

CHARITIES CLOSES DOORS FIRST TIME IN 10 YEARS' WORK

Today 1,055 Families Are Facing Need as the Result of Withdrawal of Aid of Organization.

COMMITTEE IS NAMED TO PLAN FOR FUTURE

Association Refuses to Accept Resignation of Directors and Hopes to Arrange for Reopening.

The Associated Charities of Atlanta closed its doors last night for the first time in the ten years of its existence, on account of lack of funds to continue the work, and today 1,055 families in this city are facing need on account of the withdrawal of that organization's aid.

At an enthusiastic meeting in the council chamber Monday afternoon with more than 100 members and directors of the Charities being present, a number of eloquent speeches were made against the closing of the organization, and Col. E. J. Lowry volunteered to be one of fifty subscribers of $500 or $1,000 to continue the work.

The resignation of the directors of the association was presented, but it was refused by the members by an overwhelming majority.

Plans had been made, however, that the directors had already personally paid out $3,300 for debts or the institution, that it was still indebted to the amount of $4,900, and that to continue the work through this year would require $8,711, thus making necessary a budget for 1915 of at least $24,203.

According to this statement, made by Chairman W. C. of the finance committee, $12,011 must be raised to continue the work throughout this year, or $37,814 to stay in existence until 1916.

The following committee was appointed to meet as soon as possible and decide if any steps could be taken to reopen the Charities and continue the work: Thomas Eggleston, chairman; Morris Rich, Armand Maier, J. M. B. Hoxsey, Lon J. Daniel and W. Woods White. It is probable that as suggested at Monday's meeting, the committee will decide on a mass meeting.

Lowry Offers $500. Colonel Lowry was appointed chairman of the committee, but declared that he would be unable at present to render other than financial support.

Logan's Report. General Secretary Joseph C. Logan read his office report, which was as follows:

I wish at this time to give a brief account of the present condition of the Associated Charities. It is the result of ten years' serious study and effort by the directors and the staff to meet the local situation with respect to the treatment of the poor, which has distinguished from the care of those in institutions. This account should be given to the membership and for the use of any who might profit by their experience.

Work of Association. The work of the association is distributed among these employees as follows: I have the general administrative responsibility, and attend to all matters connected with the board of directors, and with the general public, including such cases as involve complaints or some general policy.

Miss Duth Thomson, an assistant secretary, directs all cases of children in the six district agencies, and reviews every case before it is closed. Because she handles nearly all cases of children, I feel it necessary to mention her name, and to mention the names of the other employees, and to mention the names of the other employees, and to mention the names of the other employees.

There are hundreds of cities in the United States today that need just such a talk as Frank L. Mulholland, the president of the International Association of Rotary Clubs of America, made to Atlanta Rotarians at a banquet given in his honor at the Wisconsin hotel last night.

President Mulholland spoke of optimism. He drove home with sledgehammer blows the value of boosting, and he told the local club that unless every member makes himself good for something he has no place in Rotary.

President Mulholland spoke of optimism. He drove home with sledgehammer blows the value of boosting, and he told the local club that unless every member makes himself good for something he has no place in Rotary.

He covered miles and miles of smiles, and his talk was declared to have been the most comprehensive and impressive treatise of the aims and ideals of Rotary ever heard here or elsewhere.

One remark he jabbed with often was, "No man can be good for anything—can't be a Rotarian—unless he learns to smile, unless he develops that which is his own survival value."

Germans Preparing Line of Retreat

London, October 26.—The correspondent of The Times at Rotterdam sends the following: "It is clear that the Germans are putting Antwerp in a state of defense. In most of the important forts the Belgian guns have been replaced with German fortress artillery of the latest type. Evidently the Germans are preparing a line of retreat from the Ostend-Dixmude line."

Battle for the Straits of Dover Continues With Unabated Fury; Countryside Reeking With Blood

London, October 26.—The battle for the Straits of Dover, one of the most sanguinary of the war, is continuing with unabated fury, but thus far without either side gaining decided advantage.

The Germans, who, at terrible cost of life, last Saturday crossed the Yser canal between Nieupoort and Dixmude, have not been able to make further progress, as the allies, according to a report of the German general headquarters issued this morning, are obstinately defending their positions.

The evening of October 24, north of Rawa, we attacked the Germans at the point of the bayonet, inflicting upon them considerable losses. In the village of Moshkino alone we buried over 700 Germans.

In Bayonet Combat. "In a bayonet combat near the village of Mazamerjoff we captured two batteries of machine guns.

"Our troops captured the forest of Nenglovo, southeast of Rawa, where we took over 400 prisoners. In the forest between Radom and Kosenitz tenacious combats continue.

"We have progressed along the routes from Novos to Alexandria, where we captured numerous prisoners and cannon.

nothing of their own dead or wounded, whose places are being filled with reinforcements. The British fleet which did such execution in bombarding the German flank seems to have withdrawn yesterday afternoon. The Germans say this was because their artillery was beginning to reach the ships. The belief is expressed here, however, that the fleet will be able to render untenable German occupation of any part of the Belgian or French coasts. The opinion also is expressed here that the operations of the allied vessels off the Belgian coast and in the vicinity of the Straits of Dover may cause the German fleet to come out and give battle.

In naval circles here it is considered that the German submarines, although they have proved deadly to ships steaming slowly, will not be so effective against ships steaming and maneuvering at high speed and in shallow water as the British monitors and their auxiliaries have been doing.

BIG GERMAN GUNS FOR THE COAST.

There is some talk of the Germans bringing their big 43-centimeter guns to the coast to use against the allied warships, but the British sailors are credited with saying that their vessels can prevent these guns being put in position. They claim that even if they should be mounted they will not be so deadly against a fast-moving fleet as against the stationary forts they destroyed so easily. While this life and death struggle is going on in the west the French have become more active in the east along the Atlantic border and are said to be making preparations and securing advanced positions in view of possible attacks by the Germans with their big howitzers in the Belgium fortress. It now seems to be realized that no fortress has any chance of holding out when once these big German guns are brought into action against it. Many days ago came and so and the promised visits of the Zeppelins to England's coast do not materialize, the public seemingly is beginning to believe these monster aircraft are being held in reserve for the day that the German navy comes out and that they will be used in force to assist the warships in an endeavor to cripple the British fleet.

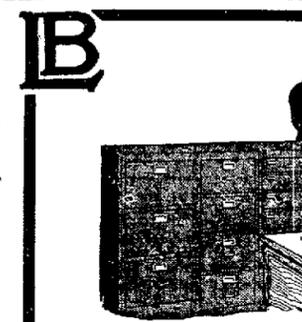

GEN. VON KLUCK NOT ON RIGHT.

Confirmation from Paris that the German extreme right no longer is being manipulated by General von Kluck, says the Atlantic City Herald. It was said last week that he had been superseded by General von Arnim, but the latest version has him remaining in the line, while Grand Duke Alexander, of Wurttemberg, and others are guiding the destinies of the armies in Belgium. Of the dispatches unfavorable to the Germans was one saying that Antwerp was being put in a state of defense and entrenchments were being prepared to protect the road to Bruges. Among the reports held here to be ridiculous was that Germany was building huge submarines to transport with which she hoped to land troops on British soil. A report agrees that the fighting in West Flanders has been terrible, beyond any other during the war. Projectiles hurled from the land, the sea and the air are sweeping this flat unprotected country, destroying villages and searching out the terror-stricken inhabitants who delayed too long in getting out of the line of fire.

GERMAN ATTACKS ARE REPULSED.

Paris reports that to the west and to the south of Lille fierce attacks by the Germans have been repulsed. The most significant part of the Paris official communication relates that the French, with their heavy artillery, now command the road which is one of the principal lines of German communication with St. Mihiel, the holding of which by the invaders has constituted one of the greatest menaces to the allied line.

The question of the early return of the French government to Paris is being seriously considered. This indicates that the military situation is satisfactory from the standpoint of the allies, but the authorities believe that the battle along the coast because of the German advances near La Bassée will be more prolonged than was at first anticipated. If the government does return to Paris such a step undoubtedly will have a tremendous moral effect.

Reports indicate that the French aerial service has responded to the demand for reorganization, which followed the storm of criticism leveled at it because of the ease with which German aeroplanes dropped bombs on Paris. No recent aerial attacks have been made on the French capital, and it is announced along the battle front that five German aeroplanes have been destroyed by British airmen.

BATTLES RAGING ON EASTERN FRONT.

