of society, and made a charming picture. The guests were Misses Georgia Rice, Margaret Whitman, Charlotte Hemminger, Lillian Jacobs, Jane Somers, Alice Moore, Katherine Dickey, Hallie Crawford, Jeannette Evans, Louie Speer, Anne Carpenter, Margaret Nelson, Marjorie Weldon, Helen Tucker, Grace Goldsmith, Frances Ellis, Catherine Erwin, Ethel Tye, Jennie Robinson, Carolyn Tye, Belle Mathewson, Catherine Hook, Eleanor Hook, Natalie Stokes, Lydia Mathews, Elizabeth Kontz, Marion Hull, Margaret Vaughn, Ruth McClellan, Louise Cramer, Mary Cohen, Florence Stowe, Elizabeth Crawford, Josephine Davis, Marjorie Hatcher, Margaret Parker, Evelyn Eagan, Messrs. Sure Way to Regain Robust Bloom of Youth. A smooth, velvety-soft skin, with a delicate peach-like bloom, is one of the Creator's most exquisite works. When the first blush of youth is over, this beautiful tint and satiny lustre are rarely seen. How to preserve them—that's the question. Famous beauty experts abroad long have known that ordinary macerated wax works wonders in this direction. It actually gives a new surge to the skin, restoring that marvelous girlish color and softness in a remarkable manner. An ounce of this wax, procurable at any drug store, will convert a faded, reddened, sunburnt or discolored complexion into one of captivating loveliness in less than two weeks. No special skill is necessary in applying the wax, it being smeared on at night like cold cream and washed off in the morning. To remove wrinkles, or delay their formation, a face bath made by dissolving a few drops of the wax in 2 pt. witch hazel will be found wonderfully efficacious. This comes in a box, containing wax to remain firm and smooth.—(Adv.)

Miss Lulu Ross Will Open Studio Exhibition in City

Miss Lulu Ross will open her studio exhibition today at 51 Durant place and continue the exhibition through the week.

She will show for the first time her pictures painted during her seven years residence in Italy, a group of figures painted at the villa of her friend, the Princess Ruspoli, who was Miss Berry, of Rome, Ga.

Another group of water color paintings in Mexico several years ago show in delicate and exquisite stroke and color, scenes typical of that now agitated country. Probably, however, the pictures in the collection of Miss Ross destined to make the most universal appeal are the oils, where her studies have been drawn from life, among these several done last summer in Virgilia. In the north Georgia mountains last summer Miss Ross did some beautiful pictures, one of these she calls "Fusch Blossoms," which breathes the atmosphere of spring. Another shows the "Fusch Blossoms" in the same vicinity, and there are innumerable small pictures to delight the eye and please the artistic. Miss Ross' studio is unique and charmingly built, and decorated according to her own ideas, and there will assemble there this week many Atlanta people, lovers and students of art, and those appreciative of the Georgia artist's ability. Miss Ross has studied in New York, London, Paris and Florence. She is doing some beautiful work in Atlanta, one of her most admired studies she calls "Life," being replete with spirit and symbolism.

Among the artists who played were Misses Marjamer Ryan, Rosa Hunt Lewis, Hettie Barton, Edna Root, Clonnie Hancock, Rebecca Clark, Ruth Davis, Madeline Trotter and Lula Mercer Spears. Sarah writes: Can anything be done for one who is bothered with rheumatism? If we please reply to her.

Answer: You can be relieved of your rheumatism if you take the following: Mix by shaking well and take a teaspoonful at meal times and at bed time and you will soon be cured. Comp. essence codiol 1 oz. comp fluid balswort 1 oz. comp sal. parilia comp 5 oz. wine of colchicum one-half oz. sodium salicylate 4 drams iodide of potassium 2 drams.

Ray writes: Can a sufferer from bronchial trouble be relieved? Doctors do not seem to help me. What would you suggest?

Answer: To cure chronic cold, sore throat and bronchitis, I would advise the use of concentrated menthol lozenges. Purchase this at any drug store in 1/2 oz. packages and mix according to directions on bottle and you will very shortly be relieved of all bronchial trouble. This will not only relieve but will correct and is very pleasant to take.

Hilda says: I cannot eat without great distress after eating. I am sleepless and restless nervous and irritable. Can you tell me anything that would cure me?

Answer: Your trouble is all due to your stomach which causes the nervous restlessness. Take tablets tripeptine and you will soon be relieved of all this trouble. These are packed in sealed cartons and are pink white and blue tablets to be taken after meals. Take the pink tablet after breakfast, white after dinner and blue after supper. If this is continued the curative agencies will soon restore natural digestion.

W. W. writes: I wake in the morning as tired as when I retired. My stomach feels weak my arms and limbs tremble and I look with despair upon the day's work. I seem to have no energy or recuperative forces. Severe headaches worry and embarrassment at my condition are symptoms.

Answer: The vital forces have ebbed low and you need stimulative and nutritive forces. Begin taking three-grain codonine.

Miss T. P. asks: Do you think a weight of 130 pounds is too much for a girl of medium height? Can I safely take medicine to reduce about 30 pounds?

Answer: Your weight is excessive and if it increases it may cause much suffering and embarrassment. I advise the regular use of 5-grain arsenic tablets which are used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

Carpenter writes: My liver and kidneys are in a bad condition. I have dizzy spells and dark spots near my eyes. Also have twinges of rheumatism. Can I be helped?

Answer: To relieve kidney and liver trouble use three-grain sulphur tablets (not sugar) and one-grain arsenic tablets with full directions for taking. They act pleasantly and tone up the bowels and liver and purify the blood. They are convalescent, effective and highly curative.

Phoebe writes: The following will correct your children's health: Get 2 drams of tincture of rhubarb aromatic 1 dram tincture cubeba and 1 oz. comp fluid balswort. Mix and give this to your children 10 to 15 drops in water about one hour before each meal.

Maud writes: I have suffered a great deal with catarrh. It gives me headaches, affects my eyes and my breath is awful. Can you prescribe something to cure it? Only my nostrils and throat are affected?

Answer: I have prescribed antiseptic viilage powder and grateful notes from hundreds indicate that it is speedily curative, but must be used occasionally to prevent a recurrence. Get a two-ounce original package of viilage powder use a half teaspoonful to pint of water or 10 to 15 drops in water about one hour before each meal.

Old Couple writes: "My wife and I are both victims of kidney and bladder disorders and have taken treatment for some time but don't get relief. Will you give us your advice?"

Answer: The ordinary symptoms from such disorders are puffing under the eyes, swelling ankles, feverishness, dry skin, blood-hot eyes, urine like rheumatism and a too scant or copious flow of urine with frequent calls especially at night. The best prescription I can give is balswort tablets. A special diet compounded especially for such troubles. Obtain in sealed tubes with full directions.

Ona writes: I am troubled with itching scalp dandruff and my hair is falling out. It is harsh and brittle.

Answer: Plain Yellow Minoxyl is the best remedy for itching scalp falling hair and dandruff. It can be bought in 4 oz. jars and if used according to directions will overcome dandruff and brittle hair and your scalp will be soft and your hair will grow again and bring back the intense natural color. Why Aren't Women of Leisure of This Day As Cultured as Those of a Few Years Ago?

INTERESTS OF HUSBAND AND WIFE TOO FAR REMOVED

By Isma Dooly

Commenting upon the interest being taken in the diary of the late Mrs. Livingston Mims, which reflects so clearly and truly a period of social life in the south which can never be repeated, there have been the many to deplore the fact that the social woman of today has not the time to give to the study, reading and thought so eloquently expressed in the daily life of the charming woman who found time to note so clearly her everyday life.

It is easy to explain why this is a generation of women who cannot find the time to lead the life that did Mrs. Mims—the life of elegant leisure, of study, and social indulgence—for the very spirit and life of the times has changed, but there is reason in the question, "Why can't the ideals of conversation and general pastime be very much the same among those people who have leisure and who give much time to pleasure seeking?"

To this question I answered her by describing just what my experience had been during the day in trying to find out what the women who are called "society women" in Atlanta were doing. For instance, "I have called you just three times during one hour to discuss an important matter with you, and was told each time you were busy."

HER DAY'S WORK.

"Yes," she acknowledged "I was trying to work out some plan to meet the emergency of the twelve children ill from among the fifty who attend our little day nursery in a certain community. I had to talk to C and H and A and they then took up the matter with the others and—" Before she finished explaining why her phone was in use, she had outlined what was the day's work of an entire group of women. After visiting the congested district where their little charges live, they had seen doctors, nurses had visited the hospital to confer with authorities there and had then actually made purchases for a temporary dispensary. Each of these women have homes over which they preside and social obligations to fulfill, so what time would they have had in a day of this kind to read carefully enough, to sit down and note in a book the impression made by their reading?"

And in Atlanta it is not one thing to demand the attention of a woman in public work it is another. If she is not engaged in some form of it she rarely sees her women friends by day, but must depend upon the pleasure at the more formal social events of the evening.

"But women ought to find more time to culture themselves and keep up the accomplishments, or they will be failing in their essential duty of adorning the home and making society what it ought to be," was her next observation.

In this she was surely right and again the question arose. Where will the woman of today find the time if she keeps up with the so-called demands of each day? (This applies to the useful women of the community.)

"One way she can find the time is to stop and consider what she really has the time to do and then make her plan of every day life accordingly. Was the suggestion made by another woman and women ought to be more in common than they are."

ONLY WOMEN PRESENT.

For instance she said I went to a meeting of the Drama league not long ago and noted that the audience was made up almost entirely of women—and very intelligent women. Several told me their husbands would not go to the meetings for the average man likes to be read to. Again, how many women try to keep up through papers and magazines with the subjects relating directly or indirectly to the business interests of their husbands. This they could do probably giving some of the time they devote to reading up on the things they like in the time when women did accomplish themselves and have time to write in their diaries for the average woman in their spirit of culture, to write to men and women read together and had their pleasures together and were not running off—he to his club—she to hers. And they danced together those days too—danced just as joyously as they do these days.

The lectures which have been given in Atlanta this winter have been given by men masters of their theme—I might mention Benedict Papot, lecturer, linguist and teacher, Frank Benson, Shakespeare student, director of the English School of Acting and promoter of drama as an art, Loyd Jenkins, scholar, master of Bible literature and teacher of literature in the broadest sense. Necessarily these men speak from the masculine viewpoint, in the messages they bring the lessons they teach. Then why cannot the women who hear them interest the men whom they are related to in the home or elsewhere in these things? Is the fault with the women or the men?

Do the women think enough about the things that go to make for culture's sake—think enough about them to be able to share pleasure in them, with others—or do they go and hear only with their senses, and go with the spirit of satisfying a kind of restlessness that comes too often to the leisure women?

THE SKEPTICAL ONE.

Still pleading that it is really lack of time and not indifference to the better, hopeful sign of the times. It may bring men and women together again in their social interest. Already it has brought about the more rational and wholesome atmosphere of all branches of the family being able to meet occasionally under the same roof, daughters teaching their fathers the new steps, and sons complimenting their mothers on how well the latter dance. May be the family will unite socially again, may be there will be gatherings again at the library table, when books and current interest will be the theme of discussion, and there may come from the chaos that some would believe exists in social life a general renaissance of the period in southern life when the salon of the grande dame of the old south radiated the same spirit of culture and spirit that did those of the old world when women were the leaders and patrons of the highest thought and expression of men and women.

I believe the woman—the product of the new south—can bring about this social renaissance, if she will only stop to take stock of herself, her obligations and surroundings, and then—act!

Mme. Mariette Corsets

IN ACCORDANCE with the demand for color in underdress which is the present vogue, we are showing Mme. Mariette corsets in several fine pastel shades.

The materials are chiefly embroidered silks of very special weave imported for the Mme. Mariette corsets.

Ultra-modish in design are these new corsets with extremely low bust and light flexible boning. Some of the dancing models are cut almost to a girdle allowing the utmost freedom of movement and natural beauty of line. There are other more conservative styles.

These are garments for women of refinement and taste. Women with a love for fine things in underdress will find them unusually attractive.

Prices $3.50 to $25

Our skilled and well informed fitters will be glad to consider your corsetry with you and show you the new models. Visit our finely appointed fitting rooms.

Gossip of Atlantans HERE AND ELSEWHERE

The departure of Mr. and Mrs. John Grant for New York Wednesday and their subsequent departure for Europe will be a source of regret to their Atlanta friends. They sail March 17 and will be away during the summer. They will be joined in New York by their son, William Grant, who will be with them until they sail. They will go to Italy first, where they will join friends. Later they will go to Vienna, Berlin and Paris.

Friday night their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Brandon, gave a dinner-dance in their honor, thirty guests being brilliantly entertained. The circular table presented a most artistic decorative scheme, the flowers those from Mrs. Brandon's own gardens, and showing only the colors of the jonquils and the old-fashioned crocus in yellow and lavender.

In the center was a high epergne in crystal filled with the jonquils; six smaller baskets in silver and crystal held the same flowers, and were placed at intervals around the table; between these were sandsticks holding unshaded wax tapers. The focus was in oblong crystal holders and the finished touch in the decoration was in tulle in the delicate shades of yellow and lavender and sky blue, so arranged as to appear cloudlike on the white cloth and in the soft bows on the handles of the baskets.

The place cards were miniature Easter beauties in the most modish toiles.

Mrs. Brandon's becoming gown was of white satin, the bodice of white tulle edged with sprays of French roses; the corsage was trimmed with the same flowers and folds of green tulle. Mrs. Grant wore a handsome toilet in broad-cloth velvet in a crushed rose shade, the corsage of lace and tulle. Mrs. Slaton wore a dinner gown of black satin, the corsage of lace, enriched by a trimming of brilliants. Mrs. Edward Inman wore a white satin gown, the

Redfern Corsets

The Parisian, the Londoner, the Viennese, the New Yorker—women of fashion wherever found—are familiar with REDFERN CORSETS as marking a fashion that strikes each season the highest note. However extreme the mode in dress, REDFERN CORSETS are harmonious with it and in themselves artistic creations.

The supple silhouette denotes figure ease quite as much as fashion. Each REDFERN MODEL, however lightly boned or topless, or extreme in length, is a shapely and easy-fitting model.

The cloths of soft, smooth weave have the necessary strength for holding the figure regardless of posture. Naturally, there are Redfern stays of heavy fabric, and stays more solidly boned, but the models of the hour are those that are almost crushable in the hand—corsets that you can dance in—corsets that you can rest in. There is no Redfern model that you cannot rest in, since it is too perfectly designed and put together to be anything but comfortable.

This designing—putting together—takes the REDFERN out of the commonplace into the real artistic atmosphere.

We can explain the merits of these corsets much better if you will only give us the opportunity to select your particular REDFERN MODEL from this new collection. It has never been our good fortune, up to now, to assemble a more perfect collection of corsets—for the very good reason that, not to our knowledge, have so many perfect models ever been assembled in any one line.

REDFERN MODELS are not an extravagance—quite the contrary—they are the highest class ready-to-wear garment at the price of an ordinary corset.

