

NEW EARTH SPASMS IN RAVAGED ZONE SPREADING TERROR AMONG SURVIVORS

At Some Points the Seismic Tremors Are Reported to Be Almost Incessant, 98 Being Counted in Few Hours.

DEATH ROLL GROWING; BELIEVED IT WILL BEAR AT LEAST 30,000 NAMES

Probably Twice That Number Were Injured—All Italy Has Turned to Relief Work—Vigorous Efforts Made to Dispatch Doctors, Nurses and Food to Stricken Towns—Pitiful Scenes When Trains Bearing Injured Reach Rome.

Rome, January 16.—Fear of additional shocks is felt throughout the earthquake devastated district according to reports brought to Rome by refugees. Basis for this anxiety is found in a dispatch from Sorra, which says another strong earthquake occurred there last night, demolishing the walls of partly ruined buildings.

Scant reports only of death and damage in remote places have been received and information from the larger places still is incomplete, but there is no reason to doubt that when the death roll is made up it will contain fully 30,000 names. Probably twice that number were injured.

The places which apparently suffered most were Avezzano with about 10,000 killed; Pescina, 5,000; Celano, 4,000; Ceneho, 2,400; Marsi, 1,000; Terni, 1,000; San Felino, 650, and Pratichi, 500.

It is reported that Massa D'Albe lost one-eighth of its population while Pescasseroli was completely burned. In the devastated area there are scores of hundreds of which probably only a small percentage of the population escaped. The name is believed to be true in the rural districts.

All Italy At Rescue Work. All Italy has turned its attention to rescue work. Thousands of soldiers and volunteers are digging frantically in the ruins in the hope that they may release a few who are still alive. The injured are being recovered, but first attention is being given where it is believed there is a possibility the occupants of ruined dwellings may not yet have perished.

Vigorous efforts are being made to dispatch doctors, nurses, medicine and food to the ruined cities and villages. Criticisms have been voiced because of delay in sending medicine to some places destroyed, but it is pointed out that the difficulties of transportation made greater speed impossible.

The injured are being cared for in makeshift hospitals established in the ruined towns or in the hospitals of Rome and other cities. Trains filled with survivors are arriving here constantly and refugees have been given the best of care. Large sums are being subscribed for the relief of suffering and Pope Benedict is one of the large contributors.

King Victor Emmanuel has returned to Rome after visiting many of the places in the earthquake zone, where he directed the work of the engineers and personally distributed relief.

Pitiful Scenes Enacted. Pitiful scenes are enacted at the stations as trainloads of injured arrive from the devastated districts of the Abruzzi. Children seem beside themselves with terror.

Advices from Frosinone, 20 miles from Sorra, say the walls of the houses are so badly cracked the occupants fear to remain indoors, and spend the nights in the open. A general of engineers conditions extremely dangerous and ordered that the inmates of a large state prison there be sent to Rome.

The Messagero voices vigorous complaints because of lack of medicine, food and tents for the survivors in hamlets in the earthquake zone. The paper says that at Magliano di Marsi, where there are 1,800 dead out of 4,225 inhabitants, the first succor arrived forty-eight hours after the disaster. The local doctor, who escaped, was almost distracted because of lack of medicine.

It would be better if I had died myself," the physician exclaimed to a correspondent. "I cannot bear it to see people expire simply because I have not been able to do anything for them and my sister died only because I had no medicine with which to treat them." He added that he had been compelled to carry the bodies of his mother and sister on his shoulders to a cemetery and bury them himself.

Courts and Matinee Halted in the Cause Of Belgian Children

Recorder George Johnson and Actor Raymond Hitchcock Turn Salesmen to Raise Funds for the Suffering.

Courts and theaters had to take second place yesterday for the cause of the Belgian children, in whose behalf flags were sold in Atlanta by prominent society women.

Recorder's court was halted Saturday afternoon long enough for Recorder George E. Johnson, Clerk W. H. Preston and the court attaches and newspaper reporters to purchase Belgian flags from Mrs. Frank Pearson, a well-known singer, and Miss Katherine Timms, debutante.

Judge Johnson was in the midst of trying a defendant on the charge of assault with intent to murder, said defendant being charged with shooting five times at police officers who had attempted to arrest him the night before.

Chief of Police Beavers, W. T. Morris, head of the chief of police's office; Detective Chief Newport Lanford and the other members of the police force then a police headquarters were "flagged."

Hitchcock Turns Auctioneer. Mrs. Hugh Murray, Miss Ulmer and Mrs. Pearson marched on the stage of the Atlanta theater at the matinee and succeeded in raising for the Belgian flag $13,500 for the sum of $13.50, what will probably be the record price.

The incident occurred at the conclusion of the second act of the "Beauty Shop" Raymond Hitchcock, after being informed of the object of the sale, proceeded to act the part of auctioneer and bought the flag himself for $10.

After this he autographed it, and after quite a talk on the suffering Belgian people, auctioned it off to a gentleman in the audience for $3.50, totaling $13,500 for the entire company of White, of the White Audit company, was the purchaser.

During Mr. Hitchcock's speech and sale Mrs. Murray and Miss Ulmer distributed flags to the entire company of the "Beauty Shop."

Spend Money In Atlanta. The thousand dollars and more collected in Atlanta Saturday for the Belgian sufferers will be spent in the city by French Consul F. E. May. Every cent will be put into some useful necessity, says the express companies and post office have consented to forward the consignments free of charge.

Many other towns over the state are aggressively aiding Dr. May in the sale of the Belgian flags. The first reports coming in show that workers collected $80 in Albany, $80 in American and $100 in Cordele.

All day many young ladies, under the direction of Mrs. Murray, the wife of the Belgian consul in Atlanta, approached willing purchasers on the streets and in the office buildings of the business section. Everybody appreciated the plight of the Belgians and the fair saleswomen were constantly returning to headquarters for more flags.

COAST LINE TRAIN WRECKED BY COW; ONE FATALLY HURT

Tampa, Fla., January 16.—The Atlantic Coast Line Limited, a fast train between Tampa and Jacksonville, was wrecked this afternoon at Deland Junction. Fireman William Simpson, of Sanford, was fatally injured and A. B. McDaniel, of Tampa, had a rib broken and suffered other injuries.

The train was running 40 miles an hour when it struck a cow. The cow was thrown against a switchstand, the impact opening the switch, which caused a portion of the train to derailed onto the siding. Four Pullmans turned over, but no passengers were injured, there being few on board.

PICKS UNDERTAKER, PENS DEATH NOTES, AND THEN SUICIDES

Nathan A. Gordon Follows Example of Father, Who Took His Own Life in This City Five Years Ago.

WRITES TO RELATIVES AND TO HIS FRIENDS

In One Addressed to "Kismet," He Declares That His "Take" Is Ready for "Great Proof Reader."

Nathan A. Gordon, a well-known young man, member of a prominent Atlanta family, was found dead in a room on the third floor of the Williams hotel, 83 West Mitchell street, last night about 8:30 o'clock by George Melford, night clerk, and Policeman Benson.

He was lying across the bed, which had been untouched during Friday night, when he is known to have been in the room. Beside his body was a vial of carbolic acid, and acid burns were on his lips. Gordon wore kid gloves on his hands, which he had evidently put on to prevent burns on his hands.

On a table in the room were several letters, a copy of his will, a note to "Kismet," and a letter directing the disposal of his body. A sealed letter was addressed to a young lady friend at Jersey, Ga., and an open letter signed "Margaret," and coming from Jersey, Ga., addressed to him, lay on the table.

Follows Father's Example. In an adjoining hotel, the Terminal hotel, five years ago, Nathan Gordon's father, Louis Gordon, of the defunct firm of Tuglie-Gordon, on Peters street, killed himself. Dave Gordon, a brother, was notified, and upon his arrival at the Williams hotel, he was prostrated.

Nathan Gordon was apparently 20 years old. He owned some property in his own name, but had been out of a position for some time.

He was a mute, being rendered deaf and dumb nine years ago by an attack of meningitis. His occupation was that of an itinerant printer, and he recently worked in Villa Rica, Ga. The last few weeks he has been staying at the home of his uncle, J. N. Hirsch, the well-known wholesale tobacco dealer, 328 Capitol avenue.

He left there Thursday morning, apparently in good humor and spirits. When he reached the Williams hotel he had engaged a room at the hotel about 10 o'clock Thursday morning. He paid his bill in advance, and was seen to leave the hotel about 10 o'clock Friday morning. No one is known to have seen him return to the hotel Friday night.

When he failed to answer to the maid's call to let her in to clean up his room, Saturday night, the maid called the clerk, who peeped over the transom of the locked door and saw the death pallor on Gordon's face, and his body stretched across the bed. A policeman was called, and the room entered.

Letter to Kismet. Gordon's letter to "Kismet," read as follows:

"January 15, 1915. 'To my loyal friends who have stood by me through these nine long, weary years: I give a love that passeth all understanding. To those who could not understand me, I wish them the utmost measure of happiness that they may deserve.

'I made mistakes, yet I never intentionally wronged any one, and I endeavored to give others, the benefit of the doubt.

'Now my 'take' is ready for the 'Great Proofreader' and I trust for justice in the life hereafter.

"NATHAN A. GORDON." A copy of the will, which "James L. Mayson," directed that all his belongings be turned over to his brother, John B. Gordon, who lives at 52 East Cain street, and appointed J. N. Hirsch as executor.

Deeds to property and a due note of $2,380, dated June, 1912, payable to him three years after date at 7 per cent interest, were also found.

Selects His Undertaker. Another note, directing notification read:

"January 15, 1915. 'Notify either J. B. Gordon, 52 East Cain street, apartment 9, or J. N. Hirsch, wholesale dealer, Marietta street, or 228 Capitol avenue. My undertakers are Greenberg & Bond. Notify my attorney, James L. Mayson, Atlanta National Bank building.

The time that Gordon ended his life is believed to be Friday night. He had not gone to bed. His watch was still running when found, and a copy of Friday morning's Constitution was found in his room.

All of the letters were dated Friday. Another letter was addressed to his brother, and read:

'Dear Brother John—I leave it to you to make it all right. Mr. Mayson has my papers, and will inform you as to disposition.

'Take care of mother and sister, and do the right thing always. Please ask the following to act as pallbearers: J. L. Mayson, A. L. Curtis, Charles I. Erwin, Philip Elson, Leon Eplan and Dr. B. Wildauer.

'Well, goodbye, and try to make a success of yourself. Tell Aunt Tillie, I wish to thank her for the many acts of kindness shown me. Love to mother, Dave, sister and the rest of the family.

Your brother, "NATE." Mrs. Gordon and Miss Selma Louise Gordon, mother and sister, are at present

The Smoke Points the Way!

FIGHT IS CERTAIN WHEN COUNCIL ACTS ON FINANCE SHEET

Committee Quits in Disgust Late Saturday Afternoon, After Failing to Come to an Agreement.

ANTICIPATING REVENUE OPPOSED BY WOODWARD

Dissatisfaction Caused Over Failure to Provide for the Completion of Butler St. Sewer Work.

Blocked in front by Mayor James G. Woodward, flanked on either side by its own disgruntled members, and with a belligerent council mustered for a rear attack, council's finance committee Saturday quit in disgust at 6 o'clock, after vainly endeavoring to make up an appropriation sheet for 1915 with current revenue of $4,705,727.35 and satisfying more than $9,000,000 demands made by city departmental heads and the general public.

In the opinion of Mayor Woodward, "some members of the committee were too loaded down with political promises."

Late Friday night the committee completed a sheet which, to all appearances, satisfied a majority of the members, but after a refreshing sleep members hurried to the city hall bright and early Saturday morning and immediately began a scramble for more money, with the result that the sheet was torn wide open, and the committee found itself in precisely the same fix as Jack and Jill, who went up a hill with a pail of water, or Captain Jinks, of the Horse Marines, who led his men up a hill and then led them down again.

The committee invited trouble when it took from the sheet $38,000 which was apportioned equally among the various wards for street improvements. Almost the entire day was spent in an effort to include more than $175,000 anticipated or unearned money in the sheet. Finally, the committee, after Mayor Woodward had threatened to veto the sheet if it carried more than $125,000, decided to take a chance, but just a wee bit of a chance, with the mayor and anticipated $135,000 in order to pay $75,000 on the sheet for the Lakewood fair project, and make up the $48,000 overbalance caused by apportioning more money than the city had to spend.

In its present shape the sheet is incomplete. Chairman A. W. Farlinger admitted at the hour of adjournment on Saturday that the sheet did not meet with his approval, and at least three members of the committee declared that they will sign a minority committee report.

"I am not going to sign the sheet in its present condition," said Chairman Farlinger. "I am opposed to the sheet because it does not provide money for extending the Butler street sewer."

Too Many Political Promises. Alderman Jesse W. Armistead, one member to whom Mayor Woodward said he referred to his remarks as being too loaded with political promises, says that he will lead a fight on the sheet because the committee did not supply the seventh ward with $50,000 for a new school.

The members who are expected to sign the sheet are Aldermen Seawright, (Money to be reimbursed by property owners.) $7,500 for widening Peachtree "bottle neck." $90,000 for teachers' salary increases for 1915-16.

POISON GIVEN HER, SAYS YOUNG GIRL

Mrs. Ethel Oates Pylant Charges Mrs. Annie Stoe Persuaded Her to Sign New Affidavit.

Mrs. Annie Stoe, of 103 Spring street, the young woman who was recently pardoned by President Wilson after serving only a few months of a five-year sentence on being convicted of white slavery in Judge Newman's federal court, is again in the toils of the law.

Mrs. Stoe was arrested at the Grady hospital Saturday afternoon by Detectives Gorman and Kirk, and later gave bond for $1,000.

Detective Chief Newport Lanford states that Mrs. Stoe was arrested because Mrs. J. N. Oates, of 871 Marietta street, charged that her daughter, Mrs. Ethel Oates Pylant, 13 years old, who recently testified against Mrs. Stoe, had been given poison and forced by her to sign an affidavit declaring that she had sworn falsely against Mrs. Stoe.

Her Condition Serious.

Ethel Pylant is now at the Grady hospital, suffering from some mysterious affliction, the nature of which is puzzling the Grady physicians. She was carried to the Grady from Mrs. Stoe's residence, Thursday afternoon, violently ill.

Mrs. Oates rushed to her daughter's bedside, where she was told by her that Mrs. Stoe had deceived her back to her Spring street residence, telling her that a certain well-known young Atlanta man, with whom she is said to be infatuated, would meet her.

The mother was told that Mrs. Stoe had showered gifts upon her, tempting her to sign an affidavit that she had sworn falsely against her (Mrs. Stoe) in recorder's court recently, when, on her testimony, Mrs. Stoe was charged over under heavy bond on the charge of running a disorderly house.

The daughter, lying on a sick bed in the Grady, repeated to her mother, it is said, that the next morning, Wednesday, Mrs. Stoe had taken her downtown and bought her a drink at a certain place.

Gave Her a Drink. "While I was drinking," said the young girl, "Mrs. Stoe sat on one side of me, and one of her sweethearts came up and sat on the other side."

The three then are alleged to have gone to the office of Mrs. Stoe's attorney, where the girl was persuaded to

$27,100 RAISED FOR GRAND OPERA

Nearly Half of $60,000 Guarantee Fund Is Subscribed in Less Than One Week's Time.

Atlanta's week of grand opera is assured beyond question. Within a week, and following almost the mere suggestion of it, the guarantee fund has reached $27,100, or nearly half the required total of $60,000.

Voluntary responses were numerous and in other cases it was only necessary to bring the matter casually to the notice of those well-known Atlantians who have always shared liberally in the guarantee which makes the annual week of grand opera in Atlanta possible.

The directors of the Atlanta Music Festival association are more than gratified over the rapid growth of the guarantee fund; they are enthusiastic. It gives them assurance that the total fund will be completed within the next few days, and there will then remain only the matter of arranging the details.

Guarantors and Amounts. The guarantors, so far, and the amounts which each of them has subscribed, are as follows:

GERMAN ADVANCE HAS BEEN CHECKED BY FRENCH FORCES AIDED BY FLOODS

Big Guns Have Taken the Place of Rifles and Bayonets in the Fighting in the Vicinity of Soissons.

AUSTRO-GERMAN FORCES MAKING NO HEADWAY AGAINST THE RUSSIANS

Germans Continue to Attack Without Success the Russians Who Block the Way to Warsaw—Russians Preparing for an Advance Into Transylvania—Another Defeat Inflicted on the Turks in the Caucasus.

London, January 16.—Official reports disclose no new developments as a result of the German success in regaining the lost ground north of Soissons and the Russian advance between the East Prussian frontier and the Vistula river.

The French, who are strongly entrenched along the Aisne river on either side of Soissons, with the assistance of the floods, apparently have checked any further German advance, and the big guns have taken the place of rifles and bayonets in the fighting in that region. In fact, artillery continued to play the leading role, although here and there along the line attacks and counter attacks have been made.

The Germans in one of these recaptured some trenches near Carey, but their attacks elsewhere, particularly near Flirey, south of Thiaucourt, where they have been most violent, have not been so successful.

The Germans have displayed much activity in their effort to recover ground they lost during the allies' offensive undertaken late in December. Their efforts are interpreted in some quarters as an attempt to resume a general offensive. With the ground soft, military men in London do not believe the Germans will make any such effort, but as success may depend to a large extent on surprise, they may attempt the unexpected.

NO HEADWAY IN EAST BY GERMAN FORCES.

In Poland, north and south, fighting consists largely of artillery engagements, but here, too, the Germans continue to attack the Russian armies which block the road to Warsaw, apparently without making headway.

Unless Field Marshal von Hindenburg has another army to meet the Russians, who have advanced almost to the German frontier on the right bank of the Lower Vistula, this hammering soon must cease, for, with the freezing of the river, it would be possible for the Russians to cross and attack the Germans on the flank and rear.

The Austrians, like their allies, have brought forward heavy artillery and are trying to stop the Russian army, which, if it gets across the Danube river again will threaten Cracow. The Russians have mounted guns on the crest of the Carpathians to ward off the Austro-German forces reported to have been organized to protect Hungary from invasion, while in Bukovina they are concentrating for an advance into Transylvania. Thus, the Austro-German army which advances in Hungary will be open to attack from both north and east.

MORE DISASTERS FOR THE TURKS.

The Turks are reported to have met further disaster at the hands of the Russians. The Eleventh army corps sent from

THE EASIEST WAY TO END DANDRUFF

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring, use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the fingers. The next morning wash with soap and water. If you have dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy, every single grain and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring, use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the fingers. The next morning wash with soap and water. "Go-to-Sunday-School Day" Set in Georgia for Feb. 14

SUNDAY SCHOOL ENROLLMENT 322,166

ABOUT 1 IN 5 OR 21 1/3%

NOT ENROLLED IN SUNDAY SCHOOL 1,201,495

OR 78 2/3%

February 14 has been appointed "Go-to-Sunday-School Day" by the Georgia Sunday School Association. This call is sent out by the association at the instance of a large number of Sunday schools which advocate making a special effort for a record attendance on the same day all over the state.

So far as known, this is the first time in the history of the state that any day has been set aside for Sunday schools of all denominations as a special go-to-Sunday-school day. Those acquainted with the facts state that there is a surprising broad field in the state for the energetic enlistment of children and adults in Sunday school work, since in a white population of 1,523,861 there are only 322,166, or 21.13 per cent, who are enrolled.

This apathetic attitude toward a vital branch of the church—the instructing of its future members—is easily explained, and, furthermore, can be remedied. Nothing can be accomplished—even in a Sunday school—without adaptability and system. Many Sunday school officers have no other qualification than willingness. This alone does not hold the child in the pews, nor does it prevent the child from falling into the hands of the Russians.

BY A SINGLE EXPLOIT HE WON MANY HONORS

Corporal, With Two Men, Kills and Captures Eighteen Russian Soldiers.

Berlin.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press).—For a single exploit a young non-commissioned officer from Krossen has been promoted to lieutenant and has received the Iron Cross, first and second class, and also the war decorations of the most modern for bravery. His coolness and daring not only rescued a captured Austrian corporal, but prevented the capture of the young corporal, whose name is Fricke, had been with a company in the west, but accidentally boarded the wrong train and was taken to the east, where he joined a company of the Iron Cross. He was ordered to go with two men to learn whether a secret new distance was being used by the enemy. The three men succeeded in reaching a point 500 yards from the Russians' most advanced trenches.

enrolled in the literary schools forty than in the Sunday schools, and forty churches that have no Sunday school in the town in the state of fair size has only forty-six members enrolled in the two Sunday schools. One superintendent told the general secretary of the Georgia Sunday school association "I have been superintendent of this Sunday school for more than thirty years, and have never heard of the home department before." Still another county has thirty churches. Thirteen of the churches have Sunday schools, and seven of these try to run twelve months in the year. One church has three hundred communicants, but no school organization. On the other hand, however, there is one county with only two preachers, yet the Sunday school attendance is about four hundred and eighty.

A Live Institution. The Sunday school is still a very live institution, although dead in some parts. In North America alone there are 175,685 Sunday schools enjoying an enrollment of 18,000,000. Whenever these schools are conducted by enlightened persons in ways that appeal to sensitive youngsters, the Sunday school army of the world is being increased at the rate of 1,000,000 per year, or with a net gain of 19,230 for every Sunday in the year.

This is the work which the Georgia Sunday school association is aiding to accomplish. It is an organization representing the Sunday schools of the various denominations of Georgia. It encourages and stimulates the work among the schools throughout the state by bringing the strong into helpful contact with the weak, by its conventions and institutes discuss methods of work, not church doctrine. It aims to help every Sunday school in the state.

The association is managed by an executive committee of forty-five leading men of co-operation, not taxation, and esebartians, two Unitarian, two Episcopalians, and two Lutherans and one Congregationalist. The officers of the association are: Dr. Joseph Broughton, of Atlanta, president, A. H. Merly, of Augusta, W. B. Stubbs, of Savannah, J. V. Green, of Moultrie, vice presidents, J. J. Cotton, of Macon, chairman of the executive committee, J. J. Wellborn, of Atlanta, treasurer, and D. W. Sims, of Atlanta, general secretary.

Two and a half years ago, when the first workers were put into the field there were only two organized counties. There are now ninety-five counties organized with the most modern Sunday school methods. As the result of such systematized direction one county in less than 100 to more than 400. A class in a county near Atlanta increased three pupils to seventy-four in four months time.

New Opera Praised.

Many enthusiastic expressions of approval have come to the directors of the association over the program proposed for this year's grand opera week.

Speaking of "Les Huguenots," one of the new operas on the program for this year, President W. L. Peal, of the Atlanta Music Festival association, said: "This is Meyerbeer's masterpiece. The music is not only interesting, but highly dramatic, the mise en scene, the brilliant orchestration, the ballet every thing is combined to fascinate the hearer. We find such an abundance of musical ideas that we think Berlioz but spoke the truth when he said that it would do for twenty operas."

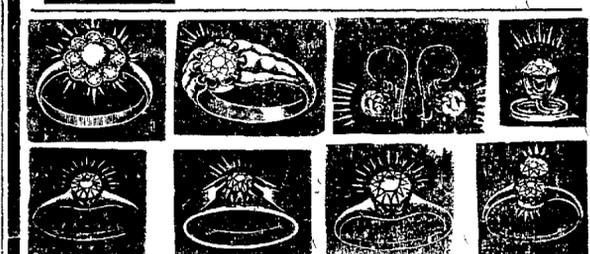

The grand ballroom scene in act two appeals to all, and this wonderfully imposing work with its splendid scenes, beautiful arias and concerted numbers which has lately been revived in New York with splendid success, will not only be enjoyable, but educational.

Of course our first consideration must be to please the general public—no attract just as many people as possible. But there are also others to be pleased. Those cultured music lovers, who have had the pleasure of hearing opera in the great opera houses of the world and another much larger class of cultivated music lovers who

PROBE ORDERED OF FOOD PRICES

Government Takes Steps to Cope With the Situation. Department of Justice to Make Investigation.

Washington, January 16.—The United States government today began vigorous efforts to cope with the food price situation. The department of justice, under instructions from President Wilson, was seeking to determine whether any illegal combinations are back of the sudden rise in prices and the departments of commerce and agriculture were compiling figures showing the amounts of foodstuffs in the United States and recent increases in prices.

Legislation giving the president power to stop the exportation of foodstuffs whenever necessary and other bills designed to lower prices were discussed informally at the capitol, but there were no indications that anything along this line would be done during the present session of congress.

No information leading to the belief that illegal combinations had forced up the price of wheat and flour has yet been received, officials said, but United States district attorneys everywhere are under orders to follow up every clue.

Exports of Foodstuffs. A marked increase in exports of foodstuffs recently is shown in commerce department reports. Exports of wheat increased from 9,493,356 bushels in July, 1913, to 26,357,254 bushels in July, 1914. The total value of all foodstuffs exports during the eight months ending with August, 1914, was $618,000,000, an increase to $148,809,957 in 1913 and dropped to $126,401,070 in 1914.

Attorney General Grecoy has promised prompt prosecution on any evidence the illegal combinations have forced up the price of wheat and flour or other food products. An investigation in Chicago is being watched closely.

Congress Watching Situation. In congress also latest developments in the situation are being closely followed and although several resolutions are pending in committees of the house, it was understood today that there is no intention now to take them up for action on grounds that no useful purposes would be served.

President Wilson had before him today the suggested bills Julian Wines' league, that he order an embargo on wheat exports from this country should prices continue to rise.

Dr. Dunaway's Subject. The Rev. C. M. Dunaway will preach on the subject "Abiding in Christ," at 11 o'clock in the morning; "The Need of a New Heart," at 2 o'clock in the afternoon; "Sin, Its Character and Its Consequences," at 7:30 o'clock in the evening. There will be preaching every day during the week at 9 o'clock in the morning and at 7:30 o'clock in the evening.

Federal Prison Services. Father Hickey, the newly appointed assistant chaplain at the United States penitentiary, will conduct his first service at the prison, Sunday morning, at 9 o'clock. Father Hickey has special charge of the Catholic prisoners.

The Duke of Abruzzi arrived here last night and inspected the work of rescue. He expressed the intention of visiting all the villages that had suffered, some of which are still cut off from communication. News only reached here today that in the town of Pescasseroli 15 persons are buried in the wrecks of houses, and that up to the present 15 bodies had been taken out and 80 in the course of rescue.

An unusual episode of the earthquake happened Friday at Capello. While the rescue was proceeding, telegraph poles heard strange cries which led them to a woman buried under the ruins of a house. Both were extricated alive and uninjured. The catastrophe at Pescina, south-east of Avezzano, is regarded as particularly terrible. The victims, according to reports received from there, now number 4,500. The whole village of Pescina is reported destroyed. The number of victims there is not yet known. At Collesanto thirty and twenty-four dead and at Antepedico forty persons were killed.