The German official report tonight again speaks of the German offensive on Augustow. The Russian official declares it is progressing. It reiterates that the battle near Ivangorod, although favorable to the Germans, remains undecided. North of this section the Russians claim they are still purging the Germans, who attempted an advance on Warsaw and southward to have crossed the Vistula and driven the Austrians back. In Galicia and in the Carpathians the Russians also claim to have broken down the Austrian offensive.

Petrograd claims that the Germans still are retiring from Warsaw in precipitate flight and that they are evacuating Lodz. The Germans attempted to arrest the Russian offensive movement at Sokhatchoff, but were dislodged from their positions there with heavy losses. Masad Pasha, the chronic disturber of the peace of Albania, is said to have invaded Northern Epirus. If this is true, it may bring about the entrance of Italy into the conflict, according to opinion in London. Es-said's activity may compel Italy to consider the necessity of occupying Avlona, a step which might not meet with favor in Austria-Hungary.

GERMAN LOSSES ARE FRIGHTFUL.

London, October 26.—A Daily Mail dispatch from Flushing, Netherlands, says the German losses along the Belgian coast are frightful. "Three meadows near Ostend are heaped with dead," continues the correspondent. "Thirty-seven farm wagons containing a convulsive mass of wounded dying and dead, passed Middelkerke in one hour." "Slowly but surely the Germans are being beaten back on the west wing, and old men and young lads are being hurried to the front," says the Daily Mail's Rotterdam correspondent in a dispatch dated late yesterday. The enemy were in a strong force at Dixmude, where the allies were only repulsed to attack again with renewed vigor. "Roulers resembles a shambale. It was taken and retaken four times. The German guns made the place untenable for the allies." "An Oostburg message says the firing at Ostend is very heavy and that the British are shelling the suburbs held by the Germans. Last night and this morning large bodies of Germans left Bruges for Ostend. It is believed the Ostend piers have been blown up." "The German officers in Brussels have been ordered to the western front. The only points in Belgium now held strongly by the Germans are Liege and Namur."

USEFUL SUCCESS FOR THE ALLIES.

London, October 26.—The Bordeaux edition of The Daily News says the following regarding the fighting in the Argonne region: "A useful success has been scored by the allies in the forest of Argonne.

After the fighting on the Marne, the Duke of Wurtemberg's army retreated to the western side of the Argonne, and the army followed along the eastern side of the forest, halting finally around Varennes. Ever since the German armies have been trying to join hands.

Germans Use Smashing Tactics But They Make Little Headway

Paris, October 26.—The smashing tactics of the Germans along the North sea coast line continued incessantly today, when the big guns were turned against the allies and they had to withstand constant attacks of masses of troops. Little progress, however, was made by the Germans, who were faced with the strongest resistance.

The character of the country prohibits a rapid movement, as the land is cut up by canals, and two series of defensive works separate them from Dunkirk.

The German infantry executed a number of night attacks on the extreme wing and also in the vicinity of Lille, where they encountered obstinate resistance. The allies are displaying wonderful energy in this region. The commanders are sparing their men many hardships, and are able to give constant reliefs to troops on the fighting line.

When they come from the front for a rest the troops are accommodated in the numerous villages scattered in the rear, where they relax until the bugles sound the charge for more fighting. Then they go forward cheerily to the inferno where they must face the shrapnel and machine guns, bidding "so long" to their comrades whose places they are taking.

Change Hands Frequently.

Sometimes a single forward movement is interrupted by a retreat. Today in one hamlet forty allied soldiers who had been wounded were lying in a factory which had been transformed into a hospital. A shell fired from the German guns struck the building, and an American ambulance volunteered to rescue the wounded men and saved all the lives. How afterward this hamlet was captured by a German brigade after occupying it for a short time, was chased out again after desperate street fighting. Meanwhile the wounded were removed to the base hospital in the rear.

On the line from Soissons to Craonne the allies are said to have obtained a slight advantage in today's fighting. The French on the eastern wing the French are credited with a gain which, it is claimed, places the German lines of communication in difficulty.

Germans Claim Partial Gains; Three British Ships Are Hit

Berlin, October 26.—(Via Amsterdam and London).—A report from general headquarters in the Argonne says: "West of the Yser canal, between Nieuport and Dixmude, which is still occupied by the enemy, our troops attacked the hostile positions, which are being shelled from the British coast. The British fleet co-operated, but was forced back by the heavy artillery fire. Three ships were hit. During the afternoon the British fleet kept beyond the distance of sight. "Near Ypres the battle is stagnant. Southwest of Ypres and west and southwest of Lille our attacks are progressing, arising severe fighting. The English suffered great losses, leaving about 500 prisoners. "North of Arras a heavy French attack broke down, the French losses being severe. "In the eastern theater of the war our offensive on Augustow is progressing. The battle near Ivangorod is favorable, but still now there has been no decision."

GEN. VON FALKENHAYN SUCCEEDS VON MOLTKE.

Berlin, October 26.—(Via The Hague and London).—General von Falkenhayn has been acting as chief of the German general staff during the illness of General von Moltke, who has been suffering from a slight cold. General von Moltke's condition is said not to be serious, and already he has shown considerable improvement. The king of Saxony, while visiting Telegram company from Rotterdam gives the following official statement, issued in Vienna: "A telegram dated yesterday noon from the northwestern theater of war says Austrian and strong German forces have taken a position in a nearly unbroken line from the Carpathian mountains by way of Stry and Sambor, before the city of Przemyel. The Polish part of the Vistula and to the district of Plock, against the main army of the Russians. The Russian forces are being driven back by the Polish troops from the Caucasus, Siberia and Turkestan. "The Austrian offensive across the Carpathians attracted strong hostile forces. "In the middle of Galicia, where both armies have fortified positions, the battle is stagnant. "Northeast of Przemyel and on the lower San, the Austrians have had several successes. "In Russian Poland strong forces are fighting, and the Russian army there has been fighting north of the Vistula, between Ivangorod and Warsaw."

CHEAP SUGAR PROVIDED BY BRITISH GOVERNMENT

London, October 26.—The government has no surplus of sugar, but it is announced that the gross wholesale price will be reduced to 25 cents a pound. This will make the maximum retail price 7 cents a pound for good granulated and 8 cents a pound for good cubes.

"The French have now gained possession of the village of Melcourt, in the middle of Argonne, and commanding the route to the valley of the Aisne. As long as they hold this key, the crown prince is out in the cold, separated by a difficult country from the rest of the German lines."

U. S. Minister Brand Whitlock Says Food Is About Gone. Belgians in Daze.

Brussels, October 26.—(Via London.) Famine menaces nearly seven million persons in Belgium unless they receive immediate help from the outside. Brand Whitlock, American minister, asserts that less than two weeks' food supply remains in cities, while conditions in country districts are worse. His reports from Namur, Louvain and Liege say affairs in these cities are worse than in Brussels.

Nearly half the people who have remained in Belgium are wandering helplessly from town to town seeking shelter in barns, fields and cellars. Malines, which formerly had 60,000 inhabitants, has but a few unharmed houses standing. The same situation exists at Namur and Louvain.

The road from Antwerp to Brussels is black with people moving in either direction. Wagons and carts are filled with wreckage of household effects. Thousands of feet are carrying bundles or pushing dog carts, moving with no definite destination. "Belgians of all classes appear disheartened. Old women and cripples may be seen sitting near their shattered cathedrals with its shattered windows and tottering walls. Similar conditions are found in small villages between Antwerp and Brussels. Few stores are open. Villages that stood near the front are almost completely razed; many inhabitants remain living in rudely constructed sheds or tents. In Brussels the streets are filled with German soldiers and marines. Automobiles of the officers dash in all directions.

By an official order there have been posted throughout the country names of Belgians and their families sentenced to imprisonment for insults offered to German soldiers. Others are warned to obey military orders and are advised that the Germans have no intention of seizing non-combatants. The Germans pay for everything obtained in stores.

CANADA NOT FEARFUL OF GERMAN INVASION

Hot Springs, Va., October 26.—Sir Robert L. Borden, the Canadian premier, saw here tonight for the first time the published statement of Count von Bernstorff, German ambassador, that invasion of Canada by Germany would not be violation of the Monroe doctrine. He remarked that Canada did not consider a German invasion imminent and that the remainder of the Monroe doctrine to such an improbability hardly had been considered.

On the Russian Front.