$3.00 to $15.00

draperies of golden brown tulle embroidered in crystals, most becoming to her. Mrs. Hugh Richardson wore a dancing gown of white lace with panner draperies of ciel blue taffeta silk. After dinner dancing was enjoyed in the long living room and, beyond, the orchestra was in the sun parlor. There were radiant decorations in spring flowers, combining white lilacs, jonquils and hyacinths, all from Mrs. Brandon's conservatory.

BEAUTIFUL LUNCHEON.

Among the beautiful entertainments of the week was that at which Mrs. John Goddard entertained Friday in honor of Mrs. Frederick Little, of New York. Mrs. Edward Inman's guests dined in the center of the table held the spring flowers in clusters—golden gate roses, violets, white lilacs, hyacinths and gardenias. Spring flowers were in evidence throughout the house. Mr. and Mrs. Little entertained for Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Little at dinner Monday evening. Mrs. Vaughn Nixon gave Mrs. Little a beautiful luncheon Wednesday and Mrs. Victor Smith was among those entertaining at luncheon for her.

THE BEAUTY OF THE DUCHESS.

The visit here of the Duke and Duchess de Richieu was a pleasant social incident, they spending a few days at the Georgian Terrace and entertained by a number of well-known Atlanta. Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Atkinson entertained at dinner for them in their apartments in the Ponce de Leon, inviting a small party to meet them. The duchess, who was a Miss Wise, of Baltimore, is a petite brunette beauty, and charmed all who met her. Leaving here they went to Baltimore, her old home, returning to Europe in the early spring.

AT HOME AGAIN.

Mrs. Richard Johnston has returned from Macon, where she went to see her sister-in-law, Mrs. de Lancoy Kountze, of New York, the latter visiting her mother, Mrs. J. Marshall Johnston. Mr. and Mrs. Milton Dargan have returned from a visit to the Hampton Terrace, Augusta, where the season is at its height there. Golf, in which Mr. and Mrs. Dargan and Miss Dargan took active interest, is the main out-of-door pleasure, while in the evening the putting contests in the drawing room entertained large groups. Bridge, too, is a popular pastime. Miss Mary Lou Phinizy and Miss Mozelle Neely successfully promoted a cabaret entertainment at the Terrace which was a notably brilliant event, in which the smart set of Augusta met with the visitors from all sections at present at the Terrace. During the latter part of March a number of Atlanta people will anticipate the Easter season at the Hampton Terrace. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Emerson Brown are receiving many attentions during their visit here, their old home, Mrs. Brown one of the most attractive of the guests at the club tea and dance Wednesday evening. She wore a draped gown of midnight blue satin; her smart hat of tulle fitting close to her head, had Frenchy finish in a white ostrich aigrette.

IN FLORIDA.

Mrs. Isaac Boyd and Miss Elizabeth Boyd are entertaining delightfully at their winter home in Florida, their guests at present a party of Nashville belles, these to be joined soon by Miss Marian Atchison, of Atlanta, who has had the happiness of her debut in both Nashville and Atlanta with admiration and attention greeting her in both of her "homes." Mrs. Warner Martin and Miss Frances Connally are in Hampton Springs, Fla., enjoying the pleasures of that popular resort. Mr. and Mrs. John Murphy and Miss Gattins are at the Ponce de Leon, St. Augustine, Fla., enjoying surf bathing among other pastimes. They will be away several days longer, and are accompanied by their daughters, Misses Julia and Katharine Gattins. Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Peters and Mrs. Bialock have returned from Florida.

VISITING OTHER PLACES.

Miss Dorothy Harman will go to Birmingham in early April to attend the charity ball, which is the brilliant after-Easter event in Birmingham. She will be with Miss Bland Tomlinson, who will accompany Miss Harman home. Miss Mildred Harman will visit friends in Houston, Texas, this spring. The Harman will open their East Lake home the latter part of March.

OPERA GAYETIES ANTICIPATED.

The gayeties of opera week are being anticipated by many, and there will be the usual number of visitors from neighboring cities. The club suppers, after the performances, will be the brilliant social features. There will be the mid-week ball at the Driving Club, and several hostesses are planning large afternoon functions. The number of boxes taken indicates that society, as usual, will do its part toward making a carnival week of the grand opera season.

PRETTY TOILETS.

At the various gatherings of the week, there was no incident making more for the beauty of the occasions than the many pretty toilets worn. Marked among these was the gown worn on one occasion by Mrs. Charles Remsen. It was of palest rose chiffon satin with draperies of silver lisse, the corsage sparkling with silver sequins. Mrs. Richard Johnston wears a becoming toilet in black satin, the bodice of black tulle giving finish, embroidered in jet, and the corsage combining white lace with tulle. Mrs. John Little wears an exquisite ball gown which combines ciel blue moire silk with white lace, the blue draperies embroidered in silver. She wears effectively with it a corsage piece of beauty, composed of an oblong turquoise set in circles of diamonds. Mrs. James E. Dickey's most becoming toilet is a draped gown in tapestry blue satin, the lace corsage embroidered in silver. Mrs. Frank Caloway wears a black satin dancing gown most becoming to her with a white net coat embroidered in jet, and worn over a corsage of lace with deep girde, and sash of pale blue. Mrs. Reed Hobson wears becomingly a pastel green satin gown, with draperies of lace and chiffon. Mrs. Albert wore Friday evening an effective toilet in black charmeuse, the trimming in net, embroidered in crystals and jet. Mrs. Howard Bucknell was lovely the same evening in a dinner gown of silver blue satin and lace.

Mrs. Bates Block, who was the hos-tes Tuesday evening at a birthday dinner given her uncle, Colonel Robert J. Lowry, wore a pretty toilet in white chiffon, showing a design in flowers and finished with a girde of apple green ribbon.

To Mr. McGowan.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Neely entertained at dinner last evening in honor of Mr. Kenneth McGowan, dramatic critic of The Boston Transcript. Mrs. McGowan, who was Miss Edna Behre, is spending the winter in Asheville, where she and Mr. McGowan will be until the first of May. Mr. McGowan has been invited to lecture before the Drama League during his visit here.

Go and Look in Your Mirror

Gray hair adds fully 10 years to your looks. Go and look in your mirror, and look without seeing those white hairs. Why, your eyes are brighter, and your cheeks actually dimple with pleasure. What a difference those few white hairs make! You'd look five years younger, or if it wasn't for those few white hairs, and another year or so and your whole head will be gray!

Not necessarily. We give you our positive guarantee that Robin-naire Hair Dye will restore your hair to its original color and beauty without injuring hair or scalp, and it will make your hair soft and keep it in fine condition. It is a restorative to bring back to the hair its natural color and life.

If you have dandruff, use a hair tonic to cure it; and if your hair is fading and turning gray and lifeless, you should use a restorative to renew its life and color. Both troubles result from diseases of the scalp, and there is no more reason why you should reject a pure color restorative than that you should reject a good dandruff tonic. Think this over. Remember, Ten years younger.

For light, medium and dark brown and black hair. Try it immediately with a 25c trial size and see the remarkable result. Postpaid, 30c. Regular large size, 75c; postpaid, 85c. For sale by all Jacobs' Pharmacy Stores and druggists.—(Adv.)

Dangerous Hair Dyes!

When you see the words "Shake Bottle Before Using" on a bottle of hair dye, BEWARE! It means that it contains Sugar of Lead and other poisons that are not only sickly and gray, but they rub off. Beware of many so-called "walnut hair dyes." These are made from walnut stain and are liable to injure the skin and clog the eyelids.

Mary T. Goldman's Gray Hair Restorer is as clean and pure as water and contains no alkali, heavy lead and Sulphur that must be shaken off. It is absolutely harmless.

BE SAFE!—Use Mary T. Goldman's Gray Hair Restorer—BE SURE!

Mary T. Goldman's Gray Hair Restorer does not give the hair a "died" appearance because it is so mild. It makes the gray hair come back in from four to eight days. Where the hair is just beginning to turn gray the gray will simply disappear with one or two applications. All good druggists sell it at $1.00 per bottle. It is absolutely harmless.

FREE! Tell me the original color of your hair and I'll send you a trial bottle in an unmarked package so that you can prove what I claim. Kindly enclose five-cent stamps to cover cost of postage and packing. Write to: Goldman, 33 Goldman Bldg., St. Paul, Minn.

Style—Comfort—Wear

Style —every woman ought to have a sense of pride in her figure, and she has if she is corsetted in a Warner's Rust-Proof Corset

Comfort —every woman wishes to be fashionable, but she also longs to be comfortable. Women who once wear Warner's appreciate the feeling of comfortable support that Warner's scientifically designed corset gives.

Wear —yes, you want your corset to wear. You cannot be bothered by continually purchasing new corsets.

Every part of Warner's Corsets is made in our own factories. Nemo KOPSERVICE CORSETS

THE wish to be stylish is a worthy feminine trait. No doubt most women would like to have the so-called "corsetless" figure. Many have tried to attain it, and given it up in pain and disgust. Why? Because, until now, all corsets intended to give the "natural figure" have been mere makeshifts—uncomfortable, physically dangerous; and, if worn for some time, sure to distort the figure permanently.

Nemo Kopservice Corsets Have Solved the Problem

Their newly-invented and novel construction, with double-front device (see diagram below) and the liberal use of the durable Nemo semi-elastic fabrics, produces a perfect "corsetless" effect, while retaining all the hygienic support that has made the Nemo world-famous.

KOPSERVICE SYSTEM DETAILS OF CONSTRUCTION A.—Detached skirt as worn. B.—Seam joining the outer skirt to corset-body. C.—Showing how skirt conforms to natural figure. D.—"Nemo" bridge.

Every woman, from slight to stout, may now have a rational "corsetless" figure without discomfort, health-peril, or danger of spoiling her figure beyond repair.

The liberal use of the durable NEMO semi-elastic fabrics gives these superb up-to-date models all the comfort of the old short corsets with the long, easy lines of present fashion. Ask your dealer to show you the NEMO KOPSERVICE Corsets. They will prove a revelation—they're NEW and wonderful.

Many Operations Avoided

WHILE of course there are serious cases of feminine ills that nothing but a surgical operation will remedy, the indisputable fact remains that hundreds of operations have been avoided by the wonderful medicinal virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and the very best proof of this is the unsolicited and grateful letters of the recovered ones themselves. By special permission we publish here four of them out of hundreds we have:—

Logansport, Ind.—"My baby was over a year old and I bloated till I was a burden to myself. I suffered from female trouble so I could not stand on my feet and I felt like millions of needles were pricking me all over. At last my doctor told me that all that would save me was an operation, but this I refused. I told my husband to get me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I would try it before I would submit to any operation. He did so and I improved right along. I am now doing all my work and feeling fine. I hope other suffering women will try your Compound. I will recommend it to all I know."—MRS. DANIEL D. B. DAVIS, 110 Franklin Street, Logansport, Ind.

Cleveland, Ohio.—"My left side pained me so for several years that I expected to have to undergo an operation, but the first bottle I took of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound relieved me of the pains in my side and I continued its use until I became regular and free from pains. I had asked several doctors if there was anything I could take to help me and they said there was nothing that they knew of. I am thankful for such a good medicine and will always give it the highest praise."—MRS. C. H. GRIFITH, 7306 Madison Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

Decatur, Ill.—"I was sick in bed and three of the best physicians said I would have to be taken to the hospital for an operation as I had something growing in my left side. I refused to submit to the operation and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—and it worked a miracle in my case, and I tell other women what it has done for me."—MRS. LAURA A. GRISWOLD, 2300 Blk. East William Street, Decatur, Ill.

Charlotte, N.C.—"I was in bad health for two years, with pains in both sides and was very nervous. I had a growth which the doctor said was a tumor, and I never would get well unless I had an operation. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I gladly say that I am now enjoying fine health."—MRS. ROSA STAS, 16 Winona St., Charlotte, N.C.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine.

It would seem wise before undergoing an operation to at least give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. RELIABLE TESTIMONY.—All our testimonials are guaranteed to be genuine and truthful. They came to us entirely unsolicited and are sincere expressions of gratitude for actual benefits received from the medicine.—THE LYDIA E. PINKHAM MED. CO., LYNN, MASS.

Scores of New Spring Suits

We're As Proud of This Captivating Display As You Will Be Pleased to Choose From It

One finds it a pleasure to choose, from such an assemblage of fine suits. There are more suits, more models at each price, newer and more distinguished designs, smarter and snappier styles than women would expect to find, even in April.

The smart, new short coats, with postillion basques, with draped belts, or with tassels, the tunic skirts, in a half score of styles; the new sleeves, the belted cuffs, the double collars, the fine gabardines, the men's-wear serges, the exquisite failles, the new poplin crepes and the waffle crepes; and the new color tones, all have their showing.

Silks Play a Prominent Part in Suit Styles

March Oriental Rug Sale Save a Fifth to a Third

THE "Dark Ages" are just disappearing from the commercial world. Selling Oriental Rugs without sham, evasion or quibbling is the work of the modern store. There is no difficulty in determining the market value of an Oriental Rug—the customs authorities have very clear standards of value-gauging, and the ad valorem duty is based on their knowledge. To be sure, a sentimental value attaches to rare specimens—but these must be rare from the museum standpoint, rather than from a commercial standpoint, to make the value unknowable.

Rugs vary in worth—vary for several reasons—and one buys this rug as fairly at several thousand dollars as one buys this more ordinary piece at ten or fifteen dollars. Gathered directly and valued anywhere near a true worth, there is no luxury as sensible as Oriental Rugs, for they outwear all other floor coverings, while adding elegance to the home.

Rugs worth $20 to $450 Now priced $14 to $365

HEARINGS IN ATLANTA BY INDUSTRIAL BOARD

Far-Reaching Inquiry to Be Made—Remedy for Trouble Sought.

Washington, March 7.—Far-reaching inquiry into the industrial situation in the United States with a view to making recommendations to congress shortly will be undertaken by the federal industrial relations commission. Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the commission, stated today that public hearings would be held in the principal industrial centers beginning probably the last of March and continuing through the early summer.

The hearings will embrace all the main divisions of the inquiry directed by congress, which include irregularity of employment, possibilities of ending irregularity and increasing production through scientific management, activities of trades unions and employers' associations and the extent and operation of governmental machinery for regulating conditions of industry, including relations between employers and employees.

Particular inquiry will be devoted to successful methods of maintaining harmonious relations beneficial to both employers and employees with a view to their adoption in centers where such methods have never been tried.

Representations of employers' trades union and other labor organizations, organized employees and the general public will be heard. The services of experts in subjects to be inquired into have been secured by the commission and they are being in planning the hearings. The commission will subpoena witnesses but announces that volunteer testimony will be welcomed. It has already selected for holding hearings in New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Paterson, Scranton, Pittsburgh, Buffalo and Wheeling, Charlotte, N. C., Greenville, S. C., Atlanta, Birmingham, Nashville, Louisville, New Orleans, Detroit, Indianapolis, Cleveland, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, St. Paul, Denver, Trinidad, Colo., Dallas, Houston, Galveston, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, Butte and Lead, S. D.