Annual Reports of Charity Organization

The annual reports made by many of Atlanta's charitable organizations eloquently reflect the admirable work of the organized women of Atlanta, and the generosity of Atlanta's people.

The Sheltering Arms society reports the following new board of officers: President, Mrs. W. H. Kiser; vice president, Mrs. P. S. Arkwright; treasurer, Mrs. E. R. Black; recording secretary, Mrs. William Shallenberger; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. T. Gilder.

In making the report of the year in full, Mrs. Robert Alston, secretary, stated in part: "Too much praise cannot be given to our retiring president, Mrs. W. S. Ekin, who has so faithfully and so ably led us during the past year of our greatest progress and usefulness."

The kindergartens, five in number, one for each nursery, have trained kindergartners and assistants, with a total enrollment of 225 children, many of whom are outside and not nursery children. Although each day may be found 225 children present, yet their places are kept for them; while Miss Deane detains them at home, they are visited and cared for by the kindergartner in charge.

The purpose. The first underlying principle is the conservation of the home, by insuring to the working mothers a safe and beneficial shelter for their little ones during their waking hours and thus enabling them to be self-supporting and consequently self-respecting and able to give their best efforts to their work.

Study Hour. In the afternoon a study hour is held and has proven a wonderful success for each child in the public school from every nursery has been promoted, with one exception, and that on account of illness.

A staff of Atlanta's best specialists in all branches of medicine give gladly and freely their services. The result of this speaks for itself when we can report for the year 1914 not a single death.

Mothers' meetings are held once a month, when a hot supper is served, trying in a social way to draw nearer to the mothers of these children and to assure them that we are working not for but with them.

Thanksgiving and Christmas are all observed with beautiful spreads, Christmas trees, toys and well filled stockings, and this year many excellent gifts of clothing.

At the annual meeting 45 new members were reported, showing a broader interest and knowledge of our work. In conclusion, Mrs. Alston recorded words of appreciation as follows: "Let us thank, through the press, the daily papers and the good people of Atlanta who have contributed to the welfare and happiness of the children of our organization for their cheerful and generous support of Tag day, which enables us to continue our work for the working mothers and children of this great city."

The Florence Crittenton. A summary of the annual report of the Florence Crittenton home board for 1914 is that during the year the board has been able to put the main building in a fairly good condition, but the mothers' cottages are in poor repair and the outbuildings in a dilapidated state and should be rebuilt.

Director Elizabeth Broach, in a summarized report of the Atlanta Child's Home, in part that among the most interesting features of the January meeting of Atlanta Child's Home board last Tuesday, was the receipt of 90 new members on the "Thousand Member Campaign," now under direction of Mrs. M. R. Emmons, membership chairman.

There were many live discussions, splendid reports, and donations acknowledged. Mrs. E. T. Corns, treasurer, was interrupted in reading her annual report by great applause.

Total income for the year 1914 was more than $4,000, run by the headway and the liveliest building fund campaign at higher tide, under chairman of circles and every member.

Local 148, American Federation of Musicians, will give its annual ball at the Auditorium-Armory on Wednesday evening, January 27.

Music will be a special feature. Two orchestras of twenty-five or more musicians each will alternate in a program of the latest dances, and the music will therefore be continuous, with no waits between numbers.

Tickets are now in the hands of the members.

Police cost New York SUM OF $18,000,000. New York, January 16.—It cost New York $18,000,000 for police protection last year, according to the annual report of the police commission today.

There was a decrease of 10 per cent in serious crimes, but an increase of 9 per cent in acts of juvenile delinquency. On the last day of the year the city had 4,358 men actively engaged in police duty.

WARREN GRICE WILL ASK EARLY HEARING ON FRANK PETITION

Attorney General Warren A. Grice is planning to go to Washington during the latter part of this week to plead with the supreme court of the United States to advance the appeal of Leo Frank on the doctrine that it may be heard within the next sixty or ninety days instead of twelve months.

Solicitor Dorsey will not go to Washington, it has been announced. He and the attorney general have been in several conferences preparing their battle against the habeas corpus appeal, and he will remain on the ground while his colleagues in Washington.

All formalities have been completed in the appeal, and the case is now in readiness for the motion for advancement.

Peace Conference Proposed for World. Washington, January 16.—An international peace conference may be held here and hereafter, as a result of the labors of an American committee now being formed, according to Dr. John A. W. Wood, president of the International Peace forum, who arrived here today to attend a meeting of the Taft administration.

Dr. Hill said, very nearly was the Great Britain, France and Germany having joined in the movement, which was led by the United States.

"What we now desire," said Dr. Hill, "is the conversion of the armies and navies of the world into a great international police force at the disposal of a supreme court of the nations for the enforcement of its decrees."

Dr. Hill added that it had been suggested that all peace organizations in the United States and perhaps in the world be formed into one united body. The American conference committee, he said, would be composed of such prominent Americans as former President Taft, Andrew Carnegie, Dr. David Starr Jordan, Senator Judge Alton B. Parker, Governor Whitman of New York, and perhaps all college presidents of the country.

Dr. Hill said that the conference advocates in other neutral countries were being addressed, he said, with a view to a selection of similar committees abroad.

Dalton and Whitfield County Set Prosperity Pace; Food Crops, Money in Bank, Highway Completed

Diversity of Crops Fills the Coffers of Whitfield County Banks With Farmers' Profits.

"HOOSIERLAND-TO-DIXIE" HIGHWAY LINK COMPLETE

Hard Times Are Not Felt by This Prosperous Food-Producing Community in North Georgia.

By Frank J. Reynolds

Dalton, Ga., January 16.—Whitfield County has set the pace in "Hoosierland-to-Dixie" highway development.

Her part of the great roadway that is to stretch from Illinois to Florida stands completed and ready.

It is a model of roadbuilding, and runs from the Catoosa to the Gordon county line, through a section which has no superior in the south for picturesque beauty and diversified fruitfulness.

In the Whitfield county of today, travelers from north, east and west will find themselves face to face with a material realization of the ideals toward which the whole new south is moving.

The eastern investor and the middle western farmer, each looking for new and profitable fields, will both find in Whitfield a section where the promises of prosperity are already being fulfilled, yet where there is still abundant opportunity.

Whitfield believes that during the next twelve months thousands of people will be traveling southward who have never visited the south before. The European war, practically barring foreign travel, has been the greatest stimulus to the "See America First" movement since the advent of popular automobile and good roads.

The "Hoosierland-to-Dixie" highway, threading the food-producing states of Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia and Florida, will form a closer link of commerce and friendship between the north and south.

WHITFIELD FARMERS DIVERSIFY THEIR CROPS.

Whitfield has not only completed her share of the highway over which this travel is to come, she has also prepared to show the traveler something that will open his eyes in relation to diversified farming, stockraising, dairying and manufacturing in Georgia. Even the southerner from other sections will be astonished.

Whitfield farmers have money in the bank. They have long since gotten away from the one-crop idea. Unlike the farmers of many other southern counties, they have not materially suffered from that fetich. They have grown abundant food crops that are bringing ready money. Instead of borrowing they have money to lend.

It will be interesting for those who live in a climate where winter and snow prevent more than six months' farm work to know that in Whitfield county profitable farm work can be prosecuted the year round; here live stock need be housed only about three months, with open grazing the other nine months. That Whitfield county offers opportunity for profitable farming the following statistics taken from the most recently issued government bulletins will show:

Less than 12 1/2 per cent of the population are negroes. The remainder are of the purest Anglo-Saxon race, and native born, which explains why the death rate is not more than ten to the thousand.

About 50 per cent of the land is under cultivation; the other half is clothed in a virgin timber of almost infinite variety running largely into the hard woods.

The average value of the land per acre is $10.

There are 257,920 acres in the county. The value of all farm property is $3,000,000.

Cattle (dairy cows), $135,000.

Horses, $175,000.

Mules, $350,000.

Hogs, $75,000.

Sheep, poultry and bees, $50,000.

Cereals raised last year, 1,355,000 bushels.

Ten thousand gallons of syrup.

Six hundred acres of vegetables.

Sweet milk and cream, 1,500,000 gallons.

Forty-two thousand bushels of sweet and Irish potatoes.

Five hundred and ninety-two thousand dozens of eggs.

Four hundred thousand pounds of butter.

Ten thousand pounds of honey.

Twenty thousand tons of hay.

Twenty-five thousand quarts of strawberries.

Ten thousand pounds of grapes, five varieties.

Eight thousand bales of cotton.

Value of all other farm products not enumerated above, $400,000.

Three hundred and forty thousand fruit trees.

Five crops of alfalfa are cut yearly from the same land.

WHITFIELD COUNTY FAIR A BIG ANNUAL EVENT

The Whitfield County Farmers' Fair association holds an annual event of a week's duration in October, and is now in its fourteenth year of unprecedented prosperity. It is the oldest continuous county fair in the state of Georgia, and this year will buy more land and move into newer and larger buildings and broaden the sphere of its activity, adding a 4-furlong race track.

The premiums offered by this fair have developed and stimulated diversified agriculture and its allied interests until it has been pointed out as the one to set a pattern by for all other sections to follow.

Miss Myrtle Bryant, 12 years old, took a prize for a 9-months-old hog, which weighed 540 pounds.

Miss Clarice Thrpps, 13 years old, netted $65 profit in the canning club contest from one-tenth of an acre in tomatoes.

Jan Callaway, 11 years old, raised 141 bushels of corn on one acre, and netted $123.83 profit.

Wallace Hart raised 425 bushels of the Stoner variety of wheat on 10 acres, and sold all he cared to at $1.50 per bushel for seedling purposes.

It has been demonstrated by years of experiments that the native grasses of the county make finer and more palatable hay than that bought in the west, and is eaten by stock more fully and with more strength-giving properties. The growers in the county have a demand for more than they can supply and cure at $20 per ton.

Mr. Lewis Kiech raised 812 bales of cotton and 200 bushels of corn on 9 acres.

TRUCK GROWING OFFERS SOME EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITIES.

Truck growing in Whitfield county offers exceptional opportunity and profit. The Cincinnati, Louisville, Nashville, Knoxville, Atlanta, New Orleans and Chattanooga markets are all within from one to twelve hours' express carriage from Dalton.

As an evidence that diversified farming pays, it may be cited that Whitfield county is out of debt and has $25,000 in the county treasury. The splendid county system of macadam roads runs from county line to county line in the four points of the compass. These roads were built and are kept up by county convicts. The road scenes presented in this article are on the Johnston-Sherman highway on either side of Dalton.

This highway was established by the Johnston-Sherman Highway association in 1909, of which Colonel W. C. Martin, of Dalton, is president. This highway was mapped out and adopted by the boards of county commissioners of Catoosa, Whitfield, Gordon, Bartow, Cobb and Fulton counties, and begins at Fort Oglethorpe, near Chattanooga, on the Chickamauga battlefield, and runs to

Fort McPherson, a nearby suburb of Atlanta, and it is over this route through Georgia that the "Hoosierland-to-Dixie" highway will go. The developing of the Johnston-Sherman highway was materially helped by the encouragement given in the editorial and news columns of The Atlanta Constitution a few years ago.

GEORGIA-GROWN APPLES ARE EQUAL TO ANY IN WORLD.

Among the fruits luxuriantly and abundantly grown are apples, pears, nectarines, plums, prunes, persimmons, cherries, quinces and figs.

Among the nuts are pecans, hazelnuts, hickory nuts, walnuts, beechnuts, chestnuts and chinquapins.

There are seven rural mail routes which go out of Dalton daily except Sunday. Good lateral roads abound all over the county and are being improved yearly by the convicts. The county is exceptionally well watered from hundreds of springs, many of which are very large. Four of the latter are fountain heads of quite amply the entire county not already watered by two creeks and one river. In fact, there is not a square mile in the county which does not boast one or more never-failing springs.

The population of the county is 18,000. Two of the largest railroads, in the south traverse the entire county from north to south like the letter "X" and they have ten stations in the county at which passenger trains stop, and which are served by express and freight facilities. The twelve precincts of the county, outside of Dalton, have good long term schools and compare favorably with any in the state. These precincts also have regular church services and church organizations.

Dalton Chamber of Commerce, who was formerly a native of the state of Illinois.

At its meeting last Wednesday the chamber unanimously adopted the following resolution:

"Resolved, That the representative of Whitfield county and the senator of the 4th senatorial district be requested to present and urge for passage at the next meeting of the Georgia legislature an appropriate law creating a highway commission for the state of Georgia with suitable powers to best advance the building and maintenance of public highways."

MANY HISTORIC POINTS OF INTEREST IN WHITFIELD.

The "Hoosierland-to-Dixie" highway in Whitfield county passes some big bought and historic points. The first notable one is that of Rocky Face, four miles north of Dalton, where a memorable fight took place in the war between the states.

At Dalton, which is the county seat, the campaign of the winter and spring of 1864 took place. Gen. Joseph E. Johnston took command of the Confederate forces of 45,000 men January 1. Gen. W. T. Sherman, with an army of 110,000 men, lay between Ringgold and Chattanooga. Hostilities were held in abeyance until the spring and it may be said, and is undoubtedly true, that the beginning of the end of the civil war took place at Dalton, and the last personal interview between Jefferson Davis and Johnston took place in Dalton at a home, which now stands, and is pointed out to any who care to ask.

Johnston disagreed with Davis as to methods of the campaign and therefore, when the Confederate army reached Atlanta, Johnston was relieved of his command and Gen. J. B. Hood substituted.

One famous "Battle of Dalton" was participated in by 45,000 men without cessation for twelve hours, but at the end not a man was killed or even hurt. It was a bloodless one and took place with snowballs. It started as all snow battles start. A few indulged the pleasure until commanders of brigades, colonels of regiments, majors of battalions and captains of companies ordered their men out in battle array Phalanx by phalanx, battalion by battalion and company by company they got into the fight until they were about evenly divided and the contest was fast and furious. They fought from Dug Gap, up Hungry Valley to Rocky Face northward, and from Dug Gap to way to the east of Dalton, until darkness overtook them and they ceased firing. The only casualties reported were a few blackened eyes. The hospital and ambulance corps, including the sutlers, were detailed to make and supply the contending forces with the snowballs.

CIVIL WAR ENGINEERS CHOSE THIS ROAD SOUTH.

It has been said of General Johnston that he had a most intuitive knowledge of topography and while he surrounded himself with the best corps of engineers in the confederate service he could detect the slightest inaccuracy in the drawing of a road map and it was to his skill in this art that the line of march to Atlanta was so splendidly selected and it is over this route that the "Hoosierland-to-Dixie" highway goes. There are just a few of the historic things which may be seen in and around Dalton and in the county.

There are fourteen small undeveloped water powers from which would afford admirable power for farm purposes. Five large grist mills are operated in the county with water-driven motors.

The value of the crops consumed and sold in the county in the year 1914 exceeds two million dollars, but this amount does not include the value of the eight thousand bales of cotton which, at the ruling price, will bring $320,000.

The powerful cable lines on big steel towers of the Eastern Tennessee Power company runs the length of Whitfield county from north to south, touching the eastern city limits of Dalton. This company generates near one hundred thousand hydro-electric horse power and furnishes much of the power used in Dalton by the varied manufacturing interests, which are told of in another column on this page.

DALTONIANS TO ATTEND MEETING OF GOVERNORS.

It was resolved by the members of the Dalton Chamber of Commerce at its meeting last week to arrange for a large crowd of citizens to attend the meeting of the governors of Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia and Florida, which takes place in Chattanooga, Tenn., April 3.

Twenty owners of automobiles at the meeting the other day agreed to use their cars and to take as many guests as they could accommodate. It is now thought that there will be fully one hundred and fifty attending from Dalton and Whitfield county.

FARMER SMITH'S HOG WEIGHED 1,072 POUNDS.

The hog shown in the illustration was raised by Sam Smith, living a few miles from Dalton. It weighed 1,072 pounds when dressed. He rendered 351 pounds of lard from the carcass and ground two hundred pounds of its meat into sausage.

7TH MANUFACTURING CITY IN THE STATE

Markets Her Goods All Over the Country—Fine Example for All—Spirit of Optimism Prevails.

By Frank J. Reynolds

Dalton, Ga., January 16.—Dalton is the home of 8,000 homogenous, contented and prosperous people, and is the seventh city in Georgia in point of manufacturing.

Among the articles made in Dalton and sold all over the country are stoves, tents, awnings, overalls, chairs and excelsior. A large cotton mill (Crown mills, Nos. 1 and 2), a spinning mill, full works, flour mills, the largest and oldest in north Georgia, foundry and machine shops, livery stables, automobile garages, auto supply house, publishing and printing house, the second largest marble cutting saw in the south, weekly newspaper, The North Georgia Citizen, 64 years old; ice factory; bottling plants for soft drinks, three small hotels, public schools for 1,400 children, white and colored; a live, active chamber of commerce; paid fire department; 12 lodges of secret orders; churches; three splendid banks, city delivery of mail and express, several parks, beautifully paved sidewalks and shaded asphalt streets, municipally owned electric lighting, gas and waterworks systems. The city proper pays nothing for water, gas and electric lighting.

Dalton furnishes its citizens with lights, water and gas at the lowest rate of any municipality in the world, and then pays about $7,500 annually from profits. It never intends making money from its municipal utility plants, only deriving enough revenue to maintain the plants and to keep them up to the standard of the highest efficiency and using the most approved modern appliances.

MONTHLY PAYROLL DALTON IS $40,000.

The monthly payroll of Dalton is $40,000. The lumber concerns of Dalton handle and work into shape 20,000,000 feet of lumber annually. The Whitfield county courthouse, a model of its kind, is located in Dalton. Chattanooga is 40 miles by pike, and by the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis and Southern railroads. Atlanta is 100 miles by the same routes. There are many interesting side trips to be made by auto roads from Dalton.

The spot on which John Howard Paine wrote "Home, Sweet, Sweet Home," is 12 miles above Dalton in the county, and the cottage in which General Scott made the treaty with the Cherokee Indians, in 1836, for their removal to the reservations made for them in the west, is yet standing. Trade comes to Dalton, by rail and wagon from the counties of Catoosa, Walker, Gordon and Murray, which completely surround Whitfield.

Dalton has a large wholesale grocery house whose business covers a wide territory in Georgia, and portions of Tennessee and Alabama. A large wholesale hardware house does the same thing.

Dalton enjoys the same freight rates on raw materials and manufactured products as Chattanooga and Atlanta, and therefore is an ideal place for doing business and particularly manufacturing.

One of the most attractive things about Dalton, and one that receives many favorable comments by visitors, is the superb system of street lighting. Her White Way is the largest and covers the greatest area of any place its size in the South.

Fourteen years ago when Dalton and Whitfield county decided to diversify crops and break away from the one-crop idea—which is the worst kind of slavery, and from time to time in Dalton having cost the county capital of less than $200,000, there being one small bank with $25,000 capital in a county hank. Dalton did practically all the building for Walker, Catoosa, Gordon and Murray counties, her neighboring neighbors. Today there are four banks in Dalton and Whitfield county, and ten all told in the other four counties, having combined surplus and deposits of over $1,000,000, and they amply, liberally and safely accommodate customers to the entire satisfaction of every responsible man in the five counties. If there is not a concrete and splendid example of what diversification of crops is worth and a severe blow to the one-crop and industrial slavery, I am no judge of the matter.

DALTON BUSINESS MEN ASK FOR A LEGISLATIVE REMEDY.

It would do well to go to Dalton and talk with her business men, manufacturers and merchants and learn and see how intelligent is the condition of every business enterprise. They have seen the value of diversity of crops, and have for years been demonstrating the value of that which the Georgia State Chamber of Commerce is now trying, with all its might, to implant into the minds of the people in general throughout the great state of Georgia and which is a most laudable enterprise.

The merchants, dealers and manufacturers of Dalton have all agreed with the Georgia State Chamber of Commerce to give preference in buying, consuming and handling Georgia-raised products, and at prices ruling for foreign and out-of-state products of the same kind and quality. The Dalton Chamber of Commerce has a native and an industrial character.

DALTON LITERARY CLUB OLDEST IN THE COUNTY.

Dalton boasts, and with much pride, the oldest regularly organized women's literary club in the state. It has thousands as "The Lesche club," now in its fortieth year. This club has met, peculiarly, and from time to time has studied and discussed subjects that add much to the splendid status of southern womanhood without obtaining anything that should belong to her, but on the contrary makes her members sought after by the nobility of appreciative husbands.

The members of the chamber of commerce are taking quite a bit of interest in a new house to be built for Dalton—one to be made a home for not only the big line of commercial travelers who come to Dalton, but also a winter home for tourists and resort for those who spend the summer up in the mountains. It is situated in a beautiful valley and is picturesque in all its surroundings.

South's Greatest Revival Predicted as Result Coming Of Chapman-Alexander Forces

Atlanta is now on the eve of one of the greatest evangelistic campaigns it has ever witnessed. Beginning February 14, the Rev. Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman and Charles M. Alexander, both noted in revival work throughout every section of the Christian world, will be here to conduct meetings in a new tabernacle building that will be erected on Peachtree street, between the governor's mansion and the University Club.

The Chapman-Alexander forces are now in Lima, Ohio, where they are conducting a series of successful revival services that has set the town aflame with religious fervor. Mr. Chapman, known everywhere as the "singing evangelist," came recently to this country from England, where he preached and sang religion into the hearts of the British soldiers on the way to the front.

Headquarters of the evangelistic committee has been established at 230 Grant building, in charge of A. B. Caldwell, an Atlanta business man, who has temporarily given up his business relations that he might take up the evangelistic work.

Other members of the committee are: E. C. Callaway, St. Elmo Massengale, M. A. Hale, R. J. Quinn, Thomas K. Glenn, Walker Dunsen, Prof. Floyd Field, C. V. Galloway, W. W. Rook, W. E. Newell, J. J. Churchmen's Services—A. Wagoner, chairman, Dr. R. O. Pinn. Start on Tabernacle at Once. The preliminary work has nearly been finished and committees are busy getting all of the necessary arrangements made for the meetings. Work on the tabernacle, which will be a temporary structure of wood to be torn down after the meetings, has begun when the necessary permit shall be obtained from the city authorities.

The building to house between 4,000 and 6,000 persons. Arrangements are being made to have the tabernacle well lighted and every arrangement will be made for the comfort and protection of the big crowds that are expected to attend the meetings. It was originally planned to use the Auditorium for the meetings, but it was found that army inspectors would be held at the time of the revival services and this plan had to be abandoned.

The Baptist Tabernacle congregation offered use of its building to the evangelistic committee, but it was figured that the structure would not be big enough to hold the thousands that are expected to attend. The temporary tabernacle was then decided upon and A. B. Caldwell donated free use of the lot on which the building will be put up.

One of the great needs in the preparation of any revival is the ministers pointed out, was the necessity for constant prayer. According to Dr. Chapman himself no campaign can possibly be successful without prayer—unceasing prayer. Accordingly, the meetings are being held daily in nearly every section of the city. The prayer meetings are being held in a friend to talk the Bible and sing and pray for the success of the coming meetings.

The Baptist Tabernacle congregation offered use of its building to the evangelistic committee, but it was figured that the structure would not be big enough to hold the thousands that are expected to attend. The temporary tabernacle was then decided upon and A. B. Caldwell donated free use of the lot on which the building will be put up.

Men in offices have organized little prayer groups and many times during the day they gather together for a few minutes' communion with God. This advance prayer movement has spread through the parishes at every Protestant church in Atlanta.

Big Army of Workers. Arrangements are being made to enlist 5,000 workers in the Organized Bible Classes of Atlanta. These have been distributed to the shops and stores asking Atlanta men to "enlist" in the army of workers for the battle against sin. 100 men are being urged to affiliate themselves with each of these Bible classes. The plan is to have these men who will in the meantime have been instructed in Bible teaching, to be placed at strategic points throughout the big tabernacle. Their duties will be to do personal work among those who are in the conversion at the meetings and arrange for the converts to join a particular Bible class after the revival services. There might be no backing out on their part.

Volunteers are being asked for among the men and women of Atlanta to "take up various lines of work in connection with the meetings. Fifty hundred ushers will be needed to handle the big crowds. Those willing to act in this capacity are urged to get in touch with Major R. J. Quinn, who is chairman of the ushers' committee.

2,000 Voices in Chorus. There is to be organized a big choir of 2,000 voices, to be directed by Mr. Alexander himself. These voices will be selected from among the best fitted in the different Protestant churches in Atlanta. Mr. Alexander believes in singing hymns and songs that are best fitted for that reason the two evangelists lay special stress on the importance of not only a big choir, but one that can really sing. Accordingly, there is now in Atlanta arranging the organiza-

LOAN OF $25,000,000 ARRANGED FOR RUSSIA

New York, January 16.—The loan of the group of New York bankers to the Russian government has been perfected, Russian bills accepted by J. P. Morgan & Co. and their associates reaches $25,000,000 for 90 days, subject to renewal for an additional 90 days at 6 per cent.

Washington, January 16.—In its consideration of regulations to govern acceptances of war, which are interpreted as having discovered a problem in neutrality, which may lead to difficulties with European belligerents.

The board's last meeting it developed that some members looked askance at the reported plan of New York bankers to make a $12,000,000 loan to Russia with the idea of later redempting the acceptances arising out of Russian purchases here, at the New York Federal Reserve bank.

The discussion is said to have indicated that the board does not propose to place restrictions on acceptances where they arise out of actual commercial transactions. Purchases of munitions of war, when not made by a belligerent government, probably will be regarded as legitimate commercial transactions and acceptances based upon them be capable of redempting at federal reserve banks.

If such a rule is adopted it will apply to all belligerent nations. Acceptance regulations, however, have not been approved finally, and it is possible the question of Russian purchases, waste matter, ferrous metal, and other goods, may be further considered.

The date for the revival gatherings is February 14. They will continue for four weeks.

GREATER ARMY URGED BY HENRY L. STIMSON

New York, January 15.—Preparation for defense in the event of war was advocated by Secretary Lindley M. Garrison, Henry L. Stimson, former secretary, and William C. Sanger, former assistant secretary, speakers at a discussion on the country's military requirements at the Republican club here today.

Secretary Garrison said that when the garrisons in Hawaii and at the Panama canal were manned, the mobile army in the United States would be reduced to 50,000 men, and that congress should make provisions for 1,000 additional officers.

"The national guard," the secretary said, "is still far from what it should be. We must get a reserve of trained men in the states and a reserve of army officers to command the men."

Mr. Garrison asserted that it would be of infinite value to have the thousands of enlisted men annually discharged from the army and to be retrained as reserve officers where they could be found and recalled to service in the event of their being needed.

Mr. Stimson said Americans should be assured that the fate of Belgium should never become theirs, waste matter, ferrous metal, and other goods, may be further considered.