"Russia. To the west of the Vistula and to the north of the Plock river, the German army has been forced back on Lovitz, Skiermiewitz and Rawa, which have been captured at the bayonet point by the Russians. "To the south of the Plock, in the direction of Radom, there has been a lively engagement between the Russians and the Austro-Germans, who lost prisoners and cannon. "To the south of Solec the Russian troops crossed the Vistula by main force, driving the Austrians back on the river San and to the south of Przemyel there have occurred stubborn combats, resulting favorably to the Russians. An Austrian column descending from the Carpathians in Dolina (in Galicia, 22 miles to the south of Stry) was routed."

FIRST—Superior quality and freshness of goods and cleanliness in handling them.
SECOND—Superior and efficient service. The clerks always seem pleased to wait on customers.
THIRD—The pleasantness and courtesy with which they correct mistakes, making me feel as if I do not mind the inconvenience I may have had.
FOURTH—They do not send a substitute or inferior article, which is often done in other places.
This is not a letter just to try for the Award—though I would like to win one—but I am as glad to give as if no award was offered.

DECLARES COFFEE HELPS IN MAKING ALCOHOLICS

W. C. T. U. Doctor Says Drunkenness Is Often Caused by Children Drinking Tea and Coffee.

In its fight for prohibition the National W. C. T. U. has been considering some of the factors of the alcohol appetite. Two of the most common of these factors, almost universally disregarded in this connection, are tea and coffee, says Dr. Charles A. B. Abbott, superintendent of the New York Woman's Directory of the W. C. T. U.

"Drunkenness," says Dr. Abbott, "is the result of the children drinking tea and coffee in public schools. It is continually stimulated until a craving for something stronger is formed. Children should be taught the danger of this in the schools, as parents are too busy to attend to the matter of the tea and coffee are just as harmful to children as alcohol is to grown-ups."

"The thing for parents to do," says Dr. F. A. Peterson, Medical Director of the Cleveland public schools, "is to keep coffee and tea out of the reach of our little citizens. The most unkind thing a mother can do is to place a cup of coffee before her child."

NOTE.—The rapidly increasing sale of the pure food-drink, INSTANT POSTUM, now extensively used in place of coffee, seems to indicate a very general awakening on the part of the American people to the dangers of coffee drinking.

Society Flocks to Rich's To "Salon Du Bon Ton"

Being blissfully unmarried, far be it from me to know anything about corsets—detached from their natural state of service or otherwise—so when the city editor assigned me to review the "Salon du Bon Ton" at Rich's I was of the opinion that he was seeking revenge for some misdeed.

The "Salon du Bon Ton"—yes, it's spelled correctly—is an elaborate display of elaborate corsets on still more elaborate figures. It is being conducted on the top floor of the M. Rich store for these three days, beginning Monday, by Mme. A. A. Barbour and her company of living models from New York.

"Figuratively" speaking, there's not a greater show in town. From my own standpoint, there has never been a greater—never will be. There might be folks who differ with me. But, as men are not admitted to the Salon du Bon Ton, they know not whereof they speak. I burglarized my way into the performance.

I was aided by a providential mirror that stood in a dark corner of Rich's top story and reflected from the screened inclosure the ravishing spectacle of Mme. Barbour's models displaying corsets upon a brilliantly lighted stage.

If I had stepped from that dark spot into the screened inclosure there would have been a stampede.

After the performance, when I had strained my eyes trying to get just one more ravishing vision from that accessory (before and after the fact) mirror, I went behind the scenes and had a heart-to-heart confab with Mme. Barbour.

A Lucky Scribe.

And Mme. Barbour, just to please an unsophisticated newspaper man, explained the purposes of the exhibition. From behind the screened dressing room she called Miss Waldeman, the "average figure." She explained that Miss Waldeman's title, "average figure," was derived from the fact that her figure was of average width, height, "and so forth."

I disagreed with her. I didn't think there was anything average about Miss Waldeman's figure. It was extraordinary, I commented.

"Now, this style," began Mme. Barbour, putting her finger upon the shoulder of Miss Waldeman, "is a semi-slip-on, made with the one idea of adding the last touch of style to the form already near perfection. It has a two-inch elastic top combined with body material. Also, as you'll observe, a very long skirt with elastic lacing in front. Wundabohn boning.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Brandon of New York, who spent last winter at the Ponce de Leon, will arrive Sunday to spend the winter in Atlanta. They will be at the Georgian Terrace until they secure a house.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. McCaughey, of Fort Worth, Texas, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Zachry.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Little announce the birth of a daughter on October 21, at their home on Capitol avenue. She has been named Zelama Felis, for her maternal grandmother.

Miss Mary Lane of Virginia, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Zachry.

Miss Mary Peabody will entertain at bridge Friday morning at home.

Mrs. Eliza and Miss Riggs of Chattanooga are spending several weeks with Mrs. Joseph Bowen, on Peachtree street.

Miss Lucile Bean has returned from a month's visit to New York, Washington and Pittsburg.

Mrs. James Taylor Williams was operated on for appendicitis yesterday at St. Joseph's infirmary, and her condition is favorable.

Mrs. J. W. McDonnell, who was recently operated on at St. Joseph's, is now able to see her friends.

Miss Mamie Proctor, of Savannah, who has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. Elmer E. Fulton, has returned to her home at Greenville, Ga.

Mrs. J. M. Hipp, who has been ill at Wesley Memorial, is now convalescent, and will soon be able to return home.

Miss Anne Winston, of West Point, returned home Saturday.

Miss Elizabeth Wallinford, of Kentucky, arrives today to visit Miss Laura Cole.

Miss Willie Keith is the guest of Mrs. Claude Fredrick.

Miss Nellie Hood Ridley returns today from Cuthbert, where she has spent two weeks.

Mrs. Klatt Armstrong and children are spending two weeks in Waynesboro.

The members of the Inman Park Chrysanthemum club will go to New-Man Friday to attend the annual chrysanthemum show.

Mrs. Henry Franklin entertains at a tea this afternoon at Druid Hills golf club for Miss Constance Berry, a debutante.

Swift & Company's sales of Beer in Atlanta for the week ending Saturday, October 24, 1914, averaged 3.16 cents per bottle.—(adv.)

you see, composed of treet in two colors—white or pink." "Certainly—very fine," I assented. "Some corset."

Dainty Miss Paulson. Then, from behind the screen, emerged dainty Miss Paulson, the slender type. She was clad in a black lace Bon Ton No. 994, I believe it was, and, as she reached Mme. Barbour's side, the latter said:

"Now, sir, this style is for a slender figure, daintily worked out with fidelity to fashion's most pleasing whims. Free hip-gore, 3½-inch bust and elastic bust-gore. Shaped elastic patch goes in skirt front. Embroidery trimming, broche silk design in white or pink or blue."

"Yes-sun," I commented. "That's some corset, too. How do you spell Miss Paulson's name? Thank you!" Mme. Barbour's mission is to teach the women of Atlanta the art of buying and wearing corsets.

Now, I'm no corset expert, and I don't know silk chamoisette from plain, ordinary black lace, but I do plead guilty to an instinctive appreciation for beauty, and I can conceive of no more effective method of carrying out Mme. Barbour's mission than her "Salon du Bon Ton."

Some Society Affairs.

Atlanta women are flocking to it. It was a big society affair Monday morning and afternoon. They sat enthralled while the graceful models marched before them in all the fashion's flimsy little exclamations—and most of them took notes. Which was very pleasing to Mme. Barbour, as it is her mission to teach.

And you can't blame the women. They're learning that most indispensable woman's art of arts—the art of buying and wearing corsets. Also, they're seeing—

But why attempt description when the old dictionary is away up in the front of the office and the "vision of lovely models continues to drift before my eyes.

ADVICE GIVEN SOUTH BY SECRETARY HOUSTON

All Farmers Profiting by the War Prices Except the Cotton Growers. Chicago October 26—Secretary of Agriculture Houston who today addressed the convocation of the National Dairy Show association declared that all farmers were profiting by war prices except the southern cotton grower. He expressed the opinion that the cotton growers should learn from their predicament to diversify their crops. With people of all sections keenly interested in the war, the secretary announced that the government would increase the nation's rapidly diminishing meat supply develop increased production of livestock. He could be no question that the key to the solution of many of the problems of rural life will be found in some form of concerted action or co-operation. Unquestionably said the secretary the largest increase in our meat supply lies in three directions: 1. In sympathetic attention to the production of larger animals in the settled farming areas of the country especially in the south. 2. In giving attention to the smaller animals such as swine and poultry. 3. In the control and eradication of cattle ticks and hog cholera. The last census shows a lamentable decline in livestock in the south. While the average Iowa farm has six milch cows in North Carolina and South Carolina one. No southern state is giving the requisite attention to the production of foodstuffs for human beings or for live stock. The programs of marketing and distribution he said were even more urgent.