The commission will carefully avoid acting as a board of mediation and conciliation, said Chairman Walsh, and will not allow itself to be drawn into local controversies or recognizing such controversies unless in doing so it can obtain information that has more than local and temporary significance.

The open mind will be our watchword and we shall endeavor to provide a forum where men representing all factions can meet in the common purpose of finding a way out from bitterness and strife. To accomplish this we shall need the co-operation and help of all concerned. The commission wishes to appoint a committee of experts, a person who has a constructive suggestion.

PEACH CROP SAFE, SAY ADVICES TO FRUIT EXCHANGE

The Georgia peach crop is safe to date according to advices received by Manager Henry D. Marks of the Georgia Fruit exchange.

It is expected that the 1914 crop will be even larger than the bumper crop of 1912 which was the largest in the history of the state.

In commenting on the 1914 crop Manager Marks said it is impossible to state at this time just what the 1914 crop will be. Damage comes much more than this in south Georgia and the north Georgia orchards are not safe until after the middle of April. To date however no serious damage has been reported.

The 1914 crop promises to be one of the largest in the history of the state and the Georgia Fruit exchange is now making its plans for handling a bumper crop.

One of the most encouraging signs in connection with the forthcoming crop is that the growers too are looking for a big crop.

UNIQUE BLIND TIGER CAPTURED AT ATHENS

Athens, Ga., March 7.—(Special.)—A unique blind tiger was captured in a room of the old Commercial hotel, located in front of the entrance to the University of Georgia campus, the city detectives declaring that it had been in operation for seven or eight years.

The tiger was in an inanimate form of a circular, made and roughly upholstered in report or lounge with sand filled pillow a flap on the side, under which was a keyhole. Unlocked the entire top of the lounge could be raised and the pinto were visible, four of the brands being there to select from. A dollar for each pint taken was placed in a small envelope and slipped in a slot of a strong box placed in a corner of the piece of furniture. Keys were furnished to the hotel and the room in which the tiger was innocently formed a rather inconspicuous part of the furnishings. Unlocked the tiger dropped in a dollar, took out a flask with no one to see and no one to sweat on in case of a case and relocked the furniture and the room. The honor of the individual purchaser was retained for the sale.

P. G. Grogan, who the detectives admitted he paid the rental for the room, was arrested.

Keely's page of March attractions

New arrivals; foreign washables; eloquently suggestive of Spring

The Spring of 1914 will prove to be a season of elegance, quaintness and novelty in wash fabrics. French, German and Belgian weavers vie with each other in their efforts to produce daintiness and novelty in cotton fabrics.

Spring suits, novel in styles and fabrics

Nothing but a personal inspection can do justice to the extraordinary attractions of our novelty showing in street suits. These are the very pick of the maker's best styles and are the very last expressions of Spring fashions and fabrics.

Superior in workmanship, correct in lines, stunning in style and novel in materials used, they will appeal at once to the smart dresser.

Among the many new things shown tomorrow are novelties in checks and shepherd plaid suits. Suits of fancy serge, suits of moire, brocade and tailored taffetas; each one of them interprets the new modes in short coats, new collars, tunic skirts. Some of the fancy cloths, crepes and serges have trimmings of moire and taffeta. Especially pretty are the fancy shepherd checks having short coats or boleros or semi-tons. They have inset vestees of color; white-lined. Some have sailor collars, others ruffled at the edge. A few styles in plain crepes with loose blouses, gathered in back with girdles of contrasting moires. Two and three-tier tunic skirt styles seem the most approved.

Draperies 3d floor

Sun-fast draperies are now the leading window coverings for general use because, as their name indicates, the colors are impervious to the rays of the sun. They wash satisfactorily and clean beautifully; and are made in a great number of artistic patterns with masterful combinations of color tones. Almost any scheme of decoration can be matched here in these popular fabrics.

Attractive fancy silks

The great March display of luxurious silks begins tomorrow. Commencing Monday you will get first view of brand-new things. The silks worn and used by Paris today are duplicated here Monday. Nearly $20,000 worth of silk novelties will be shown in this collection.

Chief among the charming novelties will be exquisite creations suitable for evening and afternoon dresses, and correct for every formal function. In the higher grade silks, used for pretentious and dressy wear, clinging fabrics are the most to be desired, because of their pliancy, their softness and their delicacy of tones. Notable examples are seen in printed styles.

40-inch "pussy willow" taffetas, printed Egyptian crepes, printed crinkled crepes, broche, cashmere crepes and new duo-tone printed effects on pastel grounds.

Popular taffeta silks

Nothing has so illuminated the history of dress as this Spring's craze for changeable chiffon taffetas.

They curiously adapt themselves to the present mode of dress. The charming combinations of new color tones are veritable reflections of the best loom art. Naturally they meet the first requirements of this season's fashion edicts. They shall be supple, yet have weight enough to supply bouffancy and puffiness required in the latest products of the French dressmaker.

Foreseeing the trend of fashion's demands, our silk buyer was early in the field, allying himself with one of the largest and most famous silk departments in New York City, one whose name is a synonym for the best of silks, and he is ready to show them to you Monday, at

Spring dresses new in styles and fabrics

Fascinating models ready tomorrow in frocks that emphasize the vogue of the most favored fabrics.

Crepe de chines, figured crepes, pussy willow taffetas, changeable taffetas, plain taffetas and silk poplins in perfect adaptations of Paris modes.

Various new models are shown tomorrow, each seeming more charming than the other. Bouffant effects and tiered fluffy ideas are strongly represented.

Good color ranges in every one of the materials noted. Pannier effects with wide soft girdles and Poiret sleeves and shoulders. V necks are strongly in evidence. Many of the new styles show Marie Stuart collars, and the combinations of puffs and ruffles with corded edges are very smart and striking.

Every one of the dresses shown has been made to our own order and all of the charming variations in the styles, including ruffles, puffs and draperies, are correct. In the large quantity of dresses shown an eye has been had to the selection of frocks suitable for morning, matinee, club and daylight dancing functions. $15.00 to $75.00

Foreign white goods, first in popularity, unexcelled in beauty

An unveiling of the white novelties, displays three dominant features: sheerness! softness! and pliancy! The aristocrats of the white goods assemblage are: crepes, voiles, ratines, eponges, rice cloths and golfines. Every good thing which will be extensively popular is ready.

SCENE AT THE BOYS' HIGH SCHOOL-NIGHT SCHOOL.

BOYS' NIGHT SCHOOL PUPILS ENJOY TRIP TO MARDI GRAS

The eighth grade is glad to welcome Mr. Sanford Bushka back after a week's absence. Mr. Bushka spent Mardi Gras week in New Orleans and told us that he had a very good time. While Mr. Bushka was away he sent us numerous postcards of New Orleans and we look to go there to see the sights and postcards look them over and it will save the expense of railroad fare.

All the boys are glad to see Sanford back as he is a very great favorite and he himself says that he is glad to be back. He returned to school after a severe illness. He has had a very hard time of it and we all hope that it is his last sickness for many a long year.

The seventh grade is indebted to William Cleveland for an atlas of Canada which contains much valuable information. The eighth grade on last Friday had a very fine spelling match in which Tom Puplin and Eugene spelled down the whole course in time.

Tom and Eugene were both on the same side so the other side was completely spelled down. The winners seemed to know all the words in the spelling.

The fifth grade is having fine attendance and we hope they will keep this up. We are sure that it will last as long as the year is in.

Several boys in the fourth grade are doing outside reading and seem very much interested. They have joined the Carnegie library and are taking every chance to go there and read.

The boys in the commercial class are all studying hard as school will soon be out and they will be through with their course. They all want to know it well.

A great deal of curiosity has been expressed by some of the boys of the night school in the basement of the school there is a room where things like the typewriter is in the school. Sometimes at night some of the men that work in the rooms through the basement. But the door is closed and locked so they have to go by wondering what is in the room.

One night curiosity got the best of a boy and he went to the basement and asked what was in the room. Summers laughed and said "Come on and I will show you." He unlocked the door and went in with the boy. Summers said "Now know what is in the room with the closed doors and where funny things come from. The thing is interesting to go in and watch the men at their work."

First, Third and Fourth Grade Girls Receive Most Stars for Lines at Ashby
 Last week we had the heaviest snow storm that I remember. The school closed for a day and the children were out of school for a day. They played snow ball and had a delightful time. Some of the children were absent on account of being sick and could not come out in the snow. We are looking for Miss Milledge soon and are still looking for Dr. Toppel.

SPLENDID POEM COMPOSED BY BOY OF LEE SCHOOL

February's adieu was in the form of quite a heavy snowstorm which started Wednesday morning and continued through the day. Needless to say none of the children found it an unwelcome visitor and the numbers of snowy cheeks and reddened ears gave evidence of some mighty conflicts.

The exercises in honor of George Washington's birthday were rendered in a highly interesting manner. We are all very proud of our auditorium where we often have such good times.

The children of the third grade A have organized a library. All the little folks whose lessons and behavior are satisfactory are allowed the privilege of reading.

The second grade A is working hard in arithmetic and they are now enjoying the study of the third grade A.

The seventh grade was represented in our George Washington Centennial parade by a play in which Clifford Smith was George Washington and Brooke Lowry Uncle Sam. Their costumes caused some to believe that they were really with us at the time.

The new readers of the first grade A are so interesting that the children would enjoy reading in them often during their time permits.

The children in the sixth grade on the honor roll this month are Ludwig Gaisert, Grace Doolson and Rachael Smith.

The little folks of the first grade B are very proud of the star Miss Graves gave them Friday.

Those in the honor roll in the fourth grade A are Westelle Gartner, Eva Moore, Irene McDaniel, Pentecost Toon, Carlisle Dade, Max Evans, Madeline Callahan, Selestina McGinty, Maude Wallace, Myrtice Hunt and Inez Adams.

The honor roll in the eighth grade included Elizabeth Wheeler, Fay Blanche, Mildred Ryan, Edgar Wilson, Blanche Ryan, Elsie Almond, Evelyn McGahee, Louise Nichols and Angelina Barnett. The eighth grade for our George Washington Centennial celebration gave a scene from a negro camp meeting. It was greatly enjoyed and the actors were again an enormous success. The following poem was written by Charles Rudy in our sixth grade. Charles often writes pieces which give him to be quite talented.

WASHINGTON SEMINARY OPPOSES SUFFRAGE

One of the events of the school year is always the opening debate by the members of history. This year they selected for their subject the popular one of suffrage. The question was Resolved: That woman should have the vote.

The affirmative was led by Bessie Downing assisted by Irsby Walington and Marjorie Dickert. They were opposed by Susie Winberry leader of the negative assisted by Gladys Cook and Evelyn Brazzell.

The subject was enthusiastically debated for an hour and was very evenly contested. Each side was so well maintained that it was with difficulty that the judges came to a decision.

However, the affirmative had the negative side was declared the winner.

SEVENTH GRADE AT FOREST SCHOOL CAPTURES PICTURE

The first grade received excellent in music drawing and physical training. Our fourth grade teacher is sick and the fifth grade teacher has been absent two days.

The fifth grade boys will debate Friday. The subject is Resolved: That Napoleon was a greater general than Washington.

The seventh grade won a picture which was the prize offered to the grade who sold the most tickets to our candy pulling. The seventh grade baseball team will be glad to play any other seventh grade team in the city. For information call Paul Grant 11-3187.

The sixth and seventh grade baseball teams played a game in which the seventh was victorious. The score being 15 to 8.

The eighth grade girls' basketball team will play Tenth Friday at 7:30. We will be glad to play other teams. Call Virginia Robertson 11-3187.

EIGHTH GRADE AT NORTH AVE. TOPS THE SPELLING RACE

North avenue celebrated George Washington's birthday at 4:30 o'clock and Friday morning at 11:00. Of course we celebrated it by giving an entertainment. Let us see what some of the actors and actresses were able to do for us.

One lady laughingly remarked "You girls had much to do with money. The price was 20 cents for grown people and 10 cents for the school children that were not in the entertainment. In all we made a little over $10. We gave the entertainment in order to purchase some camp chairs for outdoor classes in the warm weather. We certainly are looking forward to using them. HILL CONQUERS LEE AND FAIR IN SOCCER GAMES, 3-0

At last the snow and rain have left us only to be succeeded by the fierce March winds which play many a game with the clouds. Here's hoping that these winds cease to blow with less speed and allow the spring weather to come. The carpenters have been very busy building shelves for our library books. The chess game approx. good.

Many of us realize that it is best to make hay while the sun shines. On March 8 we must return to school with 1500 word compositions on Famous Georgia Battles of the Civil War. A large number are sure to win the prize and have been alert in gathering Georgia history.

The next meeting of the Hill Street School Literary and Debating Society will witness a fine struggle for the trophy and education medals. The girls' club is preparing for the contest. Sarah Abelson and Marion Ansley. The boys' contest are Morris Bolloway and Coach Frazier. Both sides are very close as all of the children put up a fine speech.

Resolved That Moving Pictures Shows Do More Harm Than Good. A subject which offers many arguments on both sides and should prove very interesting. The affirmative side is led by Edwin Williams with Mrs. Pennington as second speaker. The negative side is led by Charles Winburn with J. C. Shelor and John McDaniel as second and second speakers. Both sides are confident of winning the decision.

The boys are anxiously awaiting the day when they are to compete for the silver bronze medal advertised through the school. The boys are all very anxious to win. The boys are all very anxious to win.

BOYS' HIGH COMMENCES BASEBALL PRACTICE

Good Material Out for Team. Speakers' Contest on Saturday.

By Robert Foreman.
 On Saturday March 14 the contest to choose the speakers for the inter-scholastic meet will be held. There is an unusually large number of students trying for the two places this year and the contest will probably be very close. The two seniors who will enter the contest are John Stewart and Morton Nichols. The Boys' High school faculty will act as judges in the preliminary contest.

Baseball is now getting into the hands of the students. The first spring practice was held at Bridge Park on Wednesday. Coach Frazier began his work with the team at this practice and has a lot of promising new material besides the old members. Most of the new players are from other grades and they are making the contest for the pitcher's place very lively. The squad will practice regularly from now on as they have an outside game scheduled for March 14.

The basketball cup will be decided by the game played at Marist college on Saturday. It is expected that this year especially at the first of the season. Knox was knocked out of the game in the first Marist mix-up. It will remain out the rest of the season on account of injuries received in that game. The pitcher's place will be the most important game of the season yet to be played.

The regular meeting of the Alphonse Literary and Debating Society will be held in the hall on Monday. The new speaker will be selected at the first time between the different parts of the program.

How did you enjoy the snow storm? We played in the snow during recess and during the recess when the best part of the day was spent in the snow. We had a very pleasant visit to the school and Mrs. Milledge in the fourth grade. This is the third star they have received in music. The first star was received in music. The first star was received in music.

Our school in spite of the severe weather has been comfortably heated. The seventh grade won the spelling contest. This is the third week in a row that the spelling contest has been won by the seventh grade. They hope to continue to win the spelling contest as long as the weather is so good.