The milk report for the month of December has just been given out by City Bacteriologist Dr. Claude Smith. It is as follows:

Table with columns: NAME OF DAIRY, Butter fats, Bacteria, Temp, Location. Lists various dairies and their respective statistics for December.

Butter fats: The law requires that the milk contain as much as 3.5 per cent butter fats. Fresh, clean milk will contain less than 10,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter. The law allows as many as 100,000 per cubic centimeter. If it contains more than 100,000 there has been carelessness somewhere in handling the milk.

Temperature: Milk should be kept below a temperature of 50 degrees, or it may become dangerous. The consumer should test his milk with a thermometer. The law requires that all milk be delivered at a temperature below 50 degrees.

The accompanying list gives the section of the city in which each dairyman delivers, and the consumer can easily tell which man is producing the best milk in their section of the city. Milk with a high bacterial count should be especially avoided.

“DRY” RIDER CHECKS BUSINESS IN SENATE

Long Debate Over Question of Prohibition for National Capital—No Action.

Washington, January 16.—Declaring the liquor interests had defeated proper administration of the District of Columbia “model license” law, Senator Jones urged the senate today to vote on a resolution prohibiting a rider to the district appropriation bill. The speaker declared the senate today to vote on a resolution prohibiting a rider to the district appropriation bill. The speaker declared the senate today to vote on a resolution prohibiting a rider to the district appropriation bill.

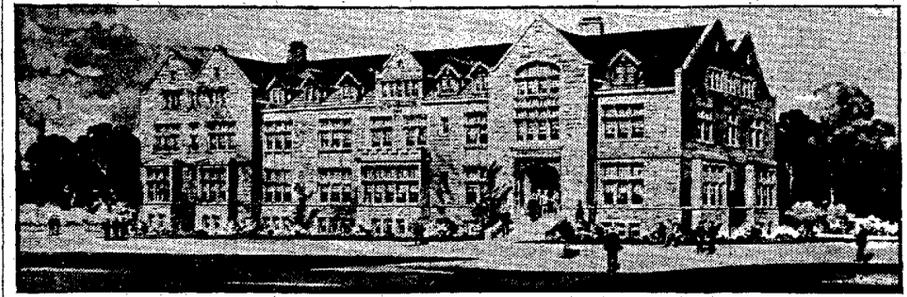

The rider was under discussion throughout the senate session today, but no vote was reached. Senators on both sides took part in the debate, which ranged from legislative technicalities to the merits of alcoholic drinks and the value of prohibition. Senator Jones declared the rider a copy of President Wilson's letter to Gov. T. D. Shannon of New Jersey, favoring the local option, but opposing the making of a political issue out of the question.

Senator Keyon submitted an editorial by Secretary Bryan which he said, put the democratic party in favor of prohibition. Senator Simmons arranged senators for “wasting time” in discussing prohibition when the senate session today to suspend the senate rules. He urged that a vote be taken on legislative technicalities to the merits of alcoholic drinks and the value of prohibition.

BRITISH CONDITIONS ABOUT MERINO WOOL

Washington, January 16.—The British embassy today made public conditions under which Merino wool may be exported from the United Kingdom and its possessions to the United States. The embassy's statement reads: “In view of the fact that Merino wool from the United Kingdom to United States in future will be issued fairly frequently, provision should be taken by shippers to assure themselves that consignees will not export it to any destination outside the United States. Intending shippers will be required to make satisfactory declaration that consignees are known to them and that they have obtained adequate assurance that none of the Merino for which license is sought will be re-exported to any other destination. Subject to such declaration and no reason to doubt bona fides of declarant was not for the present proposed to restrict amount to be shipped. Governments of Australia and South Africa informed accordingly.”

First Building for Oglethorpe To Be Structure of Unusual Beauty

SKETCH OF OGLETHORPE UNIVERSITY BUILDING.

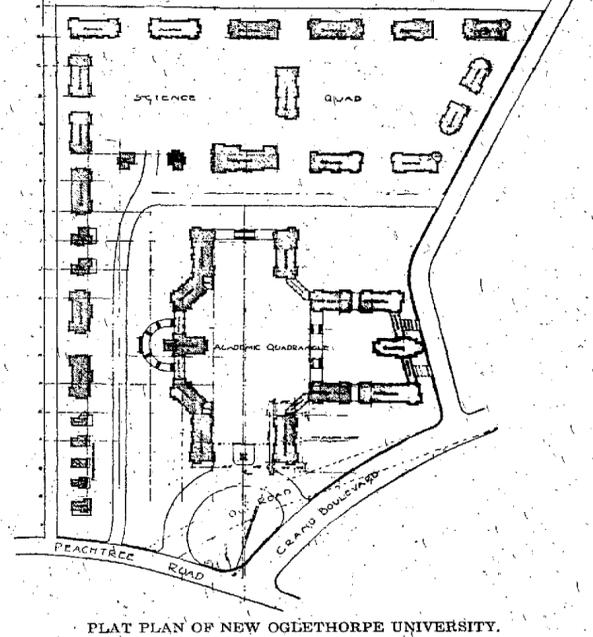

Exercises to Be Held at the North Avenue Presbyterian Church and at the Campus.

All plans are now complete for the cornerstone exercises of the first building of Oglethorpe university, and these exercises will be held next Thursday morning at the North Avenue Presbyterian church. Immediately after these exercises the actual laying of the cornerstone will take place on the campus of Oglethorpe university, on Peachtree road. Little Frank Inman, Jr., will place the cornerstone in the campus will take place about noon.

The cornerstone of but one building will be laid Thursday. The complete plans for the university call for some thirty or forty buildings. The exercises at the North Avenue Presbyterian church will be of an interesting nature. Distinguished men from all over the south will be present, among them being Dr. James L. Vane, pastor of the largest Presbyterian church in the southern states, and Dr. W. J. Martin, president of Davidson college and moderator of the Presbyterian general assembly.

One of the most striking features ever presented in connection with such an occasion will be the reading of a number of cornerstone odes written by the most distinguished poets in the southern states. Among these is an ode by Madison Cawein, “The Lowell of the South,” which was written upon his lips, it being the last poem that he wrote. It is as fitting as it is interesting to have so splendid a burst of song on the occasion of the resurrection of the alma mater of Sidney Lanier.

The general public is cordially invited to attend the exercises. $100,000 in New Pledges. At a meeting of the executive committee of the institution held recently, Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, executive representative, presented his third annual report showing that during the past year approximately $100,000 had been secured in new pledges for the future development of the institution. The first building measures 50x175 feet and is approximately 60 feet high from the ridgepole of the roof to the ceiling floor. It is being constructed entirely of blue granite, random ashlar, practically donated by the Atlantic Stone company. Something like twenty-five hundred tons of stone will be used in its construction. It will be covered with slate and the interior arrangement and finishing is all that is to be desired. In fact, this first building of Oglethorpe university is as effectively as it will be beautifully constructed. While the southern Presbyterian church has something like twenty-five colleges for men and women under its care the first building of Oglethorpe university will be the most adequate and complete, as well as the handsomest, of them all. It is the first of forty such buildings, which other generations will construct on the campus of the new Oglethorpe.

PLAT PLAN OF NEW OGLETHORPE UNIVERSITY.

At 7 o'clock on the night of Thursday, January 21, at the Wincoff hotel. One hundred covers will be laid. At the same time the alumni of the Oglethorpe university will hold a banquet at the Wincoff, thirty covers being laid. This is the day of the cornerstone exercises of the new university. The board of directors of Oglethorpe university will hold a banquet at 7 o'clock on the night of Thursday, January 21, at the Wincoff hotel. One hundred covers will be laid. At the same time the alumni of the Oglethorpe university will hold a banquet at the Wincoff, thirty covers being laid. This is the day of the cornerstone exercises of the new university.

DEMOCRATS DIVIDED OVER SHIP MEASURE

Senator Hardwick Is Among Those Opposed to Government Purchase of Vessels.

Washington, January 16.—Division in democratic ranks over the form of the government ship-purchase bill developed at a party caucus late today held to clarify the legislative tangle which threatens the administration program for the short session. Although a resolution was adopted to make a shipping bill the unfinished business of the senate after passage of the District of Columbia appropriation bill, it was accomplished only on decision to hold a caucus Monday night to pass on amendments to the ship-purchase bill.

Vigorous opposition to the government ownership feature was expressed by several senators and several amendments, it was declared, would be submitted to the caucus. With only six weeks of the regular session remaining, senate leaders have become uneasy. When the caucus met, Senator Fletcher, in charge of the ship bill, offered a resolution to make the bill the paramount business of the senate next week. Several senators suggested that it be considered to the exclusion of application bills for a period of two weeks. If in that time it should develop that it could not be passed, some senators were said to be ready to abandon all hope of getting a vote on the measure at this session.

Senator Hardwick of Georgia, told the caucus he had informed the president of his opposition to the bill, because of his antipathy for government ownership. Senator Stone pleaded for an amendment to the bill, but senators insisted that the ship bill should be given careful consideration before any caucus agreement was made. Senator Bankhead said he would urge elimination of the proposed private corporation feature for naval purposes to private corporations. Some progressive republicans, it is said, will join with the democrats in support of the measure if it is amended to their satisfaction.

CONTEST OVER WILL HINGES ON TWO WORDS

Athens, Ga., January 16.—(Special.) Following an appeal to the supreme court from Judge Brand's overruling yesterday of a motion for a new trial in the case of Mrs. Belle Smith v. the Executors of the Estate of J. T. Rogers of Commerce, Ga., the highest court in the state will have to determine whether the testator really meant “between” or had “among” in mind when he left $24,000 to be divided. The will left this little fortune to be “divided between” the heirs of two brothers, share and share alike. One of the brothers left one son; the other brother has three sons. The question raised is whether the heir of one brother and the heirs of the other are to share alike and receive two sets of heirs, or the six nephews are to individually share alike. Judge Brand ruled that Rogers meant “among” and the boys rather than “between” two sets of beneficiaries.

ATLANTA BOY SLAIN FIGHTING BRAVELY IN MEXICAN ARMY

Carl Hilliard Hughes, 21 years old, venturesome and homesick, was working his way back to his aged mother in Atlanta from Wyoming when he got stranded on the Mexican border. He was tempted across the Rio Grande to the life of a soldier-of-fortune with the federal troops, which he joined in an effort to gain a fortune.

His bravery in the ranks won rapid promotion. Just before the siege of Nogales, he was promoted to the command of the machine gun battery of Maxtoron's cavalry. He had been engaged in hot skirmishes along the border at Naco, when he was sent with his battalion to Nogales to meet the constitutionalist band that swept down upon the town from the hills above. He distinguished himself in his body he was finally forced to quit. He died in the field hospital at Nogales. His mother was not notified of his death until several days afterward, when she received a short notification from the United States consul at Naco.

The mother, Mrs. James Hughes, lives at 51 Garden street. She was so overwrought with grief that physicians were in attendance upon her.

Broyles to Speak in Dalton

R. A. Broyles, well-known merchant of Atlanta, will speak on prohibition at the courthouse in Dalton, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and at Adairville Sunday night. Mr. Broyles does not believe that prohibition can be legislated into the people. He holds that the abolishment of alcohol lies in educating the masses concerning its evils.

METHODIST ORPHANAGE ANNOUNCES BEQUESTS

$35,000 Given Home by James Laidler; $1,000 by B. F. Strickland.

Macon, Ga., January 16.—(Special.) Officers of the South Georgia Methodist Conference home, located in Macon, were notified today of a $35,000 bequest made to that institution by the late James Laidler, who died here a few days ago. Mr. Laidler was a single man and left an estate, the estimated value of which is $300,000. He provided that it be divided into six equal parts, one of which was to go to the Methodist Orphanage and the remainder to his five brothers. The will was filed for probate at Hawkinsville yesterday. Hawkinsville was Mr. Laidler's former home.

Another bequest the Methodist Orphanage announced here today was for $1,000 made by the late B. F. Strickland, of Valdosta, who died recently. Mr. Strickland left several other bequests to Methodist institutions.

The present plant of the Southern Georgia Methodist conference home is valued at about $200,000. It includes ninety acres of land and several buildings. Until recent years it was considered out in the country, but Macon has grown so rapidly that it is almost in the city. There is said to be a movement on foot to secure a location further out and not spend any more money erecting buildings on the present site.

Peruna the Remedy for Nasal Catarrh.

Mr. Louis Pfau, Manager Central Trust Co. Chicago Had an Experience With Nasal Catarrh. How He Got Rid of It.

I Had a Severe Case Of Nasal Catarrh I Wrote Peruna Co. For Advice. For Using Peruna My Symptoms Entirely Disappeared.

Nasal Catarrh, No. 1. “I have been using Peruna for catarrh, so bad that it clogged the nasal organs.” So says Mrs. Victoria M. Pickel, No. 120 E. Mount St., Columbus, Ohio. “I have been using Peruna for catarrh, having had a very aggravated case, so bad that it clogged the nasal organs. I did feel the nasal organs opened, the mucus would drop into my throat and make me very sick. A friend advised me to take Peruna, and after using four bottles I was cured. I have no trouble now, and am happy to say that I am enjoying the best of health and attending to my daily duties, being a member of the Rebecca Lodge of Odd Fellows. I would recommend Peruna to those suffering with the same obnoxious trouble.”

Mr. J. Louis Pfau, Jr., 1207 The Temple, 184 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill., writes: “For the past twenty-eight years I have suffered from hay fever, caused by catarrh. The hay fever comes on every year, about the middle of August and lasts six weeks or more. It is a chronic catarrh of the nasal organs, and in people like myself, who have a very sensitive membrane, it is affected by the pollen in the air and is difficult to eradicate. “I have used almost every medicine that is prescribed for the ailment, but I have had more benefit from the use of Peruna than from all others, as Peruna is a stimulant and helps nature to throw off the attacks. I now have no bother from catarrh, and I have been able to shorten the annual attack of hay fever to a few days of discomfort.”

Catarrh does not always produce hay fever. The most common form of catarrh is nasal catarrh. Read carefully the four cases presented by this article.

Nasal Catarrh, No. 2. “I have been taking Peruna for nasal catarrh. Often I could not breathe through my nose, and had pains on both sides of it. So says Mrs. Jacoby, 1821 Palmwood Ave., Toledo, Ohio. “When I wrote you for advice I had been sick for three years, and had been treated by three doctors, but did not get well. I was very nervous, and had trouble with my throat. Often I could not breathe through my nose, and had pains on both sides of it. I also had pains in the chest, and a short cough. I had the usual symptoms of the heart and internal catarrh. My appetite was poor. I was always cold and had gurgling in the bowels. I took Peruna according to directions, and now feel that I am never better than I am now. I have never been as fleshy as I am now and I do all my work. The pain in the shoulder and chest is all gone. The medicine has done me much good. I shall always keep it in the house.”

Nasal Catarrh, No. 3. “When I began Peruna my nose was stopped up half of the time. It was sore and scabby.” So writes Mr. Arthur Thompson, R. R. 2, Leesburg, Ind. “When I began your treatment my eyes were inflamed, nose was stopped up half of the time, and was sore and scabby. I could not rest at night on account of continual sneezing and spitting. I had tried several remedies and was about to give up, but thought I would try Peruna. After I had taken about one-third of a bottle I noticed a difference. I am now completely cured, after suffering with catarrh for eighteen years. I think if there were those who are afflicted with catarrh would try Peruna they would never regret it. Those who object to liquid medicines can now procure Peruna Tablets. The ‘Bills of Life’ sent free by the Peruna Co., Columbus, Ohio.”

Nasal Catarrh, No. 4. “Peruna cured me of nasal catarrh. I had lost the sense of smell. My nose and head were continually filled, so that I had to breathe through my mouth.” So says Mrs. William Mann, No. 1311 N. Fifth St., Niles, Mich. “After having been troubled with catarrh all my life, Peruna cured me. I was so bad that I had lost the sense of smell when I was about fifteen years old. My nose and head were continually filled, so that I had to breathe through my mouth. There was a constant dripping in my throat. My general health was miserable. I felt tired all the time. About two years ago I began to take Peruna, and I feel like a different person. Now I breathe through my nose without any trouble, and the soreness in my throat is all gone. Peruna has done many wonders for me. It also cured my daughter of bronchitis.”

POSSUM AND TATERS SENT TO CALIFORNIA FOR GEORGIA DINNER

Mark L. Landrum and family, former Atlantians now living in Stockton, Cal., got hungry a few days ago for a characteristic Georgia dinner, and the best thing they could think of was possum and sweet taters. Accordingly, Mr. Landrum wrote the C. J. Kamper Grocery company explaining the wants of himself and family. Mr. Kamper boxed up a couple of live ‘possums and sent along with them all the accessories including sweet potatoes, Georgia corn meal and sorghum syrup.

The Stockton Daily Evening Record devoted three-quarters of a column to the story of the Georgia ‘possums and the dinner de luxe which followed in the Landrum home. In the course of an interview, Mr. Landrum stated he was born in Georgia near Atlanta, and had for years been telling his children about Georgia ‘possums and sweet potatoes. Finally he decided to send them. So impressively was the incident that it was decided to perpetuate it by having the skins of the Georgia ‘possums stuffed and set up as ornaments in the Landrum home. “A few days ago there arrived in Stockton in a small wire-covered box such as is used for shipping live animals—a strange looking animal—strange to a native son of Georgia, but very familiar indeed to the born or bred ‘possum for many years below the Mason-Dixon line. “The ‘possum was a large animal. It would have smacked his great chops at the sight of them. Mr. Landrum stated he was born in Georgia near Atlanta, and had for years been telling his children about Georgia ‘possums and sweet potatoes. Finally he decided to send them. So impressively was the incident that it was decided to perpetuate it by having the skins of the Georgia ‘possums stuffed and set up as ornaments in the Landrum home.

Baseball Park and Golf Links Among Amusement Grounds Planned for Lakewood Park

Now that the finance committee of city council has officially indorsed an appropriation of $75,000 for the south-eastern fair project at Lakewood and indications are bright that council will indorse this action, the construction department of the city has outlined plans for the development of Lakewood Park that will make it one of the most beautiful and attractive public parks and playgrounds in the south. These plans were made known Saturday by C. E. Kauffman, city engineer of bridges and estimates.

Adoption of the plans is dependent on council acting favorably on the appropriation recommendation. It is expected there will be no hitch about this, since the scheme has the unanimous indorsement of city officials and Atlanta's business interests. The Atlanta Chamber of Commerce is fostering the project and has agreed to subscribe $75,000 to the fair fund. The county commissioners have pledged an equal amount, both the pledges, however, being conditional on favorable action by council.

It is planned to hold the fair in the fall of each year and to build at Lakewood permanent structures which may be used during the remainder of the year as public recreation buildings. The city engineers plan also for the erection of tennis courts, golf links and a baseball field in addition to a big aquarium, the only one of its kind in the south.

The county commissioners have pledged their co-operation with the city officials in developing the roadways and approaches to the park so as to not only add to the natural beauty of the park, but to make it easy of access from any part of the city.

Map Prepared.
In connection with the Lakewood improvement project, the city engineers under the direction of Mr. Kauffman, have made a preliminary survey of the park and have prepared a topographical map to submit to city council. It is generally admitted that the natural lay of the ground in the park is most appropriate for picturesque scenes and arrangements.

Entering from Pryor street the grounds rise in broken lines toward Capitol avenue and it is intended to create an amphitheater effect in the lay-out of the roads and terraces, with the grouping of the buildings done in such way that each structure will be a feature in itself, unobscured and permitting ample space between, to preserve the line of natural rise.

Capitol avenue is proposed to be extended to Lakewood avenue with an arch bridge over the lake. Entering from Capitol avenue at one of the highest points on the grounds, the view toward Pryor street presents a chain of natural scenes in landscapes. The new beautiful lake front will be preserved with the addition of a drive along the water front. This drive will be arranged to be at some place further off from the shore line, at other places close to the water line, especially at the eastern terminus of the lake, where the drive will pass under one of the arches of the Capitol avenue bridge.

Provisions are made in the plans for spaces for a baseball park, golf links, tennis courts, picnic grounds and playgrounds for children. In regard to the buildings, it is intended at present to erect only a few of appropriate design and construction, in addition to the administration building and two or three exposition buildings. The city engineers also recommend that an aquarium be built of the most up-to-date design. This, it is figured, will be an educational feature that will attract general attention inasmuch as there is no such modern aquarium anywhere in the south.

The engineers are now at work on designs and estimates covering this proposed construction work. These will be submitted to city councils as an amendment in favor of the recommended appropriation.

Best for Atlanta.
In the opinion of Mell R. Wilkinson, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, the southeastern fair project will undoubtedly be one of the greatest "boosts" Atlanta has ever had. He pointed out the realty development that will follow the fair opening and which will extend throughout the entire south side of Atlanta.

"The fair will not only help Atlanta," said Mr. Wilkinson on Saturday, "but will be of material benefit to the entire state. It will have a tendency to encourage the growth and development of crops other than cotton and will stimulate agricultural development along all lines. It is not a fair for the business man. The project will attract attention in all parts of the country and the people of Atlanta will benefit thereby."

It is the plan of the chamber of commerce to make this fair the greatest on the American continent. There are many big fairs in progress now. But all of them had small beginnings. So it must be with the Lakewood project. We want to build permanent buildings that will do service to the general public all the year round—not only during the thirty days of the fair itself. The city has everything to gain and nothing to lose in making the requested appropriation. It is asked to put up only one-third of the working capital necessary to get the machinery in motion and in return for this investment it is to become sole owner of the structures and all that pertains to the fair property."

PRATT WILL SPEAK AT NEXT LUNCHEON OF AD MEN'S CLUB

Llewellyn E. Pratt, of New York, who is chairman of the educational committee of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, will be the principal speaker at the Atlanta Ad Men's club luncheon in the Winecoff hotel next Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock. There are now 140 local advertising clubs affiliated with the Associated clubs, having a membership of more than 11,000.

The committee of which Mr. Pratt is chairman is one of the most important in the organization. It is made up of ninety-five newspaper and advertising men in this country, Canada, Australia and Hawaii. It publishes books on advertising and has sponsored a moving picture drama telling just what would happen to this old world if advertising was left out of it. This film has been shown in most American cities, and is now on its way around the world. The committee is offering a prize of $100 for another scenario of this sort, the play to be produced before the annual convention of Associated clubs in Chicago next June.

Mr. Pratt's committee work, which he will explain at the Winecoff luncheon, covered a research into general business conditions throughout the country recently and resulted in the publication of volume for publishers and advertisers which was a great help in the planning of advertising and sales campaigns.

Mr. Pratt will speak of the service which the Associated clubs is working to render to the various advertising organizations and especially of the Atlanta Ad Men's club part in this co-operative plan.

BONDSMEN GIVE BUXTON OVER TO FEDERAL COURT

Will Be Tried for Embezzlement and Then Attempted Robbery.

Augusta, Ga., January 16.—(Special.) Thomas F. Buxton, former cashier of the First National bank of Waynesboro, under federal charge of embezzlement from that bank last summer, and who confessed an attempt Tuesday of this week to rob the bank, has been surrendered to the United States court here by his bondsmen, one of whom is his brother. The United States commissioner has committed him to the Richmond county jail.

The bond in the embezzlement case was $7,500 and when Buxton made his confession in the Burke county jail of holding up Assistant Cashier Warren and attempting to rob the bank of valuable papers, he sent for his bondsmen and suggested that they surrender him to the federal authorities and be relieved from the bond.

Buxton will be tried here at the next term of the federal court, the state charge of bank robbery to stand against him until disposition of the federal case.

The judge of the superior court of that county and Sheriff Ezell have been asked for the facts of the case, and when these facts are in the governor's possession, he will take action in the case, according to a statement by him last night.

The grand jury spent two days of the present week on the case and then adjourned over until Monday in order that other witnesses could reach the city.

Young Frank Wynn had spent July 12 on St. Simon island, coming down on an excursion train. He left Brunswick that night at 8:10 o'clock. The following morning his body was found lying near the Southern railway tracks, some seven miles from the city. It was a day before his identity

FIDDLERS' CONVENTION TO BE THE BEST EVER

For Four Days the Auditorium Will Resound to Music of the Strings.

Down at the Auditorium yesterday afternoon Long John Beesley, of old Gwinnett, hitched his mule to a lamp post, chucked his buggy wheel with a brickbat from the sidewalk and went in to interview Custodian Homer Weaver as to dates, ways and means for holding the spring convention of the Georgia Old Time Fiddlers' association. He found Mr. Weaver as enthusiastic as himself.

"We'll be meanderin' in along about February the first," announced Mr. Beesley, when he had located a cussior and was free for vocal expression. "I've been writin' letters here and yon, and as near as I can figure there'll be so many good fiddlers tryin' for the Georgia championship this year that the judges will have to take to the woods 'fiddlin' John Carson and Shorty Harper and Red Neck Jim Lawson say they're comin' of co'se, and there's a lot of new fiddlers who think they can scrape a fiddle string right smart."

"We had a real good time last year, and we're countin' on a bigger one in February. I reckon it'll take about four nights for all of us to play, and do justice to each and all. If anybody comes out to see, you'll tell 'em we're goin' to have the biggest fiddlin' match in Atlanta this year that was ever pulled off since fiddles was invented."

Coming From Far and Near.
The news that the Old Time Georgia Fiddlers are to return will be welcome to thousands of Atlantans who have heard in years past the strains of "Devil in the Wheat Patch" and "The Cackling Hen" from the flying bows of Ben Day and Jim Garner, and have watched Sid Tanner, the double-voiced vocalist, rend the air with such homely tunes as "Old Zip Coon."

HIGHT HOME STIRRED BY ROW OF SERVANTS

"It seems to be in the air," said Recorder George E. Johnson, Saturday, when Emmet Hight's cook and chauffeur were arraigned before him on the charge of causing disorders in the housemaid's home on Peachtree circle.

From the evidence it appeared that the housemaid's ears had been slipped by the chauffeur when she told him that he had been scandalizing her. The cook substantiated this evidence of the housemaid, and Judge Johnson meted out justice by fining the chauffeur $2.75.

By Dick Jewison.
Manager Bill Smith of the Crackers yesterday announced the above partial list of twenty-six players who are subject to his call for tryouts with the Crackers this spring. This is the first inkling that Manager Smith has given of who will be with the Crackers in their hunt for the pennant during the coming campaign. But this list is far from being a complete one, as the men that the St. Louis Browns are going to turn over to the Crackers are not included in this list.

In the list are players who were carried over by the Crackers from last season, purchased or drafted this fall, and being carried on the ineligible list for various reasons or other. Manager Bill finally decides out the list he expects to have a No. 1 team that will be able to take care of itself in all the Southern leagues.