CHURCH DEACONS GIVEN HARD KNOCK BY DEAN MATHEWS

Atlantic City N. J. October 26—The most serious thing which faces today particularly the Baptist as furnished by deacons many of whom are nothing more than rural business men and fireless cookers showing religious fire occasionally because they find changes already heated was the statement of Dean Shaler Mathews of the University of Chicago in an address before the New Jersey Baptist convention here today. A great number of deacons the dean added are moral parasites who prostitute the work of the minister.

NO PANICKY CONDITIONS DISCOVERED IN SOUTH

Members of U. S. Chamber of Commerce Say There Is a Spirit of Optimism. Memphis Tenn. October 26—Contrary to the impression prevailing in many sections of the country there is no evidence of prostration of business or panicky conditions in the south, according to John H. Feltus of Boston president of the chamber of commerce of the United States and other members of that organization who were here today on the last leg of their tour through the south. They left tonight for Birmingham. "We have observed with the greatest satisfaction said Mr. Feltus the spirit of self confidence and optimism everywhere apparent among the business men in the cities we have visited in spite of the temporary difficulties created by the war. The impression has prevailed in some sections that the south was completely prostrated and well nigh panic stricken over cotton conditions. We did not find the slightest evidence of such a condition. The visitors spent the day inspecting local industries and points of interest."

REVOLTING CONDITIONS FOR AGED AND INFIRM

New York October 26—Two months investigation of Blackwell's Island charitable institution by a grand jury resulted today in the jury presenting a report recommending that the commissaryship be abolished and that the institutions be placed under a board of managers. The report stated that the aged and infirm are not properly cared for and that revolting conditions exist in the hospital and morgue. In the home for the aged and infirm the report said many inmates were found sleeping on the floor. Some were without shoes and stockings and food was insufficient. The Metropolitan hospital on the island was particularly noted for the morgue the jury reported the dead are cared for with no reverence and bodies are robbed. Judge Nott of the general sessions court informed the jury he would forward the report to Mayor Mitchell with a request that the legislature take action at its next session to remedy the evils and carry out the recommendations. The president virtually finished his letter writing campaign today in endorsing candidates in several states. He wrote that the election in the election will result in democratic majorities in senate and house but he will continue to work as much as possible for certain candidates. So many members of the cabinet are out campaigning that the regular cabinet meeting tomorrow has been cancelled and it is probable no meetings will be held until after the election. Louisville Ky. October 26—First steps in an investigation to determine whether horse and mule meat is being sold in Louisville under the guise of beef were taken today by the Jefferson county grand jury and the city health department. The grand jury indicted one butcher and the board of health heard the testimony of butchers who declared that the meat was widely sold over meat market counters.

UNION OF METHODISTS IS URGED BY DANIELS

Washington October 26—Mobilization of a great army of Methodists in one organic union to include the north and southern divisions and all branches of the denomination was advocated here tonight by Josephus Daniels in an address at the centennial celebration of the L'ouisy Methodist church. Such a union he said would have an enrollment of 5,293,864 souls. If Methodism were united today said Mr. Daniels they could mobilize an army for righteousness which will fight to flight the evils of our country. If denominations have agreed not to encroach upon each other's missionary territory and yet one great family of Christendom united at home. There is a Northern Methodist Episcopal church in Atlanta and a Southern Methodist Episcopal church in Seattle.

END DOUBLE SESSIONS NOW.

Halfway measures in ending double sessions in Atlanta's schools will not suffice. In eliminating scarcely more than half of them, the board of education "has but scotched the snake, not killed it."

Atlanta should not and does not propose to tolerate the retention of twenty-one classes in her white schools upon the basis upon which some of the negro schools of the city have to be operated.

The people had been given to understand that the problem had been solved and that the final elimination of all the double sessions would be a matter of only a few days required to find the additional rooms needed. They confidently relied upon this understanding, and the eleventh-hour announcement that twenty-one of these double sessions or double classes, as you choose, will be continued until January 1, comes as a great surprise and an extreme disappointment.

Finance committee, council, the mayor promptly set about their part of the work of eliminating this evil, as soon as the Constitution called attention to it. They did their work well. Difficult though it was, they found the money which the board of education said it needed, and appropriated it. There was left no feeling of doubt that the board would do the rest. In fact, the members of the board believed they had done it, and so announced; and some of them were as much surprised as the public over the announcement that twenty-one double classes would be continued. Nobody had anticipated that the nuisance would be abated in a day; public patience was willing to accord a reasonable time for the restoration of the old system.

But public patience will not hold out for an indefinite continuation of this nuisance. For a matter of perhaps less than $1,000 the required twenty-one rooms can be secured for several months and these double classes ended.

The main item of expense at the outset was the salaries of the needed teachers. These have been secured, every one of the forty-three of them, and so have half of the needed rooms.

There is absolutely no excuse for retaining twenty-one, nor even one, of these classes upon the basis of the negro schools. The people of Atlanta had been given what amounted to a promise that if $11,812 was appropriated, the double sessions evil would be wholly eliminated. The money was found and given, and regardless of where the responsibility may rest, they are going to insist upon the performance of that promise.

AN HONOR TO GEORGIA.

Savannahians are planning to show due recognition of the honor which has come to one of their most distinguished citizens in the recent selection of General Peter W. Meldrim as president of the American Bar association.

This is no narrow or circumscribed honor, but one of national import and consequence. In this high position General Meldrim succeeds no less a distinguished citizen than Judge William H. Taft, former president of the United States; and he likewise follows other prominent Americans whose names may be said to lead the list of the American bar.

General Meldrim is not only a lawyer of marked ability, but he is a citizen of splendid service. He is of that high type that has upheld the ethics and tone of the bar of state and country. Though a busy man, he has never hesitated to answer call to public service and to give to it his time and the best of talents when the only reward was consciousness of a duty well done. Not only by reason of character, ability and attainments, but as well from a standpoint of experience in its councils, is he splendidly qualified for the office of president of the American Bar association. He has served actively, capably, faithfully, on some of its most important commissions where problems of national import were dealt with, and in its meetings his advice and counsel have been frequently requisitioned. The honor of General Meldrim's selection to this office comes not only to Savannah, but to Georgia, his native state, which as lawyer, soldier or citizen, he has proudly served.

FIND THE MARKET.

The reason we have not thought more about the question of a market for food crops while urging the farmer to grow them instead of all cotton, is that we have all been so concerned with urging upon him the importance of living at home that we have not thought much about the surplus.

In fact, it is only within the last few years that any Georgia counties have begun to raise sufficient food crops to feed themselves and their stock. Now that a dozen or so of the most enterprising Georgia counties have begun to grow a surplus of food crops, the question of finding a market is becoming an important one. And when, next year, the farmers begin raising more grain and food crops than ever before, in order to relieve the pressure on the cotton supply, it will become one of our great big problems. We ought to reach a solution of it now, so that there will be no question about a market when food products are raised in abundance next year.

This might very well be done temporarily at least, if not permanently, through the various chambers of commerce, or better still, perhaps, through the Georgia Chamber of Commerce. When we consider the wonderful results attained by the California Fruit exchange, the Florida Citrus exchange and our own Georgia Fruit exchange, the solution of the food products problem along similar lines seems apparently easy.

Over in South Carolina they are making a state matter of it. The legislature there is about to enact a law creating a state marketing agency, designed to aid the farmers to find markets for crops they produce next year in place of cotton. The plan of state assistance in this direction is not far different from what the states are doing for the farmer now through their agricultural departments. In a communication recently published in The Constitution, E. H. Armstrong suggested the creation of a commerce commissioner or special state official whose duty would be to conduct a public brokerage office for the purpose of bringing producer and customer together. His suggestion grew out of the case of the Marietta man, recently mentioned in The Constitution, who had a surplus carload of peavine hay, the best stock food grown, and who could not find a purchaser for it in Atlanta because the Atlanta consumer has the "timothy hay" habit, preferring a poorer article at a higher price. It is the result, of course, of ignorant habit.

Not long ago a farmer from northern Fulton county drove into Atlanta with a two-horse wagon load of as large and as fine rutabagas as were ever seen here. He went to grocers, he cried them about the streets, and tried in every way to sell them, but there was no market. Somewhere in this country, and not very far away at that, there were consumers who would have been more than glad to get that wagon load of rutabagas—would have been glad, perhaps, to have had a carload of them; but where? That's what the farmer did not know, and there was nobody who could tell him.