The fourth grade is working on a spelling contest. They enjoy it very much. They hope to win the spelling contest. They hope to win the spelling contest.

The first grade has taken up a new reader called Lee's Reader. It is real interesting and they like it. They like it very much.

J. R. HOLLIDAY, Constitution Building, sole Advertising Manager for all territory outside Atlanta.
The address of the Washington Bureau is No. 1727 S. Street, N. W., Mr. John Corrigan, Jr. staff correspondent in charge.

THE CONSTITUTION is on sale in New York city by J. P. M. the day after issue. It can be had at the following addresses: Broadway and Forty-second street (Times building corner), Thirty-eighth street and Broadway and Twenty-ninth street and Broadway.

THE ONE WAY OUT.

The city of Atlanta is bound hand and foot by the fetters of inadequate health, police, schools, fire-fighting, street and other facilities.
Hold-ups multiply because the police as a department hasn't the money to engage the number of officers required.
Our facilities for fighting contagious diseases, which know no color line, are temporary and inadequate.
Our sanitary and hygienic arrangements are inefficient.
Our school system is threatened for lack of space, with poorness of up-to-date hygienic and sanitary equipment.
Grady hospital can employ not quite half the nurses it needs, can accommodate only a portion of the patients demanding attention.
We need urgently additional fire protection.
Prominent streets should be given permanent grades and contours, that development may go forward and the property owners know where they stand.
What is the answer to all these fundamental weaknesses?
The economic insanity of trying to make current income take care of all these improvements in addition to meeting current expenses.
It simply cannot do it.
Atlanta is a metropolis and not a tank-town.
The newest development in the contagious hospital situation is an illustration of the situation even if it is an encouragement.
Some weeks ago The Constitution printed the tragic need of hospital facilities for both white and black contagious disease.
We stressed insanitary conditions generally.
So impressed was Nathan Straus, the New York multi-millionaire philanthropist, then visiting Atlanta, that he forwarded his check for $500 to aid in a solution.
A temporary hospital for negro contagious diseases was promptly assured.
Through the civic initiative and public spirit of Mayor Woodward and the Rotary club hospital facilities sufficient to temporarily accommodate all contagious diseases is assured. But the arrangement is only a makeshift.
Where disease obtrudes, the word "temporary" should be stricken.
There is one way out, only one way out. A bond issue!
We may palaver and we may rant.
But we come back to the proposition that current income cannot meet current needs and take care of the demands of growth.
No other city of importance attempts that economic insanity.
This is not to speak of the urgent need of regrading, repaving and rehabilitating important streets, in themselves permanent improvements, bearing huge and inestimable dividends.
The class that has most to gain from "taking up the municipal slack" is the class that is not wealthy. The rich man can take care of his own. The poor man must rely upon the facilities for which he pays taxes.
It has been suggested that a citizens' committee, thoroughly representative, investigate the situation, outline the manner in which the proceeds of the issue would be spent and supervise the expenditure.
That idea is sound.
Another proved good idea is the St. Paul plan. It issues bonds in the shape of interest-bearing certificates of ten, twenty and fifty-dollar denominations. Citizens buy them. That keeps the money at home. It creates a ready market. It assures civic vigilance. The plan is worth considering.

At any rate, the present status spells stagnation!
What is the city going to do about it?

CHURCH "ULTIMATUMS."

The report first circulated to the effect that Dr. Charles W. Daniel, pastor of the First Baptist church, had threatened to close his church to those of his members who belonged to "locker clubs," appears to have been exaggerated. It now seems that the proposed "ultimatum" contemplates action against those who belong to clubs "violating the law," and that the matter, after all, is to be left to the conscience of the individual member.
This presents the question in a very much more reasonable light than at first reported. No good church member would willfully violate what he knows to be the law, but the average man is the keeper of his own conscience.
No pulpit, no newspaper has ever exceeded The Constitution in militant respect for the "old-time religion," and that is why The Constitution is concerned at the marked tendency among men toward shortened church attendance—the cause for and the explanation of which has engaged the attention of the world in recent years.
Is it possible that a superabundance of "ultimatums," an excess of well-meant but unseeing zeal, is the real explanation?
We sometimes wonder if some of our ministers do not innocently damage their own cause by an enthusiasm which they carry to extremity.
Human nature is altered in no essential since the Garden of Eden and contradiction and rebellion against arbitrary mandates are among its first traits.
Every once in a while extreme ecclesiastics have thundered from the pulpits "ultimatums" against dancing, but today the world is more than ever dance mad.
"Ultimatums" have been hurled against harmless card games, theater going and the like, but the public goes right along enjoying innocent amusement, as it always has done and as it always will do. Theaters multiply, movies sprout on every corner and, summed up, there is a greater theater patronage proportionately than at any previous time in the world's history.
At every point where churches have sought by "ultimatums" only to substitute ecclesiastical authority for the dictates of conscience—
The church has lost!
If that holds true in the dark past, it holds true with intensified force in the intelligent present.
Today men read and think and analyze for themselves.
They simply will not be stampeded into any course, by any "ultimatum," unless it accords with the whisperings of their inner conscience, and if their inner conscience tells them that they are not offending all the "ultimatums" that may be thrown at them will be lost.
Can it be that the complaint of the paucity of male attendance at church, as compared with former times, is due to the modern tendency to "ultimatums"?
We do not say so. We ask the question as one opening up avenues of profitable speculation.
While human conscience lives, best go slow with "ultimatums" and use the lash of the medieval ages sparingly.
Remember what Burns said:
"The fear o' hell's the hangman's whip
To keep the wretch in order.
But where you feel your honor grip,
Let that be your border!"
We note with pleasure, therefore, that Dr. Daniel has been misrepresented in this matter.

GIVING WOMAN A CHANCE.

An 18-year-old girl of Norfolk, Va., tells an investigating committee a story that demonstrates that in some respects our police methods are stupid and inhuman.
Some months ago, she was arrested on a charge of immorality. She was thrown into contact with prostitutes and all manner of vile characters. She was subjected to the notorious "third degree" which more up-to-date departments are discarding. As an inevitable consequence she confessed a crime, of which she was not guilty. Hysteria induced by mental torture drove her to our damaging statement for relief. Three reputable physicians have testified that she could not have been guilty of the offense charged.
Such a story taxes the self-control of the red-blooded or humane man. It makes him want to resort to the primitive and use his doubled fists where they will be most effective.
A better remedy is intelligence. In that connection, we publish elsewhere on this page an illuminating story from Louise De Koven Bowen, of The New York Survey. She cites cases and conditions just such as were reproduced in the saddening Norfolk instance. She says that what is needed are women on our juries, in our police courts and jails. Also she would have women prisoners rigorously separated from men prisoners, given sanitary treatment and such facilities as we all know a good, or even a vicious, woman demands for her physical comfort.

The writer is correct. Atlanta is making strides in that direction. Other cities are waking up. But the devilment still going on under the name of the "law" is sufficiently exasperating to justify improvement of the most radical nature.

GRADING UP LIVESTOCK.

The Country Gentleman, among the foremost rural publications in the country, publishes a strong article on the possibilities of beef culture in the south and pays particular attention to Georgia.
A significant feature of the study is the report of results of experiment made by Milton P. Jarnagin, professor of animal husbandry at the State College of Agriculture, on the breeding of thoroughbred sires to native cows. This is a point often stressed as essential by W. H. White, Jr., president of the White Provision company, of Atlanta, and pioneer in the modern packing house industry in Atlanta.
Professor Jarnagin bought "scrub" cows in south Georgia at $17 a head. These he bred to thoroughbred bulls, and the result was all that could be desired. The calves at 8 months weighed 647 pounds and were shaping up beautifully, from the point of view of marketability at good prices.
Mr. White and other experts have emphasized that one of the quickest and most effectual ways to bring up the live stock of Georgia to the commercial status is by the method employed in the Jarnagin instance.
The "scrub" stock, kept to itself, breeds and inbreeds to no purpose and makes a product that has little commercial rating. But the "scrub" cow, mated to the thoroughbred bull, produces beef cattle of splendid grade, fit to match with the magnificent products of the western ranges that established the beef reputation of that principality.
Professor Jarnagin and Mr. White have pointed the way to the Georgia farmers.
Mr. White's further plan of having farmers co-operate in the maintenance of a thoroughbred bull simplifies the problem to a yet greater extent.
Georgia has the space.
Georgia has the grass, the cotton seed meal and hulls.
Georgia has the corn.
Given the proper initiative, and latitude on the part of bankers in broadening the basis of collateral to include livestock, Georgia ought within three years become one of the prize cattle states in the country.
ATLANTA SHOWS THE WAY.
Atlanta has shown the whole country the way to largely mitigate the "loan shark" evil and the general financial stress of those to whom the conventional bank offers difficult terms of relief. The basis of the Atlanta plan is comprised in the operation of the Atlanta Savings and Loan Company, of which W. Woods White is president and Hollins N. Randolph a director. Mr. Randolph tells in an article published elsewhere how he described the general success of the plan to many of the biggest financiers and philanthropists of New York city, his words bearing fruit in the organization of the Industrial Finance Corporation of New York, with a capital of $6,000,000 and a board of directors who are nationally prominent. The object of the corporation is to establish in each town of importance in the country a loan bank patterned upon the Atlanta plan. And it was the success and demonstrated feasibility of the plan here that induced these men who so largely control finance to underwrite this big project.
Some of the directors of the Industrial Finance Corporation are Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university; W. D. Sloan, director of the National City Bank; Joseph S. Auerbach, prominent attorney; E. H. Outerbridge, trustee of the Equitable Life Assurance Society; Raymond Du Puy, director of the Virginia Railway company; Vincent Astor, Oscar S. Straus, Theodore P. Shonts, Andrew Carnegie and others. Atlanta is represented on the board by Frederic J. Paxson, W. Woods White and Hollins N. Randolph.
Here in Atlanta the idea was first thoroughly tried out and its practicability demonstrated. The establishment of the corporation means that the relief extended to people of small resources in Atlanta is now to be extended to people in the same class the country over. The importance of that beneficent action cannot be overestimated. We all know the toll paid in the old days to the "shark," how the usurer wrung profit from the needy, the sick, the profligate. We all know how that toll has been radically reduced in Atlanta.
Mr. Randolph is to be congratulated on his share in nationalizing the Atlanta plan. This is truly constructive citizenship of the kind of which any American might well be proud.
The Shanghai liar has probably been promoted to El Paso or Juarez.

It now is said that college women make good wives and mothers. Any good woman makes both.

Atlanta needs also a hospital for contagious "grouches."

Women Needed on Juries
As Peace Officers
BY LOUISE DE KOVEN BOWEN.
OF THE SURVEY PRESS BUREAU.
We have been in the habit of thinking of our law courts as places where justice is dealt out by men to men only; where men are brought who have been arrested by policemen, interrogated by men captains or sergeants and guarded in prison by men jailers. In addition, men are brought into court by men bailiffs, tried by juries of men, sentenced by men judges and cared for by men in the institutions to which they are committed.
We do not often think of the thousands of unfortunate women who are brought into our courts. In spite of their numbers and their great need for special care, our legal machinery is still largely in the hands of men, although many eminent lawyers and jurists are feeling the need of women's help and sympathy in dealing with women.

Women's Disadvantages.
From the time of the arrest of a woman to the final disposition of her case, she is at a disadvantage. In the police stations of Chicago the women are herded together, the innocent with the guilty, the clean with the unclean, the young girl with the prostitute. The sleeping accommodations are vile.
When the woman appears for her preliminary hearing she is tumbled and untidy, as the result of having been without proper toilet accommodations, and is therefore apt to create an unfavorable impression.
Arrest of a woman should be made, if possible, by women police. Women prisoners should be placed under the supervision of a police matron. When the time comes for their trial they should be accompanied to the courtroom by women who can explain the legal procedure to them and stand by them when they are subjected to the harassing questions so frequently put to them by attorneys.

Chicago has done away with its old police courts and in their place has municipal courts with judges chosen by the people. Under the able leadership of Chief Justice Olson these courts have been socialized and specialized. He has designated branches to be known as the court of domestic relations and the morals court.
The court of domestic relations deals with offenses involving the mother and the child, and in this court the woman first tells her story to one of the social secretaries of the judge. Both are women, and these secretaries are often able to settle cases without bringing them into court. In one year the first court of this kind settled out of court, with the co-operation of other agencies in the city, 2,776 cases, thus saving much publicity and mortification to a large number of people.

The women who come to this court are often obliged to bring their children with them. These children are looked after by a trained nurse in a comfortable nursery.
In the morals court of Chicago are heard the cases of women charged with improper conduct. Here an effort is made to find out the reason for their downfall, and, if possible, through advice, encouragement or employment, to give them another chance to lead a decent life. There is a woman physician connected with this court, and the juvenile protective association keeps a woman officer in the criminal court to advise and assist the women and young girls who are brought there as witnesses or as prisoners.

Women on Juries.
In all cases pertaining to women and children, women should sit as jurors, as they do in Norway and Sweden, and are beginning to do in the equal suffrage states in America. A story comes to us from one of the states in the west where women were sitting as jurors in a criminal case. The district attorney asked the women that he considered the evidence unfit for them to hear and advised them to withdraw. They did so, and the prisoner got off free.
The other women of the town, however, made such a vigorous protest against this neglect of duty on the part of the district attorney when the district attorney made the same request the following day to the women who had been summoned as jurors in another case, one of them announced that if every other woman went out she would stay to hear the case and the others immediately followed her example. Finding that the women were quite resolved to do jury duty, the prisoner immediately pleaded guilty and threw himself upon the mercy of the court.

Watch Back Streets
As Well as Skyscrapers

Editor Constitution: One reason that might be advanced for so many hold-ups among merchants in outlying districts is that so many of them occupy what is commonly known as corner or neighborhood grocery stores, and located distant from the center of the city, and so many are located in sections in which are very few whites. They should be given better protection, but how can it be done without more men added to the present police force? At least 100 more men should be added to the present force. Chief Beavers is doing most effective service with the inadequate force at his command.
Our city has grown so fast and our watching with much pride and interest our great skyscrapers, we seem to lose sight of the fact that the outlying back and side streets are, with our enterprising budding concerns, being built up with two, three and four-room houses that are filled with people that need as much or more protection than the center of the city, the central part of the city being safer from the fact that from the very nature of things they are accorded more lines of protection than the places mentioned above.
The small merchants that are located in these outlying districts are less protected and the daring hold-up feels more encouraged to ply his trade, knowing that he can easily escape.
While we must have money for city schools and parks, these should not be kept up at a reckless protection of the lives of those that need it so badly.

DAILY GRIST FROM THE STATE'S POLITICAL GRIND

GEORGIA CONGRESSMEN MUST FIGHT TO RETAIN THEIR SEATS
Although practically the whole state at this time is wondering what the developments in the senatorial situation will be, this has not prevented a very general interest from being manifested in the congressional contests in several of the districts of the state.