Who Players Are.
Eight players appear as having already signed their contracts, and every one of these players are new to the Crackers. In the pitchers is James Allen, the only left-hander on the squad. He was secured from the Salt Lake City team. C. W. Bradford and Frank Robertson are semi-pros. The latter will be secured from the University of North Carolina, who twirled such a splendid game in the Welchone benefit last fall. Bradford will finally decide out the list he expects to have a No. 1 team that will be able to take care of itself in all the Southern leagues.

Neidorkorn, the only catcher yet signed, is recommended as a star of the first division. The Constitution carried a story concerning him and his photo some time ago. He is one of the two new third basemen, was turned over to the Crackers by the St. Louis Browns. He played in Reading in the Tri-State league, last season. Potts, who played with Salt Lake and Bay City last season, is recommended highly by the ball men all over the country, and they predict that he will make good with the Crackers.

Don Flynn was a heavy hitter in the Oklahoma league last season. His achievements have been written of before in these columns. Mill, the other new outfielder, is the star of the Cleveland and was recommended highly by a wonderful record during the past season when they won the championship of the Tri-State league. He is the same team that played the benefit game at Greenville, Pa., for Harry Welchone.

The Unsigned Men.
Among the unsigned players appear Elmer J. Lawrence, who returned to the Crackers from Columbus; Frank Browning, who played for the Thompson, Rivington, Bisland, Waldron, Mack Ribel, George Kircher, Amby McConnell and Harry Welchone, all of whom are on the reserve list.

Harry will remain on the reserve list, as he will not be called to play during the coming season. Manager Smith stated that Amby McConnell would be traded to the Browns, as he has a trade on for the little second baseman with a team nearer Amby's home. This little second-sacker is getting old and easily hurt and is a high-priced man, it is probably better to trade him around, considering the reduced salary limit.

Ed Manning, of the new twirlers, will be remembered by Cracker fans as the pitcher who twirled, played short, second, first, third, outfield for the Montgomery Billkens, and the Auburn baseball and football star. Manning was turned over to the Crackers by the St. Louis Browns. He is a player who is still pending, that is a cinch, and Manager Smith is no doubt going to use every effort to convince Griffith that he wants Wallie and no one else.

But Bill's principal worry is the awful hole that will be done in the pocket of Leon Park laying the new underground sewer. And Bill's fears are not groundless, as the city engineers have to do is to pay a visit to Poncey and they will agree that it seems very likely that the sewer will be laid ready for the regular season, much less the exhibition game time.

Manager Smith hopes to be able to announce the names of the men that he will get from St. Louis by the early part of this week.

Browns to Help More.
Manager Smith stated that the Browns were going to help more than they have. He stated Saturday that he had wired the Browns' management to permit him to give out the list of names of the players that will be turned over to the Crackers a little later on until a late hour last night, Bill had not received any reply, so he cannot give out any information. But Cracker fans can take a good guess and hit pretty close.

Every one knows of some of the players that Bill Smith is out to play with the Browns, or players whom he would like to get, and will take it they are offered to him. Edison Hemingway, who played with Nashville, Walker, an outfielder, Yale Sloan, an outfielder who played with Nashville, are three men that Bill will grab if they are the men that he is after. The Browns have already turned some players over to the Crackers, and these three men may be in the list, but Manager Smith is forced to keep their names secret as per agreement.

Then we are certain to get a couple of pitchers and maybe both of our catchers will come from there. At least one of them will come from the Browns, and he will be the first-string catcher for the 1915 season.

Shined on Wallie Smith.
Manager Smith is silent as to Wallie Smith, but when questioning the local boys, one can see that Bill would like nothing more than to have the famous Wallingford Wallie hold down the hot corner for the Crackers in 1915.

The deal is still pending, that is a cinch, and Manager Smith is no doubt going to use every effort to convince Griffith that he wants Wallie and no one else.

MAJOR LEAGUES FILE AFFIDAVITS

Answer Federal's Suit by Claiming Latter's Hands No Cleaner Than Theirs on Contract Cases.

Chicago, January 16.—Organized baseball today denied through affidavits of its leading representatives that it violated the anti-trust laws, as charged by the Federal league, declared its purposes and workings were for the benefit of the ball players, and charged its accuser with doing some of the very things complained of in the Federal league suit.

Emphasis is laid in the twenty-four affidavits filed in federal court here, on the allegation that though the Federal league considered its rivals as forming a trust and "oppressing" players, some of its most prominent members appeared willing to ally themselves with organized baseball.

August Herrmann, Joseph J. Lannin, M. E. Conlon and Charles Somers presented sworn statements relating to various peace plans based on an alliance which some of the Federal magnates, it was said, were more than willing to accept.

The burden of a general denial of the Federal charges is left to August Herrmann, as chairman of the national committee. His affidavit was signed by those of B. B. Johnson, president of the American league, and John Heiler, secretary of the National league, who signed affidavits denying the charges as legal and necessary, the latter denying the charges as legal and necessary, the latter denying the charges as legal and necessary.

Raid on their clubs for players are told of by Herrmann, Charles Griffith, Somers, Robert Hedgus, W. E. Baker, Barney Dreyfus and Fred Clarke. Numerous of the Federal league bylaws are quoted in the affidavit of Steve Cusack, formerly on its staff of umpires, who stated that the Federal league and the reserve rule also is part of the new league's contracts.

That the minor league paid to ball players in 1914, $3,055,350 in salaries is one item of interest in a brief affidavit made out by the secretary of the national association.

At least one of them will come from the Browns, and he will be the first-string catcher for the 1915 season.

Complete Card for Thursday At the Bijou Is Announced

JIMMY PAPPAS, The Greek bantam who meets Johnny Eggers at the Bijou theater Thursday night.

THURSDAY'S CARD AT THE BIJOU.
Jimmy Pappas v. Johnny Eggers, 10 rounds.
Batting Budd v. Kid York, 8 rounds.
George Dans v. Spider Brit, 6 rounds.
Kid Arthur v. Young Gardner, 4 rounds.

Jimmy Pappas, the Greek bantam, who battles Johnny Eggers at the Bijou theater Thursday night, is confident he will take the easterner to a landing, providing the latter will come in at 118 pounds ringside.

Pappas also let it be known that he would claim Eggers' $100 forfeit if the latter was one ounce overweight. Jimmy took this stand yesterday and stated that he would live up to it, too. "I am a small boy, and don't see why I should be forced to give away weight," said "Jeans" yesterday. Kid Herman shaded both of us, so that he has nothing on me as a drawing card here. I really think I can beat Johnny, and believe me I will be trying all the time, as I know a victory over Eggers will place me in a position where I can demand a match with either Kid Herman or Frankie Burns."

Promoter Potts announced yesterday that he had secured Kid York, the handsome, to battle Batting Budd in the semi-windup. There are many fans here who think Budd is the coming sensation of local boxers and they will have a chance to see him in action again Thursday night.

Two other bouts will also be on the program. Potts intends to keep up the high standard of boxing Mike Saul has introduced to local fans and he will have his first chance to make good Thursday night. Bantamweight scrags have made a big hit with fans here, as the little fellows do not clinch and hang on as much as the bigger boys.

The fans want to see good, clever boxing and they certainly got that in the last two shows staged here. Pappas and Eggers have both taken part in the two bouts. Also he fought the same boy, Kid Herman, the southern champion. Now it remains to be seen which is the better boy, Johnny K. O. Eggers or Jimmy Pappas.

Eggers and Pappas have both been working out at the Metropolitan club. Each has several sparring partners, so that neither will have an excuse to offer if defeated.

Pappas is boxing with Batting Budd and the pair are putting up corking mills in their training workouts. Tickets for the bout have been placed on sale at the Rex, Tumlin Bros' and Chess' Cigar stores.

TECH'S BASEBALL DATES ANNOUNCED

Twenty Games—Georgetown New Team on Schedule—Four Games With Georgia in May.

The Tech baseball schedule, as announced yesterday by Professor Randle, director of athletics, is one of the best that a Tech nine has had in several years. There are two teams, Georgetown and Florida, on the schedule that have never been met upon the diamond before by the Jackets. Georgetown has never been met in any branch of sports, while the University of Florida has encountered the local school on the football field.

Although most of the games will be staged here in Atlanta, the team gets some nice trips, which include games at Auburn, at the University of Florida, at Mercer, and, as usual, with the Georgia nine in Athens. One good feature of the schedule is that no team, with the exception of the Red and Black outfit, will be met more than twice. Last season the Jackets played the University of Alabama six games, which was almost one-third of their total number of contests.

The athletic relations with the University of Tennessee will be resumed after a lapse of some half dozen years. The Swannee Tigers, who have been on the Tech schedule for a number of years, have been dropped. As the schedule calls for games with the leading teams throughout the south, the Jackets can put in a very strong claim for southern honors this year, provided that the team has a good season.

The schedule is as follows:
March 26-27—Georgetown in Atlanta.
April 3-4—Tennessee in Atlanta.
April 9-10—Alabama in Atlanta.
April 14-15—Mississippi Aggies in Atlanta.
April 16-17—Auburn in Auburn.
April 23-24—Vanderbilt in Atlanta.
April 26-27—Florida in Tallahassee.
April 30-May 1—Mercer in Macon.
May 8-9—Georgia in Atlanta.
May 15-16—Georgia in Athens.

Keewatin 41, Jacksonville 0.
St. Augustine, Fla., January 16.—(Special.)—Keewatin coach, Fred Du Chien, with midwinter home at St. Augustine, Fla., and 1914 preparatory school champions of northern Iowa, beat the stars of Jacksonville all-star football team today. Jacksonville is composed of ex-college stars, coached by Kirby Smith, formerly of New York. The game was complete with brilliant new-style football. Big tourist attendance secured it was announced here today. Keewatin was outweighed 20 pounds to the man.

Ernest Johnson Leaps to Federals
Los Angeles, Cal., January 16.—Ernest Johnson, shortstop, who came to the Los Angeles club two years ago from the Chicago Americans, has signed a three-year contract with the Federal league. It was announced here today. Johnson said he was to play either with St. Louis or Chicago.

"INDIANS" WILL BE "NAPS" NEW NAME

The Departure of Nap Lajoie Causes Sport Writers to Make the Change.

Cleveland, Ohio, January 16.—The Cleveland American baseball team hereafter will be known as the "Naps," it was decided today at a meeting of club officials and baseball writers. The name "Naps" became obsolete when Napoleon Lajoie went to the Philadelphia Athletics.

PLAYERS' FRAT ISSUES DEMANDS ON THIS LEAGUE
By Clyde L. Drew.
Little Rock, Ark., January 16.—(Special.)—President W. M. Kavanaugh, of the Southern league, has received from Dave Fultz, president of the Players' fraternity, a copy of the demands which the fraternity has made upon organized baseball. The demands were sent to President Kavanaugh as a member of the national board of arbitration, which has not yet been organized.

"These demands are not of special importance to the Southern league because it has been complying with most of them," says President Kavanaugh. However, there are two which he will vigorously oppose. Most important is the demand that when a player is transferred from a major league club to a minor league club, under an optional agreement, he shall be paid the salary he was to have received from the major league club.

"It would be impossible to fulfill this agreement and keep within the league salary limit," says President Kavanaugh. "This is one point I shall never agree to." Another demand to which President Kavanaugh will object is that when waivers are asked on a player, the player himself shall be notified first. This the players believe would be harmful to the club, of no benefit to the player and altogether is unreasonable.

President Kavanaugh probably will call the Southern league schedule committee to meet in Chattanooga Saturday, January 24. He already has fixed February 20 as the date of the league's spring meeting which will be held in Little Rock.

JOYCE-SHERMAN SUIT HAS BEEN POSTPONED
By agreement of both sides, the case of Mrs. Arthur St. George Joyce against Mrs. Hazel Sherman was continued Saturday morning until next Saturday, when it will be heard before Judge W. D. Ellis.
Both Mrs. Joyce and the accused woman were in court when the case was called early Saturday morning. Mrs. Joyce was accompanied by her husband, a publicity expert who denied that he had had anything to do with his wife's petition, and declared that he had done all in his power to prevent it.
Mrs. Joyce accused Mrs. Sherman of seeking to alienate the affections of Mr. Joyce, formerly a newspaper man of Philadelphia, in which city the trio resided at the same boarding house for months.

MORE EVIDENCE THAT PROSPERITY WILL SHOW UP IN SHORTER PERIODS OF TIME. PRICES OF BONDS MAKE MANY NEW, HIGH RECORDS, AND SHORT-TERMERS' DEMAND EXCEEDS THE SUPPLY.

PRICES OF BONDS MAKE MANY NEW, HIGH RECORDS, AND SHORT-TERMERS' DEMAND EXCEEDS THE SUPPLY.

New York, January 16.—(Special).—The tone of the stock market and the movements of stock prices were strong, as a whole, during the last week. Investment demand was active, with a small amount of speculative buying in a few issues. The average daily trading volume, the numbers of shares of stocks and the amount of bonds traded in each day has been higher during the last week than at any similar time since the exchange reopened, though still far below the normal of peace times. Foreign selling has dropped to a smaller place in the market, and while a large part of the offerings of the week consisted of foreign origin, conditions in European financial affairs are improving, especially in London, and it is believed that there is less danger of heavy underwriting of securities from the other side than there has been at any time heretofore. London prices no longer show a big difference from those of New York on shares traded in on both sides of the Atlantic, while certain observers claim that there are signs of buying here for foreign account in some of the best class of dividend-paying stocks. With foreign selling diminished, the market has been able to take a big jump to higher levels, but on top of good-sized advances there was some disposition on the part of recent buyers to take profits, which halted the advance, but did not bring on any liquidation, merely resulting in dullness later in the week. Many developments of the last week or two have had favorable influence on sentiment in the security markets. The unexpectedly large increase in stock orders and the reports of more rapid industrial re-awakening which have been heard from many quarters sooner than had been looked for could not but have had a stimulating effect on already bullish tendencies of security market sentiment.

FEAR OF SELLING ATTACK.

There is still considerable disapproval among large financial interests of any plan for rapid advance in stock and bond prices. In fact, it is even said that important interests were sellers at the top of the market this week to stop its upward flight. The one most feared, and the one most actively creating a new condition which could invite selling attack or by which the impression of inflation might be given to bears. With money so easy to get and rates so low, also with such strong possibilities for advance in many securities, it is difficult to understand why there has not been a concerted bull movement among speculators already, extending on the basis of the accumulating surplus of power. Interests frown on all attempts to start big bull movements now. Considerable favorable comment has been made recently regarding the rapid absorption of standard bonds, through which the bonds are taken out of the market for strong boxes, has been large enough recently to result in a noticeable diminution of the daily volume of offerings. In some bonds, buyers have to look harder for sellers than the other way round. As a result of these conditions, bond prices have not been affected to any great extent by the fact which big interests have put on stocks, and bond prices have made many new high records in the last few days. Short-term bonds have been in such persistent demand that the supply of new issues being offered is far below the normal total of normal times.

MONEY MARKET EASY.

The money market has eased even a little further during the week with the rate on call money falling to 1 1/2 per cent seen in months, while there were periods when 2 per cent was the asking price for call money. Leaders in accumulating new issues of securities, it is believed that there may be large amounts of idle money for long periods in present conditions continue. This is because of the present investment opportunities, of which there are enough, but because there are so many people who are only willing to have their funds loaned for short periods, and because the market is not active enough to absorb even part of the available sums. The foreign exchange market remains weak, with sterling exchange at far below the normal gold importation point. The main cause of weakness for exchange lies in the steadily piling up trade balance of the United States in Europe. There are indications that this balance in favor of this country will amount to colossal totals during this year, for in the first nine days of 1915, the export of this country during that period totaled $82,820,247, which was $38,922,463 in excess of the imports during the same period. The present outlook is for continued heavy shipments of goods for a long time to come just for things already ordered from this country.

GOLD WILL FLOW TO AMERICA.

The establishment of gold credits here, the loaning of large sums to foreign nations with which to make purchases here and the continued piling up of trade balances abroad all suggest that before long there will be a great movement of gold from all parts of the world to this country. There has already been $200,000 shipped from London here, in French gold, but this will not arrive for several days. The first arrival here of gold from sources other than Canada was a shipment of $1,700,000 gold from China, for the account of Japan, which will be followed by $1,500,000 in gold from the same source. The shipments of gold from the United States, French and Russian governments here, both going into millions of dollars for the purchase of war supplies, for the transportation of the necessities for gold from these countries, but it is said in banking circles that after a time the debts of several nations would advance to such large proportions that the only way their buyers here could get their money back further here than the only way by means of shipping large amounts of gold to the United States.

RAILROAD IMPROVING.

Railroad returns for the last few weeks have shown that more traffic is moving than has been the case for months, and in some sections the total tonnage is up to or ahead of the total of the same time in 1914. As a result of this heavier railroad business, the roads are starting a less conservative policy than has been the rule for a long time. They are buying

LARGE AMOUNTS OF EQUIPMENT, AND TAKING BACK LARGE NUMBERS OF MEN WHO WERE DISMISSED ON STARTING OUT HAD BEEN LAID OFF. THE ATTACK OF SENATOR LA FOLLETTE ON THE FREIGHT RATE ADVANCE, HIS RESOLUTION SEEKING TO STOP EASTERN TONS FROM GETTING THE 5 PER CENT ADVANCE, AND MANY ACTIONS BY THE INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION, IS NOT WORRYING THE ROADS, AS THEY BELIEVE THAT THE INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION WILL NOT INTERFERE WITH CONGRESS' ACTION ON COMPLETIONS RECENTLY MADE, OVER $200,000,000 IN STOCKS AND BONDS OF RAILROADS WENT INTO THE TROUSERS OF RECEIVERSHIP DURING 1914, THE TOTAL SECURITIES IN RECEIVERSHIP AT THE YEAR END BEING ABOUT $750,000,000 FOR RAILROADS. A PECULIAR VIEW OF THE RATE ADVANCE GRANTED RAILROADS WAS RECENTLY AIDED WHEREBY IT WAS HELD THAT PROPOSALS TO SHIPMENT CONCEPTS TO SHIPMENT COMPANIES, WHILE IT WAS CONTENDED THAT RAILROAD EMPLOYEES WILL SOON DEMAND FURTHER INCREASES IN PAY WITHIN THE YEAR, ALL OF THE ABOVE WOULD BE ABSORBED BY THE RAILROADS. THIS BEARISH VIEW OF THE RAILROAD SITUATION IS NOT GENERALLY SHARED IN BANKING AND SECURITY MARKET CIRCLES.

IN THE NEAR FUTURE, THE DIRECTORS OF THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD WILL MEET TO CONSIDER ACTION ON DIVIDENDS. IT HAS BEEN RUMORED THAT THE FIRST TWO WILL OMIT A PAYMENT THIS QUARTER AND THAT THE PENNSYLVANIA RATE WILL BE REDUCED, AND CERTAIN BEAR ATTACKS ON ALL THREE POSITIONS, BUT RECENT ADVANCES IN STRENGTH IN AMALGAMATED AND STEEL IS BELIEVED TO FORESHADOW A CONTINUATION OF PRESENT DIVIDENDS. PENNSYLVANIA BANKERS DO NOT BELIEVE THAT THE DIVIDEND NOW THAT THE EARNINGS OUTLOOK IS IMPROVING SO RAPIDLY.

CORPORATIONS ARE NOT FINDING IT DIFFICULT TO MAKE BOND ISSUES AT PRESENT RATES. THE MATURING OBLIGATIONS OF THE NEXT FEW MONTHS WHEN THE FINANCIAL CONDITION OF SUCH CORPORATIONS IS GOOD, BUT AT LEAST ONE LARGE COMPANY WHICH HAS BEEN MATURING OBLIGATIONS INTO RECEIVERS' HANDS BECAUSE OF INABILITY TO FUND MATURING SECURITIES, IN VIEW OF THE MANY TEMPTING OPPORTUNITIES FOR INVESTMENT IN NEW SECURITIES WHICH HAVE APPEARED OR WHICH ARE PROJECTIONS, INVESTORS ARE EXPECTED TO BE VERY LOATH TO ADVANCE FUNDS TO ANY CORPORATIONS WHICH ARE NOT IN THE BEST FINANCIAL STANDING.

FINANCING.

The International Harvester company, of New Jersey, has already made banking arrangements to finance the $20,000,000 5 per cent notes which were issued on February 15. The note issue was made on the proceeds used for paying off holders of the maturing notes. The Erie railroad is making arrangements now for the issue of about $20,000,000 of 5 per cent notes within the next few weeks with which to take care of maturities. So far, however, there has been little said by corporations as to active plans for the issue of securities for new issues, or for other purposes, such as paying off maturing obligations. A large amount of such offerings cannot be expected while so many old needs have to be taken care of.

CHICAGO, MILWAUKEE AND ST. PAUL RAILROADS HAVE MADE PRELIMINARY MOVES FOR INCREASING THEIR CAPITAL BY $23,000,000 TO $300,000,000, AND ALL OF THE NEW STOCK WHICH THEREBY WILL BE BROUGHT OUT WITHIN A YEAR OR TWO UNDER PRESENT PLANS. THERE WILL BE AN ISSUE OF $23,000,000 OF NEW STOCK TO PROVIDE FOR CONVERSION OF RECENTLY ISSUED CONVERTIBLE BONDS.

REORGANIZATION OF THE ST. LOUIS AND SAN FRANCISCO RAILROAD IS TO BE COMPLETED WITHIN THE NEXT SIX MONTHS, ACCORDING TO INTERESTED PARTIES.

TRADE RETURNS FROM SOME CENTERS STAGNANT ARE BEING PUT BACK TO WORK BY INDUSTRIAL ORGANIZATIONS AT LEAST SIX MONTHS SOONER THAN HAD BEEN EXPECTED. ON THE OTHER HAND, INVESTIGATIONS OF THE SUPPLY OF INVESTMENT CAPITAL AT UNEMPLOYMENT IS NOT DECREASING SAVE AT A VERY SLOW RATE. IN A NUMBER OF LINES OF BUSINESS WHERE MANY EMPLOYEES WERE DISMISSED AT THE END OF THE YEAR, ON PART TIME OR PART PAY, THE PRESENT SITUATION IS SUMMED UP IN THE STATEMENT THAT SENTIMENT IS IMPROVING VERY RAPIDLY, BUT NOT YET TO THE POINT OF TAKING BACK MANY FORMER EMPLOYEES.

COPPER GROWING STRONGER.

The copper metal market has grown still stronger during the past week or so, with sales of the metal at better prices than were seen in the past few months. The price of copper has almost reached last November. Sales of copper for domestic use are increasing in volume, while export demand for the metal has been strong. The demand for metal holds to a heavy total volume each week. A further advance in copper prices is expected within a short time. In fact, there are indications that the price of copper is looking for a further advance by this date next month. The Copper Producers' association, which published monthly statistics of sales, production and surplus stocks of metal, has announced that the price of copper, members of the association believing that their statistics gave consumers an advantage over them.

SEVERAL HIGHER PRICES FOR STEEL PRODUCTS HAVE BEEN NOTICED DURING THE LAST WEEK, AND THE STEEL INDUSTRY IS EVIDENTLY EXPERIENCING A GREAT INCREASE IN THE VOLUME OF ITS BUSINESS. THE DECEMBER STATEMENT OF THE STEEL CORPORATION SHOWING A SURPLUS OF $1,000,000 IN UNUTILIZED TONNAGE, IS EXPECTED TO BE EXCEEDED THIS MONTH, EVEN THOUGH THERE HAS BEEN A BIG INCREASE IN THE RATE OF PRODUCTION THROUGHOUT THE YEAR. EXPORT ORDERS ARE INCREASING, BUT THE GAINS HAVE BEEN THROUGH RAILROAD BUYING.

COTTON AND WHEAT MARKETS.

Cotton prices were strong at times during the week, a result of active trade and export buying, but on each bulge there was selling from the south. For the first week of January, both domestic spinners' takings and export takings were in excess of each total for the corresponding period last year. With the winning total to January 1 up to almost 14,000,000 bales, there can be no doubt that the cotton industry is in view of recent high prices, compared with the low of the last few months, that it is now the opinion of market experts that even the probability of a huge carry-over this year will not result in a general decline in the acreage in the cotton planting during the next few months.

GRAIN.

Chicago, January 16.—Five cents a bushel was knocked off the price of wheat today in less than fifteen minutes. The market was hit by several straits and causing a flood of stop loss selling. The flurry which was, to some extent, overcome, started by reports that a bill would be introduced in congress to place a embargo on wheat exports. President Wilson's order for investigation of wheat and flour prices was not known of here until after trading hours. Wheat closed unsettled at 21-8 to 23-8 net decline, with corn off 3-4 to 3-4 1/2, oats down 3-4 1/2 to 3-4 1/2 and soybeans net decline, with corn off 3-4 to 3-4 1/2, oats down 3-4 1/2 to 3-4 1/2. These orders that were proclaimed the market and kept prices plunging down here also was of considerable influence. It is believed that the market will be held in check by the fact that recent buyers here sought to protect their holdings by orders to sell on wheat and stop losses if there should happen to be a decline of 1-2 to 2-2. Dr. J. A. Wyeth, Famous Surgeon, Tells of Life With Sabre and Scalpel

In "With Sabre and Scalpel," just published by the Harpers, Dr. John A. Wyeth, the New York surgeon of international fame, has written an autobiography which the discerning reading public will welcome as the vital summa record of a career remarkable in lay and medical history.

The average American knows Dr. Wyeth, only as a surgeon of pre-eminence, who has risen to the very top of his profession and whose one act in founding the New York Polytechnic would have written his name high in medical annals.

In this volume Dr. Wyeth discloses himself in other and engaging capacities. He proves himself a shrewd observer of economic, agricultural and sociological conditions in the south before the war. He is qualified to speak since he was born in northern Alabama in 1845, at a time when the patriarchal regime was at its height. He had ample opportunities for judging its virtues and defects, and he is candid with regard to both of them.

As a Soldier. Through a strippling of 17 when war broke over the land, Dr. Wyeth enlisted and served for a time with Morgan's cavalry, and then with other important confederate commands. Of those days, he retains vivid recollections, and his fund of anecdotes is fresh and charming.

As a Critic. A refreshing feature in Dr. Wyeth's autobiography is his absolute fearlessness. Whether he is criticizing conditions before the war, or tearing down delusions regarding the "martyrdom" of John Brown, or dealing with his own profession, his words are as sharp as the point of his scalpel or sabre.

His Profession. When it is remembered that he has been president of the New York Pathological society, vice president and president of the American Medical association and president of the New York State Medical association, his standing in his profession will at once be apparent to the layman.

His Achievements. Surgeons and physicians will be especially interested in that portion of Dr. Wyeth's autobiography which deals with his achievements inside his profession.

Before the War. Dr. Wyeth's stories of the south before the war are accurate and charming. He declares that the patriarchal system then existing was possible only through slavery, and that while that system had many beautiful features, it carried within itself the germ of its own destruction.