Somewhere in this country, or maybe over in Europe, there is somebody ready and waiting for every rutabaga, every potato, every pound of meat, every bale of hay and everything else in the food line we can make, whether for man or animal. We need some system which will promptly put the Georgia farmer—in fact, the southern farmer everywhere—in touch with the sources of demand. There is need for it right now in some few of our enterprising counties which have grown surplus crops. There are possibly Georgians who would be glad to take up all of this year's surplus and more.

It is as economically immoral for the Georgia consumer to go away from home for his foodstuffs as it is for the Georgia farmer to grow all cotton to the exclusion of other products.

But the question of bringing producer and consumer together—of finding a ready market for the products—is becoming an all-important one. Something must be done about it. We owe it to the producer. The Georgia Chamber of Commerce could do the state no more valuable service right now than find a solution for this market problem.

THE MORAL OF "UNCLE JOE."

Some people who once had the habit of voting for "Uncle Joe" Cannon finally decided that he was eligible for membership in the Has Been club and forthwith nominated him for president of it.

Their "Uncle Joe" didn't tell them that they had reckoned wrong; he demonstrated it in another way: He put personal politics aside, for a time, took an active interest in the business enterprises of his home town and kept himself in the full blaze of the local limelight.

A writer in Leslie's Weekly says that today he may be seen discussing proposed improvements for the town with Commercial club members; next, delivering an address before a Ladies' Aid society, and—when there is a vacant pulpit to be filled in Danville, whether it be Methodist, Presbyterian, Unitarian or Baptist, "Uncle Joe" fills it, giving them orthodox with all the trimmings!

The moral of this story of the rugged old politician has the Never-say-die stamp; it is that no man—Father Time to the contrary, notwithstanding—who still has a little strength and spirit in him, gets in the has been class unless he puts himself there.

The advocates of the Osler age theory have not yet recovered from the shock they experienced when informed that the leading generals of the French and German armies are old men and, in the parlance of the day, "they are some" generals, too!

The comfort of it all is, it is a man's world until he wills otherwise; and it's mighty good to go the limit with it!

Elizabeth Bisland Pleads For Poverty-Stricken Belgians

Editor Constitution: I know how generous, enthusiastic and unselfish the men and women of Georgia when cases of great need and suffering are presented to their notice; and I wish to call their attention to the distressing plight of the non-combatants of France and Belgium.

England has been generous to the unhappy Belgians; the government extending every possible aid to the thousands of refugees, making them the guests of the nation, housing and feeding them at its cost. The United States has also been generous, and active committees are collecting clothing and conveniences for the poor folk who arrive in London with nothing but the garments in which they have escaped from their ruined homes. The Fall Mail Gazette in little more than three weeks collected over $100,000 for the relief of their needs, and English merchants have sent two large shipments of supplies to Antwerp to feed the destitute.

But, however fine as it is, considering how England is pouring out millions to carry on the war and take care of her own wounded and needy—is but a crumb to the vast need of that unfortunate little country. The Belgians are fastidious and fastidious Belgians is almost beyond belief. Two months ago it was prosperous, peaceful and happy; for the Belgians are famed for their industry and frugality; a more laborious and thrifty people do not exist. Today, their lands are simply plundered and blackened ruin, and the tales of cruelty and wanton outrage told by the dazed and stricken refugees are a thing to freeze one's blood. And all this against the fault of their own. They menaced no one, claimed no rights, made no attack. They simply asserted a right to be left out of this giant world struggle and take no part for or against anyone. Their neighbors, the invaders, are a past which one of the combatants found it convenient to treat.

Winter is coming on—the biting winter of northern Europe—and these poor people are sitting amid ruined cities, burned homesteads and smoking chimneys, with their trees destroyed—bare, plundered, picked to the bone while the tides of war roll back and forth across their helpless destitution.

The people of the south, and of Atlanta more especially, know what it means to be ground into the mire, and to face desperation. None know better how to realize all that such burned cities and ravaged lands signify of anguish; no people will be better able to sympathize.

Belgium has given the world so much of art, of grace, of intellect, wit and wisdom—is in hardly better case. While she fights for her life in one last frenzied struggle to survive, pours out the blood and lives of her sons like water, the unhappy women and children are facing all the cruelties of winter, homeless, ruined and broken. She, too, can tell of horrors which she has seen, and she has seen with those who have seen numbers of little boys with right hands chopped off at the wrist by the invaders, and she has seen in this way they will insure that these males at least shall never be able later on to draw the sword of vengeance.

I am sure there are many in Georgia and all over the south who will gladly help to relieve in some measure the sufferings of these unhappy and innocent victims of war. Money is needed for food and housing, even the smallest sums will help, as well as clothing, blankets, mittens, muffers, all sorts of warm garments, shawls, blankets, hoods, flannel, underwear, caps, gloves, pajamas, nightgowns, garments of every sort, the well-to-do being as stricken and plundered as the poor. If you have any of these desired, and there can be no infringement of neutrality in relieving the distress of non-combatants.

I have already found channels through which to send their benevolence, but to those who have not yet done so I wish to say that I should be glad to have already contributed in both money and garments up to the limits of my own resources. If you have any of these articles or clothes which your generous readers may be willing to send, and which should be addressed to Elizabeth Bisland, c/o The Little Lavender, West Byfleet, Surrey, England.

Thanking you for your courtesy in allowing me to use your columns to make this appeal, I am, sir, yours very truly, Elizabeth Bisland, LITTLE LAVENDER, WEST BYFLEET, SURREY, ENGLAND, October 8, 1914.

How the Problem Could Be Solved

Editor Constitution: While the south is profoundly interested in cotton, the cotton problem is not a local, but an international problem.

1. Because it furnishes the cheapest source of clothing supply.

2. Because the market for cotton is nearer world-wide than for any other commodity.

3. Because the fact, the low prices prevailing are abnormal, and will be temporary. But, for this reason, the cotton market is not providing means to stabilize the price. Not by illegal, or abnormal means, but simply by taking into consideration what other governments have done and are now doing.

For example, when Napoleon came back to France from Egypt, trade was bankrupt, the French people in despair and trade demoralized beyond seeming hope of repair. Napoleon established the Bank of France and with it gave the French a re-discount market, resulting in almost instant financial relief and a great revival of trade.

Our reserve banking law in operation, and it should have been in operation, would have done for the United States a discount market and done for us what the Bank of France has done for France.

Again, the cotton problem will be looked to as an example how to handle farm and manufactured products. If a warehouse bill, modeled after the German one, were passed in effect that each precinct should elect a grader and sales agent, and the precinct agents should be authorized to sell the cotton to a state agent and the state agents a United States agent, who should act in conjunction with the Federal Government, and find a home and foreign market for all farm and manufactured products, and that the reserve banks should be authorized to store in government warehouses, our problem would have been solved.

Nothing much less illegal would have been done by congress, and yet the result would have been, judging by results in France and in Germany of similar action, of amazing and untold benefit. For out of it would have come stimulation of home trade and the placing in every clime the sign, "MADE IN AMERICA."

The Holland Letter

Charles S. Hamlin, governor of the federal reserve board at Washington, carefully refraining from committing himself to precise figures, did say to the members of the American Bankers' association, in annual convention at Richmond last week, that he and his associates are confident that with the operation of the new system there will be an increase of credit-utilizing facilities in the United States aggregating hundreds of millions. Governor Hamlin apparently is of the same opinion as President George W. Reynolds, of Chicago, respecting the amount of money in circulation. For President Reynolds seemed to be apprehensive that there might be over-expansion of money, while Governor Hamlin asserted that money is plentiful, the United States treasury has gold in abundance, the federal reserve board will be in position to control the export of gold, but what is needed at the present time is not more money, but satisfactory utilization of credit. It is to that end that the American bankers, through voluntary co-operation, are establishing strong gold pools.

They would like to see the credit situation which may become acute and may be caused by the change without precedent either with respect to time or magnitude in our international trade situation. On the occasion which attended the meeting of the American Bankers' association, at Richmond, President Wilson is reported to have spoken with gratification of this swift and happy change in our international trade relations. He had the official product of the first of November statistics which will prove that his unofficial intimation was accurate.

This sudden and almost overwhelming increase in our exports and in the demand which has come from foreign nations for American commodities will make it essential for the American government to take the care of the banks to enable them to meet current expenses, provide pay rolls and to take care of the other contingencies which an increase in output occasions until they recover their normal position.