Already four or five of the present members of the Georgia delegation at Washington have active opposition, and the indications are that still others may have to make a fight to retain their seats.
In the second, sixth, ninth, tenth and eleventh districts the pot is already beginning to simmer, and reports from these districts indicate that the campaign is likely to break out in full force at any time.

In the second district, Congressman Park may be opposed again by ex-Mayor Luke, of Thomasville. It will be recalled that a recent contest between these two was unusually warm and should Mr. Luke decide to enter the lists again, it is certain that a lively campaign would follow.
In the sixth district, Congressman Bartlett, who defeated Hon. J. W. Wise, of Fayetteville, by only a very narrow margin, will again have to fight Mr. Wise, the latter having been quietly pursuing his campaign for some time.

Congressman Bell, in the ninth district, may have a sharp tussle on his hands, as it is rumored that Hon. John N. Holder, ex-speaker of the Georgia house, may again offer for congress. He ran second to Congressman Bell in the last race, and is one of the strongest men in the district.
Indications are that the famous "bloody tenth" district will be torn by one of its old-time conflicts, with candidates from practically every section of the district in the field. As Congressman Hardwick will not offer for re-election, the candidates will start the race on an even footing, and the campaign, which has already started, promises to be hot from the start.

Three candidates in the seventh district, so long and ably represented by ex-Congressman Brantley, are expected to make the race. As two of them will be from Valdosta, the contest will no doubt be waged warmly along the line.
The following reports from the various districts give an idea of the situation as it stands now:

HOT CONGRESSIONAL FIGHT
PREDICTED IN SECOND DISTRICT
Thomasville, Ga., March 7.—(Special).—"Will Roscoe Luke run against Judge Park again this year?" is the question frequently asked in regard to the coming race for congress in the second district.

When asked about it Mr. Luke only smiles and says it is too soon to say yet what he is going to do, but it is the general understanding among his friends and those in his confidence here that there is not the slightest doubt that he will run in the race, and that there never has been any doubt of it. In fact, as everybody who knows Mr. Luke knows that he will never give up a thing as long as there is a fighting chance. The fact that he made such a fine race last year is an encouragement to Mr. Luke's friends, and they feel confident that his chances will be even better this year when he has had an opportunity to become better known.
That the fight in the second is going to be even a hotter one than that of last year seems certain. The fact that Mr. Luke contested in the race will find there is "something doing" in the "bloody second" that has witnessed some of the hardest fought political battles that have ever been fought in Georgia.

CONGRESSIONAL CANDIDATES
FEELING PUBLIC PULSE IN NINTH
Gainesville, Ga., March 7.—(Special).—The congressional race in the ninth district has not taken on any real shape as yet, although there may be some heat developed later in the game, indications are at this time that Congressman Thomas M. Bell will have comparatively easy sailing. Besides Mr. Bell there is only one avowed candidate, Dr. E. W. Watkins, of Gilmer county, who has made the race once or twice before. Dr. Watkins has been going over the district and making a canvass of the situation and very likely he will fight it out with Congressman Bell.

It has been presumed since the contest two years ago, when he then announced, after his defeat, that he would run again. That Hon. John N. Holder, of Jackson, would certainly be a candidate this time. However, he has not yet positively entered the race, though he is undoubtedly in a receptive attitude and would be glad to represent the ninth district in congress. Dr. L. G. Hardman, of Commerce, is also feeling the public pulse and may run, if he believes he will have a show.
It appears that Jackson county, in which both Dr. Hardman and Mr. Holder live, will have two candidates in the race should they both enter. This would be nothing extraordinary for the ninth, however, as two years ago both Congressman Bell and Dr. Holder were in the race, and both are from Hall county.
Congressman Bell is going to make a vigorous campaign for re-election and will cover the district fully before August.

TENTH DISTRICT CONGRESSIONAL RACE IS FAST GROWING WARMER
Aurora, Ga., March 7.—(Special).—The congressional race in the tenth district is already beginning to warm up following the announcement of Congressman Hardwick that he will not offer for re-election, and announcements from a half a dozen or so candidates may be made within the next week or two.
Hon. Dave Howard, of Milledgeville, was in Augusta yesterday and talked about tenth district politics, more particularly the congressional race. Mr. Howard says there isn't any ground at all to have doubt about Carl Vinson being in the race, that he most positively is Mr. Howard is going to manage Mr. Vinson's campaign, which will fire its opening gun in Sparta some time within the next two weeks.

Some other things are being talked about in connection with the tenth district race, one of which adds to what promises to be a growing and unusual interest. For instance, in addition to Hon. Joseph S. Reynolds, of Augusta, who announced his candidacy for congress from this district some time ago, it is now said that Dr. Robert Hardman, of Jefferson, will, in all probability, be a candidate.
Friends of Dr. Pitcher, of Warrenton, have an ambition to send the next representative to congress, and it is known they have been right persistently urging him to be a candidate this time. The latest rumor, though, is that Judge R. T. Rawlings, of Sandersville, will be in the race.
Locally, too, there is an added interest in the declaration of the friends of O. E. Eya that he may be regarded as an entrant before long.

All in all, it looks like the tenth district race is warming up to a point where it is going to be one of the races of interest of the year.
INDICATIONS POINT TO WARM
CONTEST IN ELEVENTH DISTRICT
Waycross, Ga., March 7.—(Special).—There is now every indication of a warm contest in the eleventh district, with three candidates, maybe only two, seeking the office so long filled by Hon. William G. Brantley, now of Atlanta. Congressman J. R. Walker, of Valdosta, has apparently an opponent today from his home city. W. L. Converse is the other Valdosta candidate, and while he tells his friends he is in the race, he has not yet opened any campaign headquarters.

The candidate from Coffee, Judge J. W. Quincey, is as yet only a prospective candidate. It is known that Judge Quincey is prospecting in every county of the district and has found conditions very satisfactory, so far as he is concerned.
And no later than this week, after his announcement that he could not determine the question within thirty days, comes the statement from one of his most political friends to the effect that Quincey will be a candidate. His formal announcement is expected before the first of April, when it is believed he will open campaign headquarters and start canvassing.

Voters in the eleventh are wondering just what is going to happen. The opponents of Congressman Walker have never stopped trying to get out a candidate against him, but they are asked now that among those behind the Quincey boom are men who supported Congressman Walker. According to information from Valdosta, Mr. Converse is going to wage an active campaign himself, and this further complicates the situation.
FRIENDS WANT HARDMAN
AS JUDGE OF MIDDLE CIRCUIT
Louisville, Ga., March 7.—(Special).—It has been reported during the past few days that Judge E. C. Williams would not be a candidate to succeed himself as judge of the middle circuit, and a petition is being circulated by the friends of Colonel R. N. his name for the judgeship. The members of the local bar are, however, not making the petition, and it is understood that many members of the bar of the circuit from other counties are also insisting that Colonel Hardman name the race for judge.

While not having any formal announcement, it has been generally understood that Colonel Hardman would enter the contest for congress from the tenth district, but whether he will yield to the demands of his constituents and announce for congress cannot be definitely ascertained. When seen late today he said to the reporters that he could not make a definite statement as to his purpose until later in the week.
In discussing the matter later with some of the leaders of the local bar, it was thought by them most probable that Colonel Hardman would announce in a few days for the judgeship.

BELL'S CAMPAIGN TO CARRY
HIM AGAIN TO HIS DISTRICT
By John Corrigan, Jr.
Washington, March 7.—(Special).—Representative Thomas M. Bell, of Georgia, who returned to Washington Thursday, after spending several days in the ninth district, formally announced that he would be a candidate for re-election.
"I will make an active campaign, and visit my friends in every county in the district, whether or not I have opposition," he declared.
Every member of the Georgia delegation is now expected to offer to succeed himself, except Representative Hardwick, who will seek a senatorial top.

While Representative Bartlett's future course has caused much speculation, it is said now he intends to offer again. Two years ago he was elected by a narrow margin, and his campaign managers then said he would not run in his last time. Following his recent trip to Europe, Mr. Bartlett is said to be so far recovered as to intend him to revise his former plans, largely based on his ill health, and announce for re-election.

LAURENS COUNTY VOTERS MAY TAKE PICK FROM 45 CANDIDATES
Dublin, Ga., March 7.—(Special).—Everything is getting in readiness for the Laurens county primary, which will be held on March 17. The entries for candidates closed today and also the registration books.
In all, there are about forty-five candidates in the race. The campaign, on the whole, has been very quiet, and little or no excitement has resulted, although there is a hard work among the host of candidates.

KEEN INTEREST MANIFESTED
IN CHATTOOGA COUNTY PRIMARY
Lyerly, Ga., March 7.—(Special).—Not before in many years has there been such a keen interest manifested in the county primary for the election of county officers as is being shown in the present campaign for votes. There are at present twenty-one candidates out for the various county offices that are to be filled, and before the entry closes on March 20 it is expected that many more will have entered the different races.
The race which seems to have the greatest attention is for clerk of court, in which there are four candidates. Dr. L. G. Hardman, three for sheriff, three for county commissioner, there not being a single office to be filled that there is no opposition.
Following is a list of the offices to be filled and the names of the candidates:
Clerk of Court—John N. Rush, incumbent; Sam C. Martin, Charles I. Garner, L. H. Lamb.
Tax Collector—A. H. Glenn J. U. Penley, D. T. Henry, incumbent.
Tax Receiver—Robert M. King, incumbent; T. J. Anderson.
Sheriff—J. W. Alexander, N. S. Lien, M. W. Wimpey, incumbent.
Surveyor—E. E. Schmidt, W. L. Gamble, Corcoran, W. L. Parrow, John E. Watson.
Treasurer—George W. Swail, Tom T. Davis.
County Commissioners—W. A. Wright, R. A. McWhorter, Valentine Hammond.

SENATOR HUE DECLARES
FOR CHANGE IN CONVICT SYSTEM
Jonesboro, Ga., March 7.—(Special).—Senator G. M. Hue, of Riverdale, while in Jonesboro Friday expressed himself as believing that at the next session of the Georgia legislature there will be several bills introduced looking toward a change in the convict system of the state.
He declares the majority of the counties are finding the present system a burden, instead of an advantage, and that out of the number of bills which will be introduced probably one may be framed up that will be suitable for all sections of the state, and that will mark the beginning of a much-needed and uniform improvement in the public roads of the state.

GAVEL FOR ROME CLUB GIVEN BY MRS. WILSON

Mrs. Ottley Tells of Interesting Visit to Club Women of the North Georgia City.

"I never saw signs more indicative of success than I found in the new Rome club," was the statement made by Mrs. J. K. Ottley, of Atlanta, upon her return from a recent visit to this club.

The meeting was called to order with a gavel presented to the club by Mrs. Woodrow Wilson.

Presented by Mrs. Van Hooser. In presenting the highly prized gift, Mrs. A. W. Van Hooser, president of the club, referred to the exhibit made by Mrs. Ottley.

Accepted by Mrs. Priestup. As a lifelong personal friend of Mrs. Ottley, Mrs. Priestup gratefully accepted the gift in the name of the club with the following remarks:

"Madame President and Members of the Woman's Club of Rome. In the year 1912, Mrs. Ottley, of Atlanta, City, there lived, learned and loved, a charming, lovable, talented little blond maiden.

Gifts from Old Club. The Rome Women's Club was reorganized in 1912 with 200 members. From the old club, Mrs. J. Lindsay Johnson brought to the new several treasured gifts.

In a helpful, practical, inspiring manner, Mrs. Ottley addressed the club on "The United Activities of Women."

Every individual club woman is representative of her own club. This not alone for the sake of the good to be accomplished but for the sake of the development for herself and this same duty applies to the work of both state and national federations.

The charming speaker pointed out the great field for practical civic usefulness on the part of women, and advocated the placing of women upon the boards of municipal boards, where they can give useful service.

Looking over the large audience of on-lookers, Mrs. Ottley pointed out to them the broad field of usefulness before them "firstly, in the case of persons of the club, secondly, on account of the many of their activities would benefit Rome, a fine basis for civic perfection, thirdly, in the case of the community, fourthly, in the case of the organized women, when as they before the field for their practical usefulness is widening."

Atlanta Women on Municipal Boards

In an address given at the 1912 biennial in San Francisco, Dr. Laura Drake Gill said: "In Georgia the women (we always obey two women in Georgia—Mrs. Ottley and Mrs. Boyd) outlined what they wanted to do, and they carried four out of six things that they scheduled a year ago."

And the progressive educational work in Georgia still goes on. At a recent meeting of the Atlanta City Federation of Women's Clubs, of which Mrs. Samuel Lumpkin is president, Mrs. Ottley introduced a resolution recommending to the city council that a minority of women members be placed on certain municipal boards.

If women are granted membership on certain municipal boards (and Atlanta's council will likewise obey Mrs. Ottley) they will have opportunities for civic patriotism in its broadest sense.

The public-spirited and philanthropic men of the city council will appreciate the fact that women can assist in bringing about needed reforms.

Who is your city's greatest educator? Its city government. Who is your city's greatest philanthropist? Its city government.

CLEANING UP DAY

Be reminded of "Clean-up" day, March 10. You have been urged to do even better work on this day this year than ever before.

Someone has said for the encouragement of promoters of beauty that with a town, as with a man, "attractiveness brings fortune."

FINE EDUCATIONAL AND CIVIC WORK OF SYLVANIA CLUB

The Woman's Culture Club, of Sylvania, feels especially proud of the splendid work being done by the club in the schools of Sylvania county in the past five months.

Nearly one hundred were contributed and these, with a similar number already on hand, will make about two hundred good books that the Culture Club has put in the schools of Sylvania county in the past five months.

The program committee is also doing fine work, every meeting the literature is the best, making the members anxious to attend.

THOMASVILLE CLUB MEETS IN NEW ROOM

Thomasville, Ga. March 7.—(Special.) The first meeting of the Thomasville Study Club, at which an interesting program was rendered, was held in the new club room in the rear of the public library.

SORORITY CHAIRMAN

Miss Bessie Kempton, the recently elected president of the Atlanta Pan-Hellenic, has been appointed chairman of the program for the coming year.

Dr. Durand of the census bureau says: "It certainly is both strange and shameful that the best states should be far behind the other leading countries of the world in the registration of deaths and even more so in the registration of births."

LA MODE

LENTEN THIMBLE CLUB

The little lady with the embroidery hoop is wearing an exquisite French blouse in ladder crepe. The hand-tucked yoke is finished with one of the new collars.

Other novel features are the bands of Chinese embroidery on cote de cheval, dropped low over the shoulders, and the little tucked peplum below the soft satin butterfly girdle. The French poster gives several decided hints of the coming fashions for Summer.

The lingerie frock shows the skirt of many flounces and deep black satin girdle. The tiny coat of brilliant rust red silk is extremely flaring, and finished all around with a circular ruffle. The hat of white milan is very high and has a facing of black velvet and a single question mark plume of the red.

THE new French colors for Spring—russet red, echo blue and minaret yellow, are combined in a gorgeous piece of futurist silk, which fashions the blouse worn with a skirt of rust red. This blouse has a vest and cuffs of white fastened with small jet buttons.