His Achievements. Surgeons and physicians will be especially interested in that portion of Dr. Wyeth's autobiography which deals with his achievements inside his profession.

but these verses express an appreciation of romance of the highest order, without melodrama, dignified, wholesome, sound, sweet.

His Amides. An inimitable feature of the autobiography is the many "asides" in which the author indulges, and in which he invites the reader to join him.

A Big Personality. The final impression of Dr. Wyeth, reading the lines between them, is that of a big personality, a personality typically American in its aggressiveness and originality, but also cosmopolitan in its knowledge and sympathies and close personal touch.

The man reading the book will find it as diverting and informing and restful as an evening's chat in the study of a great man who has touched our national life at many epochs and who has seen it from many angles. One comes away with a greater store of knowledge and a more genial and all-embracing understanding of life, as well as in this country of myriad interests and traditions.

BIG CONTRACT IS LET BY SOUTHERN RAILWAY

$1,500,000 to Be Expended in Virginia on 30-Mile Stretch.

Washington, January 16.—The Southern railway will proceed at once to revise and double track the 28.7 miles of its Washington-Atlanta line lying between Orange and Charlottesville, Va., to work to involve an expenditure of $1,500,000, and to result in a greatly improved line both as to grades and curvature. Bids for the grading are being received from contractors today in the office of W. H. Wells, chief engineer of construction, under whose direction the work will be done.

The completion of this work, together with other work now under way, will give the Southern a continuous stretch of 121 miles of double track out of Washington and a total of 338.7 miles of double track between Washington and Chicago, leaving only 41.3 miles of single track, divided into four stretches, the longest of which is 20 miles.

The revision between Orange and Charlottesville will eliminate 1.9 degrees of curvature, or nearly four complete circles, and will give a maximum grade northbound of 0.9 per cent and southbound of 1.9 per cent, against 1.41 per cent in both directions at present.

The work to be done is very heavy, and will furnish labor for a large number of men and employ considerable expense in the territory immediately affected. In undertaking it at this time when receipts from both freight and passenger traffic are much below normal, the Southern Railway company is giving striking evidence of President Harrison's faith in the business future of the south, and his determination to furnish adequate facilities, the necessary capital being furnished only after provided before the outbreak of the present European war.

MILLTOWN MAYOR FREED OF CHARGE OF PEONAGE

Government Drops Case After Two Days of Investigation by the Marshal.

Waycross, Ga., January 16.—(Special.)—Charges of peonage against William M. Pafford, mayor of Milltown, have fallen flat, following an investigation by a United States marshal sent to Milltown upon information furnished the government by John Everett. The government was told that Mayor Pafford had in connection with a lumber concern at Milltown, perfected a combination, whereby negroes appearing before him at police court, would be given such heavy fines they could not pay them, and then the lumber company, through a representative, would arrange for the fines and have the negroes work them out.

Two days were spent by the marshal in charge of the investigation and nothing whatever was found to sustain the "information" forwarded to Valdemar Everett, since the investigation, has been taken to Nashville and lodged in jail, having been fined in court recently and failing to raise the fine imposed. A gang sentence now stares him in the face.

IS THERE NO WAY OUT OF MUNICIPAL STAGNATION?

W. G. Humphrey, chairman of the finance committee of council for the past two years presents to the readers of The Constitution today, in an interview published elsewhere, a candid and clean-cut summary of the financial condition of the city, the reasons why we have reached the present tangle and the way out.

Mr. Humphrey speaks as a specialist and a man of recognized conservatism. In addition to his full term as chairman of the finance committee, he was a member for the year preceding, and a member of council for four consecutive years. No man can be more familiar with the financial needs and problems of the city than he. No man could be more cautious in advancing advice. His whole career in council backs these assertions. In his personal capacity he is a successful financier of south-wide reputation for soundness and level-headedness.

He lays down this broad premise: No city can progress if it attempts long to make current income meet the expense of maintenance, and, in addition, the expense of those improvements that are essentially permanent and that are the results of natural growth.

That law is as immutable as the decalogue. Yet for many years Atlanta has been violating it.

And that is why our school system is in danger of paralysis, our water system is similarly situated, our police and fire departments and other municipal facilities way below standard. The mischief increased with postponement of the remedy.

The way the present system plays havoc is this: The departments make up their semi-annual estimates calling for increased appropriations for the needs of growth and applying solely to maintenance.

Meanwhile, there is the need for such permanent improvements as schoolhouses, fire engine houses, police sub-stations, water mains, pumping stations, sewers, etc.

Under our antiquated system of usual current income for all purposes, what happens?

Mr. Humphrey illustrates by showing that in two items alone, the crematory and an engine house, three hundred thousand dollars was taken out of the fund that should have gone to maintenance to pay for permanent improvements. And these are only two illustrations.

Assume Atlanta, like other progressive cities, used her credit for permanent improvements. That $300,000 and much more would have gone to maintenance of departments, for school, fire, police and other efficiency.

As it is, we have taken care of permanent improvements out of current income, and are paying the penalty in—

Insecure police and fire protection, an insufficient number of teachers and in many other directions.

The trouble is cumulative. It grows worse each year. The end, as he says, is inevitable stagnation, inferior municipal facilities, and neglect of permanent improvements.

Is there no way out of this perennial and growing tangle? The city has a borrowing capacity of more than seven millions.

Under the peculiar bond election laws of Georgia an insignificant organized minority can kill a bond issue. The vast majority of voters recognize the need of an issue, yet many citizens say: "Certainly we need it, but I won't vote a dollar's worth of bonds under the present system of administration!"

Is a system of administration to be permitted to paralyze growth and penalize the future of Atlanta, the welfare of her children, the health of her people? Is there no way of divorcing a bond issue absolutely from the system of administration? Is there no way of going to the legislature and getting from it authority to create a commission that will have the confidence of every citizen of Atlanta, and that shall supervise the expenditure of every penny of the bond money?

The Atlanta spirit has met every obstacle that heretofore stood in the pathway. Is not the Atlanta spirit sufficiently resourceful in the face of the menace of municipal stagnation?

The crisis is here. To evade it is to aggravate it. How will the Atlanta spirit meet it? Every word Mr. Humphrey speaks is cold truth. The responsibility is on the consciences of the people of Atlanta, and the consequences will affect the destinies of this city, the self-interest of each one of its population.

ARKANSAS WRITES FINIS.

Governor George W. Hays, of Arkansas, made the keynote of his message to the recently assembled legislature of that state, "a square deal to capital." He urged that guarantees be given to every legitimate business in the state, as well as prospective outside investors. The governor took official cognizance of the change "in sentiment toward the transportation companies."

Had not the reliable Associated Press reported the message we would have been in doubt as to its accuracy. Every state in the country—including South Carolina—has been giving unmistakable evidence of repudiating the demagogue and all his works. But for the chief executive of a state that has sprouted some of the most vicious of the tribe, to make the doctrine a part of his message, is nothing short of amazing.

Perhaps, after all, however, we should not be taken off our feet by such astounding heresy against that political creed that taught the way to success was to "swat every head that showed, especially a corporation head." The country has been through a tedious, a painful and an expensive period of readjustment. It knows now what it has paid for its orgy of prejudice, passion and trailing after false gods. The Arkansas utterance, considering the source, is tolerably conclusive evidence, that the people have at last regained perspective and decided they will be uncoined no longer—for the present at least.

The demagogue, the muckraker, the political and the economic and sociological Pharisees had their uses, after all. They made the people think and analyze. And the result is that the people, through their federal and state governments, have impressed upon financiers, railroad and otherwise, that financial piracy and railroad looting will no longer be tolerated. The people, too, have learned their lesson, and it is that a blather-skite whose chief assets are his mouth and a barrel-head is not the safest or most unselfish adviser.

In the era of prosperity that is dawning we are going to see a "square deal" for capital as well as the people, less universal suspicion, more genuine progress, less fake reform. These are the deductions from the remarkable message of Governor Hays.

A FIRM AND AN EPOCH.

The decision to dissolve the successful and prosperous clothing firm of Eiseman Brothers, as first announced in The Constitution, in order that its older members may enjoy in retirement the fortunes they have so richly earned, will be a matter of commercial and historic interest not only to Atlanta, but to the south. The house has for years had branches and connections in Baltimore, Washington and Atlanta. The advancing years of two of its members, Moses B. and Jacob B., and the death of the senior member, Gerson Eiseman, are conditions causing the firm's dissolution. The announcement that B. J. Eiseman will enter the banking field in Atlanta will be welcome news to the business community, to which the name "Eiseman" has been a synonym for integrity, aggressiveness and a high regard for business ethics. Louis E. Eiseman, formerly manager of the Washington, D. C., branch, also contributed a material share to the upbuilding of a business of phenomenal proportions.

The progress and prosperity of the house of Eiseman have been virtually parallel with the progress and prosperity of Greater Atlanta. The firm was established here in a humble way nearly fifty years ago, when Atlanta itself was more promise than performance, and when acute vision was required to see the great city of today. It is an interesting incident that the first issue of The Constitution, forty-seven years ago, carried an advertisement of the Eisemans, while The Constitution of yesterday was the first newspaper to carry news of the decision to dissolve.

These notable brothers have won the respect and esteem of their associates in Atlanta. The Constitution congratulates them upon a commercial epoch splendidly rounded out. It extends its best wishes to those who now retire to private life as well as B. J. Eiseman, whose success in the future is assured by the qualities so signally exhibited in the past.

WHITFIELD AND THE HIGHWAY.

Interest in the "Hoosierland-Dixie Highway," projected from Chicago to Jacksonville, is fast crystallizing. The enthusiasm of the Chattanooga Automobile club has been thoroughly enlisted. On January 25 they will give a banquet to Mr. W. S. Gilbreath, secretary of the Hoosier club of Indianapolis, and plans are on foot to bring to Chattanooga in April the governors of all the states on the route for a practical conference.

The link of the highway between Atlanta and Chattanooga is farther advanced than any similar stretch in any of the other states. The government road—and it is superfluous to describe the excellence of a government road—is completed from Chattanooga along Mission Ridge through Oglethorpe Park as far as Ringgold, in Catoosa county. From the Catoosa line to the Gordon county line the distance is approximately eight miles. Grading and surfacing are partially done on this stretch, and the enterprise already awakened may be relied upon to complete the work. The next county, Gordon, is least advanced of any, but it cannot long resist the contagion of energy and initiative from the surrounding counties.

The next county is Whitfield, with Dalton as a county seat, and what this county has done on the great highway, as well as in other industrial activities, sets a pace not alone for other counties on the route, but for every county in Georgia. The story of Whitfield's awakening and achievements, told elsewhere today, is as absorbing as romance, with the advantage that there are solid statistics and cold cash to back it. The "Hoosier-Dixie Highway" follows in Whitfield the identical route plotted by the engineers of Johnson and Sherman, rival commanders in the '60's, as the best topographical line through the county. Work begun actively in 1909 on the link of Whitfield, and today it is completed from county boundary to boundary, the pike almost comparing with that laid down by the government farther north. Not only in completing her share of the highway, but in her wonderful record of diversified industries, traceable to her county fairs, to her banks bulging with money, to her manufacturing and other industries, and, above all, the initiative and enterprise of her county commissioners, and her people, Whitfield blazes a trail each county in Georgia should follow. It has made the county virtually independent. It will do the same thing for other counties in the state, wherever situated.

Bartow, on the route, has yet much work to do on its portion of the link, but it is "on the job." Altoona, southward from Cartersville, and on a ridge of high hills, is the highest point between Atlanta and Chattanooga. For years the public highway has negotiated this ridge, almost prohibitive to vehicular traffic. Now the commissioners have cut through Altoona ridge and brought it almost to a grade. That display of enterprise assures enough vigilance to the public welfare to insure the early completion of Bartow's link.

From Cobb through Fulton to Atlanta the highways are, of course, in excellent condition. The gathering at Chattanooga on the 25th, and next spring, ought to assure the winding up of the entire project from its Chicago to its Jacksonville terminus. And the promoters can do no better than to point to the way in which Whitfield has, without any fuss or fanfare, gone about its part of the work.

WHAT IS THE STATUS OF CHILD LABOR IN GEORGIA?

By Emma Dooley.

What is the real status of child labor in Georgia? Do we or do we not deserve the reputation that is ours outside of the state—that reputation branding us with employing not a few, but many children, under age, not only in our factories, but in the cotton and corn fields of Georgia?

In his last report, County Superintendent Merritt, of the county schools, complains that many children under age are worked too hard in the agricultural field, and that they are thereby afflicted with the training school, would give, and are in danger of growing up without the chance that an education in life will give them.

Has Superintendent Merritt exaggerated the condition? If so, who is there to come forward and prove he is mistaken? We can reckon with it probably in our own midst, but what are we going to do about this nation-wide brand being put upon us?

Charges Made Against Us. About once a year certain organizations working to the end of better social conditions for the nation at large make reports about labor conditions among children in southern industrial institutions that reflect upon us as a civilized people. When these reports are published, individual manufacturers arise and question the accuracy of the report. Newspapers claim for the state good conditions in this direction, and there the matter ends. We continue to be placed in the attitude in the end of generally ignoring the dreadful charges made against us.

We have not come forward as we should, refuted the charges and proved that we have been misrepresented. I believe the time has come for us to do this.

Long enough have we patiently furnished theme for the sensational paper away from here, the space-paid magazine writer, and the writer of cheap stories where "the golden-haired child" in the factory is made the victim of a state's barbarism.

We have a child labor law—yes. But, let us all in silence, in secret, hold up our right hands and swear, "Do you believe that this law is an honest child labor law, and that it is being honestly enforced?"

Not long ago a convention of labor people met in the state of Pennsylvania, where, as we know, conditions in the mines among laboring people have been far from ideal, and they took action in the matter of starting a crusade against the abuses of child labor.

In the reports made which brought about the action, Georgia was mentioned as one of the states of many abuses in this direction. Now, if the labor people themselves are beginning to reckon with the question from both the economic and the humane standpoint, ought not the people of a state accused as Georgia is take up the matter and at least investigate conditions—and that honestly and thoroughly?

I think so. Someone, I know, will answer this communication at once by urging, "Why does not the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs take it up?" They have done so. They have gone as far as they could, but they cannot go any farther than agitate and urge. They can recommend and plead for the right sort of law, but they cannot get into the factories of Georgia and see exactly what conditions are. They are denied the privilege, except in a very few cases.

Excellent Welfare Work. I know of several factory settlements in Georgia where an excellent welfare work is being done, where day nurseries, free kindergartens and good schools are, where visiting nurses are maintained by the factory to look after sick employes, where hospital facilities are furnished in emergency cases, and where playgrounds, amusement halls, etc., are made possible to employes.

But all of that does not answer the question, "What is the real status of the child labor conditions in Georgia?" Are we being dealt with fairly in the matter of the agencies who claim to have investigated and found that we are bartering for gain the very best asset of our state—the little future citizens?

There is no use going into the oft-discussed economic phases of the case—of the economic folly of working children in the mills—and there is no use trying to prove either that every child under age working in the mill is supporting or helping support a widowed mother, invalid father, etc. If that condition exists to such an alarming extent, it is time the state were considering the matter and pensioning these mothers, who have so universally become tied to invalid husbands.

What an Investigation. A thorough investigation should be made of factory conditions in Georgia, and that by a state authorized committee, who, if necessary, would be paid for their time and expert work.

I believe that this committee should have put upon it not merely representatives of capital and labor, but that it should have a membership representing citizenship at large, that there should be a competent medical inspector upon it, and a man trained in sanitary matters, also women should be represented on it, many of these having made a study as far as they could of factory conditions.

I believe that the report of this committee should be made to the chief executive of the state and the legislature, and that action upon it should be taken. Then, and then only, can we come out for a fair, square fight in the open and defend ourselves against these repeated charges made against us annually and published far and wide. We cannot afford to ignore them longer. We must fight for the place we should rightfully hold—unchallenged in all conditions, industrially, socially and humanely—the place of the Empire State of the south.

National Emblems of Vanity.

(From The Kansas City Star.) The emblems that nations take are the expressions of vanity, the Russian bear, "master of the forests" the German eagles, "monarchs of the air," the British lion, "king of beasts," and jealousy and envy, which are parts of vanity, set them flying at each other with tooth and claw and beak.

The French Zouaves, vain of their scarlet caps and trousers, for a long time, at least, refused to discard them even when it was shown that the red upon the landscape helped the German gunners to get their range and pick them off.

Sir James Wilcocks, leading the East Indian troops to the firing line, halts them a moment to appeal to their vanity.

"The eyes of our countrymen are on you," he says to them. "From the Himalayan mountains, the banks of the Ganges and Indus and the plains of Hindustan, they are eagerly waiting for news of how their brethren conduct themselves when they meet the foe."

In other words, "Wade in and slaughter them so you can boast of it afterwards."

If It Weren't For Her

By FRANK L. STANTON.

I. If it weren't for Her, still sweet and fair, With the sunset's gold on her silver hair, And dreams o' the years in the eyes that seem To dream that the angels read the dream; If it weren't for Her—to my soul I say— There's a traveler here had lost the way This side o' the certain Gates of Day: Lost the way where the loveless roam, Far from Home.

II. If it weren't for Her! . . . With her hand in mine We've traveled together in storm and shine, And I said to myself in Love's first dawn, "It's the light o' my love I'll lead her on." The beacon bright in the years to be Sure through the shadows of Life's dim sea, And all the while she was leadin' me To the light that shines o'er the stormy foam From the shores of Home.

III. If it weren't for Her, the day we passed From a grave to a world grown cold at last, With God's dark shadows gathering fast, Life would have cried, in Life's despair, To God to hide a man's heart there! But Her voice in God's Silence spoke sure and sweet O'er the dust and violets at Life's feet, And Light streamed down from Heaven's high dome,— The Light of Home.

IV. AND the day is near when we shall stand At the sundown gateway, hand in hand With the light of Her soul's love shining there, Bright as in valleys of Life's despair; And if it be given in that high day A word to the Angel of Light to say, "Twill be but an echo from earth's far side "If it weren't for Her!" . . . As the gates swing wide.

Use Credit or Stagnate, Ex-Chairman Humphrey Tells People of Atlanta

W. G. Humphrey, chairman of the finance committee of council for the past two years, member of that committee for three years and of council for four years, declares there is just one solution of Atlanta's perennial problem of finding the money to meet the city's demands. It lies in using Atlanta's current income for purposes of upkeep, her credit for permanent improvements. Our present plan of using current income for both purposes leads, he believes, to inevitable municipal stagnation.

Same Old Story. Mr. Humphrey says: "During the past three years, which time I served on the finance committee, this same trouble always came up, and it is no new thing for the city, and, in my judgment, this probably will continue from year to year, except that it will get much worse unless a bond issue is voted and placed on the market to provide funds to take care of permanent improvements."

"The city of Atlanta is growing as fast as nearly any city in the United States, and the expenses of running the different departments of the city are increasing in a greater proportion to the amount of the city's income, and it is not fair to a city that is progressing as fast as the city of Atlanta to build permanent improvements out of current revenue."

"Take, for instance, in the last two years the city of Atlanta has taken out of its current funds $260,000 for a crematory, $37,500 for a fire alarm plant, and in addition thereto has built two or three engine houses and equipped them and other improvements which I do not mention. Now these are all permanent improvements, and every city of the size of Atlanta is building permanent improvements with funds derived from the sale of bonds. There is no reason why permanent improvements should be built out of current revenue, thereby making the residents and taxpayers of the city pay for them in one year. They should be installed from funds derived from the sale of bonds which mature over a term of years, and in this way people coming into the city of Atlanta in the future will help pay for the improvements which they enjoy. These improvements, when made out of the current revenue, cannot help but take away funds that should be applied to the different departments of the city, and when not applied in that direction, weaken the departments to a large extent."

"Last year the salaries of policemen, firemen and the school teachers were raised, the raise simply taking care of four months for the school teachers, the months being September, October, November and December. This increase took from current revenue last year in the neighborhood of $75,000, and this year it will take at least $150,000."

"The city of Atlanta, in my judgment, should have at least 200 more policemen or three more engine houses should be installed, probably two sub-police stations should be built, the schools should be better taken care of and, in fact, all the departments in the city government should have more money to run their departments in first-class shape."

"The constitutional debt limit in this state, being 7 per cent, is a very low debt limit, and no city in the state can in any way impair its credit by issuing bonds, or creating an indebtedness up to the full limit of 7 per cent."

"Now, the only solution, in my judgment, of this continual shortage of funds each year would be for the city to float at least a $3,000,000 bond issue, the funds to be used for taking care of permanent improvements, and to take care of the different departments in the city. The increase in taxable property, both real and personal, in the city would more than take care of the interest on the bond issue, as well as provide a sinking fund to retire the bonds at maturity, without any burden whatever on the taxpayer, or the necessity of increasing the tax rate."

WHITECHAPEL IN WARTIME. The wave of war has swept over London's Whitechapel, but has changed it very little, says Herman Sheffauer. Some of the physical signs and symbols are there—the gash-like streets, the bronze-brown of khaki, the darkened streets that make London's ghetto still more ghetto-like.

Whitechapel is not only in the east, but of the east. Lake Asia that "watched the legions thunder by, then plunged in thought again," the East End lifts up its eyes to the troops of the king, then turns to trade again.

There is always war in Whitechapel—the struggle to survive. To one fresh from the nervous West End and the hushed suburbs, the stir-and-bustle of Whitechapel has a brave defiance. It is not only business as usual, but business as from time immemorial. The Whitechapel tenacity has withstood crises more terrible than this—and among its own people. Refugees grow tough and indifferent, and Whitechapel is a retreat for the world's oldest and most numerous refugees.

PLAIN WORDS ARE BEST. (From The Boston Globe.) An amusing colloquy occurred in the house just before the Rhode Island conference representing the two branches of congress.

The senate amendment excluding aliens suffering from "constitutional psychopathic inferiority" had been reached, and Representative O'Shaunessy, of Rhode Island, who seemed bewildered, wanted to know what the term meant.

"I'm sure I don't know," replied Speaker Clark.

Representative Brown, of New York, declared that the term meant "feeble-minded." And the amendment was then adopted. Similar language in a legislative measure once tempted Mr. Victor Berger, formerly a congressman, to tell his colleagues that bulls would be much more understandable if they were drawn by bricklayers instead of lawyers.

DIVIDE BED WITH SAW. (Appleton (Wis.) dispatch to The Milwaukee Free Press.) Two Appleton Greeks who were joint owners of a bed have solved the problem which arose when they decided to break up housekeeping. One of the vendors objected to the other's cold feet planted in the middle of his back and decided to leave. He asked his partner to buy him out. This the other refused to do, thinking he would get the bed for nothing if his disgruntled mate left. That is where he got left.

While he was away his erstwhile roommate returned and sawed the bed in two equal parts, mattress and all. He was making away with his share when the owner of the other half appeared, and as a result of the ensuing argument a black eye was thrown in with the half bed. Neighbors are wondering what would have happened if the young men had had more furniture to divide.

LONGEST PANTHER TAIL YET. (From The Kansas City Star.) All the argument in the world could not convince two Gasconade county hunters that they did not see a panther when a few days ago they were out rabbit shooting. They say the animal had a tail as long as a gun barrel and that "when it ran through the brush it tore up the limbs like a railroad engine after it had left the track and was ploughing its way through timber." The hunters were badly frightened and did not shoot at the animal.

RESULTS SCARCELY. (From The Washington Post.) By this time the eminent scientists and philanthropists who have devoted brains and fortunes to the work of relieving the suffering of humanity must be in a somewhat sardonic frame of mind.

A Few Words From The City Salesmen

A well-attended meeting of the City Salesmen's association Saturday demonstrated the fact that there is life in the organization still.

President Holt's administration is nearing its close, and we are anxious for the closing days of his administration to be the best. We are working for new members and are anxious to have the name of every qualified salesman in Atlanta on our roll. And along with this there will be held a meeting next Thursday evening, January 21, at 8 o'clock in the banquet hall of the Hotel Hamilton. This meeting will benefit every salesman to attend. It will be a joint meeting of the Retail Grocers and Butchers' association and there will be short talks by several members of each organization, and also reports from some of the grocers and produce dealers of the city.

The members of the City Salesmen's association felt very keenly the loss of Atlanta's firing line, a fair promise of spring business. The smaller of these are not quite so active, but even at that he says he finds the merchants generally quite optimistic.

We are anxious to see the finance committee find the $75,000 needed for the city's part to promote the South-eastern fair at Lakewood. This movement will meet every business interest in Atlanta, and it ought to go through.

Alabama, Georgia and Florida. He reports that in the larger cities he finds conditions improving, and a fair promise of spring business. The smaller of these are not quite so active, but even at that he says he finds the merchants generally quite optimistic.

E. L. Adams, of E. L. Adams company, spent Tuesday in Pickens county. He reports much rain in that section, and the roads in bad condition.

A. J. Garner, an old knight of the grip, has taken the road for Rice & Hutchins. His territory will be north Alabama and the Birmingham district, the latter part being his home. He has many friends and customers in that section, and Rice & Hutchins shoes may be expected to be given a good boost there.

E. R. Partridge, resident manager of Hamilton Carhartt, overall manufacturer, made a trip to Dallas, Texas, last week. Upon his return he went immediately to Rock Hill, S. C., the home of the big cotton mill of his company. He will be back early next week.

Miss Foster, representing the Celana Tea and Temple Garden Coffee company of New York, has been in the city the past two weeks demonstrating her teas and coffees. She has been quite successful in landing many orders for these goods, which are handled by the H. L. Singer company.

J. C. Porter, who recently went with the H. L. Singer company, and is traveling to Birmingham for the M. C. East territory, is having splendid success with sales. Mr. Porter is an old clear-headed and many of the customers in the grocery line are glad to welcome him with his line of Singer goods.

H. Y. McCord is spending two weeks with the Homossassa Fishing club.

Harry McCord, who recently went to Winfield, Ala., where he will be in the future for McCord-Stewart art company, has landed right on the job, and from house reports, is giving a good account of himself.

J. L. WARMAN.

the annual banquet tendered them by this popular city salesman for the Ragan-Malone company.

For ten years Mr. Warman has been the hustling city man for this big dry goods house. The banquet on Thursday night will be the seventh annual affair given to the retailers and buyers in Atlanta and suburbs, and not a man who has been honored with an invitation from Mr. Warman will fail to be present, for these dinners have always been for the most happy and enjoyable occasions to those who have been attending.

The dinner will begin at 7 o'clock promptly. From 6:30 to 7 o'clock a general reception will be held in the main parlor on the first floor. The host, as toastmaster, has the happy duty of introducing his guests for the after-dinner talks in a manner most unique and catchy, and the short addresses to be made will prove delightfully interesting. Mr. Warman usually has some startling little stunt to pull on his guests, and while he has given no intimation of what they may expect this year, they can rest satisfied that they will be highly entertained. Good music will enliven the occasion.