It is now apparent that among the other features occasioned by the outbreak of war in Europe which are to become traditional will be the story of the sudden change in our foreign trade, the increase in our exports and in the demand for our goods. We are already making records in comparison with which there is none other in the past. From the port of New York, in mid-October, exports were recorded at the rate of $100,000,000 a month, and $100,000,000 for each day. These figures are likely to be maintained during the fall and winter. Some of the demands upon American manufacturers, which are reflected in recent statistics, are from countries which are not engaged in war. Norway and Sweden, Spain and Italy are through representatives in the American markets and necessarily here because they are unable to buy their commodities from their own markets. Many of France, Belgium was the beehive of industry on the continent of Europe and its exports for years have been large. But there is no longer any Belgium, and whatever the outcome of the war may be, years will pass before Belgium will have recovered her industry. Therefore nations across the sea which have been accustomed to buy their commodities from Belgium, and which have come from countries which are not engaged in war, Norway and Sweden, Spain and Italy are through representatives in the American markets and necessarily here because they are unable to buy their commodities from their own markets.

The Rapid Recovery. How rapid the recovery from the paralysis in our foreign trade, which began the first week of August and continued until mid-September, was demonstrated by the reports made by the department of commerce on the 21st of September. The visible trade balance against the United States in that month was nearly twenty million dollars. That is a month when our exports of food products, clothing and other goods were nearly as high as in August of this year. Suddenly, in mid-September, a change was noted. It first came under the official eyes of the custom house officers and of the department of commerce at Washington. It is, of course, explained by the fact that in August and early September Great Britain and other nations, especially Russia, were not ready to enter the American market. The representatives of the nations appeared late in August as the result of their demands became evident through custom house record by mid-September. The money value of the exports in September, made up chiefly of the exports of raw wool, was nearly as high as the money value of the August exports.

One hundred and fifty-six millions stand to our credit in the September international trade account, nearly as high as the total less than the money value of the exports of September of last year yet the record made last year was normal excepting that it may have been somewhat influenced by the fact that the new tariff law went into operation in September of last year. It is abnormal in comparison with the money value of our exports in August.

We were beginning so greatly that we were nearly twenty millions to the bad in our foreign trade in August, whereas, in September we had gained so greatly that our favorable trade balance was nearly seventeen millions.

There is good reason for predicting that this change in our foreign trade from the situation developed in August will be so great that on January 1 it will be possible for the Washington authorities to report that the net value of the exports of the year 1914 will be found to be not less than two billion dollars.

Continued Heavy Exports. By the first of November, it will probably be possible for the Washington authorities to report that the exports of October compared favorably with those of last year. The reasons are excellent for believing that the record of our exports and the excess of the money value of exports over that of imports will contribute greatly before the end of the year to the creation of a fairly good foreign exchange conditions.

Some of the bankers who are in authority over the gold fund aggregating two hundred millions are now inclined to believe that at the rate of increase of our exports and the continuation thereby of favorable trade balance a fairly good amount of foreign exchange will be furnished, so that it may be unnecessary to exhaust the gold pool for the purpose of paying our indebtedness abroad.

There is one point that this favorable change in our international trade will make it unnecessary to apply all of the eighty-two millions in gold which have been pledged by the New York banks for the payment of New York city's outstanding obligations.

Edison's First Experiment.

It isn't generally known that Thomas A. Edison's first experiment was with a violin. He made it when 11 years old. It ended up fortunately both for the experimenter and his subject.

Young Edison had become interested in chemistry as the result of reading a book on physics. He performed all the experiments mentioned in the book. Then he decided to enter the field of experiment himself.

He did not like Darius Green, build a flying machine, but forced a boy employed by his family to swallow a large quantity of saltpeter powders in the belief that the gases generated would enable him to fly.

The agonies of the victim attracted the attention of Edison's mother, who marked her displeasure by an application of a switch she kept behind the old grandfather's clock.

All Along the Line With George Fitch

Andrew Carnegie is Exhibit A in two demonstrations—a poor boy's chance in America and the benefits of a high tariff. When Andrew Carnegie was born, in 1835, in Dunfermline, Scotland, the event didn't cause a ripple in the town. His father was a poor man and pursued his avocation so successfully that at 10 years of age he could buy a bobbin boy, working for 20 cents a day.

Thousands of other Scotch boys have become bobbin boys, but they have generally made one fatal mistake. They have become boys in Scotland. Andrew was smart enough to come to Pittsburgh. But before beginning to accumulate his starvation wages, he bobbed all day across the river from Pittsburgh and at night he looked up closed windows, a millionaires' town. At this time oil was being discovered in great quantities in Pennsylvania and the chances of becoming the owner of a 30-cent farm with a million-dollar oil well on it were very bright. Carnegie began to monkey in a small way with oil, railroads and steel. One good deed deserves another, and as soon as he got one good deed he set about acquiring two more. Before long he was running a steel mill.

Many men have run steel mills and have made themselves into an early tomb over the job. But Carnegie conceived the idea of hiring bright young men to do his worrying for him. Each year he made more steel and bought more mines. About fifteen years ago, just before the trust law and the Sherman law, Carnegie was given a bill of $100,000,000. He was persuaded to sell his mills to the United States Steel corporation. When this was done, Mr. Carnegie found himself in a job at the age of 60, with only half a billion dollars between him and the poor-house.

Since that time Mr. Carnegie has spent his time in a manifold attempt to become poorer. He has built hundreds of libraries, given away $25,000,000 technical school, has built a peace palace and owns a palace in New York on a street which is repaved every year. In spite of this he is not appreciably poorer. He has given away $200,000,000, but the confounded industry has built a peace palace and owns a palace in New York on a street which is repaved every year. In spite of this he is not appreciably poorer. He has given away $200,000,000, but the confounded industry has built a peace palace and owns a palace in New York on a street which is repaved every year.

Mr. Carnegie is a little, white-bearded man with Santa Claus cheeks and a hobby for peace. He would cheerfully give up all the money he made selling battleship armor to secure everlasting peace. In the meantime he is overlooking a bet by not filling Mexico full of libraries and schools. This would, in time, give one particularly vicious dog of war a terrible boot.

VERSAILLES.

Versailles, which may or may not be enjoying extreme ill health at the present time, depending on the location of the German army, is a town of 45,000, whose principal occupation, advertisement and excuse for its existence, is to be a town of 45,000.

Before Louis XIV. built his new country home, over 200 years ago, Versailles was a Gothic wilderness, much frequented by horse thieves and peasants, both of which were about the same standing with the king. Then the palace was built, and in a century Versailles was the show-place of Europe. It was as beautiful as Paradise and as careless morally as Babylon, and in the meantime it had the reputation of France and put a permanent crimp in the king's business in that country.

For many years Versailles has not entertained royalty, but has specialized on tourists. It has been a success in its business, and the city is flourishing. The palaces still stand, and so does the park which surrounds them. The park is the greatest landscaping job in the world. It contains a canal a mile long and 200 feet deep, navigated by a fleet of boats and gondolas, and used entirely for decoration. It has an avenue of statuary, an artificial lake, magnificent fountains and an orange grove of trees. It has alleys, boulevards and tunnels carved out of the rock, and 60-foot trees, which are sculptured into walls and hedges with the aid of aerial ladders. More money and care was spent bringing water to this garden than was ever spent in the building of the water for Paris, and there are 93 miles of channels and aqueducts.

Versailles is the pride of all France and draws more tourists than anything in Paris. There are 93 miles of water, and 60-foot trees, which are sculptured into walls and hedges with the aid of aerial ladders. More money and care was spent bringing water to this garden than was ever spent in the building of the water for Paris, and there are 93 miles of channels and aqueducts.

More money and care was spent bringing water to this garden than was ever spent in the building of the water for Paris, and there are 93 miles of channels and aqueducts.

No country will ever build another Versailles, because no king could be so big a fool as to do it. Most of the magnificent buildings of Europe are the result of foolish kings, and said kings doubtless write in their graves to get that the common people are not getting dividends from the palace for which they once dug so profusely.

THE UHLANS.

The Uhlans, who are now being used by the French army to fight the German children to sleep, are not a tribe or 2 lodge, as has been suspected by many puzzled readers. They are a variety of cavalry. They are not even necessarily German. Russia has a variety of Uhlans, and the German brand is by far the most disagreeable to have around.

The Uhlans were invented by the Tartars, who came into central Europe hundreds of years ago from Asia and introduced their justly celebrated spears into the midst of the inhabitants with great industry. At that time the Uhlans wore a stout horse, a sabre and a lance with a red cloth on it. The red cloth was used to frighten the enemy, but of late years it has been found that a press agent is much more effective.

