

NO DELAY EXPECTED IN LEO FRANK CASE

Remittitur Will Probably Be Sent Down Either Today or Tomorrow.

The supreme court remittitur in the Leo Frank case is expected to be sent down to the superior court late this afternoon or early tomorrow morning. Contrary to the report that the illness of Judge Hill will likely delay the resentencing of the doomed man, it was stated at the courthouse that either Judge Bell or Judge Pendleton would be called upon in the absence of Judge Hill and that there would be no delay.

Following the receipt of the remittitur, Frank will be removed from the Tower on a writ of habeas corpus and will be carried before either of the superior court judges within the next twenty-four hours for a new execution date.

In the meantime, representatives of his defense are busy in Washington preparing their plea to be submitted before the remaining justices of the United States supreme court. It is expected that they will take action today.

RAISE FUNDS TO HELP LEONARD STREET HOME

In spite of the very inclement afternoon, about 40 people gathered yesterday at the Odd Fellows' auditorium at the rally held in the interest of the Leonard Street Orphans' home. This was the culmination of a ten days' campaign carried on among the colored churches, Sunday schools and other organizations of the city, and marked the beginning of a permanent, systematic, city-wide effort on the part of the colored people for the support of this home for the little homeless children of their race.

Judge W. W. Tindall, of the juvenile court, and Dr. Milton N. Armstrong spoke heartily and most sympathetically of the work, and urged their hearers to rally to the needs of the home and enable it to continue its work of usefulness.

President John Hope, of Morehouse college; Dr. Loring B. Palmer, Professor D. H. Sims, of Morris Brown; Rev. P. J. Bryant, Editor B. J. Davis, Secretary Harry H. Pace and the superintendent, Amy A. Chadwick, made earnest appeals for the maintenance of the work, after which a dozen churches reported $202.17. On account of the rain there were many churches which did not report, but which will do so this week.

The little children from the home sang hymns and melodies, and the Y. M. C. A. quartet also sang.

The home is situated at 39 Leonard street, and is always open to visitors and friends.

STIRRING PICTURES OF WAR IN BELGIUM OPEN GRAND TODAY

Monday afternoon, at the Grand theater, will be shown, for the first time in the south, the initial film of motion pictures brought to this country from the European war zone. The inaugural exhibition of these pictures will also mark the official reopening of the Grand under new management, Arthur S. Heyman having leased this playhouse for a period of two years.

The pictures are the most realistic battlefield scenes ever produced. They were taken in Belgium by Edwain F. Weigle, staff photographer of The Chicago Tribune, through an arrangement with the Belgian government whereby the latter is to receive one-half the proceeds of the film in this country for the use of the Belgium Red Cross society in its work of relief on the battlefields and in the homes of the destitute.

Short lectures will be given at each performance by the Hon. Joseph G. Camp, the noted southern orator. He will talk on the war in Europe and particularly that phase of it which directly affects Belgium.

JOHN W. LEWIS DIES AFTER SHORT ILLNESS

John W. Lewis, the popular and well-known assistant chief clerk to the local claim agent of the Atlanta and West Point railroad, died Sunday morning at his home in Marietta, Ga., following a ten days' illness. He was 61 years old, and has been connected with the Atlanta office of the railroad for little more than six years.

Before coming to Atlanta Mr. Lewis was chief clerk to the claim agent of the Clyde Steamship company at Charleston, S. C. He was well liked, especially in railroad circles, and had many friends in this section.

He is survived by his wife and one daughter. The funeral will be held from the residence in Marietta this afternoon, and the body taken to Canton, Ga., for burial.