J. K. ORR WILL ATTEND EXPORT CONFERENCE

J. K. Orr held the big shoe house bearing his name, will leave Sunday for St. Louis, where he goes to attend a national conference of prominent bankers and manufacturers to discuss export conditions, particularly as it applies to South American trade. Much interest is being shown by the members of the association just now. At this meeting the big rally mentioned in another column was planned. O. T. Camp, who was re-elected president, was selected over his protest, but he has made such an admirable officer for a number of new members the coming year, and has set 400 as its total mark.

In order to stimulate interest among the members F. E. Kamper offered a prize of $5 for the member bringing in the greatest number of new members during the next sixty days, and President Camp quickly augmented it with another five-spot.

VELVET RIBBONS ARE NOW IN DEMAND

There is an increasing distribution of velvet ribbons, says The New York Journal of Commerce. Manufacturers of dresses say that velvet ribbons are to be used largely this coming season in the making of dresses. The demand for other uses that has been going on for some time, such as for millinery and ribbon houses report that it is growing. For velvets the 1 1/2 yard widths are most wanted. For millinery the widths from 6 1/2 to 8 1/2, with some 12 1/2 are most in demand.

Outlets for velvets the ribbon market is only moderately active. The trade is looking for a change in the millinery trade, and at close prices, is a very narrow width, but it is not definitely evident yet.

There seems to be no let up in the demand for "Milk-Maid" bread, and the force at the Atlanta Baking company are kept on their feet these days to fill the orders coming their way.

Twenty Years of Steady Growth in Business Has Made The W. J. Dabney Implement Company Leader in Its Line

How the Company Has Grown From a Small Beginning to Its Important Place in Atlanta's Commercial Life.

By PRESS HUDDLESTON.

After rounding out a full twenty years' service to the public, the W. J. Dabney Implement Company, of this city, finds itself today enjoying its full need of prestige and prosperity among the farm implement jobbers of the south.

Building patiently, but steadily, through all these years, this prestige and this prosperity has come to it by reason of the splendid service it has rendered its customers and by its unalterable policy of giving to every man a fair square deal.

Another reason, and an important one, for the growth of its business lies in the fact that it forms jobbing connections with the various factories based on branch house contracts. Therefore, it is in position to offer to dealers attractive agencies, competing in prices and terms with the factories doing business in the south through the various branch houses.

Officers of the Company.

For nearly ten years, now, the company has been doing an ever-increasing business at its present location, 96-98-100 South Forsyth street, having moved there from less commodious quarters in another section of the city.

At the head of the company, as its principal owner, president and general manager, stands W. J. Dabney, who has known no other line of work since a young man entering the implement and hardware business at Winder, Ga. In fact, it soon became apparent, with the more advanced methods of farming, that improved farm implements were going to grow more and more in demand, and for this reason this progressive firm of young fellows took advantage of the opportunity to make agency connections with many of the leading manufacturers of modern farm implements.

Comes to Atlanta.

Seeking a wider field, and believing Atlanta offered the best advantages, a branch house was opened in this city after five years of successful business in the home city. W. J. Dabney, now the head of the company, was put in charge of this branch. The company decided to devote its capital and efforts in the Atlanta house to agricultural implements, vehicles and farm machinery.

For a few years their location was at 263-270 Marietta street. But with the growth of business, Mr. Dabney soon realized that larger, and more centrally located quarters were necessary. South Forsyth street, that time, had shown a particularly noticeable development, but the manager of the then Dabney Implement Company could foresee in that location an ideal home at no distant day. Just how well his judgment has been verified is amply borne out in the many big enterprises now surrounding the Dabney Company. Just a few doors south of Mitchell street.

The company occupies most commodious quarters, with a frontage of 65 feet, 90 feet deep, and 3 stories in height. In addition, two large warehouses in the rear are used as shipping and stock rooms, and for the proper display of vehicles and the varied line of farm implements handled. In all, the company occupies about 32,000 square feet of floor space.

Incorporated Five Years Ago.

In September, 1909, the company was incorporated as the W. J. Dabney Implement Company. In the past five years the business of the company has shown wonderful growth. As a striking evidence of the prosperity

W. J. DABNEY President and General Manager

W. J. Dabney was born in Atlanta in 1871—just forty-three years ago. He has been quite awhile in a successful, growing business here, and the Dabney Implement company has become such a well-known commercial institution that just naturally some people link that prestige with the long-ago, and then double or triple the age of the man "behind the gun."

But W. J. Dabney is a young man. He was schooled in the public institute at Conyers, where he spent his younger days. Later he spent his college days at Dahlonega. After leaving college he went to Winder, where he and his brothers engaged in the line of business he has since followed.

He has been a success—and the success that has come to the implement company bears his name is due to his business acumen, liberal policies and a determination to give to every man a square deal.

Decatur has claimed him as a citizen for many years. He has found time from his business to devote much thought and work for her upbuilding. He has added and planned in much good work for DeKalb county. Almost over his protest he was only recently named for the third term as the head of that live organization—the Decatur Board of Trade. He is the president of the Pythagoras Temple association, in Decatur, and a member of Yaarab Temple of Shriners, of Atlanta.

He is a happily married home man, with not an overabundance of love for club life—being a member of only one. He is a church member, an ideal citizen, a good business man and a fine friend.

which it has enjoyed, it may only be mentioned that besides paying to its stockholders 80 per cent in dividends during this short term of years, it has doubled its capital stock by its earnings.

While its principal operations have been in Georgia, still the company has had, and is still maintaining, a fine volume of sales through North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama and Florida. Its growth in sales volume through its 200 agencies, established over these various states, have increased during the past five years to more than 100 per cent.

That the company has been most fortunate in its connections with the leading manufacturers of the country is due to the far-seeing judgment of its officers and to their determination to make only such connections as would insure the most modern, labor-saving tools and machinery. These lines are selected from various manufacturers who are specialists in their respective lines. Following this policy, the Dabney Company is assured of getting the best that thought, brains and capital can command, as naturally a manufacturer specializing on a particular line enables the company to select the most modern and improved implements, suitable to southern soils and meeting southern requirements. It does not depend upon the output of any one factory making large lines, many of which, perhaps, are not suitable to southern requirements.

Vulcan Plows a Specialty.

The company is the only exclusive jobber of implements in the state, its largest line being the Vulcan plow, the sales on which have increased more than 1,000 per cent in the past seven years. The company carries in stock and is prepared to furnish supplies and repairs, and makes it a point to see that every customer is made to get the full benefit of every piece of machinery or every implement purchased from it. Its retail department is a distributor in all lines, and its repair department has proven, and is proving, a great convenience to its thousands of customers in supplying parts, etc. Last July J. M. Cochran, for five

J. M. COCHRAN Secretary of the Company

When J. M. Cochran rolled up his sleeves and went into the campaign for mayor of Barnesville a couple of more years ago, he showed his political enemies what a determined man could accomplish. By the biggest margin ever given a candidate he was elected.

Before his time was quite out he resigned to come to Atlanta and join in handling the business of the W. J. Dabney Implement Company as secretary. That was last summer. Some of the same fruits of this determined man, have been showing themselves in the business of the company since he joined it. Aggressive, hustling, experienced in his line, he has brought added prestige to the company.

For many years Mr. Cochran was a traveler for large vehicle houses. He is two years less than 50, but he tired of the road and after a time resting up as mayor of his native city, he drifted back into the harness into which he fit so well. He has charge of the vehicle business of the Dabney Company.

J. M. BOYKIN.

One of the latest acquisitions to the Dabney Company is J. M. Boykin. He is a native of Tennessee, and has lived in southern states for many years for a number of years, though yet a young man just over the edge of 30. He is a thorough business gentleman, and of his keen knowledge of men and clean, successful business methods, will make a great success of the automobile department, of which he has charge.

years a stockholder in the company, removed from Barnesville and entered into active work for the company as its secretary.

One of the latest acquisitions to the company is J. M. Boykin, who will have charge of the automobile department soon to be added.

One of the principal travelers for the company is J. T. Hamilton. For eight years Mr. Hamilton has been making new friends and customers for the Dabney Company, and his sales record for it has proven his worth as a clean-cut, energetic salesman. J. J. Robertson, who has been with the company for five years, is the efficient manager of the machinery department, and also has under his supervision the service department, unexcelled by any branch house in the south. The harness department—and all harness handled by the Dabney Company is of its own manufacture, and is a superior line of custom-made harness—is in charge of G. W. Clarke, a most finished and efficient artist in his line.

J. M. BOYKIN, Head of automobile department.

Some of the Many Lines of Implements and Farm Machinery Handled by This Company and Who Makes Them.

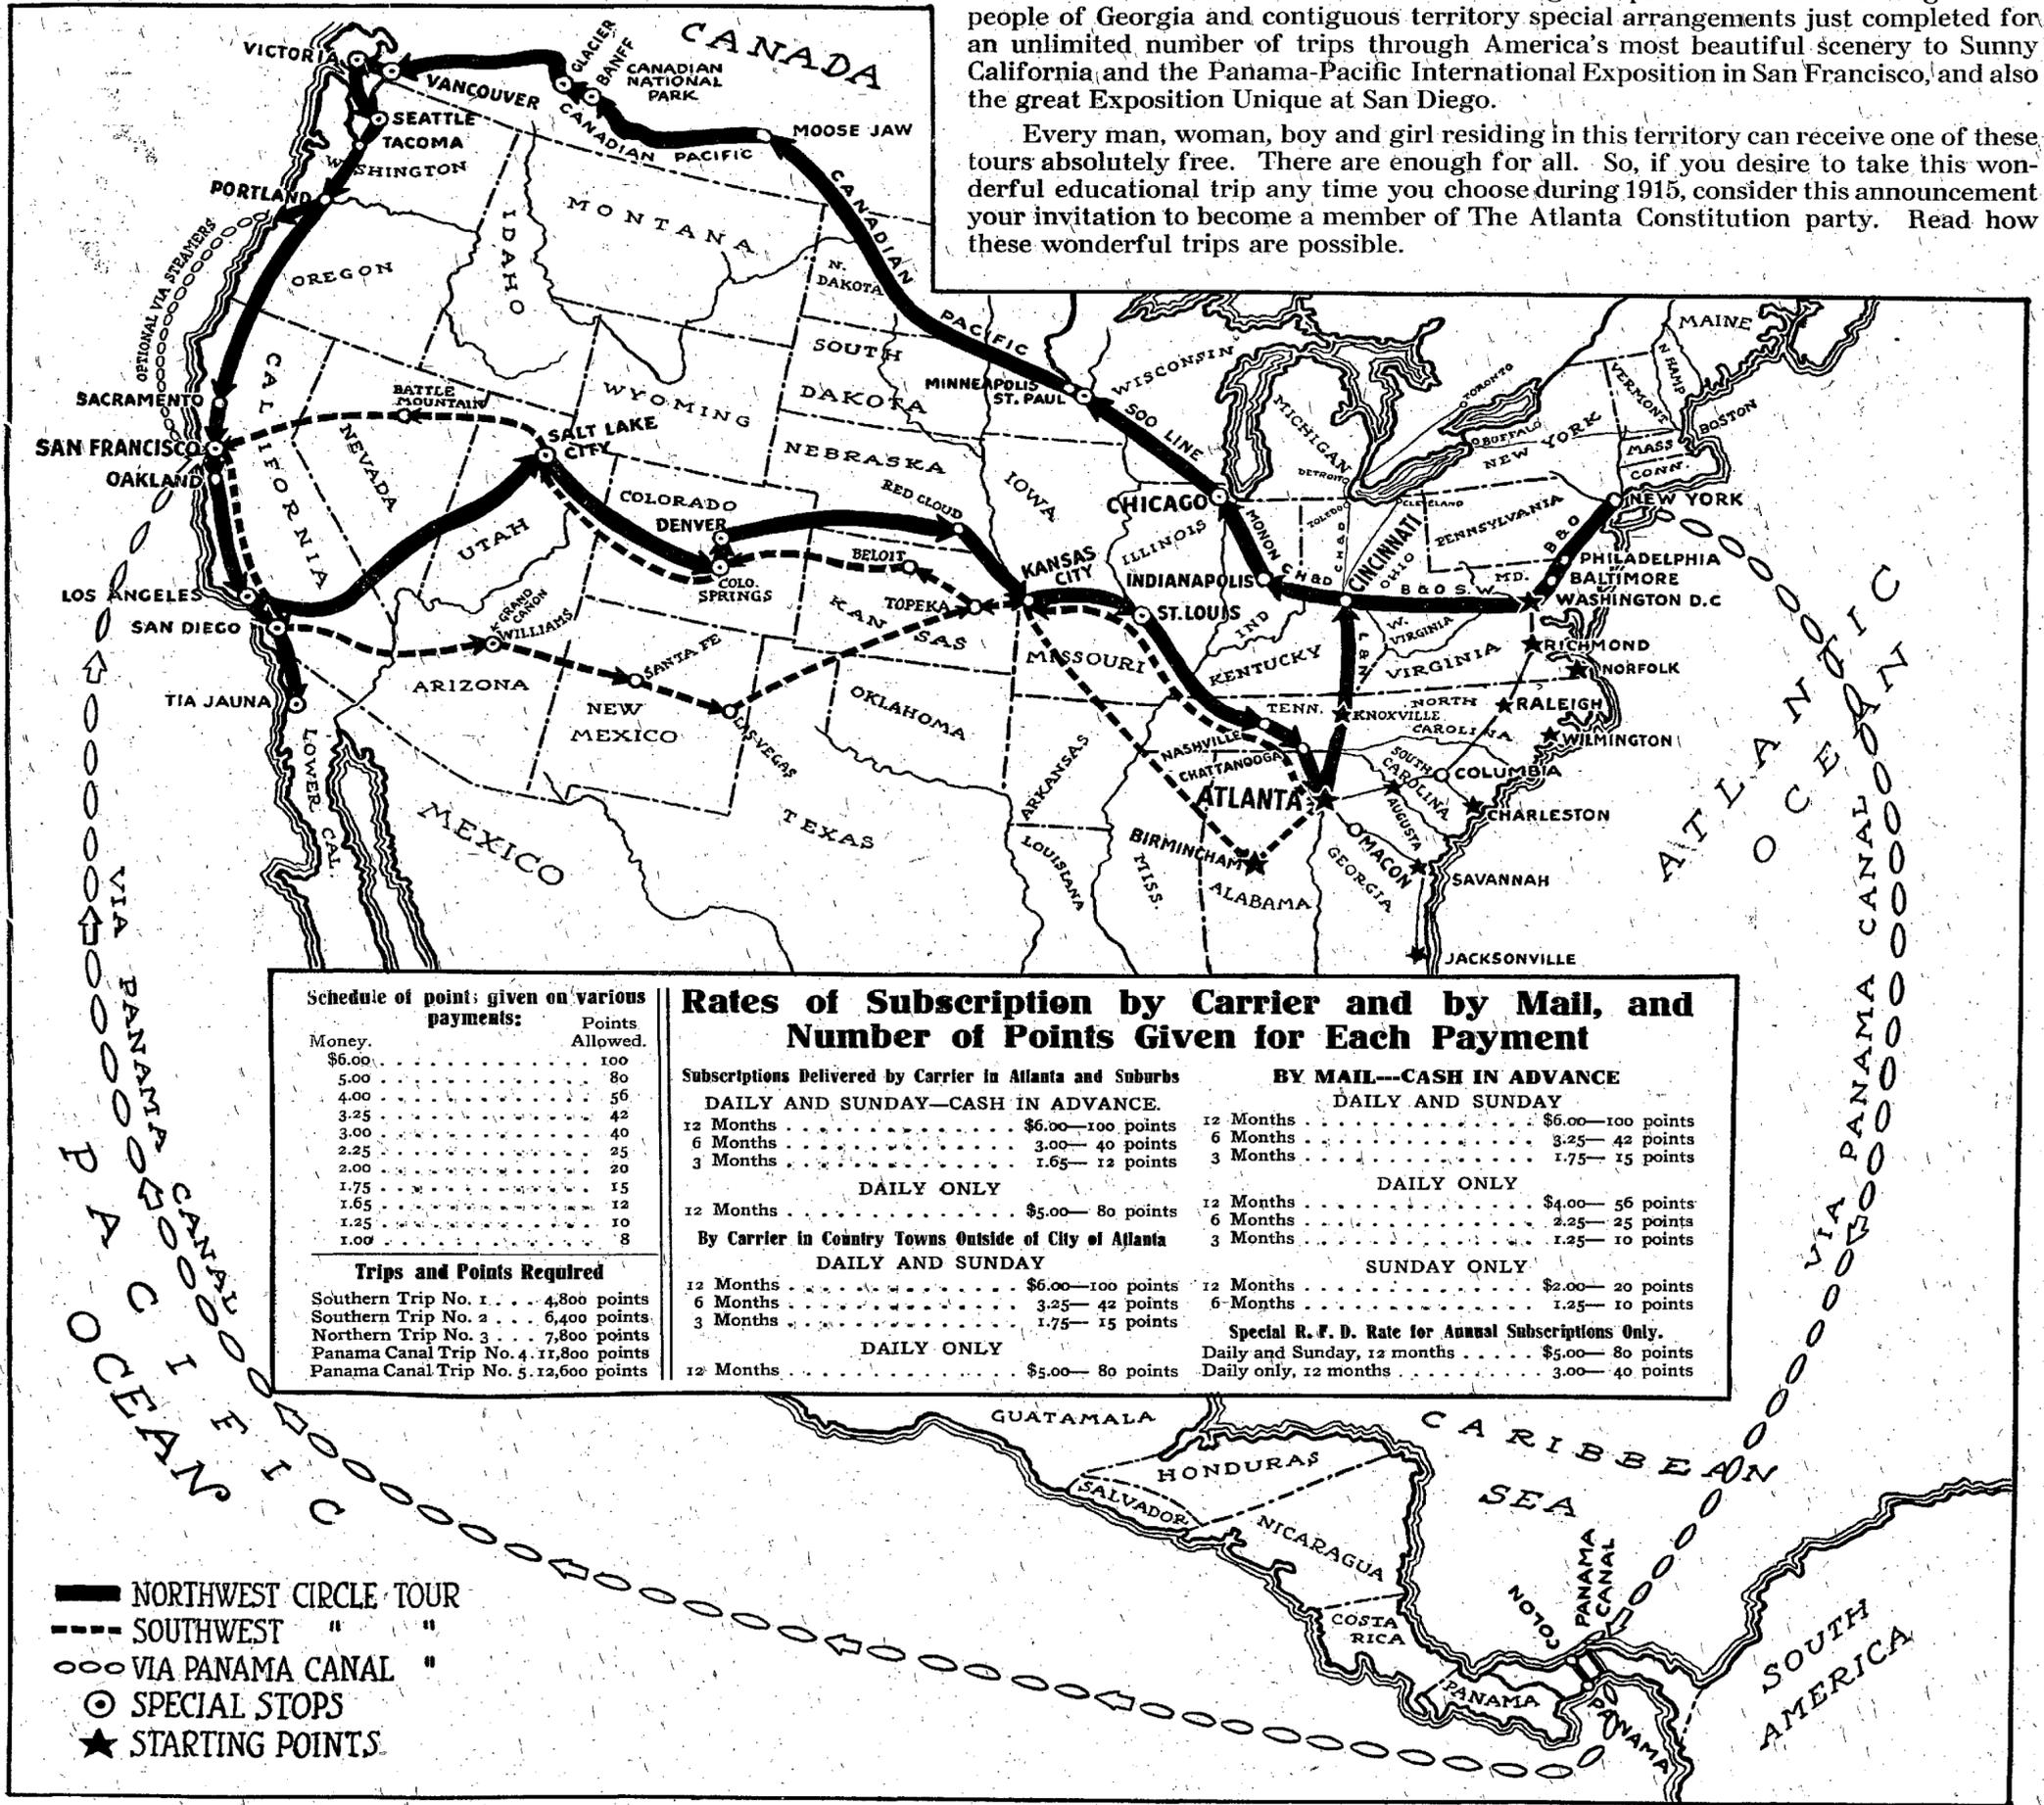

"Everything But the Horse." Is the well-known slogan of the W. J. Dabney Implement Company. Not a thing needed on the farm but can be supplied by it. The range of farm tools runs the gamut all the way from the tinnest of earth picks to the largest and speediest of engines, vehicles or automobiles. One of the leading things on which the company specializes is the Vulcan plow, made by the Vulcan Plow Company of Evansville, Ind. Seven years ago the company took over the sales for Georgia for this line and an increase almost startling has been shown. The line of vehicles include Atlanta agency for White Hickory, Milburn, and Hackney wagons—all well known and popular makes. Also Norman, Elmore, Rock Hill, Smith-Barnesville and Hackney buggies, besides numerous other lines. The company handles the Johnson Harvester Company's mowers, binders, hay rakes and harrows. Two lines of gasoline engines are sold—the John Lawson Manufacturing Company, of New Holstein, Wis., and the line made by the Middletown Machine Company, of Middletown, Ohio. The assortment includes every size from a small runabout engine up to the larger sizes for any purpose. Kelly duplex feed grinders, made by the Duplex Mill and Manufacturing Company, of Springfield, Ohio, are among the popular machines handled. The Dabney Company is also state agent for the Williams corn mill, made by the Williams Manufacturing Company, of Philadelphia. Among the improved implements, none are more universally used than the Planet Jr. line of riding and walking cultivators made by S. L. Allen Company, of Philadelphia. The company also operates a fence department, making a specialty of the Page fence, under the supervision of Mr. Robertson. It also operates a contract department, erecting fences of various kinds throughout this section. The Ann Arbor Machine Company, of Ann Arbor, Mich., supply the Dabney Company with power hay presses. One of the largest lines carried by the company is the ensilage cutters and shredders made by the Jos. Dick Manufacturing Company, of Canton, Ohio. HOW YOU CAN OBTAIN A TRIP

The plan evolved by The Atlanta Constitution whereby you can take one of these wonderful trips as outlined is as simple in understanding as it is easy of execution. Although The Constitution has a large circulation, there are some who at present are not subscribers. They want the Daily and Sunday Constitution, but have put off ordering from day to day. The Constitution desires your assistance in locating and placing these people on its subscription list, and for this favor you are to be liberally rewarded.

Points will be given on each new subscription payment to The Atlanta Constitution according to the schedule given above and after you have obtained the required number of points a wonderful trip to the greatest of all expositions will be yours.

You may nominate yourself or a friend as a candidate for one of these trips. The names of all candidates nominated will be published in The Daily Constitution from time to time, giving their respective standing.

Each candidate on nomination will be credited with 100 points free, and will be provided with an authorized Constitution receipt book. These receipt books may be had by applying to the Circulation Department of The Constitution. Each candidate obtaining one of these free tours may take the trip to San Francisco any time during 1915 he or she may desire. The exposition opens on February 20, and closes December 4, 1915.

Special arrangements have been made with the McFarland Tourist Agency to furnish the various trips we are offering and the starting point of all of the successful candidates will be Atlanta. If you want to go to the exposition this is your opportunity. Send in your nomination at once and request The Constitution Receipt Book, full description of "Itinerary" and complete instructions. Plays by Houghton And Shaw.

The most hilarious meeting to which the Drama League has yet treated its members will be that of next Tuesday afternoon, when different members will give a reading rehearsal of two little one-act plays, "The Phipps," by the late Stanley Houghton, is a delectable one-act comedy, in which an English butler most unexpectedly reveals himself as a human being, and the second, "Press Cuttings," by the inimitable George Bernard Shaw, is a skit which hits indiscriminately at English politics, suffrage, militarism and a host of kindred topics. The two little plays will be delightfully interpreted by Mr. Robert Moore, Mr. Franklin McKell, Mr. Thornton Marye, Mr. Milton McGovern, Mrs. Jantagin, Mrs. Ransom Wright, Mrs. Spiker and Miss Helen Stewart.

Children's Party.

Mrs. E. E. Cummings entertained in honor of her young daughter, Agnes Bernice, on Monday afternoon at her home on Oakland avenue, in celebration of her third birthday. The party was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Delicious refreshments were served.

Notice to Baptist Churches.

The members of the Ladies' Aid and Missionary societies of the Baptist churches are cordially invited to attend the quarterly meeting of the Jubilee Mission union at the First Baptist church, Friday, January 23, at 8 o'clock.

New Era Study Club.

The last meeting of the New Era Study club was held at the home of Mrs. Philip Keeney, 54 Woodward avenue. The topic for study was a continuation of the tour through Europe, the countries being Belgium and Holland. Mrs. J. B. Allen read a bright paper on "Busy Belgium," which was discussed by the ladies present. Mrs. S. B. Bissan then gave a delightful paper on "Holland, the Country Below the Sea," which was also discussed. The next topic was the first chapter of the annual club story, which was given by Dr. Florence T. Truax. This proved to be a mystery story, "The Quest of the Popaz Ring," which was listened to with breathless interest. The first chapter gave the story of a family jewel, the possession of which brought joy to the wearer, and the loss of which ways followed any act of deceit on the part of the recipient.

Sorority Dance.

Miss Mildred Woodward and Miss Sarah Pearl Martin entertained their Sorority of Washington seminary and a number of their other friends last night at the G. M. A. dance hall. The dance hall was attractively decorated in G. M. A. colors—red and white. Miss Mildred Woodward was prettily gowned in a green satin lace chiffon, and Miss Sarah Pearl Martin was charming in a blue green chiffon. A five-piece orchestra discoursed popular dancing music during the evening. The newest steps were in evidence. There were sixteen dances, and many extras. That they thoroughly enjoyed the dancing was proven by the numerous encores insistently called for at the end of nearly every number.

Beautiful Tribute Paid by Mrs. Peel.

At a recent meeting of the Joseph Hershman chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, Mrs. William Lawson Peel paid beautiful tribute to the late beloved Mrs. William M. Nixon when she spoke of her. "Sweet as the breath of summer flowers, those lovely flowers so dear always to the heart, is the memory of our late companion, Mrs. William M. Nixon. Nixon was among the earliest members of this chapter, No. 39, and was for years our first vice regent, declining repeatedly the nomination for the regency. She was the daughter of

Tuberculosis Literature For Schools of Atlanta

The educational department of the Anti-Tuberculosis association, with Dr. J. Wade Conkling chairman, has organized an educational campaign that is to be an important feature of the work of the association during the coming year.