Uhlans infested Europe through all the middle ages, but they rose to their greatest fame in 1870, when Prussia sent many thousands of them to fight the French in France. The Uhlans did this with great success, and made themselves so disagreeable that a French cannon would run away without horses at the sight of them. The Uhlans roamed in large squads over, around and through the French infantry, chipping off chunks of it with their heavy swords, burning railroads, capturing cannon, and making themselves as disagreeable as a big boy in a game of marbles. When the war was over, the Uhlans had made their reputation and they have helped keep Europe nervous ever since.

In the present ill feeling the Uhlans have been very busy, as usual, and whenever a French or Belgian village is found in flames it is reasonably certain that these predatory horsemen have been around. During the first weeks of the year over 100,000 Uhlans were reported killed or captured by the Belgians. The Uhlans were found in flames in 50,000 of them in the German army, and as traces of Uhlans have been discovered by the coroners in many parts of France since then, it is evident that someone made a mistake in adding up the figures.

Canada Wants German Settlers

(From The Saskatoon Board of Trade News Letter.) The Canadian people have shown no inclination to treat Germans less generously than prior to the war. There has been a solidly no trouble in a race the Germans are highly respected in the west generally, and deserve to be. They are good farmers, and quick intelligible law-abiding citizens. Our people have no quarrel with the German people, however heartily they may detest and despise the German government. We want all the Germans we can get in western Canada.

COTTON SITUATION BEING CONSIDERED

Special Congress Committee to Investigate Conditions in South—President Wilson Thinks Situation Is Clearing.

Washington, October 26.—The special committee on cotton legislation, named by the house just before the adjournment of congress, met today to consider the situation in the south brought about by the European war. The resolution provided that this committee make a thorough investigation of the subject and report possible measures for federal aid in the cotton crisis by December 15. Representative Henry is chairman, and the other members are Representatives Austin and Langley, republicans; Lever and Hoffman, democrats, and Boll, progressive. Republican Leader Mann was appointed on the committee, but said he would resign for him to serve until after the election.

Nearly all the members of both houses of congress had left Washington today. Some southern senators and representatives, however, are expected to remain in the city to expedite legislation to relieve the cotton states, remained in the city.

There was considerable discussion today regarding Representative Henry's statement that an extra session would be called in November, but those close to President Wilson are of the opinion that he is not considering taking any such action. It is stated that while the president approves the Lever bill providing for government licensing of cotton warehouses, and the Glass amendment to the currency act permitting banks to issue notes up to 300 percent of their capital and assets, he believes both of these matters should be held over until the December session of congress.

Members of the house appointed on the special committee to consider cotton relief legislation today that nothing would be done until after the November election. Representative Henry, of Texas, who led the committee in the house against adjournment, said that he would leave at once to investigate conditions in the cotton states and Mississippi. Mr. Henry would make no further comment on his statement Saturday that an extra session might be called only in the contingency that the election should result in overturning the democratic majority in either house. Should there be such a result, it was argued, the administration would desire to have a legislative program.

BRITAIN WON'T STOP CARGOES OF COTTON.

Washington, October 26.—Senators and congressmen on the cotton situation were gratified today by the action of Great Britain in announcing that it would not interfere with American cotton as "contraband of war." Assurance that that effect were given Ambassador Page, at London, by Sir Edward Grey, British minister for foreign affairs, who confirmed his government's action in a statement here. Ambassador Page, in advising the state department, also reported that the British government had been laden with American cotton and products, detained at Sturzevay, Scotland, was not held because of her mail, but on account of a disagreement between her owners and the charter party.

Senators and congressmen had requested the state department to ask the belligerent countries to give assurances that shipments of American cotton to neutral or belligerent nations would not be seized or detained.

The action of the British government forestalled action by the state department, and will allow the safe movement of American cotton to any point including Germany, where a fair market is said to exist. The attitude of the British government, it is contended, means that there will be no interference with any non-contraband cargoes from a neutral country carried in neutral ships, even though consigned to a belligerent. Cotton never has been listed as either absolute or conditional contraband, and certain insurance companies have refused to issue cotton policies.

The British Ambassador, Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, in a statement has given assurances that cotton is not on the list of contraband, and will not be seized. It is on the free list and will remain there, he added, that cotton of contraband are being permitted to proceed where it is established that they are actually destined to neutral countries.

The acting secretary of the department of commerce, William C. Harris, director of the census, today expressed jubilation over the arrangement made by the British government with Great Britain. Mr. Harris is a Georgian. The declaration that cotton will not be considered even as conditional contraband and may be freely shipped without danger of confiscation is the best news the cotton people have heard since the war began.

The department of commerce will be found eager and ready to afford every possible facility within its jurisdiction to get the cotton to the markets that now seem to be open to it.

WILSON OPTIMISTIC REGARDING COTTON.

Washington, October 26.—The cotton situation arising from the European war is being cleared up in the opinion of President Wilson. He told callers today that the end of the war in cotton industry, but that rapid progress was being made in the efforts to assist the cotton growers.

The president based his optimism concerning the cotton situation on the fact that the cotton situation in the foreign markets. He said that the cotton situation in the world would be open to cotton and predicted that they would be better.

Wilson declared that southern business men with whom he had had dealings had been deeply appreciative of the cotton situation. He added that he had been confident all along that the cotton situation would clear itself out with the assistance of the administrative officers of the government.

GERMANY BUYING AMERICAN COTTON.

New York, October 26.—It was reported here this afternoon that representatives of the German government and of banking interests acting indirectly for it had been large buyers of American cotton in this city during an earlier shipment amounting to several hundred thousand dollars would leave from a southern port tomorrow.

The report followed the announcement by Washington that the British government had ordered cotton as contraband of war.

The report also said that the German government had declined today to discuss the report. It was said, however, that the shipment would be sent as several other shipments said to be arranged for during the last few days of the month by vessels clearing for Italian ports.

COTTON CARGOES FROM SAVANNAH.

Savannah, Ga., October 26.—Cargoes of cotton consisting of 9,700 bales and valued at $388,000, will be shipped tomorrow from this port in the Danish steamer Kluriva in Copenhagen and the Swedish steamer Ullof for Gothenberg. The two vessels were cleared today.

CALLS SOCIETY LEADER DEVIL'S BELLWETHER

"The woman who is a high society leader is the bellwether of the devil," was one of the remarks made by Evangelist Klein at the First Methodist church Monday evening in his sermon on "Devil's Announcements." He was speaking of the woman who led the social whirl in dances, card playing and theater-going. He held up dancing as a prelude to immorality, card playing as a forerunner of gambling and theater-going as a step toward licentiousness. It was when he was speaking of dancing and card playing that he said a social leader was the bellwether of the devil.

The evangelist was also opposed to the "movies." In denouncing them he told his large congregation that the best "movie" was the kind now going on at the First Methodist church, the kind that is moving toward God and that is stirring up the people to a greater religious zeal.

Tuesday evening there will be a special service for the young men when Mr. Klein will make a talk on "Moral Lepers."

Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock there will be a special meeting for women only.

The revival, which is attracting large crowds mornings and evenings, will last through the week and will close next Sunday night.

HARDWICK OPTIMISTIC OVER COTTON SITUATION

Congressman Thomas W. Hardwick arrived in Atlanta Monday afternoon from Washington, D. C. He will leave this morning for Barnesville, Ga., where he will deliver an address on the cotton situation at the opening exercises of the Sixth District Agricultural school, in which he will urge the farmers and bankers of that section of the state to hold out for continuation of the cotton crop next year and for diversification of crops.

Mr. Hardwick declared himself optimistic over a change for the better in the general business conditions of the south. Mr. Hardwick stated that E. F. Houston, secretary of the department of agriculture, at his suggestion, promised to have published to the commercial world during the next week a report on the cotton crop and the exact acreage being planted in the south. These reports are to be made weekly during the planting season, and are designed to give exact and official information to the cotton buyers of the world concerning the amount of cotton to be expected from next year's crop.

SMITH EXPECTS RISE IN PRICE OF COTTON

Senator Holte Smith, who Monday returned to Atlanta in a talk on the cotton situation, declared that he expected a rise in the price of cotton.

"I believe," said Mr. Smith, "that the cotton will not be considered as contraband of war will mean that cotton will be sold in great quantities by English spinners. The establishment of the reserve bank in this country is going to give the southern cotton-grower a chance to hold his cotton until the price does get higher."

JOHN B. DANIEL DIES AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS

Prominent Drug Man Came to Atlanta Immediately After the Civil War.

After an illness of only ten days, John Benning Daniel, one of Atlanta's foremost citizens, died Monday afternoon at his residence, 476 North Jackson street.