The frock of echo blue chiffon taffeta is trimmed with a full rose ruching that comes only a few inches below the waist line in front and almost reaches the knees in back, tying the skirt in slightly. A narrow band of black velvet encircles the waist, finished at the left with a rust red rose. The bodice has the long shoulder line and draped armhole and a wide pierrot ruffle around neck.

Remarkable Diary of Mrs. Livingston Mims

Being the notations made by her of those things worth more than passing notice, giving an intimate study of the south, throwing interesting sidelights of the men and women of prominence in the days of the south's re-making. Diary edited for publication by Miss Isma Dooly.

(SIXTH INSTALLMENT.)

This (the sixth) installment of the diary of Mrs. Livingston Mims, being published serially by The Constitution, reveals eloquently the progressive spirit of Atlanta in 1883, and the beginning of Atlanta's brilliant social life. An interesting story is given of the organization of the first dramatic club, called the Shakespeare club, including a clipping from The Constitution of that time. Henry Grady himself wrote the report of the meeting, when Mrs. Mims read the part of Desdemona, Major Mims read that of Othello, and Ed Hammond that of Iago. A visit of Vice President and Mrs. David Davis to Atlanta is noted. The funeral of Alexander Stephens is described. Incidents of the same year, noted, are the opening of Ponce de Leon avenue as a great "improvement to that section;" a notable Lenten sermon by Bishop Beckwith in the "new St. Luke's church." The opening paragraphs of this installment mention again the scholarly Georgian, Mr. Samuel Barnett, of Washington, Wilkes county, who wrote an essay on "Hamlet," pronounced by Judge Bleckley one of the greatest he ever read.

"Aida" at French Opera.
New Orleans, La., Jan. 29, 1883.—We went last night, by invitation of Colonel and Mrs. Breaux, to see the magnificent opera "Aida." The house was brilliant, everybody in full dress. The opera delightfully acted and sung. The scenery grand and impressive. The evening was entirely enjoyable. After the opera my husband invited the party to a supper at Madame Eugene's, where we spent an hour. I had a glimpse of the night of Mrs. Langtry. She was exquisitely dressed in a black velvet skirt, and long beautifully-fitting black velvet pelisse, trimmed in bugles, a white plush hat, with long white plumes. Her beauty is of so unobtrusive a character that beyond seeing a refined, well dressed ladylike person, we looked for nothing more until assurance came to our doubting vision that the great English beauty was before our eyes. Except for that, a second glance would not have been given. She must possess some charm not visible at first sight.

Went last night to see Langtry. While sitting in the parquette, Mr. Barker called my attention to a lady in front of us. I turned, and saw a very plain looking woman with harsh features, and an expression neither intellectual, nor amiable. Imagine my surprise when informed that Zarfira, the authoress of the creed which I so admire, was before me, with a face so inexpressive of sentiment or poetry.

Tuesday—Another busy day.
Colonel Lovell and Mr. Ordan came over to chat during breakfast. After breakfast Susie Richardson and Janie Wilkinson. Then pretty Mrs. Breaux, Emma, and Daisy Breaux, and lastly my lovely, sweet friend, Mary Bradford, who remained with me until the school for my train.

SCHOLARLY MR. BARNETT.
Atlanta, January 21, 1883.—Samuel Barnett came in the afternoon to read me a criticism he had just written on "Hamlet." He certainly throws many new and interesting sidelights on that fascinating study. I have always considered the lines: "The time is out of joint; O cursed spite that ever I was born to set it right," as being the keynote to the character. The feeling of irreconciliation and unsuitability between the demands for an active temperament and his consciousness of his own intellectual, but reflective, temperament. Mr. Barnett portrays with elegance and eloquence the charms of "Hamlet's" character, all perfect, but for one missing link, one broken arch to complete the structure. He takes the ground, too, that in so complicated and profound a character there are other locks to undo, and he thinks that in his passionate adoration for Ophelia, and in the grievous affliction in regard to the frailty of his mother, are to be found the other keys to the exquisite mechanism. I certainly never before so plainly saw the meaning of: "Go, get thee to a nunnery, go."

The shock in finding his mother false and sensualized, and Ophelia seemingly capricious and inaccessible (the not knowing of the admonitions and commands of Polonius and Laertes), destroyed his faith in woman. There is nothing to sustain his tender and affectionate nature. The exaggerations of the grave scenes are only the natural expressions and actions of an imaginative and exalted nature in the hour of overwhelming grief, when he finds that Ophelia dead, was Ophelia true. In closing, Mr. Barnett gives a very beautiful vision of the four reigns: That of Hamlet, I, of Claudius, of Fortinbras, and what would have been the reign of Hamlet II, when literature, the arts, learning, and all the charms of peace would have united to form a perfect and complete kingdom. Mr. Barnett makes many other very fine and delicate points, which I hope will attract the attention they merit. It is certainly a very beautiful, extensive and novel essay, and has given me infinite pleasure. Mr. Barnett takes the ground that Shakespeare was too great an artist to have left this masterpiece without its key, hence the revealing of Hamlet's thoughts and very soul in his sublime soliloquies given us in addition to the usual developments of the play. Of Hamlet's reliance on the true and heroic strength of Horatio, too much cannot be said. It has always seemed to me (next to that of David and Jonathan) the most exquisite friendship left for the imagination to delight in.

Mr. Mims, who had just returned from New Orleans, should hear at least a part of it. Although while a great lover of "Hamlet," he himself is too practical and active a temperament to fully enjoy the metaphysical analysis of "Hamlet" as Mr. Barnett and I do, with our more contemplative temperaments.

February 7.—Judge Bleckley says Mr. Barnett's criticism of "Hamlet" is superior to Gerviana's or Ulriche's. Read to Mr. Barnett a little gem just discovered in Longfellow's poems, "The Brooklet and the Wave." Reminded me of what Ophelia might have been to Hamlet.

Several days have the golden crocuses been showing their bright faces above the grasses on the lawn. "Thought broadens and weakens the mind; action contracts and strengthens it," Goethe.

Warm, cloudy day, busy rearranging flowers and beginning our vegetable garden, always a most fascinating occupation.

Reading Fanny Kemble's interesting volume, "Later Records." She gives but a gloomy picture of our southern civilization fifty years ago. She was a fierce antagonist of slavery, and having married a large slave-holder, the complexity of her life became soon certain. She got a divorce, returned to England and the stage, of which she gives some charming glimpses.

ABOUT FANNY KEMBLE.
In speaking of Fanny Kemble's interesting volume, "Later Records," and of her intense abolition sentiments, my brother, Willie Harper, said, "That the modern and ancient mind were at such entire variance on the subject of slavery that it certainly is opposed to the spirit of our age. While Aristotle, that universal-minded man, not only thought slavery itself right, but that the superior races had the right to make war on in order to enslave, the inferior races." Slavery was the destiny of the inferior, and certainly nowhere does the Bible, nor even Christianity, rebuke it. The old patriarchs certainly possessed their man servants and maid servants, but then they did so many questionable things that I doubt if they should be taken as models.

Just had a pleasant visit from Judge Tompkins. He said while in Europe he spent a week with Mrs. Leigh, Fanny Kemble's younger daughter, whom he found a very emphatic, but certainly more virginal than vanity, and doubtless the old governor knew as well who had not performed his duty in that way as who had done so.

Atlanta, February 1, 1883.—A cloudy, dull Sunday, brightened in the afternoon by a delightful visit from Captain Jackson. He has just returned from the centennial at Savannah, and gave a very interesting account of the poet, Paul Hayne, and his adoring wife. He says everybody in Savannah was charmed with them, and that they were much feted and admired. The wife seems to have but one thought and one ambition—that to see her husband happy, appreciated and admired, as he certainly deserves to be, for he possesses a poetic faculty beyond any living southerner.

to help me in trying to establish a Shakespeare club to last at least during Lent. I do not yet know if we will be successful.

MR. AND MRS. GRADY.
February 28.—We had a very pleasant visit this evening from Mr. and Mrs. Henry Grady. They are interested with me in organizing our Shakespeare club. I read Mr. Grady parts of this poor little journal. He seems to quite enjoy it. My husband ridiculed and discouraged our attempt to organize the club, and I fear I was too much offended. When we went upstairs he said, "Susie, I forgive you, dear." I replied that I feared I felt as did old General Tombs when some one said, "Well general, why do you not accept our pardon from the United States government?" He said, "I have not forgiven them yet." I am impressed with this extract from Fanny Kemble's letter:

"Tact appears to me a sort of moral elegance, an accomplishment rather than a virtue; dexterity, as it were, doing the duty of sensibility and benevolence."

March 4, 1883.—Governor Alexander H. Stephens died today. The state is in mourning.

March 6.—In spite of a most inclement and stormy evening, I had a delightful meeting of the Shakespeare club. The play, "Anthony and Cleopatra."

The next evening Judge Bleckley, who had added greatly to the success of the evening, came up and sat with us an hour. I find him quite an interesting man, full of thought and cultivated to an extreme degree.

FUNERAL OF STEPHENS.
March 7.—Went today to see the body of Governor Stephens in state. He was wonderfully preserved, and looked as natural as in life, only the brilliant eyes that were wont to flash and glow were closed. I heard that poor old General Tombs burst into tears when he gazed on the face of his dear old friend.

March 8.—We went this morning to see Governor Stephens' funeral. The cortege very magnificent, the hearse drawn by eight coal-black horses. The military display was very beautiful, many companies coming from other cities to pay their respects to the grand old commoner. Mr. Stephens was certainly a statesman of unusual ability, and a man of large brain and heart, who never lost the love and highest regard of Georgians.

March 11.—Had a pleasant dinner yesterday, Sunday. Mr. Greer Zachary, Lily Walker and Mr. Davenport, of Washington, D. C., being the guests; in the evening the usual bevy of young men calling. Among these Mr. Pat Calhoun, whose refined and interesting conversation I always respect to the grand old commoner. Mr. Gordon, too, looking as handsome as usual. Minnie Gay came in to tell me she thought that my reading of "Cleopatra" was what Longfellow describes Fanny Kemble's to have been.

Wrote a long letter several days ago to little Willie Pope describing Governor Stephens' funeral. Mrs. Gay's little girl, Katherine, when viewing the long pageant of military, asked: "Mamma, aren't they going to have any elephants?"

PONCE DE LEON.
March 17.—It is bright and beautiful today, but very cold. Ice on the ground this morning, the trees are in bud and the wistaria almost ready to spread its purple blooms to the breeze. The opening of Ponce de Leon avenue adds greatly to the beauty of our place.

Walking out this lovely spring morning I found at the last General Davis' exquisite poem, "Anthony and Cleopatra." I suppose in suggestion of my Shakespeare reading.

would not be happy and pleased with a wedding gift of five hundred thousand dollars? I often think of poor Becky Sharpe, who said "even she could have been virtuous on five thousand pounds a year."

I stopped to see Mrs. Peel and Mrs. Grady. Mrs. Grady desires me to read Deademona at the next reading, on Tuesday night, at her house. I fear my good reading before was accidental, and that I may not be so successful as in "Cleopatra." "Deademona" does not furnish the scope and variety afforded by the "Sorcerer of the Nile," but her gentleness and purity are infinitely charming.

ST. LUKE'S CHURCH.
March 22.—Went out this morning to service in the new little church, St. Luke's, to hear the bishop's discourse on the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. He dwelt on the symbolism of the old Jewish faith, and its fulfillment by Christ, and how out of those symbolisms Christ instituted His sacraments. The sacrifice of the lamb being Himself; as, also, He Himself being the Passover. He spoke with beauty and eloquence of the sweet humility of the apostles at the last supper, when Christ spoke of the one who would betray Him. In the humility of their hearts even the beloved John, who was permitted without rebuke to lay his head upon the bosom of the incarnate God, said, "Is it I?" each one, of course, knowing he had not betrayed his beloved Lord. Yet, having seen examples of His wonderful insight in the working of frail human hearts, distrusting their own strength and weakness. He said the symbolisms and observances of the Jewish faith were like the petals of flowers, which, when the fruit appeared, fell away, useless, now that the fruit, the church of Christ, was formed.

The bishop is looking worn, and not at all well; but the old delightful charm of manner and matter are still with him to enchain and enthrall his congregation.

The bishop came forward after the services to congratulate me on being able to be out again. I said that the memory of the delightful Lenten discourses that I had heard from him in Savannah had been a great stimulus to me to overcome the obstacles that usually obstructed me. He chided us, Emma and I, somewhat for our worldliness, and I fear with good cause. As for me, I can find no middle course between a life entirely consecrated to God and a life of elegant worldliness; recreation and refined pleasures seem a necessity to a healthful development, and it is so difficult to draw the line. I could never read that most beautiful of human productions, "The Imitation of Christ," by Thomas A. Kempis, because the conflict in my nature is too great. The beauty of a holy life and the impossibility of attaining it without crushing out all natural ties and affections (that certainly are necessary to our development) keep me in such a state of doubt and wretchedness that I never keep a volume of it, beautiful and spiritual as it is.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID DAVIS.
March 26.—Saturday Vice President and Mrs. David Davis arrived in Atlanta, and are stopping at the Kimball house. Sunday evening they dined with us; a very pleasant evening. In course of the conversation, Judge Davis, who was an intimate friend of the martyred President Lincoln, and whose intellect and character he much admired, said that he was the most thorough Shakespearean scholar he ever knew.

The next day Mrs. Davis took lunch with me. I had only a small party of eight, but it was very enjoyable. Mrs. W. D. Grant, Mrs. Harry Jackson, Mrs. W. L. Peel, Mrs. W. P. Pattillo, Mrs. William Wadley, with Mrs. Davis, Emma and myself. Mr. Mims and Judge Davis came in during the entertainment, and also enjoyed a lunch with us. The dear old judge comes very naturally by his obesity, for he is a great gourmand. Miss Addie Burr—Mrs. Davis was very elegantly dressed, and is a very sweet, modest woman. Judge Davis has, for the present, retired from public life, but it is supposed that he hopes to be suggested for the presidency. I scarcely think so, however, as he seems to me rather the old duty through his wife.

I know, he prefers the "post of honor, the private station."

The old judge is a little snaky. When Mrs. —, a clever and handsome lady at my lunch, was boasting to him of her industry, and how she was adapting her habits to suit the early hours at present required by her husband, that he might attend to his constructive work in the growing city, he wittily replied with a merry twinkle, that if he were her husband he would give up the contract and remain in bed until 8!

On Sunday night my husband had the vice president to dine, the following gentlemen invited to meet him: Senators Brown and Colquitt, ex-Senator Gordon, Mr. N. J. Hammond, Judge Bleckley and Mr. Henry W. Grady.

SHAKESPEARE CLUB.
March 28.—Spent last evening very delightfully at Mr. Grady's, it being the second meeting of our Shakespearean club. The play selected was "Othello." Mr. Mims reading that strong and impassioned character with great emphasis and effect. I think I never saw him look handsomer, or nobler. I read the Deademona, and—strange to me—with very brilliant success. Judge McCay, Judge Bleckley and Mr. Peoples and, indeed, a score of others, declare that neither on the stage, nor off the stage, have they ever seen the character more beautifully revealed. Indeed, I must confess to a feeling of pride in my success. To read with perfect acceptability one of Shakespeare's characters is certainly quite a feather in one's cap.