At a recent meeting of the educational department Dr. Shallenberger, chairman of the instructive literature committee, announced that 20,000 tuberculosis catechisms are being printed to be distributed throughout the public schools of Atlanta, with an additional 5,000 to be distributed throughout the state by the Raoul Foundation. Dr. Shallenberger told of having interviewed Mr. Slaton, who has given his approval and indorsement of the catechism to be distributed to the pupils of the city's schools. Mr. Slaton recognizes the movement as being of educational value, as the catechism will give the pupil a clear, concise understanding of tuberculosis as being a disease that is communicable and preventable. Mr. Slaton plans to write each principal of the city schools a letter indorsing the plan as being an important feature in the work of the school term.

All grades from the fourth grade up to the highest grade will receive the catechism. After the pupils have been given ample time in which to gain a complete understanding of the questions and answers in the tuberculosis catechism, it is the purpose of the association to have the pupils write competitive compositions. Eight prizes will be offered the high school pupils. The prizes are to be unusually attractive, and it is hoped that the results of thorough preparation for the compositions will be of far-reaching value, not only in the information gained by the pupil, but in the information that will be taken into the home.

It is very difficult to present a topic that is so important and so thorough as included in the work of the public schools of the city, but the good results to be accomplished by the tuberculosis catechism prize contest is so far-reaching that Mr. Slaton unhesitatingly gives the movement his support.

Aid From Pupils.
The pupils of Atlanta's schools worked heroically in aiding the Anti-Tuberculosis association to raise a fund as the foundation for the open-air school in West End. Again the pupils are being called upon as first and most important aids in the handling of an educational campaign against tuberculosis. The catechism contest is the first step in the educational plan that the association will pursue during the coming year; the second step includes the family and the home.

The ablest authorities in the fight against tuberculosis assert that the only way to destroy a communicable and preventable disease is to educate the people to a complete and thorough understanding of the hygienic and sanitary laws that combat the disease.

The Ideal Plan.
The ideal apartment for the care of tubercular families was created in New York by the Vanderbilt family. Instead of taking the patient from his family, the entire family is admitted into the apartment and permitted to live a normal home life. The medical regime adopted is that of the best sanatoria and hospitals. More advanced cases are segregated, with ample provision made for patients to work in proportion to their increasing strength. Conspicuous features of the home hospital are a bright roof garden or in the park near by. Absolute rest for those who need it, with medical oversight, nursing care and home inspection. A fresh-air school for the children is held on the roof garden, and instruction is regularly given to adults in cooking, sewing, nursing, care and feeding of infants, also instruction in personal cleanliness, hygiene and sanitation. When the family is about to be discharged from the home hospital, the securing of employment and a sanitary home complete the care provided.

Similar to New York Work.
What is being accomplished in the home hospital in New York is the basic principle upon which the Anti-Tuberculosis association is working to accomplish in the individual family home life in Atlanta. The medical regime is in charge of the trained nurses and physicians of the association. When the patient remains with his family, the patient and the family receive instruction and training in the open window and outdoor life. Patients are taught how to rest and how to exercise; the adults are instructed in the care and feeding of the sick and helpless; also how to apply the best hygienic and sanitary laws.

The results of an earnest effort to educate as well as to relieve those who are sick and suffering is encouraging to the leaders of the Anti-Tuberculosis association, who recognize tuberculosis as being a disease of enormous and a hereditary affliction. With the catechism that is being taken into the homes of 20,000 pupils of the city, the foundation for an educational work is being laid for future generations.

To Mrs. Wells.

Mrs. Ernest G. Bentley entertained at a rook party Wednesday evening in honor of her sister, Mrs. R. H. Wells, of Alabama, who is here guest.

The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Evans, Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Oobbs, Mr. and Mrs. Byron C. Kline, Mr. and Mrs. Ben McCray, Mr. and Mrs. James Harold Wright and Mr. John S. Chambers.

CLEO MADISON THURSDAY AT THE ALPHA THEATER

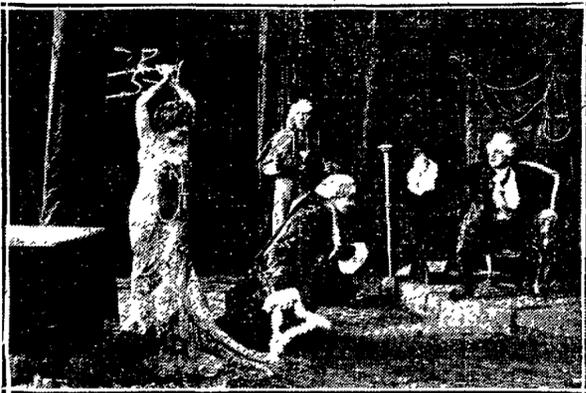

"A Woman's Debt," the Drama Which Marks Her Return to Regular Program.

In addition to showing on Monday the seventh installment of the intensely interesting Universal serial "The Master Key," Manager Al Fowler promises his patrons a fine program every day this week. For Thursday he has secured a two-reel drama featuring the popular Universal star, Cleo Madison, in "A Woman's Debt."

The tragic climax in the seventh episode of "The Master Key," shown tomorrow, will certainly astound the spectator, for it comes close upon the heel of Doro's road night to Ruth in the upper corridors of the hotel, upon which both their doors opened. Just when the audience expect a charming ending to a busy day the action commences with all the suddenness of a 42-centimeter shell plunging through one's breakfast table. In fact, the whole installment is full of surprises.

"A Woman's Debt" is a two-reel number, written by Bess Meredith with Cleo Madison and Joe King in the leading roles. The girl is loved by her wealthy young employer and also a baseball star. She marries the former to help her poverty-stricken parents. In later years the baseball player turns up as a designing villain. The situation is where she locks him up in a vault to save her honor. Later her husband comes and she knows that her love for him is real. It is a strong picture and well photographed throughout.

Mrs. Leslie Carter in "Du Barry"

Scene from gorgeous photo spectacle coming to the Montgomery February 2-3.

To gather together from San Francisco to London, England, the long dismembered cast that made "Du Barry" famous as a stage play, and to send these units to a remote point in the foothills of the Alps to re-enact for motion pictures the beautiful tragedy which delighted millions and made them severally famous, is something of a feat even in these days of expensive picture making.

Yet that is what George Kleine did to immortalize the story of "Du Barry." In the manufacture of this film upwards of $125,000 was consumed. Mrs. Leslie Carter, who made the play famous and her original supporters, Hamilton Revelle, Richard Thornton and Campbell Gollan, spent six months at the big Kleine studio in Grugliasco, Italy, in the foothills near Turin.

"Du Barry" will be seen at the Montgomery theater February 2 and 3.

Jeannette Vaubernier, a milliner's assistant, employed in a Paris hat shop, falls into the clutches of an impetuous nobleman, Jean Du Barry, who operates a fashionable gambling house. She goes with him one day to see the king pass, and that night accompanies him to the gambling house, after she had promised her lover, De Cosse Brissac, to picnic with him in the woods later. She goes to the opera with Du Barry, where the king sees and becomes infatuated with her. By an arrangement with Jean Du Barry, Jeannette becomes his brother's wife, and so has her position at court firmly established. She becomes at once the most despised and admired woman in all France. De Cosse, after several ineffectual attempts to win her back, with Jean Du Barry, and by order of the king is thrown into prison without her knowledge. He escapes, leads a revolt against the king, and one day makes his way wounded to Jeannette's apartments. She hides him in her bed and so deceives all but Du Barry. She bribes the reprobate with two hundred thousand francs to keep silent, which he does until a favorable opportunity arrives, when he tells the king, Louis XV, of her conduct. The death sentence to life imprisonment in the bastille if she will declare publicly that she only hid Cosse to give him up to the king. To this she agrees. Eighteen years later, during the French revolution, the tribunal of Paris decrees her death, despite his earnest intercession, and he is the unwilling witness of the guillotine execution the following morning.

The film is in six parts, and moves rapidly. There are numerous thrills, luxurious settings and the photography is the clear, steel blue, possible only to

BEATRIZ MICHELENA AT THE MONTGOMERY

Film Version of Famous Opera a Picture of Artistic and Dramatic Value.

The management of the Montgomery theater announces for tomorrow Beatriz Michelena in a film version of "Mignon." Much favorable comment has been given this picture by reviewers, that of Peter Milne of The Motion Picture World being as follows: "Mignon" was originally an opera, under the name of "William Meister," founded on Goethe's novel of the same name. The story it presents is one of great power and of an equal amount of interest.

"The photography and scenes deserve more than usual mention. Almost every scene is clearly and well photographed. Again some of the prettiest views in the entire picture were filmed with the water forming a magnificent and extensive background. Combined with these excellent effects are the gorgeous costumes worn by the cast, belonging to the eighteenth century period. The artistic value of the film is almost equal to its dramatic value and the two united make the picture quite perfect.

"A simple yet clever expedient is used by the director in the last reel for creating the most intense interest. There is a fire and a duel occurring at the same time, merely showing the burning palace with Mignon entrapped in one of the rooms and then flashing to the two men dueling with all the skill of experienced duellists, the eyes of the spectators are never allowed to leave the screen for a moment.

"The story is one of great interest all the way, it has been well constructed and the result is that there are many fine scenes which grip one with their power and intensity. On the other hand, there are a number of comedy scenes, which will bring from the audience the most hearty and appreciative laughs.

"Beatriz Michelena is cast as Mignon, the girl that is stolen from her father by the revengeful gypsy and brought up by them until a good-hearted actor buys her from her tormentors and cares for her until she finds her father. His mind becomes unbalanced for many years until his daughter and the sight of his old home restores his memory. House Peters is the actor who finally spots where Linden lies, he finds the man dead.

make one more effort to enrich himself. Knowing that Helen has placed all her valuable engagement gifts in her room, the man climbs up one of the balcony columns and enters the girl's room by way of the window. Grace, endeavoring to console Helen, accompanies the girl to her room. They enter in time to catch Linden at work. Grace grapples with him. The sound of the struggle brings George and his mother to the scene. Linden breaks from his wife's grasp and makes a flying leap through the window. George sees the scoundrel land heavily on the ground. When the boy approaches the spot where Linden lies, he finds the man dead.

Tom Other, who works in the hardware shop in the same store as Nellie, gets a similar "hunch." So he goes to the same resort. The two had never met previously and after introductions, each believing the other to be just the person they pretend to be, there is a love match. Later Tom is assigned to a counter opposite Nellie and of course the secret is out. What happens then affords a climax of unusual interest.

Marie Doro, in "The Morals of Marcus," plays the part of a pretty refugee from a Turkish harem. And she plays it well. She has an all-star company to assist her and the drama is absorbingly interesting from start to finish.

Nearly every theater-goer knows Beulah Poynter—especially those who live in the south, since she has played in this section many times. Her part in "Born Again" is the best she has ever played. The play itself is one of spectacular realism and it is due to create a big sensation here.

STARS OF MAGNITUDE FEATURED AT GRAND

Edith Taliaferro, Marie Doro and Beulah Poynter in Photo-Plays of Merit.

Three stars of much magnitude will be featured in this week's program at the Grand—Edith Taliaferro, Marie Doro and Beulah Poynter.

Monday and Tuesday, "Paramount days," the attraction will be pretty Miss Doro, conceived to be one of this country's greatest stars, she will be entered in "The Morals of Marcus," the best play from the pen of that great American playwright, William J. Locke.

Tuesday and Wednesday Miss Poynter will star in "Born Again," a spectacular and realistic drama that is bound to create a great impression. Thursday and Friday—two more "Paramount days"—Miss Taliaferro will be shown in "Young Romance," the play that attracted universal attention to the abilities of William C. De Mille as a playwright "truly American." The Grand theater is the only place in Atlanta booking the famous Paramount releases.

In "Young Romance" Miss Taliaferro reaches the zenith of her theatrical career. She plays the part of a shop girl in the notions department of a big store. When she saves $100 she takes a notion that she'd like to disport herself for a week at a fashionable seashore resort as a real "society" girl. And she adopts the plan.

Tom Other, who works in the hardware shop in the same store as Nellie, gets a similar "hunch." So he goes to the same resort. The two had never met previously and after introductions, each believing the other to be just the person they pretend to be, there is a love match. Attracted by Mrs. Tully's efforts to break into society, Carl Linden, a parasite, contrives to meet the woman and her family. He cleverly manages to make the socially-ambitious mother believe him a nobleman. Mrs. Tully's son, George, falls in love with Grace, a Salvation Army worker. The girl, however, refuses to marry him, and begs the boy not to press her for her reason.

Linden becomes engaged to Helen, George's sister. George induces Grace to call upon his mother. Mrs. Tully is horrified to learn of her son's love for the Salvation Army girl. Linden enters the house just at this time. Sight of him causes Grace to start forward. A moment later the girl denounces Linden, declaring that he had deserted her three months after their marriage. While Helen, heart-broken, falls into Grace's arms, Linden flees from the house.

FURIOUS ACTION FILLS SEVENTH EPISODE OF SERIAL, "MASTER KEY"

Spectators on San Francisco Roofs Watch Dore Throw Man to Earth From Hotel Top.

Ruth's protector, Dore, is soon made to realize that Wilkerson is not idle. In an attempt to circumvent the latest daring plot of the villain, Dore is compelled to throw Wilkerson's tool, a former second-story man, from the roof of the Grand Hotel.

50c & 59c Lace Flouncings 29c

THE UNCONQUERED SEX IN THE PATH OF NAPOLEON

100 Years After His Downfall

A Journey of 20,000 Miles

The failure of the conqueror of Europe to capture a woman's heart, the failure of the most brilliant man in the world to turn a woman's head, is Mr. Morgan's topic today.

The story of how the great strategist was baffled by the female of the species, his relations with women and his attitude toward the sex, is part of the comedy of history, but it is not without its pathos.

As the prelude to the emperor's divorce, the story today is no less instructive than amusing.

Some one has made the discovery that Shakespeare, although he had 15,000 words in his vocabulary, had to repeat the term "500" on the course of his matchless story of the human race. Yet that magic little word has no place in the biography of Napoleon. In the most crowded life that ever was lived, one chapter was left blank.

Not that the great captain was a misogynist. It is really amazing to contemplate the time and attention bestowed upon the women by the busiest man the world ever saw. It is hardly necessary to hark back to the wild and absorbing ardor of his love-making days, when he simply had to love some one, if not the girl Desirée Clary, then maybe Mme. Permon, who protested she was old enough to be his mother, or possibly the ancient actress Montassar, who, the lying Barras says, was old enough to be his grandmother, and finally that "elderly coquette," the widow Beauharnais.

Nor does memory need to be refreshed with repetitions of those flaming messages to Josephine from that first Italian campaign, when the little corporal's pulse beat higher for love than for glory. The flames subsided, it is true, but not because the fire burnt out, as was only smothered. When the bitter cynic, Marmont, tells us that "never did a purer, truer or more exclusive love fill a man's heart of the heart of an extraordinary man," we cannot ask for a more credible witness.

TENDER FANCIES.

No woman seems to have touched that heart without leaving upon it an ineffaceable impression. Mme. Colombier, the little girl who picked cherries with the subaltern at Valence, needed only to address the emperor to have him upon wide his cornucopia above her no longer youthful or comely head and shower upon her a post of honor as lady-in-waiting at the court of Mme. Marie and upon her husband a barony with comfortable emoluments. Another maid of Valence, whose smile had cast a faint ray upon his melancholy path by the Rhone, found herself elevated to the station of lady-in-waiting to the empress, and Mme. de Montalivet, a member of the Ministry and a count of the empire.

Bearing everything from and doing everything for the most foolish and useless marshal because he was the husband of Desirée Clary, Napoleon said, "Bernadotte may thank his marriage for his baton, his principality of Pontecorvo and Savona."

Although his own sisters looked upon the eagle, which freakish nature had smuggled into their barnyard brood, as only a bird to be plucked, Pauline, none among them having the slightest emotion for him, he lavished fondness upon his stepdaughter, his sister-in-law and upon the Beauharnais nieces and cousins. "Hortense," he said, in his admiration of Josephine's daughter, "forcez me to believe in virtue."

When Princess Catherine of Wurtemberg came to Paris to marry Jerome and knelt terrified at the emperor's feet, he picked her up, gave her the awkward young German girl in his arms, kissed her and with his gentleness did more than any of the women of the court to place her at ease. In the Princess Augusta of Bavaria, wife of Prince Eugene, he inspired the reality of a daughter. His letter of instructions to the young husband disposes a sensible domestic code: "You need more quiet in your home. It is necessary for your wife's happiness and for your health. I lead the life that you lead, but I have an old wife who can amuse herself without me, and besides I have a young daughter."

The emperor's indulgence toward Stephanie, Aunt Fanny Beauharnais' granddaughter, whom he adopted as his own daughter and married to the Prince of Baden, made that prince the spoiled child of the empire. When Josephine brought a little cousin from Martinique, he promptly married her to the Prince d'Arenberg. But the marriage was an unhappy one, and the wife fled to her family. The emperor threatened to send her back in the custody of gendarmes, but he softly relented and gave her a liberal allowance that enabled her to dispense with an unpleasant husband.

NO SEX EQUALITY.

"Kind, gentle, persuasive women" were his choice, and such as they could get far with him. At St. Helena he said, "I wish to win the English for dismissing the ladies from the table, remaining for hours to drink and intoxicate themselves. Society is nothing," he contended, "unless ladies are present. They are the life of conversation."

But he would brook no self-assertion from them on any point. Because one of the ladies of his court seemed too aggressively to define virtue as if she were the discoverer of it.

He believed in training wives in the way they should walk. "To the Duchess of Palmata, wife of Marshal Bessieres, he said: 'Madam, recollect I am not your husband. If I were, you would behave very differently.'"

He would have no sex equality. Women, he insisted, would not be regarded as "men's equals, for after all, they are only the machinery for turning out children." He would have thanked a twentieth century emperor for his attractive program on the limitation of women to "children, church and cooking."

In his scheme of education for girls there were to be no blue stockings, "no false believers, no reasoners," he instructed the educators. "The weakness of the brain of women, the mobility of their ideas, their destination in the social order, the necessity of insuring them with perpetual resignation—all this renders the yoke of religion indispensable to them."

THE DREADED FEMINE.

An amusing dread and jealousy of the influence and independence of the sex are betrayed in a hundred of Napoleon's sayings. He really placed the women on a level with the English, the Austrians and the Russians as a peril to his mastery, seeming to look upon women as a competing sovereignty

A St. Helena Regret

During my reign I was wrong in not conversing more frequently with the ladies. I ought to have seen them every day. They have an independence of spirit not found among men.

seated upon a rival throne and disputing with him for the dictatorship of the earth. "A minister of state," he declared, "should never allow a woman to approach his cabinet, for he would establish a quarantine against this insidious enemy and make the empire exclusively masculine."

Such a segregation of the sexes as he proposed is nowhere more absurdly impossible than in France, where the great ladies of the salons, sharing in the discussions, the intrigues and the ambitions of philosophers and statesmen, were the fashioners of the destinies of the empire. The women of the peasantry, who have an equal part with the men in the councils of the cottage.

Even war is not suffered to interrupt the continuity of the sexes in France. The vivandiere, or cantine woman, dressed in the finery and mounted on the horse stolen for her by the soldiers, with her bag of brandy in front and her bologna sausage and cheese all around her, was at first the daughter and next the sister before she mellowed into the mother of the regiment, unless indeed she married in the meantime and became a duchess, like Mme. Sans Gene, or a baroness or a countess, like many others of her calling. Her tent was the club and her purse the bank for officers and soldiers alike, while she braved wounds and death in battle by carrying refreshments to the thirsty and famishing firing line.

In all the campaigns of Napoleon, his army was followed by his "love escort." Such a band of wives and children, actresses, dancers and thousand of adventurous women as never attended any other than a French military expedition, brought up the rear of the grand army in all manner of wagons and carts, on donkey back and afoot. With the fortitude of grenadiers and the snow of Russia and pausing at the foot of a tree to receive a call from the stork, the hardy mothers, with their babes in their arms, quickly overtaken the advancing columns.

In his earlier campaigns Napoleon tried hard to shake off this "love escort." But, although he threatened to smudge the faces of the women, they defied him, and there is no record of such a cruel punishment of their vanity. He took all possible precautions against any woman accompanying his army to Egypt, but many slipped aboard his ships as stowaways or in soldiers' uniforms. The eternal feminine was with him still in his retreat from Moscow, where women who had grown families in his camps and kept step with his legions for 15 years, left their footprints in the snow.

UNMILITANT SUFFRAGETTES.

Notwithstanding he had failed in his efforts to keep them out of his camp, he declared that "Women shall have no influence at my court." Affecting to brave air, he exclaimed, "What do I care for the little-tattle of the drawing rooms? All I care for is the opinion of decent peasants." It Doesn't Take Money or Antecedents, Either, for a Johnny To Jimmy His Way Into Atlanta Society in These Days

"It's Gobs of Small Talk and Bits of Small Change That Win," Says Britt Craig, Who Tackled the Four Hundred Once and Was Thrown for a Loss.

By Britt Craig.

There is a stage door Johnny and a soda fount Johnny—and, yes, such a thing as a society John! The stage door John, to qualify, must have taxi fare and Napoleonic nerve. The soda fount species nothing but a Bak macan and wrist watch. But the society John?

He must have merely a dress suit, a repertoire of small talk and an outfit of small change enough to buy a midnight stew at Childs.

It doesn't matter if father gave him the suit and if he saved the oyster money from last week's room rent and laundry bill. Society doesn't ask any questions in that respect. The mere fact that he has them qualifies him.

Without them he is an exile.

Society used to demand a coat-of-arms and a family history. That was a day that gave way to the day when you had to be ready-money. She must be carried to the big shows and real restaurants. And you must pay a little $15 taxicab bill with the same indifference you would tip the ice-watering heliboy.

But, now, where they once went in for family prestige and the big shows, the season's debutantes have gone in for the Rialto and small talk. The Rialto is composed of "ten-twenty-thirty" all-night restaurants along Five Points. You can find them there any time from midnight to 2:30 a. m., gay, giddy, decolletted, with dress suited escorts and an apparent appetite for fried oysters.

OH, NO! IT ISN'T A SLUMMING PARTY.

With them are yesterday's bank clerks who are tonight's social lions. There is much small talk and the jingle of smaller change, but there is a stunning array of dress suits and starched shirts. Maybe, the stranger thinks it is a slumming party! But if he drops in the next night at the same time if he is ordinarily observant, he will find it is a regular habit.

Why a debutante should eat oysters is a question that worries Siegfried, the metropolitan waiter who has just come down from New York, where he worked when the season closed at Atlantic City. Siegfried argues that a fried oyster and low-neck gown don't appeal to him as entirely consistent.

Yet, Siegfried doesn't know the requirements of the present-day eligible. You must give Siegfried time. He isn't quite accustomed to it, coming, as he does, so new from New York and Atlantic City.

It will probably take Siegfried time to learn that the society girl requires an escort much on the same order she would a lackey or butler. She must have something to carry her about and display the fact that she's being rushed this season. The chauffeur can't do it.

There is a big all-night restaurant along the Rialto that is unusually enticing. Morning newspaper men frequent it on their way home at 2:30. For nights the Sunday editor, a most observant man, had been harboring the idea that social eligibles didn't have to come up to the requirements of days of old.

IN THE DAYS OF OLD.

Homer George and Sidney Ormond, both equally observant, had the same hunch. Sidney, now the "man-higher-up" in the city hall, threw in those days when it was a question of heirlooms and antecedents. Homer, being younger, knew the days of big money and the latest shows. Each had seen a particular stage of society's evolution—or is it dissolution?

Newspaper men usually convert their ideas into readable matter for a public's delectation. The next morning the Sunday editor called me over and said:

"Have you a dress suit?"

"Not since I left Hall county," I replied with pride.

"Then go out and hire one," he ordered.

"But why?"

"You're going into society," he said with emphasis and assurance.

Not being mutinuously inclined, I took his word for it and went down to Uncle Isaac's for a "soup-and-fish" affair that had a stripe down the leg and a frost-bitten vest. I reported back for duty and the Sunday editor told me to go over to the lodging house and put it on.

When I came back, I imagine I looked like a Goldberg edition of "the man who hadn't prepared his speech, but couldn't overlook this splendid occasion to—"

IN SOCIETY FOR JUST ONE NIGHT.

I was destined to society for a night. A certain society personage framed an engagement with a budding young thing who had gotten into the papers every Sunday since her first night out, and I left the office en route to burglarize into the 400 with a dress suit and instructions from the office.

I went to the cashier's office and drew for expenditures enough money to finance the German army and caught a taxicab. The chosen girl was upstairs, evidently dressing—I couldn't account for anything else she was doing—but mother greeted me on the slippery rugs and gave my dress suit a searching optical inspection.

It must have come up to her specifications, for she dropped her lorgnette—I guess that was what it was—and said something about the weather, to which I articulated to the effect that weathers never worried me as I had a raincoat at the office.

Pretty soon there was an effish flurry on the staircase and down came the girl, a vision in creamy loveliness and satin slippers. She had blonde hair, and I was biased no longer. She advanced, and I retreated far enough to give her room. She raised her hand several inches above sea level and said a "how-dye-do" that I recognized only by instinct, not pronunciation.

I reached for my watch and pulled out a pencil. It took me a long time to get acquainted with the pocket arrangement of my new sartorial scenery. I put the pencil back and lost nerve enough to go after the watch a second time. Whereupon, I looked up for a clock and my gaze collided with the panel mirror. In it I saw the reflection of my new friend giving my hired suit a "once over."

"I suggested we go."

THERE WASN'T MUCH TALKING GOING ON.

We taxied to Homer George's theater. It was a good show and we had good seats. The Sunday editor, intent on making me a society man for a night, had overlooked nothing. She enjoyed the show, for she said so—even laughed at times. We didn't say much about it, however, one way or the other. There being little to talk about, we did still less talking.

We filed out with the crowd and caught the same taxi and rode to the Ansley for a big bite to eat. I turned over the kitchen chart to her with orders to wade in. She waded, and it tickled me, because the office was footing the bill, and I was determined to go as far as she went—which is saying a whole lot in this day and hard time.

We listened to the music and singing, ate a regular dinner and watched the crowds. It was, from my standpoint, a most enjoyable evening. True, we didn't talk much, but why should we? Why bombard each other with words when there was music to hear, crowds to watch and lobster to enjoy? Then we did a $3.50 taxi glide home. At the door she made a non-committal remarking her "very pleasant evening," but forgot to say goodnight.

WHAT COULD HAVE BEEN OVERLOOKED?

I had turned toward the taxicab

when it struck me all of a sudden. A chill of failure tingled up my spine. It began to dawn upon me that, as a society bear I was a tame house cat. I had overlooked something. It was most evident from the young lady's attitude. Something had been missing from the evening's program—something that branded me a social boob. I was ashamed to look the taxi driver in the face.

What was it? I was properly dressed—it had a glossy vest, too. I had carried her to see a good show, had given her good food in a toney place, and she hadn't had to walk a step of the way.