Mr. Daniel was one of the oldest and most successful business men of Atlanta, having been engaged in the drug business for forty-nine years. His business, which was one of the largest of the kind in the south, enjoyed a national-wide reputation, and was owned solely by him.

JOHN B. DANIEL.

Although a man of large interest, Mr. Daniel lived a quiet and unobtrusive life. He never married, and for the last ten years had lived with his sister. At the time of his death, he was 70 years of age.

Mr. Daniel was born in Lincoln, Lincoln county, Georgia, on November 24, 1845. At the age of 15 years he enlisted as a private in company H, of the Fifteenth Georgia regiment, of which his uncle, Captain Lafayette Lee, was the captain. After serving a brief time in the confederate service in Virginia, he was transferred to the western army, where he distinguished himself as a member of the famous Oglethorpes.

After the war Mr. Daniel came to Atlanta, and after long search at last secured employment with a drug concern owned and operated by L. G. L. Meade, on the corner where the North National bank building now stands. This was in the year 1865, after serving as clerk for twelve years, he, together with E. W. Morris, Jr., formed the partnership of Morris, Daniel and Lee.

Mr. Daniel was an elder of the First Presbyterian church, and was one of the most regular attendants of all services.

Mr. Daniel is survived by one sister, Mrs. Jane P. Fleming, and two nephews, Paul L. and Frank L. Fleming, and Lucien Lamar Knight, an at the First Methodist church. No funeral has yet been made, but the funeral services will probably take place Wednesday morning. Interment in Oakland cemetery.

VICTOR INNES PLACED IN "COMMON CORRIDOR"

Victor E. Innes has been taken out of his comfortable cell in Ector county jail, San Antonio, and put among the fifty-nine prisoners in the "common corridor," where he hasn't even the luxury of a cot and is forced to sleep upon the hard surface of the floor, according to a telegram received from Mrs. John W. Nelms, mother of the missing girl.

The telegram is as follows: "Innes was taken out of his cell today and put among the fifty-nine other prisoners in a back cell, known as the 'common corridor,' where he has to sleep on boards with other prisoners. He is not given even a cot to sleep on. Mrs. Innes still refuses to talk to Marshall Nelms in company with his legal adviser, Ruben Arnold, will confer with Solicitor Dorsey today in an effort to have the Nelms case put before the Fulton county grand jury, seeking to indict Innes in Georgia on a charge of conspiracy in event prosecution fails in Texas."

ECZEMA IN PIMPLES ON FACE AND SCALP

Awful to See. Came to Head and Festered. Itched and Burned Badly. Nearly Crazy. Hair Fell Out by the Handful. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Healed.

B. F. D. No. 2, Terry, Miss.—"My trouble began with pimples on my face and scalp, then it took the form of eczema. My face and scalp were awful to see. They were covered with large sized pimples and then after a number of days they came to a head and festered. They were a cake of sores and itched and burned so badly I would nearly go crazy scratching. My hair fell out by the handful and the lids that were left seemed lifeless."

"I used many so-called remedies without success until I almost lost hope. Then I thought that I would try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I washed my face and scalp three times daily with the Soap and applied the Ointment each time and in three months I was completely cured." (Signed) Mrs. Rosa Terry, Jan. 2, 1914.

ATTACKED BY THUGS WHO ESCAPE ARREST, HE SUES EMPLOYER

Listen to the tale of a detective who was assaulted by highwaymen, and being unable to sue them since they escaped, filed suit for $5,000 damages against his employers.

It is the story of F. B. Lowery, a former detective at the Atlanta Joint terminals. He filed suit against the company in superior court yesterday, setting forth a vivid description of an assault made upon him while he was investigating freight cars in the yards on the night of December 15, 1913.

As he passed the door of an empty box car two thugs jumped out and, while one caught him around the shoulders, the other, he says, piled a blackjack with telling effect.

The others quit against his employers, charging negligence in forcing him to do the work of a private detective without assistance.

TELLS PATHETIC STORY.

Widow Asks Damages for the Death of Her Husband.

Suing the Georgia Railway and Power company for $25,000 for the death of her husband, Charles Dougherty, a fireman who was electrocuted while carrying a line of hose into the barrel of a burning building at Washington street, Mrs. Dougherty stepped into Judge Pendleton's division of the superior court yesterday and told a pathetic story.

She testified that at the time of her husband's death she had spent what little money he had saved in sending her to a sanitarium for her health. Left penniless she was in great distress until the citizens of Atlanta made up a purse for her and her family.

After the Georgia Railway and Power company's plant at City Decatur, Turner, who made an investigation at the time, testified that it was imprudent to have had carried a voltage too high for a private residence line. The case will be resumed this morning.

CHILDREN'S PLEA WINS.

Auto Speed Limit Established at Buckhead.

The plea of the small children of Buckhead has resulted in the establishment of a speed limit of six miles in that section.

Chief Matheson, of the county police force, has issued strict orders to his men to enforce the order, and to arrest all drivers who go beyond the limit along Buckhead road.

There have been a number of accidents in that vicinity. Two children were killed and a third injured. A ferry road, and tiny tots are always crossing the road, each of which is a favorite automobile highway.

NEGRO CUTS HIS WAY TO GOLD AND FREEDOM

Joseph Ruben, a Decatur street broker, was severely cut by a negro burglar as he vainly struggled for the possession of a bag of $3,000 in the dining room of his home, 269 West Fair street, early Monday morning. The money was the proceeds of a week's business and had been carried to the house Saturday night for safe keeping.

Mrs. Ruben was awakened at 4 o'clock Monday morning by some one running around heavily on the dining room. She called Mr. Ruben, who immediately ran into the room and engaged in a fight with the burglar. The thief disregarded the shots fired by Ruben and closed in, slashing right and left with an opened razor.

The thief finally broke from Ruben's grasp, dived through a window, and disappeared. He left behind a trail of small coins which flowed from the burglar's pocket at the grocery hospital, where the injured man was taken for treatment, the police received a good description of the bold burglar.

GILMER AND FANNIN FULL OF PROSPERITY

Both Counties Raise Plenty of Foodstuffs, But No Cotton.

Gilmer and Fannin counties are two places where the cry of hard times has not penetrated, according to Hon. Herbert Clay, solicitor general of the Blue Ridge circuit, who was in the city Monday.

And there is a very good reason for this gratifying state of affairs. Gilmer and Fannin counties raise no cotton, but do raise beef cattle, hogs, hay, corn and country produce of all kinds for which already market is always found.

"Gilmer and Fannin counties are literally bursting with prosperity," said Mr. Clay.

In the little town of Ellijay, in Gilmer county, the merchants are actually discounting their bills, and there are at the present time nine brick stores being erected in that thriving little settlement.

"There is no cotton raised in either Gilmer or Fannin county and the farmers are not burdened with any commodity for which they have not a ready market. They raise quantities of produce, such as butter and milk and eggs and chickens, which always find a quick sale. They have not shipped any hogs, but have raised enough for their own consumption and their smoke houses are filled with meat for next winter."

"I have been pretty well over both

"JIM CROW" CAR LAW BEFORE U. S. HIGH COURT

Washington, October 26.—The validity of the "Jim Crow" law in Oklahoma hangs on the outcome of oral arguments today before the supreme court. William Harrison, for the negroes of the state, and E. A. Tamm, for the whites, will argue the constitutionality of the law.

In addition to the usual "Jim Crow" requirements of separate cars and waiting rooms for the white and negro races, the Oklahoma statute permits the railroad to use chair cars, sleeping cars and dining cars exclusively for one race. The railroads contend that this is a justified distinction in service, as not enough negroes desired facilities to pay the railroads for furnishing them separately.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Decline Attributed to Conference at Washington and Great Britain Declaring Cotton as Non-Contraband

New York, October 26.—Another sensational decline in foreign exchange was today's important financial development, but announcement that the new Federal reserve system would become operative in the middle of November, and indications that the cotton problem was nearer solution, stimulated confidence.

The further break in exchange was accepted as a logical result of the recent Washington cotton conferences and the declaration by Great Britain and Australia of the British government that there would be no more interference with cotton exports to Germany and Austria.

Cables on London sold off to 4.90, with slight drafts at 4.87, then counting the lowest quotations since a week before the outbreak of the war, when the outflow of gold was at its height.

Improvement was noted in the investment market, and a moderate demand for short-term notes and the better class of bonds, but offerings continued in the market.

Little change is seen in the steel trade, and interest in tomorrow's meeting of the Federal Reserve board, when action is to be taken on the dividends, is usually keen.