I wore my elegant, picturesque

From Mrs. Mims' Diary

There is no greater mistake than to suppose that coldness and purity are always united. Witness Napoleon, who was cold and unchaste; Philip of Spain, cold, cruel and voluptuous; on the other hand, that exquisite creation, King Arthur, "highest and most human," too.

At present I can find no middle course between a life entirely consecrated to God and a life of elegant worldliness; recreation and refined pleasures seem a necessity to a healthful development, and it is so difficult to draw the line.

I could never read that most beautiful of human productions, "The Imitation of Christ," by Thomas A. Kempis, because the conflict in my nature is too great. The beauty of a holy life, and the impossibility of attaining it without crushing out all natural ties and affections . . . keep me in such a state of doubt and wretchedness that I never keep a volume of it, beautiful and spiritual as it is.

Of Hamlet's reliance on the true and heroic strength of Horatio, too much cannot be said. It has always seemed to me (next to that of David and Jonathan) the most exquisite friendship left for the imagination to delight in.

Bishop Beckwith, in his Lenten sermon, said: "The symbolisms and observances of the Jewish faith were like the petals of flowers, which, when the fruit appeared, fell away, useless, now that the fruit, the church of Christ, was formed."

Plunged dress, desiring to give full effect to that gentle, yet noble and exquisite character. I begin to think with Ruskin, that Shakespeare has only heroes, no heroes. Othello, Hamlet and many others are only victims, while true heroisms is often evinced in his female characters.

SENATOR BROWN.
April 4.—Senator Joseph E. Brown came in yesterday morning in quite a distinguished style to pay his party call. He was ushered in, and I spent a pleasant half hour with him. He admired very much the newly-arrived portrait of Mrs. Davis (nee Julia Burr) and said he remembered with what delight he had heard her relative, Professor Stillman, deliver his lectures on chemistry at Yale.

We received a few days ago a charming, but much injured and weather-beaten, portrait of Mr. Mims' great aunt, Mrs. David Davis—nee Julia Burr. We imagine the portrait to be by Lely; it certainly is well done, and she was too fastidious and elegant a woman to have had any but a superior artist.

It is quite a singular coincidence that while I was being entertained a Judge David Davis, who had just married a Miss Addie Burr, we should receive this portrait of Miss Julia Burr, who forty years ago, married a Colonel David Davis; and who also, as well as the present David Davis, weighed about 300 pounds.

Mrs. Julia Davis was a very beautiful, elegant, intellectual woman. She married early Colonel David Davis, a wealthy planter of Mississippi; two children were the result of the marriage, but it proved to be an unhappy one, so they finally separated. She received an alimony of $5,000 per annum from her husband's estate. Her present much of her time at colleges, cultivating and developing her beautiful mind. She also possessed a distinguished and lovely character. She was a cousin of Aaron Burr, and spent some time with him, appreciating his delightful companionship, during the latter years of his life, and she it was who placed the mysterious monument to his memory at Princeton, N. J. She died years ago at the house of my old active member. Mr. and Mrs. William Lawson Peel, whose handsome home was also opened to us for one of our meetings, are also members. Mrs. Peel is so talented and progressive, so full of aspiration toward literary and artistic attainment, that she is always to be found on the side of progress toward high aims, and Mr. Peel, handsome as a picture, lending a helping hand always in these directions. Judge Henry Lumpkin, loving literature and art as well as his legal profession, Harry Jackson and his pretty wife, he so charming and courtly, she so winning and sweet, and several others, made a delightful coterie.

receptor, Dr. Savage, at Pass Christian. Her two children died sometime ago, childless, and the executor of their estate has, through the kindness of Mr. Dougherty, sent us this lovely portrait.

PANKHURST FAMILY SPLIT ON SUFFRAGE

Dissensions Threaten to End Its Leadership of the Militant Army.
London, March 7.—Dissensions within the Pankhurst family threaten to end its leadership of the militant suffragette army, according to assertions by some of the younger members of the organization—known formally as the Women's Social and Political Union. It is said that the dissensions are rife in the inner circles of the union, and that the outcome may result in crippling the elaborate campaign which had planned for this year, at the same time end the sway which the Pankhursts have exercised over the society since the Pethick-Lawrence were forced out of its ranks last year. It has become an open secret that Christabel Pankhurst is anxious to end her long exile in France, for she knows that her mother has not well enough taken up the arduous duties of commander-in-chief, and it is even doubtful if Mrs. Pankhurst is able to return from Switzerland for several months. Christabel knows that she can return to England as of her own accord only on condition that she discards the extreme principles of militancy, of which she has been chief exponent. She is said to believe now that such militancy has run its course, and that the only way to success is made on moral grounds.

Sylvia Pankhurst, a later recruit to the militant field, is not yet ready to abandon it as a lost cause, and she is particularly anxious to test her own strength in a campaign in a business demonstration, or in raids like those she made last autumn on the prime minister's house in Downing street. Hence the friction with her sister and what promises to be a break in the sisterly concord. Sylvia does not believe that the government will give the vote until the country is in the verge of revolution, and she believes that she can start the revolution in the congested east-end, but they are not at all sure that once started it could be controlled in favor of votes for women. They prefer their own elaborate schemes for making the lives of men uncomfortable, and, while not objecting to violence, prefer to keep it up within their own hands.

The failure of the Pankhursts to give the forward command for this year's new campaign has made severe members of the war cabinet restless and the overthrow of the Pankhurst triumvirate may be imminent.

In spite of the peaceful attitude of the Women's Social and Political Union, the destruction of property continues, and the fear is now expressed that the organization has lost control of its more desperate members. Since the failure of the Pankhursts, Mrs. Archibald Mackenzie, who has been making severe attacks on Christabel Pankhurst in her paper, Mackenzie's Weekly, has been making her reputation of attacking the militant movement made known that her house was burned down with the loss of some of her most precious possessions. Since then Mrs. Mackenzie has received many threatening and abusive letters, many of which she has published in her paper. Mrs. Mackenzie is an enthusiastic suffragette, and has often expressed her sympathy for the heroism and suffering of the militants.

Mrs. Mims Describes Club

The idea of a Shakespeare club was first suggested to me by Mrs. Lawton, of Savannah, who had successfully launched one there, and I thought I would try in Atlanta to find out the mental metal in this city! The outcome is delightful, and the club is a source of great interest to all its members. We meet at the homes of the members by previous arrangement and read one of Shakespeare's plays at each meeting, the readers being selected by a committee. The members of the club represented much of Atlanta's brilliant ability—Judge Logan Bleckley, for instance, whose deep set eyes, long hair and white flowing beard gave an impression as of an old prophet. I was glad to meet thus closely one of Georgia's most brilliant sons, a man of such legal acumen that his discussions have elicited admiration far beyond any local environment, united to a broad, keen, philosophical literary grasp and taste with over it all a most exquisite poetical gift finding expression in some beautiful poems which enrich Georgia literature; a man of whom all Georgians may be proud: Henry Grady, so eager, so active in forwarding anything that pushes Atlanta and her interests on the onward and upward march of achievement socially, politically and spiritually. I have always been glad to know this brilliant and gifted Georgian. His lovely wife was quite enthralled at the club, and one of our earliest meetings was at her house.

The play was "Hamlet." Judge Van Epps, so handsome, scholarly and delightful, read "Hamlet." At another meeting my good husband, with his marvelous dramatic gifts, read "Othello," and I read "Deademona" with, I hope, some sympathy and expression. Mrs. Mallon, who, with her excellent husband, are endeared to the educational element in Atlanta, was also present, and is a most appreci-

GERMANY AIMS BLOW AT "AMERICAN BARS"

Paris, March 7.—The German parliament will soon be called upon to consider a bill to restrict the liquor business of the empire. The federal council has prepared for consideration a bill which is the result of years of agitation against the issuing of liquor licenses regardless of whether there is any real demand for the drink. The bill has been drafted by law municipalities are authorized to refuse licenses where the need for their issuance is not proved, but the new measure makes such refusal mandatory. It also requires applicants for licenses to show that they are persons of good character and can be depended upon to conduct their business properly. The new measure is general in its application, but is especially primary in the liquor business of the empire. How Henry W. Grady Wrote Up First Dramatic Club Meeting

Henry W. Grady's account of the meeting of the Shakespeare club, Atlanta's first social organization is carried in Mrs. Mims' diary as follows:

The second meeting of the Shakespeare club was held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Grady Tuesday evening. "Othello" was the play selected for the evening; the cast was made up by Mr. Hoke Smith: Othello, Major Livingston Mims; Iago, Mr. E. M. Hammond; Brabantio, Professor H. H. Smith; Cassio, Mr. Marshall J. Clarke; Duke of Venice, Judge H. K. McCay; Bodovino, Judge H. B. Tompkins; Rodolico, Mr. Howard Van Epps; Gratiano, Judge Logan E. Bleckley; Montano, Mr. George Coffin; clown, Judge Bleckley; Desdemona, Mrs. Livingston Mims; Emilia, Miss Jennie Hammond. Mr. Henry Peoples carried the play. It was the universal testimony that "Othello" was never better read than by Major Mims. In spirit, intonation, power and grace, his rendition was simply incomparable.

From first to last he held the audience enthralled with the splendid beauties of this best of Shakespeare's tragedies. Mr. Hammond is so well known to our people as a Shakespearean interpreter that it is work of supererogation to say he supported Othello "most excellently well." As Brabantio, Professor Smith was scholarly and delightful, and showed himself one of the best club readers. In his hands the tragedy and suspicious father was a creation. Mr. Clarke made a manly and pleasing Cassio, and Judge McCay showed himself a true Shakespearean in the small role to him.

It goes with the wind that Mrs. Mims was delicious as Desdemona. Miss Hammond was a captivating Emilia, and read her lines with delightful grace and modesty.

The next meeting of the club will be at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Peel, when "Twelfth Night" will be read. The cast of the joyous and beautiful play will be allotted entirely to the younger members of the club. Meetings are arranged already for the summer through, and by the time winter comes again most of the plays of this great bard will have been read and rendered.

Various Models of Good Roads From Appian Way To Modern Sana Clay Mixture, Shown in Miniature

Model of Appian Way, 300 B. C.

For explanation of model, see accompanying article

Washington, March 7.—(Special)—When the old Romans built roads, they built them to stay. Thus the famed Appian Way constructed in 312 B. C., by Appius Claudius still endures after twenty-two centuries of usage.

Modern highway engineers prefer to spread the mass of material which the Romans put into this highway, which extended 142 miles from Rome to Capua. Instead of building three or four feet thick, they would construct a road with a depth of ten or twelve inches. The greater depth of paving on the Appian Way does not insure a smooth surface as many a traveler can testify.

In the model roads that exhibit which has been sent all over the south by the office of public roads of the United States department of agriculture, the various models of good roads from the Appian Way down to the sand-clay mixture road of the present day, are exhibited in miniature.

Strikingly beneficial results are said to have followed the exhibition of these miniatures of model roads at county fairs, farmers' congresses and good roads conventions, along the routes of the Southern railway, the Seaboard Air Line, Atlantic Coast line and the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railroad. The value of the object lesson to the local authorities charged with road construction, and to the public, has been appreciable.

The Roman Method.

The Roman method of constructing roads was massive. During the reign of Augustus Caesar, when road building reached its height, the roads were made from 15 to 30 feet wide, and three or four feet deep, and laid in three or four courses. The foundation of these roads was invariably made of large flat field or quarry stones laid on earth, except in swamps, when poles, logs, brush or even boards were utilized to support the stone course. The upper layers varied according to the available material and the period and importance of the road. Small stones, with or without mortar, gravel mixed with clay, broken brick, tiles, etc., and even earth was used for the second and third courses. The surface was made of well cut, irregular, but close fitting blocks on the more important roads. Usually, however, the wear surface was of uncut stones not unlike modern cobble stone pavements.

There is shown beneath an illustration depicting the method by which the Romans built up their roads.

Section A shows the conglomeration pavement, composed of lime and sand straw, rushes or reeds, and sometimes laid on hills or boards.

Section B shows the stratum, or foundation, composed of two courses of flat stones laid dry or in lime mortar.

Section C shows the rudus or rubble, composed of broken stone mixed with lime in the proportion of 1 part of lime to 3 parts of stone. Sometimes the material was taken from old buildings. This course was laid from 6 to 9 inches deep.

Section D represents the nucleus, composed of coarse gravel and lime used hot, or bricks, potsherds or broken tiles mixed with lime and covered with a thin layer of lime mortar.

Section E shows the summa crusta or

The picture illustrates a properly constructed gravel road 16 feet wide, 6 inches thick at the center and 4 inches thick at the sides when rolled. The crown as shown is three-fourths inch to the foot. The road is graded for a width of 33 feet.

Section A represents a subgrade or foundation prepared as previously described, with the center about 19 inches higher than the bottom of the side ditches. Section B shows the first course of gravel, which, after rolling, has a depth of about 4 inches at the center and about 3 inches at the sides. Section C represents a second course after rolling. There the material is about 2 inches in depth at the center and 1 1/2 inches at the sides. The crown or side slope of this road from center to sides is at the rate of three-fourths inch to the foot. In construction blocks joined with the greatest nicety. This course was about six inches deep and about sixteen feet wide.

Section F indicates the curbs, which were two feet wide and eighteen inches high, with upping blocks. These blocks ing a gravel road the best results will usually be obtained by separating or screening the materials into sizes. For the bottom course material ranging from 1 1/4 inches to 3/4 inch should be used, while for the top course material ranging from 1 1/4 inches to one-fourth inch should be used. The best and cheapest method of screening gravel is by using the rotary screen, with holes 2 3/4, 1 1/4 and three-fourths inch wide. Gravel should contain from 18 to 20 per cent of clay or other binding materials to bond it properly. Roads of this type should be constructed as early in the spring as possible in order to give them time to consolidate thoroughly before the fall and winter rains. Section C also illustrates how the shoulders shown in the other two sections are finished to correspond with the gravel surface.

Section F indicates the curbs, which were two feet wide and eighteen inches high, with upping blocks. These blocks served as seats for travelers and as mounting blocks for riders.

Section G shows a side road, the surface of which was composed of gravel flushed with mortar. The width was from six to eight feet.

History of the Mac Adam Road.
Few who speak familiarly of the Mac Adam road have any knowledge of the history of this form of construction. The macadamized road dates back to the days of John Loudon Mac Adam, a Scotchman who lived from 1756 to 1836. He designed a road made of broken stone of uniform size, not exceeding one and one-half inches, with a crowned earth foundation and thoroughly drained surface. He believed that a road should have a slight crown and that the broken stone, when spread on the road, should be continually raked smooth until packed by passing traffic. This method of construction has been greatly modified in the last half century, but the name is still given to roads of this character.