I might not have been such entertaining company, that's all true, because I hadn't talked any more than I could help. Neither had she. I don't know how she felt about it, but, for myself, I was afraid to trust my verbal self with a full-fledged debutante.

I hadn't pulled any rough stuff. I couldn't recall a single disgraceful blunder I had committed.

Ah, perhaps it was because I had failed to buy champagne.

It struck me a flop in the face the moment I struck the taxi cushions.

And how could redemption be attained? Certainly, it wouldn't be right to send her out an assortment of extra dry. Invite her to another night of it and overload her with it? No! I'd resign before filling another such assignment.

BACK TO BOOBLAND FOR ME!

There was no way out of it. I was a social fiasco. I could never be trusted again in the four hundred. Back to Boobland for me.

The Sunday editor surprised me with the assurance that I had competently filled the assignment.

"Just wait developments," he said confidently.

Three days elapsed.

The scene now changes to midnight of that third day. Folks around the office were closing down their desks, shutting off the lights, and the dim grumble of the presses down in the basement began to come up with the morning breeze. The city editor bade me come with him and we went to the restaurant.

Sunday night is about the only night in the week that you can't find debutantes and their fellows in one of these hand-me-down-quick restaurants. They must eat wieners, for certainly they are not to be found in any of the Rialto's havens for food and coffee. The Sunday editor and I sat at our customary table and waited developments. Presently there came the pulsations of automobiles out front, and, gazing through the big plate glass front, we saw two limousines—not taxicabs—drive up to the curb and discharge a load of swallow-tailed and decolletted humanity.

They breezed in as though their fathers' owned the place. Members of a "ten, twenty, thirty" musical comedy troupe sitting at a long table in the middle of the cafe looked up and wondered what was coming off. A lean-faced comedian speculated that it might be the waist of one of the newcomers—or, what little there was of it.

The girls seated themselves and the men threw their hats upon the rack. The girls carelessly threw their wraps over the back of their chairs. But their escorts kept their overcoats on as they sat at the table. Why, no one has ever explained.

WHY DO THEY KEEP ON THEIR OVERCOATS?

It preserves their air of distinction, maybe. Or do they feel that it is condescension enough to even pay tribute to the institution by lending their presence, without going to the trouble of removing their coats? Anyhow, they're just snatching a bite. It is so much trouble to remove a coat. Add there is the invariable peril of mussing the dress shirt.

Then, the question of precedent must have a lot to do with it.

If only one John had the nerve to sit at a table with his hat on, the next night would find every John in town following suit.

There was one really good looking girl among them. She was a peach-bloom blonde, and I have never seen such hair in my life. She looked as alien as a sunbeam in a basement. Her cheeks were flushed and her eyes radiated a spriteliness that gave the impression of a field daisy transplanted into a hothouse.

The others were hothouse plants. My girl of a few nights before was among them. She was now gay and lively, as much the spirit of the crowd as the peach-bloom blonde. She hadn't caught sight of me—evidently. She was too busy talking.

The girls filled the air with noisy chatter, and their Johns found it the job of their young and clean-shaved lives to outtalk them. The oysters didn't cut much figure. It was a tongue-feast.

But I noticed one thing: the more they talked and the more nonsensical they acted, the wider grew the smile of satisfaction on my Sunday editor.

CONVERSATION PLUS— IDEAS MINUS.

It was as giddy a crew as I had ever seen. They were nothing but giddy and hungry. Their talk would have found room enough to set up house-keeping in a mustard seed! Siegfried, the tolerant waiter, said, however, that it wasn't near so small as that: meal checks.

"It's a thirty-cent mob in evening dress 'n' Himmerzeens," observed Siegfried. "Now, if they was trouperers, I c'd appreciate 'em."

I couldn't forget my own girl. She was having the time of her life on small talk, small change and a half fry. My taxicab, mw show and our dinner in the Ansley had left her with a bad taste in her mouth. Oh, Lord, why hadn't I bought champagne?

"But you don't see any of those Johns buying lively water," remarked my chief.

Upon which I pondered extensively.

"You must be an institution to graze in social pastures," he continued. "Your society girl didn't want good amusements, taxicabs and swell eats or drinks. She wanted something to carry her about, show her off and be on hand whenever the occasion demanded."

"Well, it's not exactly in the capacity of errand boy, yet—"

"But why not hire a John the same as a lackey?" I interrupted.

"Why waste the money when they're buzzing around in droves anxious for duty," he replied. "Just so he looks well, can reel off conversation with 'eythers' and 'nythers' and 'cawnt's' without the 'thems' and 'aint's,' and can afford the 30-cent fare at the feedery, he's qualified. They have to have chauffeurs drive their cars. Well, so must they have a human vehicle to transport them along their path: Just so he'll pass, can buy oysters at midnight and can spare them all the time in the world, he's a social lion."

"Lots of swell talk, and a little small change!"

"That's the way I've figured it." I looked over at my girl, her mouth-busy with a hot cake and verbal frivolity. I recalled her icy adieu at the door the night of my own dip into society.

"Yes," I answered, ruefully, "at my expense."

 RYNOPIES—Doors open upon strange things. How many locked doors are there in this world? How many people are there trying to find "The Master Key"? Thomas Gallon found gold. He thought of two things: his daughter Ruth, and gold for her. Gallon died because his partner, Wilkerson, whom he thought he had killed in the desert, came back and demanded a share of his find. Wilkerson is seeking gold for the sake of a woman, John Dorr, the mining engineer in whose charge Ruth was left. Is also fighting to find the secret which Thomas Gallon apparently took with him to his grave.

Jean Darnell paced back and forth in the miserable room where Harry Wilkerson had lodged her and her maid pending the outcome of his wild plotting to get possession of Ruth Gallon's precious papers. Her handsome and cruel face was clouded with slow wrath and she clenched her hands now and again till the knuckles were white.

For one thing, Mrs. Darnell loved the plush of life. Physical luxury was her highest wish, the goal of her loftiest ambition, the one price she had set on her soul. The dull surroundings she had been forced to accept nauseated her. She hated Wilkerson for making her uncomfortable.

So when he came in, walking very slowly and quietly, she turned on him like a wildcat.

"Take me out of here!" she panted. "I won't stay here another hour, Ruth or no Ruth!"

Wilkerson flinched. "I'm sorry," he rasped, "but Drake made a mess of the whole affair, the police are after Sing Wah and that girl got away."

Mrs. Darnell stopped in her almost hysterical walk about the room and stared at Wilkerson with burning eyes. He returned her look defiantly. "I'd never had to do all this if you had done your part long ago and got the papers when she was in your charge," he said. "But there is no use in crying over what can't be helped."

At this moment Drake entered, presenting himself sullenly, he had already received Wilkerson's acid compliments on his astuteness in failure and he expected nothing less from Mrs. Darnell. He was ready to quit the conspiracy.

Jean's quick instinct did not fail her and she instantly smiled on Drake and murmured. "You poor boy! Now tell me all about it!"

When he had finished his relation of the morning's experiences, with much emphasis on the shooting and his narrow escape from Sing Wah's den, she looked at him thoughtfully.

"It was a madman's scheme," she said. She turned to Wilkerson. "Harry, you used to do things better. Use your wits! This isn't the desert. Force won't avail. And time is getting short. We must have those papers immediately and raise the money on them and get enough capital ahead to find the old plan to the mother lode of the Master Key mine. Use your wits!"

For a long moment the three of them stood in silence. Then Wilkerson smiled sardonically.

"All right, Jean; I think I understand you. I'll see what I can do today. First, I must find out a few things. Drake and I will go together."

"Thanks," said the young man dryly, "I have a notion that I'm about fed up with your plans and plots."

Before Wilkerson could respond with the bitter reproaches ready on his lips, Mrs. Darnell interposed, curbing her own unruly temper.

"George," she said, looking at him with suddenly soft eyes, "I know just how you feel. But it means everything to me—to all of us. I have trusted you so, and if you fail me now—! She threw out her arms in a gesture of pleading. Then she came closer to him and whispered, "And are you going to give up the stake you are playing for? You are in love with her!"

"That's but little reason why I should help Harry here out with all kinds of preposterous plans. That one of last night nearly did for us all. If she hadn't escaped, as she did the police would be at the door now."

"John Dorr is a stupid fool," Wilkerson broke in. "It's been mere luck that's helped him so far. Nobody ever crossed Harry Wilkerson yet and got away with it. Old Tom Gallon found that out."

Jean Darnell glanced at his feverish eyes and understood him. She turned to Drake. "Please do it for me," she urged again. "I know Harry has some good, safe, plan in view."

Once out on the street Drake sullenly followed his companion's lead into a still lower quarter of the town. Busy with his own thoughts and still shaken from his experiences of the morning, he did not notice that Wilkerson was evidently on the lookout for someone. Once or twice he stopped to think. Once he greeted an old acquaintance and carried on a low voiced conversation, of which Drake heard nothing except the name "Pell" and "he usually hangs out around Adam's pool room."

When Wilkerson rejoined him Drake said peevishly, "Where to now?"

"I've got my scheme and my man," was the reply. "It'll be plain sailing from now on."

They crossed the city and went up Turk street, walking more and more slowly all the while. Presently Wilkerson stopped and entered a doorway over which was a sign, "Billiards and Pool." Drake waited for him till he came out, which was almost immediately.

"We'll just walk on up the street," he said. "My man is around here somewhere."

A moment later Drake was surprised to see Wilkerson step to one side directly into the path of a pale-faced, quietly dressed young man of about thirty years of age. The individual stopped, stared at the man who had so rudely interrupted his walk and then recoiled.

"Harry!" he stammered.

Wilkerson smiled cruelly, but said nothing. The other repeated the name and went on, "Ars you here? Why are you here?"

His dread was so evident that Drake looked at him curiously. It was strange what a number of queer acquaintances Wilkerson had and how deeply most of them seemed to fear him. He listened intently to his companion's drawing tones.

"Yes, I'm Harry Wilkerson. I was looking for you, Pell."

The man he addressed licked his dry lips and essayed a smile. "Long time I no see you?" he said in an attempt at a jesting tone.

"How long is it, now?" Wilkerson said as if to himself. "You got five years—B."

"For God's sake, man, be quiet," whispered Pell.

"I—no one knows me here and I'm on the square now, too."

"You mean the police don't know you," grinned Wilkerson. "But then, I know you, old sport."

"We'll just go to some nice place and sit down and talk over old times," he remarked pleasantly as they walked on.

"But I've got a date! I'm working downtown!" protested Pell miserably.

"Working?" demanded Wilkerson mockingly. "Since when has old Sam Pell been working? Answer! Since he was broke." He laughed loudly.

"I came out here to live on the level," pleaded the other, his foxlike face white with fear.

"Things too hot for you in the torrid East? Well, I never went back on a pal, did I, Sam? And I'm not going back on you now. I'm going to put you in the way of some coin."

At this point they turned into a small Greek cafe and Wilkerson ordered coffee all around. When they had been served and were alone he introduced Drake and Pell and remarked to the former, "Sam Pell is known as the slickest man in his line—ain't you, Sam?"

"I ain't working that lay any more," was the sully answer.

Wilkerson leaned across the table and his lean face held a very evil expression on it. "Not workences from the time she had left the mine.

"It's all that man Wilkerson," he said when she had finished. "He caused your father to make him superintendent of the mine and then hounded him into his grave. He is your bad angel, Ruth; but I am here now and I'll get busy with Everett and finish things up and we'll soon be back at the mine and have things going again."

He answered her questions about the situation at the Master Key as tactfully as he could; he realized that her nerves were badly shaken.

He directed the chauffeur to drive them through the shopping district, and while Ruth spent several hours in replenishing her wardrobe, John sat in the taxi and studied things out. But he was continually seeing Wilkerson's dark face before him, and before they returned to the hotel he had determined to find out where he was and what he was doing.

While Ruth went to her room to dress for dinner John sat in the lobby and completed his plans. He did not observe a slender, quietly dressed young man with a very pale face, who sauntered in and out with an occasional trip to the cigar stand to light a fresh cigarette. It was Henry Pell.

The ex-thief had spent the day going from hotel to hotel, searching the registers. It was only at the last that he went to the Manx. There he ward the open window. Then Ruth understood, and screamed for help.

John Dorr heard that call and in three bounds was in her room. She pointed to the open window, gasping, "That way! The thief! He stole the deeds!"

Without a word Dorr leaped to the window. It opened on a fire escape. He peered down. No one. He looked up. A slight figure was mounting quickly and silently toward the roof.

Within another instant John had swung himself out on the ladder and was climbing rapidly after the unknown housebreaker. He paid no attention to Ruth's agonized cry after him, "John! John! Don't go after him. He'll hurt you!"

Helplessly she peered out of the window and saw the two figures, going swiftly up toward the crest of the building. The seconds seemed hours as she watched. Then she saw John stumble and catch himself. That decided her. She picked up her skirts and stepped out on the platform herself. Then she gingerly swung herself out on the iron ladder and commenced to climb upward. She saw the thief reach the cornice and crawl over, then John. She struggled on up, sobbingly, bruising her tender hands on the rusty rods.

Then she realized that there was another on the ladder below her. She nearly lost her grip and fell; surely it must be some accomplice of the thief by his life. So Dorr settled down to hold him until his wild strength ebbed and he could handle him.

Henry Pell, on the other hand, knew precisely his plight and saw with exactness what would happen to him unless he escaped the huge arms that tied him down. He gradually worked himself nearer and nearer to the escape ladder. If he could once get his hands on those iron rails and swing himself over, his assailant must inevitably either let go or drop over.

But the presence of a second man right in front of the ladder, as he perceived through his blurred eyes, rendered that hope out of the question. In desperate fury he kicked Dorr violently, tore one arm loose and drove his bony fist like a bullet into John's throat.

This forced Dorr for the moment to let him go. Pell rushed swiftly toward the ladder. He was halted by the sight of a perfectly level gun held in the hand of a man who evidently knew how to use it. He darted back and John caught him again. This time with a well directed blow that felled him. A second later the thief was helpless, lying almost at the very edge of the roof. He was trapped and he knew it. There was but one thing to do, get rid of the evidence that he had been thieving. With a flint of his elbow he managed to send the bundle of papers which had fallen out of his pocket over the coping and into the air. Then he choked up to Dorr.

"Are you mad?"

"Mad?" panted Dorr, letting his hold relax. At this moment Ruth came out of her stupor and ran up to them, followed up by an old man, who had also come up the fire escape. Ruth cried out, "John!" then "Are you hurt, John?"

"Ruth!" he gasped. Then his eyes lit on the form behind her and he shouted, "Tom Kane!"

By this time the tumult had attracted attention in the hotel and a half dozen employees and the house detective emerged from the stairway to demand an explanation.

John started to explain, loosening his hold on the prostrate thief, when the latter, with a quick twist of his lithe body, freed himself and darted away. Dorr sped after him instantly.

The chase was a short one. John caught him near the edge of the roof, tackled him low and they crashed down together. The thief put up a furious fight, managing to get on his feet again in spite of his captor's efforts to hold him till help came. Seeing that he was about to escape, John made one last desperate grapple, caught him fairly and threw him heavily, but not upon the roof.

Unwittingly they had got to the very edge of the roof in their fight and Pell was swung clean into the air to fall swiftly to the street below.

"My God!" cried the detective, running up and peering over. "You have killed him!"

It took some time to make matters clear; still longer for the detective to assure himself of the truth of John's statements.

Meanwhile, officers from the Central station had arrived, called by the policeman on the beat. To them, also, Dorr had to tell his story.

"Well, the fellow was a crook all right," conceded the sergeant, "for he had plenty of cocaine on him and a little jimmy."

"We'd better see what he got, if anything," said the detective sergeant.

"He may have taken other things," she faltered, "but all I saw was the papers."

"Well, we'll have a look-see for papers," responded the detective amiably.

When the officers had gone away Ruth turned and greeted the cook of the Master Key with unfeigned affection and delight.

"Tom! Whatever brought you here?" she demanded at last.

"Kane scratched his head and glanced hastily at John. Then he looked at Ruth, so fair in the moonlight, and said gently, "Why, Ruth, I just thought I couldn't stay away from old San Francisco when I knew you was here. So I came right up."

"And the mine?"

"The mine? Why, ain't John told ye? The boys are already workin' on that new lead. Everything is fine! We don't suppose old Tom Kane would have left if everything hadn't been all right?"

"How did you get up here?" asked John curiously.

Kane laughed and looked at his rusty hands. "They told me Ruth was in her room and when I got there I found the door open and the window open and when I looked out I saw her climbing and heard her calling. So I just sauntered up myself."

"Well," said John, "as Ruth says, she has a thousand things to tell you and meanwhile we'd better be finding out just what that thief did get."

Half an hour later Ruth looked up at them with tears in her eyes.

"The papers are truly gone," she said quietly. "Well, they shan't do anybody else any good." John said comfortingly, "and now that we have the thief I expect we can dig out of him what he did with them. Don't worry!"

They said good-night and left her quite cheered up.

When her door was closed John said briefly, "Come into my room, Tom."

Once inside he turned on the old cook and asked briefly, "What brought you here, Tom? What's the matter at the mine?"

Kane threw out his hands in a despairing gesture.

"All hell's the matter, John," he said bluntly. "If we don't work fast Wilkerson will have ruined our little girl in there. There won't be any Master Key any more!"

He choked back a sob. John Dorr stared at the window, at the lights of the city below him and shook his fist. "Wilkerson is somewhere down there doing his dirty work. I'll get him yet!"

"Meanwhile, he's got the mine in his own men's hands," the cook went on. "He left Bill Tubbs in charge and Bill—Kane choked over the words—"That drunken hound fired me. Fired me, Tom Kane!"

The old man's wrath, humiliation, chagrin and sorrow were not ridiculous in John's eyes.

"By heavens, we'll have the Master Key back again and it'll be Tom Kane in the cook shanty!" he said vigorously.

An hour later, with the details that Tom had given him arranged in his mind John threw himself into bed to toss the night through.

ing? But you'd do a turn for an old friend, wouldn't you? Specially when there's lots of good, safe money in it?"

As if hypnotized, Pell stared into the dark eyes fixed on his and swallowed chokingly.

"I knew you would!" said Wilkerson, wilfully misinterpreting his inarticulate groan. "Now to business, Sam!"

"Henry!" gasped the other. "My name's Henry now. Don't call me Sam."

"Well, Henry," said Wilkerson soothingly. "I declare, I do forget names so easily. Now, I want to explain my little proposition. It's just in your line, Sam—Henry."

Very rapidly and curtly Wilkerson told him of the existence of a bundle of papers that he wished to "recover." He laid only enough emphasis on their character to enable Pell to identify them on sight, and concluded by saying, "It's worth money in your pocket to locate them and get them back. Find a girl named Ruth Gallon in one of the hotels here. She has the papers."

Pell rose nervously. "Not for me, Wilkerson."

Wilkerson rose too, quite undisturbed. "We'll just walk down the street apace with you, Sam—Henry, and I can explain a little more clearly."

The outcome was that half an hour later Pell took fifty dollars advance from Wilkerson and promised to recover the papers for him. Before they parted, the latter made several little jokes which Drake could not see the point of, but which seemed to make Pell sick with terror.

"Who's that fellow?" Drake demanded as they were returning to their lodgings.

Harry Wilkerson laughed bitterly. "The best hotel worker and second-story man in America," he replied. "But he's lost his nerve."

John Dorr and Ruth.

Just how it was that she found herself again in the same room in the hotel Ruth could not have told after her terrible experiences of the night and morning. But John had hurried her into a cab, ordered it driven to the Manx and quickly made arrangements for Ruth to occupy his room with a maid to look after her.

"All my clothes are with that horrid woman," she whispered to him when he left her at the door. "I'll rig you out and then we'll go shopping," was the rejoinder.

With the help of the maid and the housekeeper Ruth was presently made presentable for the street and John, in dry clothes and none the worse for his ducking, met her in the lobby.

"I have engaged a taxi by the hour," he told her. "I think it will rest you more to get the fresh air and dig around in the shops among the pretties than it will to brood in your own room."

Ruth hesitated shyly. "But I have no money, John!"

"Oh," he said blankly, and then a thought came to him. "Why, here I am carrying around a lot of the ranch money which I was going to turn over to you."

Once in the taxi, Ruth told him of her experiences from the time she had left the mine.

"It's all that man Wilkerson," he said when she had finished. "He caused your father to make him superintendent of the mine and then hounded him into his grave. NEXT day, April 8, we made five kilometers out, as there was a full season of rapids on the river. On the first of the rapids, the boat, quick run a few hundred meters' portage, occupying, however, at least a couple of hours again. We again made less than five kilometers in the two days we had been making, nearly all through very shallow water. It was a long, slow, and it hardly could be said that this state of things could last, for the current showed that it would slip down these rapids as a girl slips through a county dance. The water was so shallow that it showed their noses under every curl. The country was lovely. The wide river, winding in one and then another, would wind among hills, the shower-fresh forest glistered in the sunlight, the many kinds of beautiful birds and the colorful butterflies stamped the peculiar look of the tropics on the whole landscape. In the morning the heavy dew, through a gigantic botanical garden. In the afternoon we got an elderly toucan, a parrot, and a colorful bird again. We had fresh fruit, and almost all the time we had engaged in wearily working out ways down and past rapid after dark in the moonlight. The most dangerous journey of explorers and travelers who journey along these rivers.

A Day of Smooth Canoeing

CAMP in the forest of PALMS

Every now and then some one says that the "last frontier" is now to be found in Canada or Africa, and that it has almost vanished. On a far larger scale this frontier is to be found in Brazil, a country as big as Europe or the United States—and decades will pass before it vanishes. The first settlers came to Brazil a century before the first settlers came to the United States and Canada. For 300 years progress was very slow—Portuguese colonial government at that time was almost as bad as Spanish. For the last half century, however, there has been a steady development, and this increase will be constantly more rapid in the future.

By mid-forenoon on April 26 we had passed the last dangerous rapids. The paddles were piled with heavy goods, and the men were tired, but the work went on. The narrow, winding river, crowded on either hand to the water's edge, and although the river was falling, it was still so high that in many places little islands were completely submerged, and the current raced among the trunks of the great trees. A block we came to the mouth of the Castanha proper, and in sight of the tent of Lieutenant Eyrineu we found the entrance to a small bay, a visit to a city was a very rare event, nor was there any overwhelming desire to go.

In short, these men, and those like them everywhere on the frontier, are not really contented with their lot. They are now playing the part played by our backwoodsmen when over a century ago they were conquering the continent of the Mississippi; the part played by the Boer farmers for a century in South Africa; and by the Canadians when less than half a century ago they began to take possession of their northwest.

BOOK REVIEWS

IN TABLOID

The author of "With the Allies" is was correspondent, with the papers of the Wheeler Syndicate of newspapers for the country. He is a man of letters, dedicated, without permission, to Albert, king of the Belgians, whose picture adorns the front page of the volume.

Mr. Davis says in the preface: "It has been said that in many places the author's capture as a spy, the bombardment of Rheims cathedral, the battle of Solbos, Paris in war time, and the capture of the government of the present great war. As Mr. Davis was actually in the thick of the fighting and his descriptions are the more interesting. They are the descriptions of a writer not only of great experience in war matters, but an intimate knowledge of the French basic theories of military conditions, but a man who knows how to handle his experiences of the battlefield as well as in matters of modern conditions. There are 19 full page illustrations, which add a great deal to the interest and the impressiveness of the author's account of the war in Belgium. (Charles Scribner's Sons, New York City.)

France and the Year. By Commandant J. Colin, of the French War School. This book is authorized by the French general staff as a full account of the French basic theories of military war, which differ as much from the German theories as the French democracy differs from the German. The French army officers have been studying this book in preparation for the great war. Professor Colin has carefully prepared these instructions, they are based on the details of the Boer, Russo-Jap, Franco-Prussian and other wars written by a French army officer, who is teaching in the French War School, therefore, it is introduced to our readers as a sound and practical manual of French methods of fighting.

Britain vs Germany. Author, By Friedrich von Bernhardi, von Germany and the Next War. This book was written a year later than "Germany and the Next War" and is even a stronger book. On account of the development of the European crisis since Bernhardi wrote his other book, he found it necessary to make this new statement of Germany's attitude toward England, and it is to the inter-less rejoiced to learn that Amlicar, the head of the party that went down the Gy-Parana, was also all right, although he had been taken by the aborigines in the rapids, and his instruments and all his notes lost. He had reached Manaus on April 16. He had gone home, he was collecting, he had been doing capital work.

On May 17 we made goodly to our camp at Barbas and New York. Zoologically, the trip had been a thorough success. (Cherrie and Muller had collected over 2500 birds and mammals, and a few reptiles, batrachians and fishes. Many of them were new to science, for much of the region they explored had been unexplored by any scientific collector.)

Of course, the most important work we did was the geographic work, undertaken at the suggestion of the Brazilian government. It was a piece of work of this kind is ever achieved save by the government. It is a piece of work which is ever achieved save by the government. Early the following afternoon our whole party, the Senor and Senora, started on the river to reach Manaus a little over twelve hours' swift canoeing to the mouth of the river. Our progress had been so slow and painful, from source to mouth, according to our itinerary and to the calculations, the course of the stream down which we had thus come was 900 miles, perhaps nearly 1000 miles, from its source near the thirteenth degree, near the fifth degree. Next morning we were on the broad river, the light breeze from the east, a beautiful tropical river. There were heavy rainstorms, as usual, although the sun shone brightly between the rainy season. In the afternoon we finally entered the magnificent Amazon basin, the mighty river, which is one-tenth of all the running water of the globe. It was many miles across, where a river is a narrow stream, and could not tell whether the farther bank, which we saw, was that of the main river or a tributary. We were still on the Rio Negro for a short distance, and at the morning of April 30 reached Manaus.

Manaus is a remarkable city. It is only a few years old, but it is one of the great cities of the world. Sixty years ago it was a nameless little collection of hovels, tenanted by a few Indians and a few of the best class of Brazilian peasants. Now it is a big, handsome modern city, with a population of 100,000. It has fine squares and public buildings, and attractive private houses. The buildings are a very foreign and attractive flavor in northern eyes. Its population is 100,000. It has fine squares and public buildings, and attractive private houses. The trip was interesting. We steamed down through rems and sunshine and the towering forest was drenched by the sun. The sun shone and sunset turned the sky to an earthly flame of many colors above the river. The sun shone and sunset turned the sky to an earthly flame of many colors above the river.

On May 17 we made goodly to our camp at Barbas and New York. Zoologically, the trip had been a thorough success. (Cherrie and Muller had collected over 2500 birds and mammals, and a few reptiles, batrachians and fishes. Many of them were new to science, for much of the region they explored had been unexplored by any scientific collector.)

IN the center is the newest season's hair-dress—the French roll. Deeply waved and twisted high on the head with a single large comb as ornament.