At present macadamized roads are built by laying a foundation of coarser stones, and placing the finer ones on top, stone screenings or sand being used as a binding material. The stone is crushed by machinery. This form of construction is very popular in many parts of Georgia, there being miles of macadamized roads around Atlanta.

On the suburban roads the paved section is about 16 or 18 feet wide, 6 inches high in the center and 4 inches on the side, to permit of perfect drainage.

In describing this type of road Logan Waller Page, director of the office of public roads, says:

"In the construction of all types of gravel or macadam roads it is necessary, in order to obtain the best results and to use surfacing material economically, to prepare the foundation or subgrade and shoulders of the road carefully. The subgrade should be brought approximately to the grade established for the road, and as much lower as the depth of the surfacing material to be used. It should then be compacted with a roller until it is hard and firm. If soft places develop during the rolling, they should be filled with good material and rolled again. This prevents the surfacing material from being pressed into the foundation and consequently less material is used.

"The shoulders are built up before the surfacing material is placed in position and serve not only to increase the width of the road, but as a side support to hold the surfacing material while it is being rolled. They also keep it from wasting away into the side ditches."

Sand-Clay Roads.
Sand-clay roads, of which there are hundreds of miles in Georgia, constructed at an average cost of about $750 per mile, are approved by the government experts for localities where the traffic is light.

"Common clay roads may be vastly improved by a little judicious grading and systematic maintenance," says the report. "In many parts of the south many of the common roads may be improved, for all practical purposes, merely by the addition of sand or clay, and incorporating this with the surface soil of the road."

The department recommends that earth roads should have a width of at least 20 feet, that 24 or 30 feet would be better still. If the road is too narrow traffic in both directions

Picture illustrates construction of sand-clay road 16 feet wide and 8 inches thick when completed. Section A represents an unimproved sand road about 33 feet wide, section B an old sand road slightly rounded to receive the clay, with the center about 4 inches higher than the sides. Section C a portion of road covered with clay to a depth of 6 inches. Section D, the harrowing or mixing process, and section E shows the completed road.

Picture illustrates the construction and maintenance of an earth road.

The surface of section A is characteristic of all weathered soil many earth roads, in that the center is several inches lower than the sides. This faulty condition makes it impossible for the water to run from the surface, and, even if this were possible, there are no roadside ditches to carry it away. In consequence, the road is usually full of puddles, and cut up with ruts and mudholes.

Section B illustrates a section of earth road under improvement, together with a road machine or grader. The width of the section shown is equivalent to about 33 feet of finished surface from ditch to ditch. Section C illustrates an earth road which, though surfaced by a road machine, has rutted under heavy traffic and is being maintained by the split-log drag. In the road illustrated by sections B and C, the crown or slope from the center to the sides is equivalent to one inch to the foot.

Section D illustrates the use of a reversible road machine in opening roadside ditches and in shaping the road surface so that it will shed water. The work of this machine is equivalent to the labor of many men, and it is done far better than can be done with shovels and picks.

uses only the center of the road, wearing down the surface into ruts that will retain the water. Drainage can be secured by giving the crown such height as will permit a slope of one inch per foot of width. While on some soils the crown could be less, it is not practical to make it greater.

For maintenance of earth roads the split log drag is most valuable. It is made by taking a log 7 or 8 inches in diameter and from 6 to 8 feet long, splitting it in half and fastening the halves together with stakes, so that the flat sides are vertical and face to the front. An ordinary tracechain quires a second thorough cleansing; bathing it and rubbing it gently with a soft wet cloth is sufficient. If this is not sufficient use the face cream again with a clean, damp cloth.

I thoroughly believe in the efficacy of a good face powder; a pure, fine powder will not harm the skin, but, on the contrary, will improve it and protect it from dust, wind and the acid found in excessive perspiration. Before applying powder rub a little cream into the skin; this will cause the powder to adhere and prevent it entering into the pores. Be sure the powder is clean; if a chamomile or lamb's wool puff is used it should be washed frequently. Never use a puff or cloth of any sort that has been used by another person. Powder can very well be applied by means of a clean pocket handkerchief or bits of absorbent cotton. Powder, or "make-up" of any form, should not be left on the face over night; one reason for the necessity of the evening face bath.

FRANCE TO MAKE WAR ON DRINKING PLACES

Paris, March 7.—A bill to stop the opening of any more drinking establishments in France is to be presented to parliament as the opening wedge for the anti-alcoholic campaign which is being taken up anew by temperance advocates.

Here are some of the facts with which they are trying to drive home the need of restraint. If the drinking places already established were so agricultural that one would be for every group of eighty inhabitants of France.

In some districts drinking places are so thickly placed that there is one for every seventeen persons. New drinking places are springing up throughout the country at the rate of six a day.

More alcoholic drink, including wines, is consumed in France than in any other nation in the world. In the form of spirits alone it is estimated that $28,000,000 worth was drunk in France during 1911.

No Thought of Total Prohibition.
"Complete prohibition is beyond the wildest dreams of any French temperance reformer," says Henri Schmitt, who is author of the bill about to come before the house of deputies. "And the most we can hope at present is to forbid the opening of any new saloons. By refusing to grant new licenses we hope in the course of time to see some of the present drinking establishments fail or cease to exist for other reasons, thus reducing the average of drinking places to one for one hundred inhabitants. We shall not, however, try to prevent the opening of restaurants where drink is sold by measure."

But even such a mild anti-alcoholic measure as this is likely to meet with much opposition in parliament. How difficult it is to pass temperance legislation in France may be judged from the fact that in 1912 only 126 out of 500 deputies voted in favor of a similar bill, which originated in the senate and was twelve years passing through the upper house.

The hope, however, that the general elections this spring will considerably increase the temperance vote in the chamber and will see enacted an energetic non-party campaign throughout France, urging each political group to obtain from their candidate a declaration on the drink question and to promise a pledge to support anti-alcoholic legislation.

After the passage of the law, it is present before the house there are two other projects which will probably be in course of time. One is the bill prohibiting the sale of alcoholic Official statistics show that the consumption of this liquor which stood at 700,000 litres in 1874 had increased to 2,800,000 litres in 1910. The number of crimes in France during 1909, it is estimated, was about 100,000. Our mad-houses are filled with men and women but for absinthe.

Second Anti-Liquor Measure.
"The bill now before the chamber will be for abolishing the 'privilege' of spirit distillers to manufacture a quantity of spirit free from taxation for domestic use in their own families. The amount of spirits manufactured is enormous, especially in districts such as Normandy and Brittany, where the distiller is a distiller of spirit in a small way. The government has no check what it does on wine-growing districts of France are no longer dependent on wine alone. They have acquired the taste for more potent drinks and at the same time they are drinking drunk each year in the Midi than in any other part of France."

Mme. Leon Bismont, general secretary of the French Guild of Women Suffrage and a prominent temperance reformer, says: "Anti-alcoholism is one of the chief planks of our program, and I believe the granting of votes for women will be the only means of producing a wine-growing majority in the French parliament."

Happiest Corner of Library.
(From St. Nicholas)
It might give you just a bit of a pang to watch some of our pathetic little faces; but we're none the worse for that sort of a pang now and then. You see, so many of the children we go to gather in the story corner, get off by sorrow from the main room, are actually hungry—story hungry. There's more than one kind of starvation in this world, heads and hearts can be as hungry as stomachs. They live in homes where food, from where everybody is so busy that there's no time for stories, and so they are hungry for the good things which lie between covers. St. Nicholas never enters such homes. Fat, luscious volumes of fairy lore are unknown.

Did you ever go into the street after you had just stowed away the last bit of mince you could hold at the end of a huge turkey dinner, and see the little pinched girl feasting her eyes—merely her eyes—on a pile of steaming chestnuts on a vendor's stand, and I recall both of these pictures whenever I come upon the hungry groups, even and pale, and even mouths open in the story library hour, being fed fairy tales that are dainty, fairy tales that are creep, tales of adventure and of heroes and of fun and of pranks, tales of trials, biography and history, folk tales and legends—oh, so many and so many like reading the menu of a great banquet to name them all!

A New Aeroplane Bomb.
(From The World's Work.)
Among the latest projectiles designed to be dropped from aeroplanes are dirigible balloons in a bomb which, regardless of any angle or position, and at any speed that the aeroplane may be traveling, will almost immediately regain and maintain its vertical position in descent, so that it hits its target perfectly plumb and goes downward without any tendency to somersault or wobble. It is also so constructed that it cannot explode until it has made a descent of at least 500 feet, after being dropped or fired from the aeroplane. The reason for this is that the tail-piece or vane must rotate a certain length of time before the bomb becomes "armed." Should it be hit by a projectile, it will remain while in the aeroplane, no explosion of the bomb could occur.

Elizabeth Brice, of "Follies," Is Author of "Movie" Shows, As Well as Singer of Songs

ELIZABETH BRICE, Who will appear in Ziegfeld's "Follies" at the Atlanta theater.

Thursday and Friday with the "Ziegfeld Follies." In the present edition of "The Follies," Miss Brice divides the singing honors with the prima donna, Jose Collins. Miss Collins is of a type decidedly different from Miss Brice.

Miss Brice is a singer of the popular songs. Her "Ring Around Roses" two years ago swept the country when she sang it with Charles King. Miss Brice is very ambitious and when she is not employed on the stage she devotes her time to writing scenarios for moving picture plays. One may sniff and declare the work simple enough, but try your hand at it and you will find that the chorister must have a very fertile brain and an active imagination.

"Once upon a time," said Miss Brice, "I wrote a little sketch and was fortunate enough to have it presented. Then I desired to do more of the same kind of work and cherished ambitions for play writing, but I soon discovered what that meant, and as I was ambitious for the stage, I turned my attention in that direction. But then came the moving pictures. I soon found that an excellent opportunity was presented for one who could think up plots, and so I got in touch with the right parties and set to work. Now, if I choose, I could make up the stage and make a good living in this other direction. But I don't want to do that. I like both lines of work.

That moving picture sketch writing is prolific cannot be doubted when it is known that this work nets Miss Brice on an average of $50 weekly.

Money Put Into Building.

(From The Philadelphia Ledger.)
For every human being in the United States $11 was last year put into a building of some kind. The money expended in such operations just about balances our government debt. There are no figures to show definitely how much of this immense sum went into buildings that earn nothing, but far more than half of it certainly has been hauled down into an investment that is nonproductive.

Most of the cash a man devotes to his home at once goes into the drone "class," whereas the money he spends for a chicken house or a better stable for his cows or improved farm implements immediately begins to work and earn interest upon the investment. A new store is a money grubber, but frills upon the home are not.

Madame Ise-bell's Beauty Hints

LESSON I. The Care of the Skin.

The most attractive feature in feminine beauty lies in the texture and color of the skin, and a beautiful face. The infant's undeveloped features have no beauty—time and character have not yet stamped expression on the face, but the soft tints of the skin are exquisite. In the young girl the strongest appeal lies in the delicacy of her coloring, and mature woman without a clear, unlined skin is sadly handicapped.

Every woman desires a nice complexion beyond anything else, and every woman should possess it. I do not believe in the necessity for yellow skin, colorless skin, or skin that is pale, thin and eruptions. Nine-tenths of these come from improper treatment or lack of care, the rest from ill health, discontent and worry; they can all be avoided and in a large measure overcome.

Care of the Child.
Few women take proper care of the skin and these abuses dates from childhood. Recently I paid a visit to what seemed an ideally appointed nursery. The mother, a college trained woman, married to a man of wealth, was able to give her three little girls every advantage that science and means could afford. They were under the charge of a trained nurse, who seemed to take perfect care of them in every respect, save that she did not know how to wash their faces. How I longed to interfere when I saw her scrub each face vigorously with a square of rough toweling that rubbed their faces downward and drying them in the same manner, without thoroughly rinsing away the soap she had too lavishly used. What was wrong? Why, to my mind, everything was wrong—the cloth, the soap, the manner in which they were used, and the lack of proper rinsing.

This is my rule for washing the face of a young child. During infancy nothing rougher than absorbent cotton should touch the face; as the skin thickens a square of soft linen is better, as it offers more resistance. The cloth should be absolutely clean, that is, it should be washed in boiling water after each using. Babies need no soap on the face; when the children get to the grimy age soap may occasionally be necessary, but it should not be applied directly to the face or to the washcloth. Instead, make a strong lather of soap, dilute it until it is lukewarm, and wash the face, gently, but thoroughly, with this. Follow this with a thorough rinse, first with lukewarm and then with cold water, until there is no trace of soap on the skin. Then wipe the face with a series of gentle pats, never rubbing the skin downward, but always upward and across. In fact, never rub the skin at all, simply pat it dry.

Washed in this way, the skin is perfectly clean, every particle of soap removed, the touch of cold water has hardened it against contact with the air and it has not been stretched or made coarse by hard treatment.

Delicacy of the Human Skin.
There is no substance known so delicate as the human skin; it is elastic to a great degree, capable of absorbing by means of the exterior surface and the capillaries that nourish it; it is keenly sensitive to heat or cold, and it should, in short, have the greatest possible care. But, on the contrary, it is generally very roughly treated. A woman will spend hours washing and drying a delicate piece of embroidery or lace, or fearing to trust her own skill, she will send it to a professional cleaner, but she will give half a minute to washing her child's face, using strong soap and a rough cloth, as aunts, and a few years later, wonder why the child has not a good complexion.

I am not a great believer in soap, but it is difficult to induce busy mothers to entirely discard it. Be sure to get an absolutely pure soap—it need not be the most expensive on the market—and then bear in mind that even in pure soap there is some free alkali present. That is why I lay emphasis on the necessity of thoroughly rinsing the face after soap has been used.

If you live in the country, where you can get clean rain water, by all means bottle it and save it for face washing. If this is not practical soften the ordinary water with a pinch of borax if you have reason to think it is at all hard.

Use of Wash Cloths and Brushes.
Never use a towel or wash cloth on the face that is not perfectly clean. Never use anything except a soft face towel on the face and neck; keep the Turkish towels for the body bath. Complexion brushes are sometimes useful for special treatments, but they fail to do good and may work much harm if they are not perfectly clean. Sponges have a curious attraction for dirt and soap and if they are used in the general toilet they should be washed every day and dried in the sun. During the day the face rarely re-

Charming Waists for Spring Wear

© REPE DE CHINE, charmeuse, tulle and organdie form many of the new waists.

The figure to the left at the top of the page shows the deep yoke and drop shoulder effect. The lower part of this waist is of very fine tucks.

The figure to the right shows the mannish vest to be worn with the tailored suit of the same or contrasting material, and worn over a lingerie waist.

The new raglan sleeves are shown on the figure at the bottom to the left. This waist is made of one of the soft silks, and charmingly embroidered. The vest, like peplum, is also embroidered, as are the cuffs.

The waist at the right is one of very smart lines. The little peplums have the inevitable touch of fur, which promises to be worn, even into the Summer. Brocaded velvet trims this waist in a novel manner.

An unusual treatment of two materials is worn by the central figure. This also has a peplum suggestion.
